RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

Paul Patton, the Sudbury Star's peerless peeve of crystal balls is back at his favorite indoor sport.

The northern speedskating sensei who glares through heavily-bespectacled eyes at his favorite glass balls should retire his stock of safeguards inland.

Privateness when the pro Wolves of the northern town meets with defeat, the "Eyes" come up with the picture showing the Wolves played loosely. Never does it portray a better team on the ice.

The other night Patton day out his "Saving Eye," the one which was sent back to the hockey after it was partially cleaned by Western Ontario OHA sportswriters.

Looking for "sensitive" prey, the Eye descended on Milwaukee, where it spotted Mary Edwards, the controversial goalie, and the local boss Floyd Georgen.

It is not so much what it saw as it is what Patton made it see.

The swami pictured in the bloodshot optic a bunch of desperate McFarlands down on bended knee exhorting Edwards to join their goalie-hungry club.

He wrote: "Baliveau officials have been busy trying to talk Edwards into coming to Baliveau and coaching the McFarlands. And the money the Macs have offered involves a mortgage on the rink and the local bank."

He adds, after viewing the other side of the Eye—"Edwards is willing to go to Baliveau if his team's let him go. Coach Fuzz Gorgan and Edwards all but got into a fight the other day when Gorgan charged Edwards with deliberately fooling on several shots presumably to get his release."

Personally we think both statements come under the heading of "Eyewash."

In the first place the American amateur leagues have been playing Canada to assure when it comes to organization competition and in regard to the outstanding residence under mutual arrangement with the International-Ice Hockey Federation.

At least four Canadian senior "A" players skipped their home agreements and went to the "greener American pastures" where the local green was much longer than the local variety, and "where officials didn't give a tinker's dam if they carried releases or not.

And so far on the Macs offering a mortgage on the rink and the Edwards affair, the Milwaukee outfit demanded a Jim-Spare man for the goalie when brooked on the matter.

Also as far as Gorgan and Edwards scrapping over the charge that the goalie deliberately "fanned on several shots presumably to get his release," that is more Patton private eye-sense.

Any hockey member, with only a tyro's knowledge of his task, would immediately bench a goalie if he even thought the goalie was "fanning" deliberately on several shots. But the manager of a club doesn't do that. He knows their job, would start machinery in motion for a trade, sale or deal for the "saving" league of the gals.

And while on that subject Milwaukee finally paid the $150 expenses incurred by the Kitchener Dutchmen in the Edwards case. Later cleared, it season, to play in the USA, but he is not satisfied with matters in the International League.

And Mr. Patton's saving eyes should have told him—as it has the rest of the world—that Pete Palmer headed Milwaukee for $1,500 to get Edwards. That is the reason for the $2,000 tab placed on the goalie by the city whose beer made it famous when the Macs sobad "how much."

Floyd Curry Blasts Pollock In Canadiens' Family Feud

MONTREAL (CP)—The family-jarring feud between the two affiliates between Montreal Roy-Torm clubs of the National Hockey League Montreal Canadiens and Hull-Ottawa Canadiens of the Eastern Professional Hockey League took a new turn Monday when coach Floyd Curry of the Royals unloaded a few verbal blasts at general manager Tommy Pollock of Canadiens.

With the clubs scheduled to meet again tonight — this time in Montreal — Curry was still steamed up over last Thursday's game.

The Royals took a 6-4 pasting then in Hull but declared they won all the fights. It was a wild affair, with eight major penalties and undecided as many minors called, and Pollock sounded off about Royals defenceman Moe Mantha.

Pollock said Mantha speared no fewer than five Canadiens and that the Hull-Ottawa club wants the league to take disciplinary action against Mantha.

"This didn't help the ever-stoical-still nursing an injured shoulder,

Operations Are Suspended Following Loop Ultimatum To Pay Pool, Bond or Else--

CHATHAM (CP) — Directors of the Chatham Hockey Association Monday night suspended the operations of the Senior A Chatham Maroons following a demand by other members clubs to pay its debts or face expulsion from the league.

The other clubs in the Ontario Hockey Association circuit — Windsor, Walkerville, Belleville and Kitchener - Waterloo—voted at a meeting in Toronto Saturday to give the Maroons until midnight Wednesday to post a $2,000 performance bond.

The third-place Maroons were required at the start of the season to post the bond. They failed also to contribute 30 per cent of their gross gate receipts to the league pool.

The pool was set up to cover travelling costs, officials' pay and other administrative costs. Any surplus left at the end of the season is split among the contributing clubs.

Although Chatham was not represented at Saturday night's meeting, council meeting A. L. Hanna, president of the CHA, said Monday the local club has been posted because "we didn't have the money."

Questioned about why the team hasn't contributed to the pool, Hanna said Maroons "objected" to the pool from the outset. We didn't want it, that's all.

"Chatham paid in more money last year than any other team," he said. "The Senior league discovered they were still short at the end of the year and were asked to pay more. We still have teams owing us pool money from last year.

This year the team and the association have financial difficulties—mainly in dwindling attendance. The association asked the city council for a reduction from 15 to 12½ per cent in the municipality's share of game revenues.

The request was refused at the beginning of the season, but the commission suggested last week it was prepared to re-open negotiations in an effort to keep the team from folding in mid-season.

The other clubs considered the Senior League May Operate Chatham Club

There is a chance though, that the Ontario Senior "A" Hockey League will take over the management of the Chatham Maroons and operate it as a club for the rest of the season.

OHA secretary - manager Bill Hendley held the Ontario headquarters this morning but refused to divulge his views on the problem — and that likely the loop will remain a closed corporation.

The Maroons directors also had a meeting last night and "throwing in the sponge" after receiving a league ultimatum to pay $2,000 performance bond and pay 30 percentage of $2000 and contribute $1,000 pool fund or be expelled.

The Maroons and the Maroons with faithful their game obligation with the Windsor Bulldogs at the Chatham arena to say event the Bulldogs will play the Maroons if necessary as the McFarlands here Friday night.

average attendance at Maroons' home games—more than 1,000—was enough to operate a club without a deficit. They were critical of Chatham's claims that the Maroons were losing money, league if doesn't get a better financial agreement with the city attendance doesn't pick up.

The league also won't necessarily deprive Chatham of membership. Other clubs and OHA officials said Saturday night that if the present executive failed to pick up, the league would help Chatham reorganize and continue with a different group in control.

An association representative said Monday night the team will not play a scheduled game against Windsor tonight. Team manager Lockhart could not be found to the end of this week.

Hockey War Threat Averted When U.S. Amateur League Honors Menard Suspension

MIDLAND (CP)—The return of Minnie Menard Monday averted the threat of an international hockey war in which Canadian Allstater Hockey Association is looking into other cases of Canadians who switched to United States teams without transfers.

George Dudley, secretary-manager, said earlier Monday the CAHA will ask the International Ice Hockey Federation to suspend the U.S. Amateur Hockey Association because Menard was playing in New York despite his suspension here.

But Tommy Lockhart, president of the CAHA and operator of New York Rovers for whom Menard played, said Menard would be sent back as soon as the club learned he had been set down in Canada.

Informed of this, Dudley said no action will be taken with the IIHF.

Menard had been suspended for one year by the champion Belleville McFarlands of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior "A" league for his U.S. without a release.

Dudley said Monday night his organization is investigating the cases of several other players who have done the same thing, including two from Chatham Maroons of the OHA Senior A.

"I also believe some players from British Columbia are playing in the U.S. without transfers. However, these cases are not at the stage of suspension for one reason for another."

Brown Scores Easy Victory

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Lightweight champion Joe Brown kept his title intact under wraps Monday night and scored a dull, one-sided 15-round decision over Ike Parks of Omaha, Neb. There were no knockdowns. Brown weighed 136 for the non-title round fight. Parks, 21, scaled 136½.

Letter To The Sports Editor

No Ice Time

I have to wucks past read a couple of letters in the Sports Editor of your paper. These pertained to the methods employed in instructing the supervising of our young hockey players in Belleville.

My son plays on one of the midget teams. Three weeks ago they played on a Friday evening he didn't get on the ice at all. Two weeks ago they played on Thursday evening and he played four minutes. Last Wednesday evening he played two minutes and forty-five seconds; Thursday evening a goal and five minutes and forty-five seconds in three weeks.

Saturday morning evening a young friend of mine and I observed where other players who were allowed to play approximately five minutes each, for which time they scored. Despite their showing in that brief interval I did not see them back on the ice at all that evening.

A few weeks ago I advised the man in charge at the arena of what was taking place, but as far as I can see nothing has been done to correct the situation. I believe just an example of the time some of the favored have on the ice, please note: one defenceman locked two minutes of playing the whole time, another played forty minutes, 5 minutes, still another, a winger, played forty minutes. I personally cannot see where any deserving boy will get a fair break under such supervision.

'If You Will Fire Bowman I'll Get Rid of Turk Broda'

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Hockey Association Junior A Series, sometimes referred to as a major developmental ground for National League teams, was given a rough going over by several local representatives of the seven Junior A clubs Monday night.

Eddie Bush, former NHL player now coach of Guelph Biltmores, brought up three points during the evening of discussions, mostly involving off-ice habits.

"The way some of these juniors are dressing for the games in some of the out-of-town rinks is a disgrace to the world's fastest game," said Bush.

"My boys, while they don't wear shirts and ties all the time, go to the visiting arenas cleanly-shaven, with a proper overcoat and collar and tie on and look and act like gentlemen-sered athletes.

"Some of the guys that come to Guelph are dressed in jeans and jackets and wearing all day's growth of beard. This certainly doesn't impress the boys and does not help the club.

Another point was the lining up of the players while the National Anthem was being played. He contended that the players should stand and pay all attention along their blue line and points told to do up on Bettio, seven ahead of Tom Carthy of Sudbury and eight Bettio, seven ahead of Tom Carthy of Sudbury and eight start during recent Ontario Junior Professional Hockey League scoring race.

Carter scored once and assisted on three goals to bring his leading point total to 21. Bettio has scored 13 times and assisted on eight goals to bring his leading point total to 21.

Leland Irvine of Sudbury was out of action due to an injury, fell from second to sixth place, to points total Carter.

Tessier leads the goal scorers with 15 to his credit, tops the playmakers with 21. Most penalized player is Dino Mascolo of Sudbury with 54.

Claude Evans of Trois - Rivieres Lions tops the netminders, allowing 63 goals in 21 games for a 3.0 average. Next is Charlie Hodge of Montreal Royals with a 3.1 average.

Turner Not Badly Injured

MONTREAL (CP) — Defenceman Bob Turner, Montreal Canadiens' star was helped off the ice Sunday night during a National Hockey League game in Chicago, but he suffered no lasting injury.

"It was nothing serious," Canadiens coach Hector (Toe) Blake said Monday night. "He'll be at practice tomorrow."

Blake said Turner's ankle was numbed when hit by a puck. Turner couldn't regain his feet after checking Billy Hay, Chicago's rookie centre, in the third period of a game that ended in a 4-4 tie.

He was helped to his feet and was unable to put weight on his left leg as he limped to the dressing room.

Blake said it was feared at first that Turner had aggravated an old leg injury—but that was his right leg.

Turner's absence from the ice failed to provide a playing opportunity for rookie defenceman Reg Fleming, called up by Canadiens from Kingston Frontenacs of the Eastern Professional Hockey League.

Fleming, sitting in for injured Tom Johnson, played the first two periods Saturday night when Detroit Red Wings' Gus Canadiens 3-2 in Montreal. Fleming did not play against Chicago.

Blake had replaced Jim for the 23-year-old Montrealer:

"I think he acquitted himself very well. I was very satisfied with his play."

Blake said he would not hesitate to call Fleming up again the next time anybody is injured.

"And I think his chances of making the team later on are very good.

"That's what I hate about the game. You get a reputation for being tough and you have to keep it up!"

Bettio Nudges Billy Carter

OTTAWA—(CP)—Sam Bettio of Sudbury Wolves scored three goals and added two assists to move within six points of Hull-Ottawa's Billy Carter in the Eastern Professional Hockey League scoring race.

Carter scored once and assisted on three goals to bring his leading point total to 21. Bettio has scored 13 times and assisted on eight goals to bring his leading point total to 21.

Juniors Overcome 2-Goal Deficit Then Shade Picton Merchants 5-4

By GARRY ALEXANDER

A couple of goals from an unexpected source helped Belleville Lumbert-Bedford complete a comeback that eclipsed the efforts of Picton Merchants 5-4 in an OHA Junior game at the Belleville Arena last night before 150 hockey fanatics.

Defenceman Ted Kennedy, who hadn't scored a goal this season, netted the tallies that gave the winner at 13-16 of the third period, completed the rebound and a come-from-behind victory attack.

Gary Routhythem, Gary Coyne and Ralph Pesce scored Belleville's other three goals while Don Forsythe and Gary Reid had two assists apiece. Gerry Bedford, Bud Schell's replacement and Mac Hunter helped on Ted's goal.

The Picton line of Dick Proctor, Ron Wesse and Bob Wesse accounted for all the club's scoring points. Proctor had a pair of goals and Wesse accounted for the odd one each. Beatty assisted on the other while Wesse and Proctor brought the Hoe's production to nine points with one assist apiece.

The Merchants climbed into a 2-1 lead at the 6:30 mark of the minutes. Proctor fired the initial goal at 1.36 and Wesse made it 2-0 at 11.57. Ron Hall's tripping penalty at 12.38 left Belleville shorthanded but Gary Routhothem's good corner shot netted the club its first goal despite the handicap. However, before Hall's return Ron Beatty had put the paring scoring at 18.32.

Belleville came back with the only two goals of the middle-heat for a 3-3 contest. Kennedy scored the first at 5.46 of the backhander from just inside the Merchant blueline but was foreseed from a Belleville penalty and Wesse was still off for Picton's second trip to the box. Moments later, Gary Coyne rapped home a rebound from point at the 6.30 mark for his 12th marker of the campaign at 14.40.

Ralph Pesce gave Belleville the lead for the first time at 13-16 of the third, sticking home his way through a maze of players before beating Pendleton with a close-in shot.

Belleville goalie Gord Parker, who played his best hockey in the third period with several spectacular saves, was on hand to see the contest with a previous effort at 13.58. The Picton goalie broke fast around a Belleville defenceman and Ted Kennedy's shove high and the opener zig-zag.

Kennedy, who stuck to backhand shots all night after hitting the corner, made it 5-3 at 13.16, with assistance from Don Forsythe's aid. Kennedy's first try hit a fallen player's leg and the right back to the mid he quickly backhanded the rubber past a sprawling Pendleton for the final 5-4 score.

Picton goalie Beatty, coached by coach Gauvelle had his club checking hard both fore and aft to protect the one-goal margin over the seven minutes.

Referees Tim Williams and Vern Geyer handed out seven minutes penalty per side in a rather mild junior contest.

Black Hawks came up with their first victory of the year in the septet-division of the OMHA last night, a 7-4 win over the Bruins. Red Wings, Rangers and Maple Leafs won the other games.

The Hawks divided their goals among seven players, one each going to Don Carson, Andy Preston, Teddy White, Andrew Clarke, Dan Locke, John Bailey and Eric Lane. Alex Bradley potted two for the Bruins while Neil Goyer and Peter Drury scored singles.

Rangers blanked the Barons 4-0 for the night's lone shutout. Robert Carter fired two goals with Cliff Scott and Johnny Monaghan getting the others.

Maple Leafs edged the Browns 7-6 in a high scoring affair. Dalt Lambert and John Holgate paced the attack with two goals apiece with the others going to Joe Weymark, Jack Moore, Jim Jones and Ron Moore trigger-ed three for the Browns with Brian Bailey, Wing Lee and Rick McAlesahen one.

Bobby Hull, Beliveau Tied For Fourth Spot

MONTREAL (CP) — Bronco Horvath, currently an on-and-off member of the battered Boston Bruins' hospital club, has missed his second game but still clings precariously to the National Hockey League scoring lead.

Although he had to sit out Saturday's game because Boston broke up four assists in two games last week and holds top spot with 32 points. He has 21 goals and 18 assists and retains the five-point margin he had a week ago.

The NHL's new statistics, released today, show that no fewer than five players remain within sizable hailing distance of Horvath snatched his four-point selection, and Jean Beliveau of Montreal, the Canadiens' offensive fount points on two goals and three assists.

There was some switching of positions. Andy Bathgate, of New York Rangers scored two goals and two assists and moved into second place with 24 points. Bathgate replaced Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings whose previous week was one goal and two assists.

Howe, in third place, now has 15 goals and 18 assists, compared with Bathgate's 12 - 22 totals.

Fourth place with 32 points are Beliveau, at 18 and Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks. Hull scored one goal and three assists.

The NHL corrected a compilation error of a week ago when Hull was credited with a goal-assists mark of 16-15 instead of 16-14.

Similarly, Hull no longer shut-cated Horvath's assists but dropped from last week's fifth-place tie with Beliveau into sixth place.

Biltmore Stars Still Tops in Junior Scramble

TORONTO (CP) — As the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series nears the halfway mark of its 56-game schedule, Rod Gilbert and Sly Goelph Biltmores Ramella from Rouyn-Noranda show no indication that they are going to relinquish the top positions they hold in the individual scoring race.

Since taking over first place after the second week of action, Gilbert has continued as the top point getter in the league while Ramella has had to settle for second best.

Official statistics released Monday, including Sunday's games, show Gilbert, a centre, has amassed 46 points in 30 games on 16 goals and 30 assists while his right wing partner has scored 21 goals and assisted on 19 others for 40 points.

Centre Dave Keon of Toronto St. Michael's College Majors is in third place with 18 goals and 13 assists while Toronto Marlboros right winger Jim Pappin is fourth with 16 goals and 11 assists.

Jerry Cheevers of St. Mike's and Kenny Broderick of Marlies still are battling it out for the goaltending lead with Cheevers ahead for the eighth consecutive week.

The St. Michael's goalie owns a 2.62 goals-against average as well as two shutouts while Broderick trails with an average of 2.68 goals a game and two shutouts.

MISSILES SITES—Two launching bases are being built in Canada for the United States-built Bomarc anti-aircraft missile.

Preliminary work has begun on the bases near North Bay, Ont., and Mont Laurier, Que. American nuclear warheads will be stored in Canada for use with the missiles.

From these bases the Bomarc, with an effective range of more than 400 miles (shaded area on map), can reach eastward into New Brunswick, westward past Sault Ste. Marie, and as far north as James Bay. (CP Newsmap.)

AIR DEFENCE TEAM — Three CF-100 jet interceptors fly over the domes of a North American Air Defence (NORAD) radar installation along the Pine Tree Line. —This air-ground team keeps watch along the United States-Canada border for unknown aircraft approaching North America. The domes house rotating radar antennas which can detect aircraft in any weather and direct the planes to their quarry. The Canadian government still has not decided whether to replace the aging CF-100s with another manned interceptor. (CP Photo).

Decision to Scrap Arrow Left Vaccum in Canada's Defence Position Hard to Fill

CP YEAR-END REVIEW

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — When the blow torches were put to the supersonic Arrow in 1959, Canada went out of the big-weapon business and it appeared she might also withdraw from the manned interceptor field.

The decision to scrap the Arrow program after enormous expenditures of some $500,000,000 left a vacuum in Canada's defence position.

At year's end, nobody was sure how this vacuum should be filled and whether it could be filled at all. The rapid advance of the space age left defence departments all over the world groping for solutions to problems which themselves were far from clear.

SUICIDAL WAR

Only one thing became more clear: an East - West hydrogen war would accomplish only mutual suicide. Many Canadians began saying this country should leave the defence field altogether and put its money into something useful.

But the government signified its continuing strong support of the-North Atlantic Treaty Organization by deciding to re-equip the RCAF air division in Europe with the supersonic Starfighter strike - reconnaissance plane which will carry nuclear weapons.

It also announced that American nuclear warheads will be stored in Canada for defensive use in the Bomarc anti-aircraft missile. Preliminary work started on the two Bomarc bases near North Bay, Ont., and Mont Laurier, Que.

The government still faces a formal decision on whether to replace the aging CF-100 jet interceptor with the nine RCAF fighter squadrons in Canada-with another manned interceptor.

BOMARC FAVORED

But the consensus is that the CF-100 squadrons will be gradually dismantled and that aircraft defence left to the Bomarc. The bomber is being superseded by the intercontinental rocket.

The Defence Research Board devoted most of its energies to research into a defence against the long - range rocket but by such defence, if feasible at all, is years away yet. Scientist opinion here is that only an armed satellite patrolling space will provide any effective defence against the intercontinental ballistic missile.

The last destroyer of a 14-ship program began in 1950 was commissioned in 1959 and construction started on six new destroyers. The government probably will decide next spring whether to put into production a family of new warships for the armed forces.

Only the navy had a missile—the six - air Sidewinder. The RCAF is not to get the Bomarc until 1961, at the earliest and the army is in experimentation with artillery and anti-tank missiles.

All in all, 1959 was a year of major defence decisions in Canada. But it left in its wake several more major decisions still to make.

Dean A. W. Matthews of the University of British Columbia has raised out a tickler the other day when he said that intercollegiate athletics should be subsidized by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation. Reaction ranged from agreement to a "let's-be-careful" attitude to a flat "nothing doing."

Dean Matthews said in an interview at Vancouver that the CBC is subsidizing the arts by picking up part of the cost of various supposedly musical and dramatic productions and the whole cost of a symphony concert series concerted with Canadian culture. Why, he wanted to know, couldn't the CBC do the same with university and other amateur athletics?

"They are all part of our culture" and CBC payment for broadcasting rights would boost athletic budgets, he argued.

PRO FOOTBALL HELPED

The dean missed a good bet. He could have pointed out that this year the first half of each televised Big Four and Western Conference professional football league game was sponsored. CBC picked up the tab for the second half.

The full East - West Grey Cup final was sponsored.

The Canadian Press conducted a survey of college officials and Dean Matthews received support from the following:

Rev. Cy. Fisher, president of St. Mary's University, Halifax: "Any assistance would be all to the good. . .Much help is needed. I don't think the university would object, since the CBC already carries some intercollegiate hockey."

Maj. Fred Kelly, physical education director at Acadia University, Wolfville, N.S.: "Basically the idea is a good one. I don't quite like the word 'subsidize,' but it would provide a greater public interest in the games. It would be a boost for the athletic programs."

GATES NOT ENOUGH

Harry Griffiths, athletic director of McGill University, Montreal: "Speaking personally, I agree. If we are going to encourage inter-provincial, Dominion and national competition, we can't do it on a gate receipts alone."

Frank Tindall, football and basketball coach at Queen's University, Kingston: "It would be wonderful if our games, particularly football, were televised. The revenue would help us promote sport in Canada throughout the university."

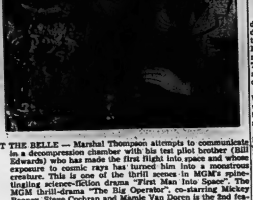
Dr. J. W. Kennedy, director of physical education at the University of Manitoba, Winnipeg: "It would do much to promote amateur sport."

Dr. Maury Van Vliet, director of physical education at the University of Alberta, Edmonton: "I am in favor of anything designed to provide greater opportunities for sport participation by youth."

Others weren't enthused about the idea.

Dr. A. E. Kerr, president of Dalhousie University, Halifax, said the purpose of college athletics was to "provide young people to play the game." He added he wanted to see "money kept out of sport."

UP TO UNIVERSITIES



Arthur Sheary, athletic director at the University of Ottawa, said Warren Stevens, who holds a similar position with the University of Toronto, said they felt it was the responsibility of the universities to look after their athletic programs.

Norman D. Pitts, athletic director of Carleton University, Ottawa, shed "mixed views" about Dean Matthews' suggestion. "It might be a boon to athletics . . . but I'm afraid it would put a commercial tinge to intercollegiate athletics. It would increase the pressure to produce winning clubs to get a bigger cut from the money."

Johnny Meiras, athletic director at the University of Western Ontario, London, said he doesn't believe in subsidizing amateur athletics. "If we want the colleges to build up the body as well as the mind, we can't have the CBC do it," he said.

The CBC's Ernie C. Fraser, vice-president, corporate affairs, said in Ottawa it was "highly doubtful that the CBC now is broadcasting a fair amount of intercollegiate sport on a regional basis. If Dean Matthews was suggesting that CBC do more, then each case would have to be considered on its own merits — the event, venue, time, degree of public interest and the over - all balance between sports and other programs.

AT THE BELLE — Marshal Thompson attempts to communicate in a decompression chamber with his test pilot brother (Bill Edwards) who has made the first flight into space and whose exposure to cosmic rays has turned him into a monstrous creature. This is one of the thrill scenes in MGM's spine-tingling science-fiction drama "First Man Into Space". The picture also stars Elaine Aiken, Robert Ayres, Marla Landi, Bill Rooney, Steve Cochran and Marnie Van Doren is the fetching feature attraction. The Belle World News is an added attraction.

Electronic Deceits to Be Eliminated by CBS Pres.

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — In the wake of last week's Harry Belafonte Show, a CBS announcer informed the audience the show had been "live"—except for five minutes which had been pre-recorded.

This is the sort of thing viewers will be hearing a lot, at least from CBS. Monday vice-president Joseph H. Ream, in charge of his network's "standards and practices," issued his first pronouncation on broadcast standards of entertainment programs in a major move toward the elimination of what might be called electronic deceits.

The memorandum specifically spells out procedures to be used in cases where film, tape and canned laughter are used.

Generally, when tape of film is used, the audience will be told that the program or portion thereof were "pre - recorded." When canned laughter is used, the phrase will be "audience reaction technically produced." When canned laughter is used to increase the sound of live audience reaction, the announcer will say, "This program was performed (or filmed or taped) before a live audience with audience reaction technically augmented."

OTHER MEANINGS

"Participants on this program were selected in advance" means they were not rehearsed or auditioned or interviewed spontaneously. And the business of explaining which a performer can mouth while dancing (this is called lipsync) will be explained by "The voice in the song (number or whatever) was previously recorded."

Ream's job, of course, is the elimination of such practices as show-fixing, plug-dropping, kickbacks and payola. At the moment, however, he is concentrating on cleaning up entertainment programs. Later he will turn to other areas.

NBC's Christmas Startime show on Dec. 22 will make the same disclosure of pre-recorded elimination of all commercials.

Last week's Lassie will be the last American TV series shown on a regular basis in a Communist country—Yugoslavia. . . . The McGuire Sisters will be missing from the networks until December. . . . The one on your right—has her first child, expected some time in February.

Recommended tonight:

Startime, NBC, 9:30-10:30 p.m. —Cindy's Fella, a western version of Cinderella with Jimmy Stewart and George Gobel. Garry Moore Show, CBS, 10-11 p.m.—with Peggy Lee and Johnny Carson as guests.

Anna May Wong Starting First Feature Film in 17 Years

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"When I die, my epitaph should be: I died a thousand deaths. That was the story of my film career. Most of the time I played in mystery and intrigue stories. They didn't know what to do with me at the end, so they killed me off."

The voice was Anna May Wong's, soft, musical voice with an unmistakably Chinese tone, though she was born and reared in Los Angeles.

The face was as before—the large, heavy - lidded eyes, the high, rounded cheeks, the dark bangs over her forehead. Now starting her first feature film in 17 years, her beauty seems little changed from the days when she was caught up in the insidious plans of Dr. Fu Manchu.

"My last picture was Lady From Chungking, one of those terrible war-time pictures," she recalled. "After the war, I did nothing for about five years. It was one of those times people have in their lives when they must stop and find their direction. I managed an apartment house I owned in Santa Monica until it got too much for me.

"I had come to the point that when I had to change from leading roles to character parts. I think I have made it now. I have been doing television shows—even westerns like Wyatt Earp—and I find character roles are more fun."

Now she's having a career revival. She has played in a couple of Adventures in Paradise segments and may become a steady visitor. Now she's starting a film return as Tuptim in "The Big Operator", Mickey Rooney-Mickey Shaughnessy crime melodrama.

AT THE PARK — Mickey Rooney stars with Shaughnessy Frazier in the crime drama "Drive A Crooked Road", showing today and Wednesday at the Park Theatre. On the program also is "Human Desire", starring Glenn Ford, Gloria Grahame and Broderick Crawford.

Port authorities said the explosive, of German, Belgian and Italian origin, was described in the ship's papers as dynamite to be delivered to Tripoli, Libya.

Nerves on Edge; Couldn't Sleep . . . . "Always Tired"

Tells of Good Results She Got By Taking Synilana.

Convincing proof of the good results obtained by taking Synilana Herbal Compound is found in reports from men and women who have used this medicine. Here, is the experience of Mrs. Sandra Bradford, 218 Manx St. West, Hamilton, Ontario, who said:

Rundown, Tired-Out

"I was tired all the time from the time I got up in the morning until I went to bed", said Mrs. Bradford. "My nerves were all on edge and I couldn't get my proper sleep at night. Also I was subject to throbbing headaches and my appetite was poor. I felt rundown, tired-out and nothing like my normal self.

"Since my age I had taken dyspepsia and I really thought that it was my stomach that was causing me trouble. It seemed that everything would disagree with me, my nerves are almost down and my condition seemed not normal, so I began to take Synilana. It relieved the trouble with indigestion

Snow Removal in Montreal Cost a Whopping $5,540,586 Last Year, May Go Higher

By KENNEDY WELLS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—Snow itself may not only forecast they may be sent turn Montreal into a winter wonderland, but to the city fathers it's a multi-million-dollar headache.

While the city's annual snowfall has shown a significant decrease since grandfather's day, the cost now of clearing it away would make his eyes pop.

Last winter for example, the total fall was 116 inches—about 16 inches more than usual—and the cost of removing it was a whopping $5,540,586.

To pay it the city had to dip into funds originally allocated for other purposes. To avoid doing this again, the city administrators are trying this winter to arrange for a special fund which could be used to cover costs if they exceed the sum budgeted for snow-removal.

MAJOR PROJECT

If the snowfall is below average, the city might get away with a bill in the neighborhood of $4,000,000, but it is more likely to be closer to $4,500,000.

And even this sum would not include the cost of administration or the bill for fuel and maintenance of the small army of vehicles used in the program.

It all adds up to the largest municipal snow - removal program on the continent. Phillippe Cabana, director of the city roads department since 1953, has under his jurisdiction 628 miles of streets and 1,250 miles of sidewalks which must be cleared after each 2,000 climb which must be kept open.

To do the job he has $6,000,000 worth of equipment ranging from 26 "combat flavors" — monstrous machines which chew into a bank of snow, pulverize it and blow it into waiting trucks to be hauled away—to 130 light sidewalk tractors, miniature versions of the big plows which keep the thicker sidewalks clear for pedestrian traffic.

He has a regular force of 900 men at work during the winter and during a bad storm can get as many as 2,500 at work in shifts for 24 hours or more.

PLANNED OPERATION

To ensure that these men and machines are efficiently employed Mr. Cabana and Guy Vanier, his chief assistant, must work like field commanders in battle against the snow.

The dominion weather office at nearby Dorval Airport and a private firm of weather forecasters each sends the department a minimum of four weather reports daily. In addition the private firm sends a detailed weather map and since it works directly for the city also sends special bulletins when necessary.

When snow is imminent, Mr. Cabana and Mr. Vanier first order more than 100 trucks with salt spreaders to be ready to move. As the first flakes fall, the trucks head for slopes on main arteries and for busy intersections.

At the same time the department's corps of inspectors begins patrolling in radio-equipped cars.

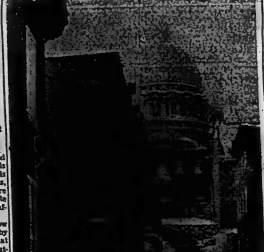
The snowplows are usually held back until at least an inch of snow has fallen, although if a fall of six inches or more has been

REMOVE TO DUMPS

Once the snow has stopped and plowing, of which 40 per cent is done by private contractors, is well along on the main streets, the task of removal begins. Here again the main routes of private cars, buses and commercial traffic are the primary targets.

A major portion of the snow plowed up is hauled away by truck to municipal dumps at Pointe Ste. Charles in southwestern Montreal; at 12th Avenue in the northeast, or conveniently dumped on the ice of the St. Lawrence River.

In residential areas far from the dumps where homeowners do not object too strenuously, the snow is simply blown onto lawns.



During his term as head of the roads department Mr. Cabana has constantly experimented with methods and systems for speeding up his gigantic task.

SALT BIG HELP

Of the changes he has made he is proudest of the vastly increased use made of salt to melt the snow. Mixing it with sand when the temperature is below 10 degrees, he has found it can handle falls of up to four inches before solution has also been tried but it is of limited value, since the solution freezes at low temperatures.

To keep the downtown streets free of parked cars which can impede the work the city last instituted a "snow-emergency" plan under which parking is banned in certain areas for a broadcast warning—during and after a bad storm.

This season the plan was extended to cover most of the downtown area and made effective without warning, so that the onus for knowing when an emergency is in force has been put on the driver.

WINTER PROBLEM — Snow piles up on a Montreal side street during an early 1959 storm as the city concentrates on clearing main thoroughfares. Last winter's fall of 116 inches cost the city more than $5,000,000 to clear, the largest municipal snow-removal program on the continent. To handle a big storm city has and $6,000,000 worth of equipment work around the clock. A private firm of weather forecasters prepares a detailed weather map for the city and issues special bulletins to help the city roads department plan its campaign. (CP Photo).

Last winter 300 cars were towed away when they were found parked during a snow emergency. Their owners were fined $5 each.

One Resolution Would Set Prisoners Free

CHICAGO (AP) — Fifty-six men in Cook County Jail are eligible for a Christmas present if they make just one New Year's resolution.

The present: Freedom.

The resolution: A vow to pay their alimony.

Playing Santa for the prisoners of alimony row will be Judges John J. Barbara and Theodore V. Adamo of Superior Court and Frank R. Leonard of Circuit court.

Reviving an old custom, the judges will make a Christmas revive of the prisoners' cases and those who show the proper attitude—that is, a willingness to make up—can win release.

The 56 violators, sentenced on charges of contempt of court for refusing to pay alimony even though they had sufficient funds, owe back payments ranging from $200 to $12,000. A few have been in jail for several months.

Some of the prisoners may not think the terms are generous a gift at all. While jailed, they don't have to pay their wives a cent.

when MONEY is the logical gift
Here are three B of M ways to say "Merry Christmas"
Sometimes a gift of money is the only realistic answer to a Christmas shopping problem. Maybe it's a niece, last seen at the age of three, now going on sixteen (what to give her?). Or perhaps it's a relative with a small income and a large family (money would be the most meaningful gift). Then again, it could be employees or household help who've come to expect their gift in the form of cash (nothing else would please them as much).
If money is the answer to some names on your list — see the B of M. "My Bank" can provide you with a way to give that takes the chill off cold cash and trims your gift of money with festive decorations.
1. STUDENTS' AND BABIES' PASSBOOKS make a delightful extra for some youngsters on your list. Your gift of money is entered in a special passbook and enclosed in a Christmas cover guaranteed to make young eyes pop with glee.
2. MONEY ORDERS purchased for Christmas-giving ease in gaily-decorated envelopes or folders that simply add cost your Yuletide wish. Ideal for those "hard-to-buy-for" people on your out-of-town gift list.
3. SPECIAL CHRISTMAS CHEQUES are available in two colourful holiday designs—one for personal and one for business giving. They are "gift-wrapped" in a bright cover that glows with the spirit of the season.
See these special Christmas features at your neighbourhood branch of the B of M today (don't forget to bring your Christmas shopping list).

Seven Persons Burned To Death In Nfld. Blaze

Two-Storey Tenement Building Destroyed

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Seven persons died in a fire which swept a wooden tenement in the sparsely populated west end.

Paul, Madonna, Michael and Robert White, ranging in age from two to nine years, died with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph White, and Mrs. White's 13-year-old sister Lorraine Woodrow.

Provincial Fire Commissioner Frank Ryan said an investigation was begun immediately.

"We'll find out where they bought their oil," he said.

HELL AIR FIRE

Jet fuel, stolen from a nearby United States air base, has been sold illicitly to householders in the area.

However, the commissioner said:

"We have no information to lead us to suspect that jet fuel had been used by the Whites."

Ryan said he suspected the heat of the explosive fuel in the general area.

Fire Chief Frank Vivian said the fire started when an oil stove exploded. All the victims died in one section of the two-storey frame building which housed 10 persons.

He said the victims, apparently just getting out of bed when an explosion rocked the building, were trapped.

Police roped off the fire area to keep back weeping women and children.

SOUND LIKE SHOT

"It sounded just like a shot," said Mr. Ethel Daye, a neighbor who gave the alarm. She said she ran to the house "shot in flames."

Firemen confined the blaze to the section of the building where the explosion occurred.

Mr. White, a bricklayer, had just moved his family into the two-storey house a few months ago.

Firemen were hampered by a shortage of water. An 800-gallon fire department tank soon was empty and a line had to be laid to a nearby pond. The building is in the same section where a fire last winter blazed for a total loss.

Nearby residents said they were awakened by the explosion about 6:45 a.m. Then they saw the burning tenement, it was impossible to enter.

First Firing Of Missile Ends in Failure

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP)—The first operational firing of the Army's new Nike-Hercules missile ended in failure at a military site near Nielson air force base Tuesday night.

Seconds after the 40-foot, five-ton missile had been launched, it destroyed itself when its mechanism failed to function properly, the army said.

The missile roared aloft in a routine launching, dropped its booster rocket at two miles, then disintegrated in a shower of flames and sparks.

The missile fired at the temperature hovered at 20 degrees below zero, was aimed at a "dead point" 30 miles from the launching site.

If it had reached its target area, the Nike - Hercules missile have exploded within destructive range of the theoretical target and destroyed it.

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canada Council will add a cash prize of $1,000 each to the Governor-General's Awards for literature this year, it was announced today.

Until now, no money accompanied the awards, administered by a special committee.

The 12 prizes, three in English and three in French, will be given in three categories: Poetry and drama; fiction and general; and non-fiction. The previous categories were poetry, fiction, creative non-fiction, and translation.

Douglas Grant of the University of Toronto has been named general chairman of the awards.

The English sub-committee includes Sheridan Tyrrs, Dalhousie College, Toronto, as chairman and Robertson Davies, editor and publisher of the Peterborough Examiner, and Douglas Lepan, Queen's University, Kingston.

QUEBEC MEMBER TO ASK INQUIRY INTO TEXTILES

Wants Govt. to Set Up Import Quotas

OTTAWA (CP)—A demand for a parliamentary inquiry into the Canadian textile industry into the placed before the House of Commons during the opening session Jan. 14.

Maurice Allard, Progressive Conservative member for Sherbrooke, outlined the demand Tuesday in a motion filed with the clerk of the Commons. He said in an interview he would use the inquiry to ask that the government set up textile import controls.

His motion suggests that the Commons refer tariff board textile recommendations to the standing committee on banking and commerce.

The proposed textile committee, which would devote its study particularly to import problems, should have power to call witnesses and gather evidence, he says. The committee would report to Parliament.

EVENING POINT

Mr. Allard said the textile industry is at a turning point in its economic history. Since 1936 the Canadian market had been open to imports from Japan, Russia, India, Italy, Great Britain, West Germany and the United States.

It is impossible, he said, for the Canadian industry to meet the low prices of goods from Japan, for example, where the cost of labor is 10 per cent of that in Canada. In Canada the average hourly wage rate was $1.36 while in Japan nine or 10 cents.

The textile industry is the second largest industry in Canada from the standpoint of employment, Mr. Allard said. Three years ago it employed 725 plants in the country, most of them in Quebec and Ontario. In Quebec alone 354 plants employed about 47,000 persons.

He said the Diefenbaker government made three new promises about the textile industry—instituted measures which would control the volume of imports at reasonable levels, restored the definition of the word "dumping" to mean that the minimum price of an import should be the production cost plus selling and administration costs and profit; insisted that dumping of goods should be clearly labelled to indicate their origin and where they were made.

Gasoline Price War Spreads To Huntsville

TORONTO (CP) — A gas price war which broke out in parts of Toronto early this week has spread to Huntsville, North Bay and Sudbury.

At North Bay there was a general reduction in the retail price of gasoline after Imperial Oil Company cut its price to dealers by 2½ cents a gallon.

Gas now is being sold to motorists there for 34 cents a gallon for regular and 48.9 for premium.

In Huntsville most stations are selling regular gas for 29.9 cents a gallon but one station dropped to 23.9 cents.

Managing director Kenneth Bourguignon of the Retail Gas Association said the Toronto price war "is getting exciting". However, he added, some stations in Windsor have started to cut prices.

SOUTH PORCUPINE, Ont., (CP) — Mrs. Anna Lister, 40, today was remanded until Jan. 14 for preliminary hearing on a charge of murder in connection with the death by rifle shot of her husband.

Ted Lister, 43, prominent sportsman and owner of the bicintyre arms at Schumacher, was found dead on the 2nd concession floor landing of their Schumacher home Dec. 5. A bullet had gone through the heart with a 30-30 rifle found beside him. Death, Lister now faces is the abdomen. She was released from hospital about three weeks later.

Within Hour After Boarding Ship Tired President Napping in Bunk

ABOARD U.S.S. DES MOINES (AP) — President Eisenhower luxuriated today in his first complete relaxation since taking his three-continent goodwill tour Dec. 3.

After serious visits to seven countries with his message of peace—Bermuda, France, Belgium, Luxembourg, Germany, Britain and Italy—the President turned in for the night.

His military press secretary James C. Hagerty, reporting by radio telephone to newsmen ashore aboard the escorting aircraft carrier Essex, said President looked forward eagerly to the three-day voyage. The only disappointing factor was a forecast of gloomy weather for at least the first 24 hours.

There was plenty of opportunity aboard the cruiser for physical exercise—a net for practising golf iron shots on deck, skeet shooting, western movies or bridge games.

Nineteen Families From Italy Get Early Christmas Present

TORONTO (CP) — Nineteen European refugee families arrived with one member suffering from tuberculosis, hurried here by air from Rome today.

Minutes before the refugees landed, Dr. H. W. Wendell, the federal health department in Ottawa discovered that a six-year-old Yugoslavian girl was ill with measles.

She is the daughter of Antonio and Maria Matilic, Yugoslav refugees, and the brother of Rodolfo, 7, the member of the family suffering from tuberculosis.

Dr. Wood said he discovered the measles rash on the child's face as the plane landed. The child had a high temperature and spots on her face were noticed by nurses aboard.

The Matilic family is being detained aboard the aircraft. Ontario provincial and Toronto health authorities are investigating.

Dr. Wood said he inspected all other children aboard but found no infection any measles was detected. He said he thought the girl's case a mild one.

The Canadian Pacific Airlines plane, carrying the first of 186 refugee families coming to Canada, touched down at suburban Malton airport about 10:28 a.m. after a 9,000 - mile flight from Rome.

The 25 - hour trip was accomplished without mishap after stopovers at the ice-girdled Prestwick, Wood and two federal health department nurses mastered a serious language problem.

The refugees—all in all and most of the smaller passengers—are being brought to Canada under the federal government's sponsorship plus a contribution to world refugee relief.

Canada is the only overseas country which has accepted refugees without sponsors.

The 19 TB cases will be treated under an arrangement with the Ontario government at Mountain Sanatorium in Hamilton and Toronto Hospital in Weston, a Toronto suburb.

'No War' Clause Allows U.S. To Station Troops in Japan

TOKYO (AP) — The Japanese Supreme Court ruled today that the "no-war" clause in the Japanese constitution does not prevent the stationing of American troops there. It said a treaty allowing armed forces are constitutional.

The decision, upholding the 1-to-14 court was a blow to left-wing hopes of forcing the withdrawal of Japan, disarming the nation and neutralizing Japan in the cold war.

At issue was Article 9 of Japan's constitution, written during the post-war American occupation, this "no-war" section says that Japan forever renounces the possession of all war potential.

The high court, in reversing a Tokyo district court ruling made last March, declared: "There are no stipulations in the constitution that deny Japan as a sovereign nation the right of inherent self-defense."

Japan's growing army, navy and air force — established after the Communist attack in Korea and called "self-defense forces" — are the targets of the leftists.

The opposition Socialist party criticized the court's ruling as "a political decision — which in fact can be a serious blot on the history of Japan's judiciary."

The 6-4 majority opinion said Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi's hand in his conference with Japanese parliamentary approval of a U.S.-Japanese security mutual assistance treaty, due to be signed in Washington next month.

American forces are stationed in Japan under the original U.S.-Japan peace treaty signed in 1951. The high court ruled that Japan's judiciary has no right to rule on the validity of treaties once they have been approved by parliament. Treaties, the court said, "are a political matter."

The high court's decision reversed a ruling by Judge Akio Date of the Tokyo district court freeing seven university students charged with breaking into the American installation in the suburban village of Sunagawa.

Today's decision by the supreme court ordered the case retried.

Tax Department Asks for Fines Of $14,000

TORONTO (CP)—Alexander Thomson, 37, was fined $14,000 or sentenced until Friday for sentence on seven charges under the Income Tax Act after conviction for the income tax department staff for fines totalling $14,000.

Two companies operated by Thomson, Federal Steel Erection Company Limited and Federal Steel Erection Company Limited of Quebec, were each fined a total of $3,500 on charges of conspiracy of failing to remit tax collected from workers.

Leverett Chisholm of the income tax department said the government's claim had been "whittled out of $40,000."

Charge Youth With Abducting Girl Aged 13

GUELPH (CP) — Pleading guilty to a charge of abducting a 13-year-old Aberfeldy girl, Jonathan Wilson, 19, of Guelph Township today was remanded a week in custody of Sheriff Ross Fisher of her home Nov. 26 and was picked up with the youth in Welland Dec. 1.

Magistrate A. S. Mitchell was told that the girl had decided to leave home and Wilson went with her because she thought he would be glad to stay there, they had gone to Kitchener.

Both obtained work at a mink farm near Kitchener, the girl living with Mr. and Mrs. Wilson and his uncle. On Dec. 2 the girl told Wilson she wanted to go home and he promised to take her. She asked to wait for her parents. The pair had again separated when Wilson went to the Welland district where they were picked up by police. They said they had been living in the automobile.

First Contract For Aeroquay Is Awarded

TORONTO (CP) — A $1,800,000 contract for concrete contracts for steel work on Malton airport's Aeroquay was awarded by the York Steel Construction Limited, it was announced Tuesday.

The Aeroquay, a passenger handling building will stand in mid-landside area and will be linked to the airfield perimeter by underground highway tunnels.

Nearly 13,000 tons of steel will be required for the building which will comprise two main sections, the main terminal structure ringed by a lower circular building for the Canadian National rail-parking space for about 1,500 cars.

It forms part of a $30,000,000 Malton expansion project.

Father and Son Held for Assault

TORONTO (CP)—A father and son were charged with indecently assaulting a 10-year-old girl Friday night in the same neighborhood where another girl of the same age was a victim of a rape-raped the night before.

Peter Jacobsen, 38, and Andrew, 18, were arrested as detectives scoured the east downtown area and questioned more than 200 persons in connection with the rape case.

Detective Jack Phillips said Saturday night's victim was assaulted in the house where she lives with her parents. Police said police also have molested the girl's case in a mild one.

ASSOC. ASKS GOVT. TO PAY BUSINESS TAX

Brief Presented By Municipal Officers

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Municipal Association Tuesday asked the provincial government to pay business taxes on properties owned in municipalities.

In a brief to the government, the association said grants by provincial to local governments to municipalities in lieu of taxes falls far short of financial requirements.

Many government projects are commercial and in direct competition with private business, the brief said. If they should be paid on toll bridges, liquor stores, hydro plants, housings, installations and other projects connected with commercial activity.

The federal government had paid full taxes since 1937 on its properties serviced by municipalities.

Association secretary - treasurer Eric Hardy said many provincial governments, including such as hospitals—make no payments at all in lieu of taxes.

PROMISE CONSIDERATION

He said the cabinet promised to take sympathetic consideration of legislation. Some payments to municipalities in lieu of taxes now are made under the Municipal Tax Assistance Act and the Power Commission Act.

The association took an all-day session Monday to discuss several cabinet ministers to present and discuss the brief, which was presented Tuesday.

The association has 275 members, including all cities and towns, more than two thirds of Ontario municipalities, 100 villages and 85 townships. The brief was submitted by Controller Leo Landriault of Sudbury, who was accompanied by about 50 delegates.

The association asked the health department to provide financial assistance to patients in nursing homes and proposed that the province establish treatments in convalescent hospitals and rehabilitation of hospitals.

URGE ONE PATIENT

The brief also sought legislation that would prevent municipalities could be taken into account in the building of hospitals. Legislation to provide for the Ontario government making a lump-sum payment for its share of the capital cost of hospitals in municipalities was also urged.

The association argued that rural and suburban road systems should be incorporated into the provincial highway system and asked for uniform provincial grants for road construction and maintenance in cities, towns, villages and urban areas of townships.

Another recommendation was that the highway department assume the entire responsibility for building and maintaining connecting links in the provincial highway system.

Firemen Seek Boost

TORONTO (CP) — This city's fire department today formally asked for an 11½-per-cent general wage increase for 1954.

The request was presented to board of control, the Toronto Civic Employees' Union also asked that the city pay half of the cost of all medical and surgical bills.

Association President Ben Bowser said if all demands were granted they would cost the city $1,000,000 more than this year. He said the association's chief aim is to have the salaries of junior firefighter, one with four years' service, increased to $100 a week from the present $88.25.

Invasion Certain, 'They Will Come' But on Who 'They' Are Castro Mum

HAVANA (AP)—With his military courts again in full swing, Premier Fidel Castro today left no belief today that there will be an invasion of Cuba in 1960.

"Next year we will have to defend the revolution with weapons and blood," he declared in a televised, 4½-hour speech. "It will come because they know it is impossible to invade and here, . . . I hope I am wrong, but they will come. I am sure we will annihilate them."

His didn't say who "they" would be.

He jibed at labor and racial conflicts in the United States to cheers from his immediate audience, the 1,000 delegates of the Congress of Sugar Workers.

Castro's military courts meanwhile picked up speed.

A tribunal in Havana sentenced Hubert Matos, who resigned as commander of Camagüey province Oct. 19 and was tried 13 with a blast against communism, to 20 years in prison for treason. Matos charged in his letter against his old comrades that Communist officers were defected with Matos drew terms of two to seven years. Prisons sentences were announced.

Two Cubans were condemned in Pinar Del Rio to death before a firing squad, a sentence estimated to have been passed upon 535 persons before the Castro regime halted its war crimes hearings last June. The two were accused of leading an anti-Castro band in west Cuba.

France Is Forcing Allies To Choose Sides In Dispute

Protests Charge Country Shirking NATO Pledges

PARIS (AP)—Western leaders, continuing to emphasize the importance it places on international disarmament, heard NATO military ministers it would be "wise" for them to draw up proposals for consideration at forthcoming East-West negotiations.

The suggestion was made by External Affairs Minister Howard Green at the opening session of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's annual meeting.

It followed on the heels of an agreement between U.S. State Secretary Christian Herter and Britain's Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd Sunday to seek an early meeting of five Western powers to try to consolidate the West's ideas on disarmament.

Canada, France and Italy would join Britain and the U.S. in that venture.

Green, emerging reporters after the opening session of the NATO meeting at which all 15 foreign ministers spoke, said disarmament will be the biggest topic at the NATO Council sessions, which now expected next April.

EXPECTED MORE

It is clear, Green said, that the work of the 10-power United Nations disarmament committee, set up by the UN at its recentlyprorogued session, is of supreme interest to Canada.

All the members of the UN disarmament group except Canada — also belong either to NATO or the Communist satellite camp, the Warsaw pact.

"We think that as an early exercise, dealing with the immediate future, it would be wise to organize the political and military staffs of the alliance to make preparations to establish the basic principles of the committee," Green told reporters.

Emerging from his first Atlantic council meeting full of serious talk about war by the allies, Green said: "It's a pretty big job, but the ministers have got something very worthwhile."

NOT ONLY HOPE

He said the deliberations brought home to him that nothing could be more fully appreciated before—that NATO is "the only hope of the free world" against aggression and is going to become more effective.

"There was nothing but good feeling from start to finish," he said in minimizing reports of a "malaise" surrounding the council meeting. Delegates arrive out of France - Americas diversionary which country describing as a "NATO crisis."

RCAF GATEMAN STRUCK BY CAR

A 78-year-old Connecon man working at the Connecon-Consolidated at the Trenton RCAF Station, suffered only inconsequential injuries when struck by a car entering the air station from the highway.

OPP Marshals Over 600 Cars For Patrol Work

TORONTO (CP)—The greatest array of law enforcement units ever assembled by Ontario Provincial Police to crack down on motorists' recklessness has been set up for the Christmas and New Year holiday weekends.

Commissioner Colonel Thomas Trimble said today more than 600 police cars will be on patrol, at least 20 mobile radar crews will check speeding.

The force is using a "selective enforcement" program, said Assistant Commissioner Trimble. This will assure maximum coverage where records show most accidents occur and where drinking drivers are likely to create most hazardous.

Commissioner W. H. Clark has issued special orders to district inspectors to rearrange working schedules so every available man can be on patrol duty during the holiday weekends.

$200,000 Will Be Set Aside by Supreme Court

VANCOUVER (CP) — A will in Dr. Frederick William Ellis Burnham, who died Feb. 19, 1955 at Hilton Head, Beaufort, S.C., was set aside Tuesday in B.C. Supreme Court.

Dr. Burnham left an estate of almost $200,000 to the poor, sick and destitute of Montenegro, Macedonia and Armenia.

He bequeathed to each of his nephews, Frederick William Watts, a Winnipeg engineer, and Robert Meredith Whittle, of North Vancouver, $100 a year for 16 years.

The nephews contested the validity of the will and Mr. Justice A. H. McDonald found it was not properly executed because both witnesses were not present when Dr. Burnham signed it. The estate now goes to the nephews.

Welland Canal Now Is Closed For Season

PORT COLBORNE (CP) — The Welland Canal officially closed at midnight Tuesday night with no last-minute rush of ships to meet the deadline. General Yates Lifts Ban On Reporters

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Maj.-Gen. Donald N. Yates, who ordered reporters kicked out of his office Monday because of a news service story linking him to beer, Tuesday.

The commander of the missile test centre said his action on Monday was "based on a misunderstanding."

The rescinding of the ban by Yates came after a strongly-worded telegram from Lyle Wilson, vice-president of United Press International in Washington, denying Yates' charge that a UPI story Saturday violated security and not to pinpoint the date of a future space probe.

Wilson said the story was based on information from independent sources in Washington, not on briefings at the launching centre.

The story, carrying a Washington dateline, told of plans to send a rocket to the vicinity of the moon. It also told in detail around the sun. It said the flight would be Thursday.

After the story appeared, the launching was postponed for technical reasons.

Mrs. Billy Graham tells

"OUR CHRISTMAS STORY"

As informally and warmly as if she were speaking to her own children, Mrs. Billy Graham tells, in this special series of articles, the story of God's preparation for His Christmas gift to the world: the birth of His Son.

This Christmas story is different from any you have ever read. Mrs. Graham says that Christmas didn't begin in Bethlehem, but long before that . . . in the Garden of Eden with the first sin. And, in simple but moving language, she tells why an understanding of this beginning is necessary to an understanding of Christmas.

You and your children will get new inspiration from this most unusual story.

Perhaps Old System Was Best

"What's wrong with our coroners?" asks the Toronto Telegram. "Inquests into deaths where foul play is suspected, cause unknown or culpability possible, are an integral part of the Canadian system of justice," it declares. But, it adds, in several cases recently this face seems to have been taken too lightly by Ontario coroners.

The Telegram cites five cases. An inquest into the death of Christopher Bracken, grandson of former Conservative leader John Bracken, was delayed four months and then the parents were not informed of the date. An inquest into the plastic-bag death of Lorena Joan de Marcy in Ottawa last July was held only after protests by her parents. It was not until Attorney-General Keiso Roberts issued an order that an inquest was held into the death of Walter Welch, aged 9, drowned in Island Lake when pranksters upset a raft. In Toronto last month a coroner denied the plea of a son who had died of injuries the right to examine X-ray plates and ask questions. The Attorney-General had to intervene before an inquest was held into the hunting accident which killed Harry Anderson, former vice-president of General Motors.

"Inquests should be held whenever there is the faintest shadow of doubt about the cause of death or the guilt or innocence of anybody associated with it," says the Telegram. But isn't the application of this rule the very cause of the situation about which the Telegram complains? Whether or not an inquest should be held is now a question of judgment. In such a situation, opinions are bound to differ.

There was a time in Ontario when inquests were mandatory into any death not the result of natural causes. A lot of inquests were held unnecessarily. But at least this system was a safeguard against a failure to hold an inquest into a case which needed such investigation. Perhaps time wasted on unnecessary inquests was not too high a price to pay for the certainly the system provided that no death warranting an inquiry would fail to receive attention.

Good-Time Charlie Is Dead

On another page of this newspaper you can meet Charlie, the life of the party. Of past parties, that is. Charlie will no longer be the life of the party. Charlie is very, very dead.

Yet this Charlie is more fortunate than dozens of other good-time Charlies who may find themselves in similar circumstances this Christmas season. Charlie's appearance today is courtesy of The Ontario Intelligencer, represents a resurrection—his first but perhaps not his last. Other Charlies, in real life, will stay dead. Only their ghosts will return to haunt future parties.

The Charlie in the advertisement inserted today by the Ontario Department of Transport made his first appearance 20 years ago. The advertisement was judged one of the best Canadian newspaper ads in the annual poll by "Marketing." It was also selected by the Association of Canadian Advertisers as one of the ten best Canadian advertisements. That is why the Department, the sins of their own own by people in the same balance as they Canadians and the Moabites — and, indeed, they judge the sins of the Israelites more severely than those pagans.

Street-corner atheists who jubilantly point to such passages as "proof" that the Bible is a barbarous and inconsistent book are themselves found out of what really a virtue — the inclusion of such passages that does not affect credit or glory upon the Israelites.

The ancient Hebrew priests believed that their people were "chosen" of God in the light of a Single God to the world; but they did not believe this made them better than others; rather it imposed a heavier responsibility upon them, and made their sins more grievous. No other book has ever been so charged with more agonizing honesty.

Oversight

If you feel that life sometimes gets a little too complicated consider the plight of one Charles E. Evans, a retired Washington butcher, and the members of the police force in Arlington, Virginia.

Mr. Evans was careless about parking his car and the police didn't like it. They wrote him at his last address informing him they would sell the car if he did not claim it. He didn't and they did—for $51. Mr. Evans found out about this later, and now wants an additional $310, maintaining $51 was not enough. He has a good excuse for not speaking up before. He did not get the letter. The reason he did not get the letter was because he was in jail at Arlington for driving while intoxicated.

THE FRIEND

By EDGAR A. GUEST

Never too busy to help out a friend,
Never too busy to cheer;
Never too busy to give or to lend,
Never too busy to hear
The call of the stranger that tapped at his door;
Seemed to believe that was what he was for.

He had his troubles and burdens and woes;
He had his portion of cares; He had his sorrows that everyone knows;
Still in his round of affairs
Under a smile all his worries he hid,
And all that was asked of him gave he did.

Little he left when he passed from the earth,
Little of silver and gold;
Not in the treasures we reckon of worth
Will ever his fortune be told.
But hundreds on him who had grown to depend
Will mourn through the years o'er the loss of a friend.

Hair Gets Much Attention

New York Times

There's little doubt that hair, the mammalian equivalent of feathers, has been one of the most interesting and fussed over products in human history. It has been used by women to attract. It has been cultured, sculptured and dyed. It has been raised and sold. It has (in the case of man) been done without, though not happily. In the old days, according to a recent publication of the Public University professor, man used his prehensile scalp hair to help make himself look fierce. Much more efficiently, obviously, is the smooth-shaven jutting jaw of today.

There are four types of human hair. There is the short, crisp, spiral type (Aryan-occan) thought of as curly but generally jet black. The second is the generally wavy black hair but is straight and lank. The third type, most common among the Negroid race, is very and curly or sapwool and skinny, and lastly the kind that we see in the blue hair with —brown, tawny, red and black. Curly hair like is a fairy type found among Asiatics. The study of hair has been a fascinating introduction to anthropology's identification of racial characteristics.

Hair on the human scalp regrows about two years to four years — unless baldness is setting in and replacement is failing behind attrition. There is no race of red hairs — hair is one individual economy. Hair has been grown by women and men for the sale of the finest. The short hair which grows by the human body (except for the palms and soles) is a heritage from the woollier days of the race. Hairs all grow manifest to the Northern European peoples. After hair growth is arrested, hair goes through a resting period before it dies and falls out. Hair has been found to grow less where malnutrition is present. Hair and fringe hair seems to be a latter-day development, or the development of one or two of the scientists put it, originally human hair having been primitively curly and curled. All hair is classified as being keratin (a sulphur and albuminous compound) — which puts our locks and mustaches in the same class with porcupine quills.

People through history have dressed and pampered their hair beyond reasonable expectations. Some Roman ladies dyed their hair dark heads so they could wear imported blond wigs. Ancient Egyptians and Assyrians dyed their beards; primitive natives curled their hairdos into shapes imitative of animal nature — that is, into a lion's mane, bear's tail, wings, etc. Although our own day has sophisticated the dressing of hair with all sorts of individual economy and fringe bobs and washes, and with the so-called permanent wave, many of these old practices are found in the world in its darker form. For instance, the primitive tribes' preference for adding shaved hair to their faces is one of our adolescent girls' styles; the puny boy's fetish for the dramatic effects of Western hair styles was the piled-up French bob of yesterday; perhaps it reached a height that necessitated the bald-crown method of the ladder. All this attention to what scientists call a substance seemingly designed simply to prevent heat-loss in warmblooded animals.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE LAST HALF HOUR

The most important period of the day is its last half hour. That silent time when the eyes begin to close, when the call must be put outdoors and the alarm must be wound.

For life is a business and a day is significant.

Much one day in your days is like unto a certain number in the one great certainty, the end of your life. Every figure must be added — sometime.

Did you ever try to consider how great is each figure that you add daily to the great sum that is to represent the sum total of what you are to be at the very end?

Your day's last half hour! What a chance to think things over! To take invoice. To review. To receive anew. To determine — and to will.

And what a time to dismiss all the little ripples of worry and discontent. To bury every bitter thought and to resurrect every dead one and every noble effort attempted or accomplished.

Start tonight to make a chain of your last half hour of every years roll on, a new and strange power is sure to make itself felt within you. A sort of reserve strength or another, maybe that shall keep you from drifting as some unexpected storm reverses its way toward your frail craft.

Also, if you wisely use your last half hours, like as not you may sound sleep in the dawn vents its rage and passes.

The Agonizing Honesty Of the Bible

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Looking through the Old Testament yesterday, in search of a quotation I had forgotten, I was once more impressed with one virtue of the Bible that is rarely looked both by the book's defenders and its detractors.

And that is the utter honesty and impartiality of the ancient Hebrews who compiled the sacred book, who decided which of the documents should remain and which should be omitted.

It would have been easy and plausible for them to do what political party does when compiling a campaign book — to leave out every material favorable to the party, and to exclude all unfavorable facts.

Most books which propagate a single point of view do this, which gives that point a specific faith, do exactly this: they reverently ignore all inconsistencies, all weaknesses, all adverse comments made by their enemies.

But the Old Testament is seething with evidence of such human frailties. Take, for example, the bitter books of the prophets, such as Isaiah, which attack the Jewish priesthood, condemn the Israelites for perverting their faith, and warn that the judgment of God will be hard upon them.

Can anyone imagine the Republican National Committee including a scathing denunciation by Adlai Stevenson in its campaign literature? Not today, of course. Yet this is exactly what the editors of the Old Testament permitted to become part of Holy Scripture.

Again, if the book were merely a smooth piece of religious propaganda, the compilers would avoid all the offensive passages — the brute wars, the lustful kings, the dishonest statesmen.

They could have given us a book extolling the enemies of Israel; but instead they candidly weighed the sins of their own people in the same balance as they weighed the Canaanites and the Moabites — and, indeed, they judge the sins of the Israelites more severely than those pagans.

Street-corner atheists who jubilantly point to such passages as "proof" that the Bible is a barbarous and inconsistent book are themselves found out of what is really a virtue — the inclusion of such passages that does not affect credit or glory upon the Israelites.

The ancient Hebrew priests believed that their people were "chosen" of God in the light of a Single God to the world; but they did not believe this made them better than others; rather it imposed a heavier responsibility upon them, and made their sins more grievous. No other book has ever been so charged with more agonizing honesty.

Noise-Power Latest Find

Christian Science Monitor

A widely circulating news report indicates that a Florida electronics manufacturer has been turning noise into mechanical power and putting it to use.

Any physicist will allow that this is perfectly possible.

But the story goes on to say that the idea developed when the manufacturer Swan toying with his stereophonic record player, found that if the noise or more power was being put out than the loudspeaker could take, the news report states.

Any physicist will allow that it must admit that it sometimes seems the case with our neighbor's hi-fi sets.

But that isn't the end to this remarkable affray with physics. The noise-power device reportedly "generates enough power from a transistor radio to operate an automobile. We developed this statement.

This is either journalistic license or a misprint. Nobody has found a transistor radio at least three times as powerful as the biggest radio station in the country.

But anyway, we must confess to being fascinated by the idea of a noise-powered car.

It could prove to be the first practical use for the back-seat driver, whose constant chatter would thus be harnessed for powerful purposes.

It could also mean an end to engineered obsolescence since every time a driver rattly a car got, the more its performances would pick up.

But woes to the Rolls Royce. As it is, the loudest noise to be heard is the ticking of its clock.

Better ask for the model with a transistor radio.

To Your Good Health

BAD BREATH CAN BE CAUSED BY MANY THINGS

"Dear Dr. Molner: Could bad breath be caused by sinus trouble? I have been told that my liver is sluggish.

This abbreviated letter from Miss E. is a fair sample of the cries that people blame (first) some digestive disorder and after that their livers, gall bladders, and other organs that are found in the digestive tract.

As a physician I would not care to have my own bad breath is — should I say — unmentioned. It's an unpleasant something that isn't at right as we with. But, in the majority of cases, it is a dental problem, a personal problem rather than a medical problem.

"Stomach trouble," or "indigestion," or "constipation" is not often involved. The fact is that most bad breath originates above the throat. That is the first place to look.

When I say "above the neck," I do not necessarily mean the mouth. The back portion of the nose, the commonest cause. There may be cavities, but usually the problem is not cited when there are none. Particles of food may lodge between the teeth, and not be removed by any amount of brushing. In this case, germs, the cause of dental flora is the answer. (Obviously these germs also live in teeth from being exposed to the bacteria of the mouth, and the particles of food.) Or, for another possibility, there may be pockets of infection in the gums; such things as trench mouth. All of these may cause bad breath.

Can sinus disease cause it? Yes, especially when accompanied by nasal drainage into the nose or back of the throat.

Infected tonsils and adenoids are another source, and so is decay, a disease of the bone structure of the nose.

As we go below the neck, one has a list of causes that extends to the bronchial tubes and lungs. Let us, for example, Th, may be the source of unpleasant odor from the bronchial tubes. Certain drugs used in cough mixtures and sedatives may cause it. Diseases of the lungs — but so long as you know this is possible, you can consult a doctor about the cause if it exists.

Of course, don't forget the enduring odors from some foods, not only odors on the breath, but even in the skin, alcoholic drinks and tobacco.

Finally, in some cases no cause for unpleasant breath can be found, but I've listed all of the possible offenders. Once you and your doctor have plumbed the depths of it you can decide what to do. Until then, you can accept nothing if you wonder whether this cause, or that one "might" be it.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I am in my early 20s and have a habit to run into a table or corner of something. I turn blue and it looks like the blood runs under my skin and turns dark. People tell me I should be under a doctor's care if these spells stay this way for a good while. Andrea. W.Ont."

It depends on what you mean by "a good while." Some people are more prone to bruises than others, because of breaking they blood vessels under the skin, which the blood settles and if spot turns blue until nature removes it in time. Lack of calcium is a common cause of this. Other causes leading to easy bruising are discussed in a booklet clothing may be present.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I get regular X-rays at the TB clinic. Would they reveal anything other than in the lungs, heart, breast, etc? —M.D.C."

They won't include every possible trouble in the upper part of the body, but some of them, some heart disorders (not all) and sometimes others are discovered by such routine X-rays.

Urges Merchants Keep Walks Clean

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

Will we have to endure, this winter the same kind of walking conditions on Front Street as we put up with last winter? Ice, snow and potholed sidewalks made walking, especially for the senior citizens, dangerous and uncomfortable. A few, a very few merchants did brush their sidewalk space free of ice and snow which, I am sure, was much appreciated by all.

This good example, however, was lost on the great majority of the storekeepers, who failed to do the same. Surely, it is not unfeeling too much of our storekeepers that they keep the few square feet of sidewalk in front of their stores free of ice and snow during the winter. Many people up and down Front Street are customers going in and out of the stores. Wondering whether this patronage. They also need it.

Therefore, should we be concerned about the safety of the customers outside their stores, as well as respecting the dignity of the cash registers inside?

There are during the winter season many persons unemployed who would be glad to do this work gratuitously if they could get steady work at it. The storekeepers should provide the snow shovels, the scrapers and the salt. What is needed, is a little organization. The Board of Trade or Chamber of Commerce could help by bringing the storekeepers and merchants together and then individual arrangements could be made. How about it Mr. Store keeper?

Strength for The Day

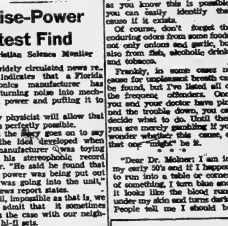
DR. EARL I. DOUGLASS

A GREAT SAINT

St. Francis of Assisi was one of the greatest Christians that ever lived. The church in which he prayed and from which he preached his great efforts now stands within the great Assisi Church.

Francis was the child of a well-to-do household. In his early youth he conformed himself to the worldly life of his day. But he was converted and after returning home at night with his gay and singing companions, he fell behind the crowd and apparently was transformed by something, and he always claimed it was by a heavenly vision. He became a follower of Jesus Christ completely to the service of his fellow men. So great was his devotion and so contagious his personality that others joined with him, and the Franciscan Order was founded. Francis was a man of strong convictions and unseen things is complete and whose dedication to God is without qualification. We of the twentieth century have, for the most part, not adopted the methods which Francis adopted centuries ago.

But the necessity for community today is just as great as it was then. The spirit of Francis, however, will be loved, admired, and followed as long as men believe in God and love their fellow men.



And Francis is not a man of one single age. Francis is as well as every branch of the Church, can claim him.

THE PACKSACK

When people had more respect for money than they have today, every passenger deserved more respect than it does today, goods had to be good. This place was full of bargains. I wandered through the toy department, one of the big stores. With certain exceptions among the dolls it was all overpriced, the case of what might be called luxury items among the confectionery counters. Even the great majority of the articles on display somehow seemed to be more like those rather flimsy items that are included as premiums in packages of breakfast food for the children. An astonishing proportion of the toys were fragile, trashy, tinny, with little genuine permanent value. Every time Day than the paper hats you get in Christmas crackers.

"Well, back," said he, "the modern child is bored stiff with a toy in three or four days. Our toy buyer is full of toys, full of a hundred interests you never had at all. I can get you a ten year toy if you want one. But would be interested?"

Now that he mentioned it, I couldn't imagine.

City May Have Real New Year's Headache With Termination of Bus Service in Cards Unless Last-Minute Agreement Is Reached

By DICK PAYNE

There is one New Year's resolution which may have better than average chance of being kept in Belleville this year. Those who resolve to take more exercise in the coming year may find themselves doing just that, of necessity. There appears a good chance that Belleville will be without a city bus service when New Year's Day arrives.

The 1959 city council has failed in efforts to reach an agreement with the Rawson Bus Co., the present franchise holder, for continuation of the service. On Tuesday the 1960 council, meeting in caucus, appointed a committee consisting of Aldermen John Barlow, Ross Dalley, Walter Elliott, Jack Ireland and Robert Temple to meet with officials of the company regarding a possible continuance of the bus service after the New Year. Past experience, though, suggests that any settlement in the brief time available will be difficult to reach. The company wants a subsidy. In the past the city has been paid $1,000 a year.

Any subsidy agreement for the five-year term of the proposed franchise would have to be approved by a vote of the ratepayers. There are some who believe a one-year agreement without such a vote would be legal, but this is said to be open to question and, in any events, it may be doubted whether any bus operator would be prepared to carry on under such a short-term arrangement.

The franchise of the Rawson Bus Co. Ltd. expires Dec. 31. The company was the only one to submit a bid when tenders were called. The tender form provided for firms to bid the amounts they were prepared to pay, or the amounts which they expected to be paid, for operating a bus service on six routes. The Rawson firm's bid stated no flat amount but asked for a payment of 55 cents a mile, the city to retain the fares. This bid was held to be unsuitable by the council. Efforts to reach an agreement have, to date, met with little progress. Fred Rawson, the owner of the Rawson Bus Co., declined to comment at any length at this time, while there remains a possibility of further negotiations. He says, however, that failure of some agreement by Jan. 1 will not be operated past the date at which the franchise expires.

BUS LOSSES $60,000

While detailed figures are unavailable, Mr. Rawson says that the company's losses over the past three years, after making allowance for depreciation of equipment, have been over $60,000.

It is believed that operating revenue has been exceeding operating expenses before provision was made for depreciation and this appears to be borne out by a comment by Mr. Rawson: "In short, we have been managing to exist but have had the ability to replace equipment as it wears out, maintain the end there is no profit."

Some who only ride the buses at rush hours, when there may be as many as passengers standing as sitting on some routes, may find this hard to believe. But at all other times it is obvious that the fares collected are insufficient to cover the cost of gasoline used to run.

Apparently what Mr. Rawson desires is a subsidy sufficient to permit continuance of the present number of buses in proper condition and provide a reasonable profit on the operation. As he mentioned in later mentions a figure of 6 per cent on investment.

If the city buses cease to run, Mr. Rawson plans to continue to operate his charter bus service, which is owned by him personally and not by the Rawson Bus Co. Ltd.

STARTED WORK EARLY

The start of negotiations between the city council and the bus operator is a lengthy one. It goes back to early this year, when Mayor G. R. Hyde asked City Manager Darcy Deacon whether he could use some assistance in gathering necessary information regarding bus services. Mr. Deacon replied in the affirmative and the Mayor appointed Ald. Walter Elliott and Ald. Jack Ireland as a bus committee, also, serving on it himself. Later the committee was enlarged when Allen Fitch-McCabe and Robert Temple became added to it. Ald. McCabe attended only one meeting, the last, Ald. Temple none.

The first step taken by the three - man committee was to obtain data about bus services in a dozen cities. Of these Belleville had the enviable distinction of having the only one to be paid a fee, $1,000 per year, for a subsidy. Only three municipalities Cornwall, Niagara Falls and Oshawa - in the city and all owned financially and Oshawa had already been notified at that time that the company, a subsidiary of the C.N.R., would not be renewed on its franchise.

Guelph, Brantford and Stratford the services were publicly owned, that in Guelph being operated by a commission appointed by city council and so completely having been paid since 1941, while St. Thomas and Stratford had their buses operated by the Public Utilities Commissions and had deficits. The Brantford deficit for 1958 was $181,855, including certain bus replacements. Stratford's deficits, after allowing for about 30 per cent depreciation each bus, ranged from $,7171 in 1954 to $14,455 in 1957, with the 1958 deficit being $6,352.

One city, Woodstock, had no bus service, the citizens having voted against either operation by a private company or operating a public-owned service.

Five other four cities all paid subsidies to private companies, ranging from $1,000 per year, cost North Bay $27,234 for 11½ miles, Sudbury $30,000 annually with a new agreement to be negotiated. At St. Thomas the public utilities commission paid $19,200 annually. At Galt the subsidy ranged from $15,000 a year but in 1958 the city received a rebate of $9,000.

EXPECTED TO PAY

These figures convinced the bus committee that it would be unlikely to be able to persuade any private operator to continue the service without some form of subsidy. For the sake of appearances, though, a tender form did not specifically state whether the sum to be filled in was to be demand for payment from the city or an offer to pay. The only form that was sent out, form, the Rawson Bus Co. Ltd. requested a payment of 55 cents a mile, the city to take all the fares.

On Nov. 5 the bus committee held its last meeting, conferring with Mr. Rawson. No agreement was reached, beyond the suggestion that Mr. Rawson's accountant confer with auditors representing the city and a meeting between them and Mr. Rawson arranged for a proposition. It would appear that this meeting would be fair to both sides.

England, Leonard & Co. of Kingston were named the city's auditors and these negotiations on behalf of their knowledge of similar bus problems in Kingston. Efforts to arrange a meeting with the bus company's auditors failed. It would appear that figures were submitted by the bus company but not accepted upon by the city's auditors.

FIVE PROPOSALS

The proposition was for the payment of 58 cents per mile operated, the city to retain all of the tender, an increase of three cents a mile. The city's auditors suggested that the city council, another proposal whereby the bus company would operate and pay an additional 3 cents per mile operated, both unsatisfactory from the city's point of view. Two other proposals drew the objection that they involved a subsidy in disguise. One of these was for the city to pay the cost of the first of 10 new buses, estimated to cost $78,000, with the replacement of the equipment at this level, while the other was for the city to purchase the buses and operate it.

The fifth proposition was for the payment of a subsidy of ten cents a mile, with the city to retain all the fares. The city's auditors recommended a subsidy of six cents per mile. Council's thinking was aimed at a compromise figure of eight cents a mile. It had been hoped to present this proposition to the bus company at the meeting, but then City Solicitor Gus Porter gave the opinion that it was not safe to do so.

It is said that is where the matter now stands.

In some quarters at City Hall there is a belief that Mr. Rawson feels his position would be strengthened if there was a disruption in service. Others close to the bus company believe that such a disruption might result in a serious decline in patronage which would be hard to regain. If service resumed, since in the meantime people would be forced to make other arrangements and might decide to stay with those to which they had come to use the bus arrangements even after the buses resumed.

LIKE POKER GAME

Understandable enough, there is considerable confusion amongst those who have been grappling with the problem in be quoted, since it is something like a poker game and the men with the known big hand will be at a disadvantage. One civic official, though, thinks highly of the proposition to pay an amount of the subsidy, with the amount of the subsidy to be limited to one mill, which would be $27,300 in the year ahead. This would presumably limit the mileage and would be a safeguard against the headache foreseen with either substitution of a private company or operation of a public service — an understandable demand by taxpayers, who are helping to pay for the operation of the buses no matter in the area where they reside.

This year the total mileage covered by the buses on the three routes operated will be approximately 340,000 miles, if a subsidy of a mill would permit the addition of eight cents a mile on approximately 341,000 miles. This would permit an increase of over 100,000 miles of operation.

The bus routes proposed in the tender forms would appear to involve 341,000 subsidized miles and more. But mileage could be cut to fit the mill rate by, for instance, changing the routes or by decreasing the frequency of service. In the normal course of events, as the city grew and assessment increased, the value of a mill would increase from year to year. Thus, the subsidy paid at a mill rate the bus service could be steadily expanded to meet the proposition of this plan.

In the tender forms six routes were mentioned, instead of the three now operated. Three of the routes were new. The other three were the present routes, with one slightly altered.

PROPOSED ROUTES

Here are the proposed routes: Route 1 — From Bridge Street on Front to Station St. to Bleecker, down Bleecker to Charles and down Front to the Four Corners, east on Bridge, Victoria, Pinnacle, west on Dundas and back to the Four Corners, the same as the present East Hill route.

Route 2 — The Four Corners west on Bridge, east to Herchimer, to Bridge, to Bertram Street, north to Rosewood to Pine, on McDonald to Victoria and back to the Four Corners, the same route serving the annexed area now in the city.

Route 4 — The Four Corners west on Bridge to Yeomans, south to Palmerston, east to Cedar, south to West Bridge, east to Bridge, north to the Four Corners, to Upper Bridge, north on North Front to College, east to Coleman, south to Station St. and back to the Four Corners, the same as the present West Hill route.

Route 3 — From Front and Pinnacle to Pinnacle, north to Station, along Station to Canniffton Hall, to Third Street, to Millcreek, east to East Street, south to College St. East, to Bridge St. E., north to North Park Gardens, to Price of Wales Road, to Georges, to East Moira, to the Upper Bridge, west on West Moira to Sidney, to Bell, north to Vine Drive, to Lennoxe, to College, to North Front, to Upper Bridge and to Victoria and Front, a new route serving the annexed area and the west end of the city. Hillcrest and North Park area parallel routes, to be used to get off at the Upper Bridge before the Four Corners and serve the Parkdale area.

Route 6 — From the Four Corners west on Bridge St. and Highland Ave. to Parker, to Dundas, to Palmer Ave., south to Bridge to Palmer Ave., south to Dundas St. West, west to Avon to Sidney, to Dundas St. and Highland to the Four Corners, to Dundas East, east to Pinnacle, south to Bridge and to the Four Corners again, a new route serving the annexed area west of the city.

The proposed agreement stipulated that the operator agree with the Corporation to provide a regular fifteen minute service for all routes and with the exception of Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday after six p.m. on which nights he will provide a regular thirty minute service for all routes and commencing at 6.30 a.m. and ending at 11.00 midnight with the exception of the following days: New Year's Day, Good Friday, Victoria Day, Dominion Day, Civic Holiday, Labor Day, Thanksgiving Day, Christmas Day and all Sundays, provided that it is understood and agreed between the parties hereto that when the 24th of December falls on Wednesday afternoon there will be a one-half hour service Wednesday afternoon from one p.m.

QUESTION OF FARES

The agreement also provided for the present schedule of fares "by continuous passes" as follows:

"(A) Two tickets for 25c or a cash single fare to and children's fares to be 7c cash, single fares. Transfers free on request.

"(B) Fifteen cents grop cash fare with transfers free.

"The above-mentioned transfer coupons shall entitle the passenger to transfer at the corner of Bridge and Front or at any other point in the city where different buses pass same point and to proceed to destination and bus has transferred to on presentation of said transfer coupon. Provided further that at stop-over shall be allowed at point of transfer except for accidental differences between arrival of bus from which passenger alights and the earliest arrival thereafter of the bus to which he is to transfer by a 5 minute margin.

"Provided that the above schedule of fares may be revised by mutual agreement between the parties hereto."

Some may ask whether a moderate increase in fares might bring about additional revenue without drastically reducing the number of passengers using the buses. Although Mr. Rawson has said from time to time that, it is understood that his view is no relief on the expense from increasing fares. He is said to base this belief on the results of an earlier fare increase when, though revenue increased, there was a reduction in persons using the buses is said to have fallen sharply, as much as 30 per cent, as they took to driving anywhere like the increase in the admission fees.

On the other hand, there are those who have been driven to the point where the problem will take issue with this view, and point to the fact that a fare increase in fares in the areas in spite of an increase in the admission fees.

One of the civic officials who has been closely connected with the bus problem is said to think a solution to the problem believes that the best way to get out of the bus deficit linked with a small subsidy, say enough to provide for the payment of one new bus a year, $12,-

PUBLIC OWNERSHIP POSSIBLE

Much though many close to the problem dislike the thought of subsidizing a private company, the feeling is unanimous that a small subsidy is much to be preferred to public operation. Not all, however, regard public ownership as out of the question if the subsidy sought is high. One official estimates that $10,000 a year could be saved by a public system in lower licence fees and gasoline tax. Another disputes this claim says this claim is perhaps open to question.

The main objection to public ownership is that there would be pressure for the operation of service in outlying parts of the city. That this same pressure would arise if a private - operated system is subsidized out of taxes is admitted, but some, if not all, believe that with a subsidy, particularly if it were limited to a mill or some other fixed amount, the pressure would be easier to withstand.

The difficulty with a mill subsidy for such a service, or any other subsidy agreed to that there is no guarantee that the voters would approve it. Only a comparatively small proportion of Belleville citizens use the buses regularly. This situation appears to exist in other centres, too. It has resulted in a number of unusual proposals for financing public transportation systems. For instance there is the discussing a proposal that everybody should be assessed a fee for bus service, this fee to be added to the individual's electric light bill. Another plan has had this system operating for some time.

SAID 'KING FOR A DAY'

A trade magazine argues that "people pay a set rate for electricity, gas, telephone service and maintains that a similar fee for a bus service would not be the imposition of a private transit company with public funds and is not socialistic in any sense". This has led the Kingston paper to comment that this argument is nonsensical, since it overlooks the point that people have been paying for gas for when they pay utilities bills. Nobody is going to like being forced to pay a set amount for a service which he never uses, even though it may be available to him", says the Kingston paper. The Intelligencer would add that sentence is "never". How many people in Belleville "never" get downtown? The answer is probably comparatively small. But many people use the bus service only occasionally. When they do it is probably in an emergency or because of the service to them is out of all proportion to the fares paid. Should subsidized fares might be higher for the occasional user, the easiest way to police this being by offering a discount for the purchase of tickets in large quantities.

Just how essential a public transit system is to the city's future may be difficult to judge at this time, but it appears highly probable that in the near future we may be able to answer the question from experience. With every passing day, the likelihood that an interruption of the service will be avoided grows dimmer.

Our Christmas Story

by Mrs. Billy Graham

as told to Elizabeth Sherrill

Every night, at bedtime, a little more of the story.

Christmas at Our House

Chapter 1

Do you ever have oysters for breakfast? We do, on the morning of Christmas morning. Perhaps you wonder why.

My mother always served oyster stew for Christmas breakfast when I was a girl in China. It was a family custom. And when my father, who is a doctor, decided that it was time to bring his family back to America we brought back the custom of oysters for Christmas breakfast, too.

It's pretend that they've come to visit us on Christmas. There's a special reason, why it has to be Christmas, of all the days in the year. The night before the presents are opened, we sit in front of the fire and "tell" the Christmas story from the Bible. I want you to pretend you're sitting there with us because, later, I want to ask you a question about it.

ONLY FRESHEST OYSTERS

This will be just a pretend visit — and that will have one advantage: you'll not have to eat pretend oysters.

I'll tell you about our house and then you can imagine you are here. In the first place, there's our dog. His name is Bobsbazaar because in Old Testament times some men called Bobsbazaar who gave a great feast for a wedding. We gave our dog the name because Bobsbazaar is a Great Provider. He's as big as you can ride on like a pony. Our children do.

Our house will make you think of a pioneer's cabin off in the woods. We asked the men who built it to keep the logs showing and the walls rough like those of an old-fashioned pioneer cabin. It's fun to look at them and make things and ride on them and not worry about the furniture.

FIVE CHILDREN

And if you like to do things with people, your own age, I'm sure you'll like it up here. We have five children, all close in age and at Christmas time there is always a houseful of children's own children are:

Gigi (she's the oldest, and her real name isn't Gigi — it's Virginia).

Anne (who has such a short name we couldn't make it any shorter).

Franklin (whose real name is Ruth, like mine).

Ned ("Ned" is short — very short — for Nelson Edman).

So you'll be certain to find someone your own age to do things with.

But now let's say that it's Christmas morning. The tree in the living room, after all the presents are opened, we sit in front of the fire and "tell" the Christmas story from the Bible. I want you to pretend you're sitting there with us because, later, I want to ask you a question about it.

STOCKINGS FOR EVERYBODY

And here in front of the enormous fireplace are the stockings, one for every child and cousin and aunt and, of course, one for each of the presents have to wait until after breakfast, but the stockings are for now.

Our children think breakfast tastes better eaten in the early morning. Never do the grown-ups get up as early as the children, and make things and ride on them and not worry about the furniture.

Owners Asked To Have Bad Chimneys Fixed

Defective chimneys on residential properties throughout the city have been receiving a sidewalk inspection from City Building Inspector Grant Stickle and notices to have repairs done have gone out to owners.

Chimneys are given the sidewalk inspection with any general deterioration or loose bricks noted. Notices are then sent to owners from city hall to owners to have repairs made done.

Mr. Stickle noted that close to 300 notices have gone out to owners. So far only part of the city has been covered by the inspection.

that it's really too much and next year they will have to cut down.

TIME FOR THE STORY

And now comes time for the Christmas story. The children's father opens the Bible to the second chapter of the Book of Luke.

When he begins to read the room is suddenly still, with a special stillness that it has only at this time on Christmas morning. We are very quiet as we listen again to the wonderful story:

"And it came to pass in those days, that there went out a decree from Caesar Augustus, that all the world should be taxed. . . . And all went to be taxed, every one into his own city. And Joseph also went up . . . out of the city of Nazareth . . . into Judea, unto the city of David, which is called Bethlehem . . . to be taxed with Mary his espoused wife, being great with child . . .

"And she brought forth her firstborn son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger; because there was no room for them in the inn.

"And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flocks by night. And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them . . .

"And the angel said unto them. Fear not; for behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord."

SAVED FROM WHAT?

Now here is the question I would to ask you: Is this the very beginning of the Christmas story? Or does it sound as though we had started right in the middle of it?

The angel called this Baby a Saviour — and he also called Him a Saviour. If you fell through the ice when you were skating and a man rushed up to pull you from the water, that man would be your saviour. If you had a bad illness a Saviour, what was He to save us from? It seems to me that there were a lot more to the story.

Do you like the Christmas story? It's really much too long to tell now, when we have only a few minutes and a man rushed up to pull you from the water, that man would be your saviour. If you had a bad illness a Saviour, what was He to save us from? It seems to me that there were a lot more to the story.

ONLY FRESHEST OYSTERS

Do you like the Christmas story? It's really much too long to tell now, when we have only a few minutes and a man rushed up to pick up and Christmas dinner to be cooked, and the food stories aren't told all at once.

JUST BEFORE BED

Then comes the thing to do. We'll just have to pretend that you've spending the night with us.

Then every night, at bedtime, I can tell you a little more of the Christmas story, starting from the very beginning.

When story time comes each evening, it will be just Ned's bedtime, of course. But Ann and Bunny and Gigi and Franklin will all be cozy in bed with you to listen. I've told them the story forms and dozens of times, but they never get tired of hearing it.

Perhaps this is the most exciting story that ever happened.

NURSES' DANCE PARTY

The Belleville General Hospital Nurses' Alumnae Ball had two successful events.

The annual Stardust ball, held recently at Club Commodore, was well attended. Many former graduates met their classmates and all enjoyed themselves.

The Miss Stardust elimination dance was won by Mrs. Isabel Whitley.

On December 8th, the annual Alumnae Christmas party was held in the hospital dining room. After a delicious pot-luck supper, carols were sung in the chapel.

The business meeting was held in the nurses' residence with Mrs. E. Quinsey presiding.

After the business meeting, Santa arrived and presented each with a small parcel.

CAROL EVENING

On Thursday last the Adult Class and the Leaders of the Canniffon United Church Sunday School met at the home of Mrs. Bruce Walsh, Corbyville, to enjoy an evening of Christmas carol singing.

After a lively period of singing the old sweet carols, Mrs. Walsh served a delicious lunch.

It was great was the pleasure of the evening that Mrs. Walsh's suggestion that it become an annual affair won unanimous approval.

St. Michael's PC CWL Discusses TV, Radio Faults

St. Michael's Parish Council of the C. W. L. monthly meeting was held Monday evening in St. Michael's auditorium with the president, Mrs. H. Brown, presiding, who thanked all the members of the Council for their help and co-operation in making the dance a wonderful success.

Mrs. R. Ackerman, 1st vice-president, reported a membership of 454. Miss Molly Weller, Spiritual convener, reported the Rosary said for the spiritual director, the late Very Rev. Dean Gervin, also for three deceased members.

Mrs. J. Gallagher gave a favorable financial report, while Mrs. J. Boyd reported that she had sent 12 boxes of used clothing to Father Lynch, P.P., of the Manitoulin Indian Reservation. She also read a letter of thanks from Father Lynch.

Mrs. S. Kawarda and Mrs. H. Brown attended the session at the court house on the day when the new Canadians received their citizenship papers.

Donations were made to the Benevolent Society and to the Brownie leaders to be used for their projects.

Brown Owl Cleary asked for an assistant to Brown Owl Walsh. Any member interested in this work please call Mrs J. Walsh, WO 8-4853.

Mrs. C. Middleton, Red Cross convener, gave her report stating that four members were sewing each week at the Red Cross rooms.

The Rev. Peter Murphy addressed the members present.

After the business session, an interesting group discussion on television, films and radio was held by the members. The general trend of thought from the group was that some television programs were not suitable for family viewing because the morals were bad, offensive language was used and that too many Westerns had a demoralizing effect on children's minds.

So it was decided that members write to sponsors of such programs stating their disproval. Printed cards were passed out to all members to be used for this purpose. Members agreed that letters of appreciation should be written to sponsors of good programs.

As for films, parents should check the type of movies shown at the local theatres before letting their children attend. It was decided that a committee be formed to find out what movies are coming to local theatres. Members stated that parents should not attend movies of a questionable nature, thus showing their disapproval of such films.

This - - - and That Going shopping?

A person asking that question to anyone face to face should be advised to duck quickly at this time of year. We hope we are safe in print.

First we are going to deal with one item which is important now both as regards to the weather and to the season of giving. Sweaters for both sexes are one of the best gifts. If you have ever puzzled over the advantages of full-fashioned, cut-and-sewn, and stretched sweaters, the following may be of help to you.

Full-fashioned means the same thing as sweaters as in hosiery; each part of the sweater, back, front and sleeves, is knit-to-fit. It is shaped as it is knit, just as a sock is shaped by increasing and decreasing stitches at intervals which indicate shaping will be found around armholes, sleeves, sides and sometimes the neckline. Full-fashioned sweaters should hold their shape well and also, since each piece is bound by seams, should not ravel.

Cut-and-sewn sweaters, on the other hand, are cut out of knitted yardage in the same way that a blouse would be cut out of flannel. This method is faster and less costly than knitting to a shaped pattern. However, unless the knitter is very careful in cutting exactly on the straight of the material, it is apt to lag and twist when wearing and washing. While many serviceable and good-looking sweaters are made this way, it pays to check the workmanship before buying. Run your fingers lengthwise rib of such a cardigan to see if it is the edges of the front openings. Seams should be well stitched and finished so they will not pull and ravel.

A stretched sweater is one that is stretched to shape and size while it is being knit. Usually, one may make a small piece of material go a long way but when the sweater is washed, it is apt to go back to the original, pre-stretched size. Then it may be a size or so too small. To spot these, pull a small portion of the knit between your fingers. If it does not stretch very much (as a good quality sock), or the knit looks thin and loose, the chances are it has been stretched to size.

GLOVES REMAIN POPULAR

Did you know that gloves, another gift item, are a much more important industry in Canada than in Europe? This news was brought back by a Canadian designer after a trip to France, Spain, Italy, Switzerland and Germany.

Canadian business girls often discard stockings in the heated weather, but they still wear their fresh white gloves. In Europe gloves are seen in the same basic styles and colors year after year, while here, new styles are introduced twice each year.

European women are said to favor long leather gloves, while Canadians want more of the fabric-and-leather in fabrics as well as leather. These shorter gloves fit better with our way of life, are easier to take on and off and are more practical all round. The odd cuts that kid gloves were for daytime and suede for evening. They are available in lovely colors as well as white or black, and are, of course, completely easy cuts.

A new packaging for frozen food now provides a nourishing meal in twelve minutes flat. It is a wonder bag which can be simply dropped unopened into a saucepan of boiling water. After five minutes it is taken out, and the corner clipped off. There are no soiled utensils to be washed, no cooking odors and no time wasted in heating up the oven. Each bag contains one serving so that it is a boon for the single person. A popular Montreal restaurant uses this packaging for their "specialties of the house"

Ex-Service Women Hold Branch Meeting

A memorable meeting was held in the Legion Hall at Colborne on December 10th also an auction of gifts proved a nice money maker with the bidding going strong.

Items of interest were put to the welcome guest, Jerry Simpson, assistant Zone Commander, questions were asked on various Legion subjects and at times it was good for the Zone Executive to see the enthusiasm, determination also the fighting spirit with which this small but strong group of women mean to run their branch.

"The branch is hoping for more ex-service women to join" said Lesley Elliott, president, "we are sure the spirit which prevailed in the war years is ever present, let us not lose it; what's left so much to be done."

The meeting closed with a big hand and vote of thanks for a recognition from Zone Commander, and a response and big smile from Jerry Simpson. Calling all ex-service women to join the Branch, phone Sgt.-at-Arms, R. Kirby, WO 2-0707.

Music Teachers Hear Talk on 'Dedication'

The December meeting of the Ontario Registered Music Teachers' Association took the form of a luncheon held in the Sanford Hall of the Belmont Restaurant.

At the conclusion of the luncheon, Mrs. Arthur Withers, president, welcomed all the members and a special welcome was given to Sister Mary Germaine, who had suffered an accident in the fall, and to three new members, Sister Joan of Arc, Mrs. Deegan of Colborne and Mrs. William Andrew; also three guests, Mrs. Skinner, Mrs. Barlow and Mrs. Scott.

Owing to a previous commitment, Mr. Withers was unable to remain for all of the meeting and Sister Mary Avila, vice-president, took the chair for the balance of the time. She called on Sister Bibiana to introduce the speaker of the afternoon, Sister Mary Adele of Toronto. Sister Adele is a new member of Council but has spent a busy fall speaking in different places in Ontario and came from Ottawa to speak to the Belleville teachers.

DEDICATION, MEANING OF

Sister Adele spoke of dedication — what it means in the life of a music teacher. She said that dedication means devotion to duty and self sacrifice is needed in dedication. The question was asked, "How many teachers in the Ontario Registered Music Teachers' Association are really imbued with the greatness of their calling?" The Ontario Registered Music Teachers' Association is dedicated to the advancement of music in all its phases. The world needs the refined and cultured aspects of music more than ever before. The Association tries to meet the individual support of every music teacher. Contact with other teachers in the same line of work is most important to every one.

The teachers were brought up to date on the issuing of a new music magazine which is to be put out by the Association. This magazine, the teachers felt, would fill a great need.

The agenda for the 1960 convention to be held in Niagara Falls was given in detail and many points of interest were brought from the council.

At the conclusion of Sister Adele's address, Mr. William Connor thanked the speaker for her very informative and inspiring talk.

A half hour of discussion followed on the different points arising out of the subject Sister Adele had touched on in her talk. The aim of The Ontario Registered Music Teachers' Association is to have every qualified teacher a member of the association.

PLEDGES SUPPORT

LONDON (AP)—King Hussein of Jordan said Tuesday his troops would march to Baghdad if Iraqi nationalists ever requested help against Communist pressure. He told reporters he had given this assurance to British officials he visited, including Prime Minister Macmillan, on his month's holiday here.

2nd Boy Scout M.A. Enjoys Yuletide Party

Fun and fellowship were the keynotes of the evening at a Christmas party held in Christ Church parish hall for the 2nd Scout Auxiliary of the 2nd Belleville.

The turkey dinner with all the accompanying colorful salads and relishes and climaxed by hot mince pie was prepared by the mother's of the auxiliary.

The room and the attractive tables were gaily decorated for the Yuletide season.

The Auxiliary was honored to have as its guests Archdeacon J. B. Creegan, the Rev. and Mrs. E. P. Smith, the Rev. and Mrs. H. A. C. Mazziah, Alexis Kemp and her assistants, Scouter Hatker and his assistants and members of the group committee.

President, Mrs. H. Rainbird, welcomed the guests and asked Mr. Smith to offer the Blessing. Following the repast Archdeacon presented Mrs. Edna Wright with her Past President's pin, two years' work for the Auxiliary.

A series of games, prepared by Alexis Kemp, was followed by a Christmas Carol sing-song led by Mr. Creegan which was enjoyed by all. An exchange of small gifts added a true Christmas touch. Mr. Smith brought the most delightful evening to a close with prayer.

Fancy Cake Icings Shown At Melrose WI

MELROSE — A gala spirit prevailed at the Christmas meeting of the Melrose W.I. which was held at the spacious home of Mrs. Ray McKeown, with a record attendance. The president, Mrs. J. McMechan, thanked the hostess and co-hostess, Mrs. L. McLaren, for opening their homes and gaily decorating for the occasion. Mrs. Hartley Christmas, town councillor, fell hale and heartiest greetings, after which she presided over the business meeting.

Gifts had been brought in to be given to a family which had recently lost its home by fire. Mrs. C. Hagerman and Mrs. G. Stratton were chosen to select gifts for the male and short-list and cards are to be sent to all who are indisposed. In reply to Mrs. Haggerty's request, a generous donation was given to the "World Refugee Committee." It was decided to finance a party for the "Girls' Club" in the near future, to be planned by the leaders in co-operation with the girls.

Mrs. T. Howard, a leader of the Girls' Club, who had attended the Royal Winter Fair at the invitation of the Department of Agriculture, gave a glowing account of her trip, mentioning in particular the Women's Institute booth; the wonderful floral display, the judging of the 4-H Clubs and the horse show with its "Musical Ride."

PROGRAM PRESENTED

As this stage, Mrs. N. Denville, who kindly substituted for Mrs. O. Hicks, convener, chaired and presented the following program: carols were sung with Mrs. F. Robinson as pianist, after which Mrs. R. Badgley gave a paper, "Some Ideas for Yourself and Family," in which she outlined various Christmas projects that could be carried out in advance of the busy season, such as making Christmas cards with family snaps on the fronts of bright paper, paper decorations for the tree and place-cards for holiday tables, making Nativity figures with rubber molds and plaster of Paris is a fascinating hobby project.

Mrs. C. Hagerman followed with a humorous reading, "The Blacks' Christmas," which she had rendered at a Christmas concert several years ago.

TOYS!

The topic, "The Charm of Christmas" was dealt with by Mrs. N. Denville, who stressed the joy and happiness at this season which kindled love in the household and among friends. It is a time of gifts, but let all pause to think for what Christmas really means—God's love revealed in the gift of Jesus as expressed in "the first Christmas carol, 'Glory to God in the Highest.' Let all give thanks and worship in the real spirit of Christmas.

The highlight of the evening was a demonstration on "Icing A Cake" by Mrs. W. Chrisholm of Toulin. She had on display a "Doll Cake" iced in Colonial style with lacey ruffles in the over-skirt of pastel shade over white, truly a delightful display of this fascinating art. She suggested various shapes of cakes for special events, gave a special recipe for frosting and revealed many secrets to success in this hobby. She also showed in a fascinating manner how to manipulate the different tubes so that stars, roses, pyramids and rosettes appeared miraculously from the cone. Each lady present will be remembered during the festive season.

Appreciation to the clever demonstrator was expressed by the hostess who presented her with a small gift.

A most contest followed with Mesdames R. Sherwood, E. McMechan and G. Stratton winning the prizes.

The articles mentioned by the members in answer to roll call, "What I'd like to find in my Christmas stocking," were varied and would require a large stocking to contain them.

The singing of "Silent Night" brought a most enjoyable meeting to a close after which lunch was served.

Devoted to Dessert

by Mary Moore

We were entertaining some of Pete's intern friends at dinner —so I asked him what he would like me to bake for dessert. He said Grandma Rose had decided because I wanted something new and different.

When Marion and Jack Farnan were here for dinner she gave her recipe for Salzburger Nockerl. Now this is a souffle that Llyn Stephens (Marion's brother-in-law) introduced them to in Solzburg and it is traditionally served with vanilla sauce. But Llyn, who belongs to our diplomatic corps, discovered, while posted in Montenegro, the glorious combination of this apricot souffle with brandy sauce.

Marion somehow came home with the recipe safely in hand and made it. Her husband says it is his favorite, he says it is easy, I say they are both right! It is an easy but sophisticated dessert for weekend or company.

SALZBURGER NOCKERL

1 cup apricot puree (See recipe) (use 2 cans baby food apricot puree) shake of salt, ½ teaspoon almond extract, 4 egg whites beaten stiff, ½ cup granulated sugar, ¼ teaspoon cream of tartar.

Add the shake of salt and almond extract to the puree and let stand at room temperature while you beat the egg whites, sugar cream of tartar together until very stiff. Fold in puree carefully and smoothly. Grease well a casserole with lard, sprinkle sparingly with granulated sugar and arrange 4 mounds of egg-shaped portions of souffle perrallel to each other and touching. This division of the souffle makes serving easier. As you know when you cut into a souffle that is not sectioned it collapses a little. Just before sitting down to dinner put souffle in oven of 350 deg. Fahr. About ½ hour later it is baked through and tinged with pale gold. Sift the whole business on the foil to large platter. Fold in excess edges of foil and bake it promptly to the table. When served pour over (or pass) Brandy Sauce. The ingredients in this are similar to hard sauce. Inexpensive cooking brandy will be used. It may be used for other Christmas puddings of course. My brother thinks it a "must" on steamed pudding, but I'm inclined to think it too rich. Beat 1-3 cup butter with 1 cup sugar until creamy. Beat in 1 egg well. Refrigerate. When souffle is put in oven, stir ½ cup brandy into sauce and put in double boiler and heat slowly over simmering water while the souffle bakes. Pour into serving pitcher and serve some over each portion of souffle or pass it.

Mr., Mrs. H. Woods Celebrate Silver Wedding Anniversary

On Saturday, December 5th, a most enjoyable event was held in Oshawa, when Mr. and Mrs. Harry Woods, of 1022 Simcoe Street North, who were celebrating their 25th wedding anniversary, provided a delicious turkey dinner at six o'clock to some 60 guests.

Mr. Fred Devolin, of Toronto, brother of the bride, as master of ceremonies, proposed a toast to the bride and bridegroom, and also thanked them for the enjoyable dinner.

Later in the evening, nieces and nephews, friends and neighbors, joined for the reception. A good program of music and song was enjoyed, interspersed with congratulations and good wishes from many present.

Harry Thompson Woods, and Ada Margaret Baker, were married in Madoc by the Rev. G. W. Rivers, at that time minister of Trinity United Church. Mr. and Mrs. Ogle Devolin were the attendants at their marriage and were present for the anniversary celebrations.

Due to illness, the bride's father, Mr. Walter Baker, and the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Robert Woods, both of Madoc, were unable to attend.

During the evening an address was read to the honored couple, and short speeches by the bridegroom's brother, his groomsman, and friends paid tribute to the happy couple and their family.

Mr. and Mrs. Woods have a daughter, Eleanor, a secretary in the office of the General Motors, Oshawa; a son, Dalton, at Queen's University, Kingston, and three sons, Newton, Lynn and Robert at home.

BEAUTIFUL GIFTS

A collection of beautiful gifts included a cabinet of silver, tea wagon, bridge set, a wool blanket, 400-day clock, silver cream and sugar set, lovely sandwich tray, vase, and a breakfast set of dishes.

The bride and bridegroom of 25 years thanked all for the lovely gifts and were happy to have so many present.

Community singing, including Christmas carols, and dancing rounded out the evening.

Guests were present from Watertown, N.Y.; Toronto; Kingston; Belleville; Oshawa; Tweed; Madoc and Stirling.

During the evening a gift of a desk-set was presented to Mr. Fred Devolin, by his brothers and sisters, in recognition of his achievement in obtaining his Master of Education degree this year.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Editor's Note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a woman's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council regrets no problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Rhoda S. — George should apologize to Uncle Karl.

George D. — He owes me an apology.

Rhoda S. — My fiance and I are both in our early 20's and were planning to be married in the spring. The way I feel right now I don't know whether there ever will be a wedding.

It all started when I brought George to visit Uncle Karl. He is a bachelor and simply loaded, and I'm his favorite niece. I had every expectation of a marvelous wedding gift from him and of inheriting a good sum of money some day. My parents thought his might even offer to pay for the wedding.

I know that Uncle Karl is pretty hard to get along with, but George acted just awful with him. In fact, there was a big blow-up and Uncle Karl said if I marry that jerk I won't see a cent of his. Everything could be straightened out if George would apologize, but he won't.

George D. — I think I'm the one who should get the apology, not Uncle Karl. But if Rhoda prefers Uncle Karl to me, she can just take him and his surly temper, smelly cigars and all.

I thought I was just being introduced to a member of the family when I met him. I didn't think I was being brought before an emperor. He looked me over as if I was dirt. Then he told me he didn't think much of the colleges I went to, he didn't like the career I've chosen and about all I thought I had as right to think of marriage to Rhoda.

I don't have to take that kind of guff from anyone. I told Uncle Karl what I thought of his attitude. I think the old codger kind of admired me for it. Now all he needs is for me to humble myself with an apology. I think if I hold out he'll come through with the money anyway.

The Council: This case seems to have the necessary ingredients for a very poor movie comedy. The rich, tyrannical old guard and the fresh young whippersnapper are cut of the same childish cloth — each seeking domain for their 5-year-old egos.

Rhoda and her family are also part of the farce. A family who caters to the childish whims of a tyrannical man in the hope of a inheritance deserves to be at the mercy of those whims. It is more than likely that the old man will pass on his estate to a pet cat in one of his temper fits.

If Rhoda wants to live her life on this level and have relationships of the childish sort, we think she has chosen the right young man for it. We can correctly point out that it is possible to live a fuller, more interesting life by trying to create relationships based on real interest and respect for another person not simply on what can be taken from him.

It is quite likely that Uncle Karl has other facets to his personality. He may have knowledge and interests that Rhoda knows nothing about. We suggest that she find out about these things and offer her uncle some real respect on a more mature and human level. If she does, she may find that the man will show her and her fiance respect and regard in return.

If George is willing to risk losing the girl of his choice because he can't "knuckle under" enough to apologize to an elderly man he had no right to insult, we don't think much is at stake in the whole relationship. The superficiality of all the relationships in this case make it unworthy of serious consideration.

Retarded Children Topic At Ladies' Club

The regular monthly meeting of the Prince Edward - Belleville Ladies Club was held on the 7th on December 8th. The president, Mrs. Sharpe, opened the meeting, welcomed the members and visitors present, a guest, "Ann." There were 20 members and six visitors present.

The corresponding secretary, Mrs. McCoy, reported that she had sent seven cards to ill members and a plant to Mrs. F. Westervelt, who is ill in hospital. Four thank-you cards were read.

It was decided to have another pot-luck supper early in 1960 to be discussed further at the January meeting.

In the absence of the group convener, Mrs. Geddes, through illness, Mrs. Mason, co-convener, presented the following program: Mrs. Bailey read "The Christmas Story" from St. Matthew and St. Luke, interspersed with Christmas carols. Jerry Ann Mason sang "While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks by Night," "We Three Kings" and "O Come All Ye Faithful."

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. Mason introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Edna McCabe, who gave an informative talk on the Mentally Retarded Children' Home at Pembroke, and also the work that is being done in the "Quinte Retarded School" in Belleville. There are 56 pupils attending the school at present.

Mrs. Sharpe thanked Mrs. McCabe for her kindness in coming and speaking to the club.

A solo by Mrs. Bailey, "Silent Night, Holy Night," was rendered. "The Christmas Story" and "The Inn that Missed Its Chance," by Mrs. Mason, brought a lovely Christmas program to a close.

A social half hour was enjoyed with the group carrying out Christmas hostessing at the tea cake.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

ROSLIN W. I.

The regular meeting of the Roslin Women's Institute was held on the evening of December 10th, at the home of Mrs. H. Chisholm.

Mrs. J. D. Empson, the president, opened the meeting with a prayer for Christmas, and two verses in memory of departed members.

The roll call was answered by a white gift of candy, and showed 21 members present and 3 visitors.

The leader, Mrs. D. Chisholm, opened her part of the program with the singing of two Christmas carols by the members and visitors.

The motto, "The Best gifts we get are from those who have nothing but themselves to give," was given by the leader, who introduced the guest speaker for the evening, Mrs. Greenwood, of the Belleville Salvation Army, who spoke of the needy at Christmas and of the kindness and generosity of most people at this time of the year, and of how wonderful it was to help others. Mrs. Greenwood urged all to give calm, understanding.

The leader thanked Mrs. Greenwood for her stirring address.

Mrs. E. Wannamaker sang a solo, "O Holy Night," and "Inside Christmas," was given by Mrs. A. Bates.

The topic "A Christmas Story" was given by Mrs. E. Gray, who told the story of the "Littlest Angel."

Mrs. J. Chisholm read, "The Star In the East".

Mrs. H. Sills and Mrs. W. Gillespie were chosen to purchase gifts for the senior citizens.

The white gifts of candy were presented to Mrs. Greenwood by the president for distribution by the Salvation Army.

A Christmas contest was conducted by the leader, after which an exchange of Christmas gifts was made.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants and a social half hour was enjoyed by all.

YOUNG WIDOW SEEKS AID

SHERSTON, Mo. (AP) — Mrs. Peggy Sue Pruul, who may be the country's youngest widowed mother at 14, has turned to the United States social security administration for aid. Her husband, truck driver Ernest H. Pruul, was killed last August in a highway accident.

STIRLING W.I.

A Christmas party was enjoyed by the ladies and visitors of the Stirling Women's Institute when the December meeting was held at the spacious home of Mrs. Stella Gay, Charlotte Street, to remember and enjoy, when a good number of interested members assembled to decide the business and enjoy the friendly visit with each other while partaking of the lunch of tea.

The president, Mrs. B. Reid, conducted the business.

Mrs. Duncan Montgomery, the P.I. secretary read the minutes of the previous meeting, which were accepted. Also the reading of communications which followed.

It was agreed the following business be accepted: ten dollars will be sent to Scott mission, Toronto, to further the good cheer and comfort to those less fortunate, also more good warm clothing will be forwarded to the same place, to distribute as they see fit.

The wreath for the Cenotaph in honor of "The Boys" to voted to be paid for.

Folks in the County Home, who have had some time, been interested in W.I. work will be remembered with Christmas cards, also ladies of the village, who, through poor health, cannot take an active part in W. I. work and members who live out of town, but keep up their membership will also be remembered.

A Toonie daily has been donating, reconditioned radios to W.I. Institutes, for them in turn to lend them to needy friends confined perhaps to nursing homes or county homes.

The Stirling W.I. had secured some and placed them with friends who will be greatly pleased with the enjoyment and company a radio will give.

A thank-you letter will be forwarded to the donating paper for their generous gifts. This is the real meaning of Christmas, which brings joy to all concerned.

The bringing of comfort, in the form of nice warm quilts, will be resumed again in January with the first quilting at Mrs. W. C. West's home, further arrangements will be made by the committee. Dinner hour will be pot-luck.

The roll call included the sale of aprons, will-all sizes, colors and styles — eager buyers for Christmas gifts.

Some members turned in money to the value of an apron.

The Public Relation secretary, Luella Bronson, was asked to forward this meeting's activities to Miss Jane Gay, the Public Relation convener for broadcasting over CJBQ.

The program was introduced with Christmas piano music by Mrs. Clapper and singing Christmas carols.

Mrs. W. C. West gave a reading entitled "A Life of Patience". The Origin of the Staff of Life" was an interesting reading by Mrs. Ed. Williams, Mrs. Clapper favored the ladies with Christmas piano music.

A Merry Christmas was extended to each other, after which a beautiful and delicious luncheon was served and enjoyed.

On behalf of the members and visitors Mrs. Morley Ayerst, voiced appreciation for the lovely evening including the splendid programs tasty food and to the cohostesses for making the evening so enjoyable.

Club Activities

ROSLIN RAMBLERS

The combined meetings numbered seven and clubs of Roslin Ramblers was held at the home of Mrs. Ted Thomas with 12 members in attendance.

The president conducting asking a date to have the record books in at the agricultural office.

Plans for the year's last get-together meeting, and how to prepare leftover meat, frozen meat and storage of meat.

It was decided that a skit, "The Way To Tenderize Meat" would be presented at Achievement Day.

In the demonstration the members were shown how to prepare stuffed steak.

The group work included reading the recipe on "Savory Salad."

After the home entertainment was given, the president, Hazel Shepherd, presented a gift to the leaders, Mrs. Sharpe and Mrs. Hobson, in appreciation of their hard work during this unit.

After the meeting adjourned, lunch was served by the hostess.

MODERN MANNERS

— Carolyn Wagner Shaw —

HOLIDAY ENTERTAINING

The time is almost upon us when the spirit of good fellowship will predominate. "Drop in for an eggnog or a "Run and Jerry," will soon be the order of the day.

It is well to remember that with these traditional Christmastime chicks it is not necessary to serve sandwiches, or the regular tea or cocktail menu. The prepare stuffed steak.

The group work included reading the recipe on "Savory Salad."

After the home entertainment was given, the president, Hazel Shepherd, presented a gift to the leaders, Mrs. Sharpe and Mrs. Hobson, in appreciation of their hard work during this unit.

After the meeting adjourned, lunch was served by the hostess.

Another popular form of entertaining during the Holidays is the buffet luncheon or supper. There are no rules to follow in setting a buffet table. Decorations need not be elaborate or expensive to create a very attractive effect. For example, a holiday centre piece may be carried out with a white tablecloth and a centerpiece of holly and poinsettias. Red candles in silver or glass holders will add to the festive look.

A coffee urn may be placed at one end of the table, and be balanced on the other end by a large bowl of eggnog, punch or wassail. A turkey or ham may be centred toward the front of the table, with the substantial dishes grouped around it. At least one hot dish should be served — creamed chicken, creamed seafood, or something on that order. A salad, buttered rolls and small party sandwiches may round out the menu. After the meal plates are partaken of this, and the table cleared, the traditional plum pudding may be placed before the centrepiece and set afire.

It is well to stack plates beside the hot dishes. The forks should be placed closer by the napkins, and within easy reach. (Paper napkins are perfectly acceptable for an informal buffet).

Above all, arrangements should be made for some place for your guests to put down their glasses, cups, etc. Is there anything worse than to fill your plate, acquire a cup of coffee or a glass of eggnog and, balancing these, look about for a place to "light?" After all, one has to have a hand free to eat with! This is a mistake often made by hostesses. For the small party, little nest tables are ideal when placed around the room. At large parties the guests expect to stand, but do make some place for them to put plates, glasses, etc. Clear the sideboard or set up card tables, but do something about it!

So have plenty of ashtrays! I attended a buffet supper recently and, in a room containing fifty people, there were only two tiny ashtrays. I saw a number of people clutching their burning cigaret stubs with no idea where to put them. I even saw one poor man surreptitiously crush out his cigaret with his heel, and put it in the cuff of his trousers.

The good hostess will also be sure to have enough servants to clear away plates, cups and glasses, and to empty ashtrays. If the party is small, and there are no servants, one party will open a few close friends to help in clearing up.....

All in all, buffet entertaining during the Holidays is a relaxed kind of serving that everyone enjoys — even the hostess, if plans are made well ahead of time.

Question: I have recently been widowed. Most of the letters, cards, etc., that I have been receiving have been addressed to "Mrs. Amy Phillips Smith." Am I right when I think this is wrong? — Mrs. J.H.S.

Answer: You are absolutely right. A widow is always addressed as she was when her husband still lived. Her maiden name should never be used. This indicates that she is a divorcee! The correct form is — "Mrs. John Henry Smith."

Cross-Canada Survey

Export Crop of 15 Million Christmas Trees Would Net Industry About $7,000,000

By GERALD L'ANGE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canada's multi - million - dollar Christmas tree industry is hoping for record export sales this year.

Estimates from the exporting provinces indicate that a 1959 export crop of 15,000,000 trees may set $7,000,000, compared with the 1957 high of 98,000,000 from 12,269,000 trees.

Last year cold weather and insect plagues reduced export earnings to $5,500,000 on fewer than 10,000,000 Christmas trees. This year trees have grown well and some provinces anticipate heavy cutting.

But over-the-border sales this season will depend largely on how Canadian trees are accepted in the increasingly competitive United States market, a cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press shows. The U.S. takes 95 per cent of this country's crop

MIGHT IMPROVE QUALITY

A department of trade and commerce report last year warned that Canada producers would have to improve quality, packaging and delivery to keep their share of the U.S. market. To date only one Canadian province, New Brunswick, has introduced grading regulations.

Canadian trees are also meeting tougher competition in the West Indies and South America. About 64,000 trees were shipped there last year compared with 9,-800,000 sent to the U.S.

Crowding of the market follows a post - war boom in Christmas tree sales that has made the business a major industry in North America.

From a 1945 export figure of 5,000,000 trees worth $1,344,000, Canada's shipments soared in 1957 to more than 12,000,000 trees —a record.

In that year it is estimated 45,000,000 domestic and imported trees were bought in the U.S. Total Canadian production in 1957 was 14,400,000 trees, valued at $9,800,000.

CONIFER "FARMING"

Natural forest growth is no longer sufficient to supply this rising demand, and vast nursery of conifers are "farmed" in Ontario and the U.S. for the Christmas trade. The Yule Tree Farmers' Association of Ontario estimates that at least 12,000,000 are planted in that province every year. A recent Pennsylvania department of agriculture survey counted 75,000,000 Scotch pines in plantations in New York, Michigan and Ohio. Since 1948 Pennsylvania production has increased 1,200 per cent.

Canadian production reports this year indicate that Quebec is still among the leading exporters. About two-thirds of the estimated cut of 4,865,000 trees, worth about $2,075,000, will be sent to the U.S. Of this figure, woodcutters will receive some $995,000 after deductions of transport and other costs.

Local prices of six-foot firs, preferred to the stronger - smelling pines, will be between 50 cents and $1 in Quebec and Ontario.

Nova Scotia reports steady prices and expects a cut of 2,-000,000 export trees. Farmers, fishermen and lumbermen earn about $2,000,500 from this part-time occupation. Exports of spruce are banned.

This year's tree crop in Ontario may equal the province's best year in 1955 when $2,384,584 was earned. Last year's export of 2,500,000 trees brought in $1,352,-284.

N.B. REPORT

Bruce Kelly, extension forester at the University of New Brunswick, calculates that the provinces will this year cut well over 2,000,000 trees with an export

Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching. Thousands have been relieved with this inexpensive substance right in the privacy of their own home without any discomfort or inconvenience.

In case hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions, some of even 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, general anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®) the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Already Bio-Dyne® is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in a suppository or ointment form called Preparation H®. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H® Suppositories or Preparation H® ointment with special applicator. Preparation H® is sold at all drug stores. Payola Is Just One Method of Making TV Pay

WASHINGTON (AP) — Deceptive broadcasting practices apparently flourish throughout the U.S. radio - television industry, say congressional investigators.

What started out as an investigation of payola — undercover payoffs to disc jockeys by record makers — they reported, is turning up indications of other questionable activities involving the industry from top to bottom.

A summary of their findings released Monday shows the investigatory charge "top 10" record lists are rigged, program officials take payoffs from child actors and other performers, and network executives use their stations to plug outside interests.

The findings are contained in a memorandum from the chief counsel of the House legislative oversight subcommittee to its chairman, Representative Oren Harris (Dem., Ark.).

No names appear in the memorandum and no firm or individual is are singled out as dealers in deceit. The document lists in general terms 22 examples of the kind of thing the investigators have uncovered and describes them as "important leads" in the investigation.

Several of the points deal with the "top 10" and "top 40" record lists featured by disc jockeys. Record manufacturers, sellers, disc jockeys and station executives are all charged with playing a part in rigging such lists.

"Allegations are that a systematic approach is made to key retail record sellers throughout the country whereby for money the record sellers will falsely state that a certain record or records are the ones which have been the best sellers," says the memorandum.

In addition, station and network officials with outside interests in record companies are accused of repeatedly playing the firms' records and falsely describing them as on some "top" list.

Network officials also are accused of giving favored nte of their broadcasting facilities to other commercial activities and the extra payment is sometimes returned to station officials.

Disc jockeys are shown to have other undercover sources of income besides payola. Music publishers, record makers and distributors disguise such payoffs as consultation fees, loans and mortgages, say the investigators.

Also fattening the disc jockeys' take, income pay, it is charged is the income from the sale of "freebies," or records given to them in large supply by record companies.

TO REPLACE BEAMS

TORONTO (CP) — Suburban Etobicoke board of education, after hearing a delegation of 40 worried parents, Monday night decided to substitute steel beams for the wood laminated beams in Queens Court Public School. Many Doukhobors Pay Small Rentals for Land, Few Pay Taxes, Others Pay Nothing

CP YEAR-END REVIEW

By NAT COLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 39-year-old land problem is the key to peace in the restless Doukhobor country of southwest British Columbia.

The problem: How to get an adequate tax return from the rich farming lands the Doukhobors occupy in the Kootenays without arousing the hostility of the radical minority of the sect.

Most Doukhobors—perhaps 10,000 Orthodox members who have generally accepted the Canadian way of life and another 2,500 of the radical Sons of Freedom branch — still occupy the land they settled early in the century. The Sons of Freedom only recently have begun to show respect for authority.

Many Doukhobors pay small rentals and a few pay taxes. Others pay nothing at all.

COMPANIES FORECLOSED

Mortgage companies have foreclosed on about 18,000 acres in the depression of the 1930s when the Doukhobors were unable to meet debts totalling $600,000.

The province's 11 government, which bought the land for $296,-000 in 1938, appointed Mr. Justice A.E. Lord of the B.C. Supreme Court to look into the question six years ago. In 1957, on his recommendation, the land was offered to the Doukhobors at 40 per cent of its appraised value.

Since the offer was made, however, only seven sales have been completed.

Most of the land is occupied by Orthodox Doukhobors. Some, who no longer follow the communal way of life, own their land and pay taxes. Several thousand others still live in colonies and pay the government a nominal rent.

Perhaps 10 per cent of the Sons of Freedom own land and pay taxes. The majority are squatters, paying neither rent nor taxes.

The government may have a solution in a report made by Mr. Justice Lord in December, which has not yet been made public. Some Kootenay residents believe —and many hope — he will suggest that the land be thrown open for public sale.

MOVE DOUBTFUL

A partial solution would be simple if the Freedomite squatters went through with the migration to "Mother Russia" proposed two years ago. But despite assertions by sect leaders that the move is still on, experienced observers think the Sons of Freedom are here to stay.

In say event, 1959 was a year of accomplishment on the complex Freedomite scene. The thorny problem of educating the children of this group appears to have been solved; the government has taken steps to reorganize Freedomite marriages; the Sons seem to have reduced violence to draw attention to themselves by acts of violence.

A new friendliness has settled over Freedomite communities.

Policemen who were once pelted with rocks and rotten vegetables as they searched for tax sale children have been treated cordially since Stipendiary Magistrate William Evans of Nelson ordered the release of 77 Freedomite children from a government dormitory at New Denver last August.

The Sons had refused to send their children to school, firmly maintaining that Canadian schools teach militarism.

The matter finally started dispersion within the sect itself and in April a group of women defied the Sons of Freedom council as the ruling body. At the end of July, parents of the New Denver children—some of whom had been government wards for six years — promised Magistrate Evans they would send them to school.

Dr. J. F. K. English, deputy minister of education, is pleased with the children's attendance record since they were released.

"We are very pleased with the parents' attitude," says Deputy Minister — General Dr. Gilbert Kennedy. "When the police meet with new ideas or discuss any problems, they are not unfriendly. There is a whole changed attitude."

Says Magistrate Evans: "You never know what may happen overnight, but they have been very cooperative so far."

Magistrate Evans is also administering the marriage law, which recognizes the ceremonies performed by parents. About 350 of 1,000 such marriages have been legally registered.

No one who knows the ways of the strange Sons of Freedom is convinced that the peace is durable. But there is more hope and promise of improvement in the sect's relations with the community than perhaps ever before in its turbulent 60 years in Canada.

CHURCH APPOINTMENT

WATERLOO (CP) — Rev. Robert B. Gehl, parsor of St. Louis Romas Catholic church here, has been appointed provincial superior of the Ontario Kentucky Province of the Congregation of the Resurrection. He succeeds Very Rev. A. A. Eichelsdinger, who was elected superior general of the Resurrectionist fathers and now resides in Rome.

OLD STORE CLOSES

DETROIT (AP) — The Ernst Kern Company, one of the city's oldest department stores, will shut down operations at the end of business Dec. 23, John A. Fry, temporary receiver for the 77-year-old downtown store, requested the closing. He told county court that the store was not doing enough volume business to continue operations.

SIGN PETITION

EDMONTON (CP)—A petition, signed by 251 faculty members of the University of Alberta, was sent to External Affairs Minister Green in Paris Monday asking that Canada oppose a nuclear bomb tests by France in the Sahara. The petition was signed by Dr. Walter Jones, the university president, and several faculty heads.

DRIVING DEATH FINE

STRATFORD (CP)—Mrs. Kathleen Ellis, 49, pleaded guilty Monday to careless driving in connection with the death of Ronald Dawson, 7, Nov. 21 and was fined $75. Her drivers' licence was suspended three months.

100 VOLUNTEERS

TORONTO (CP) — More than 100 Canadians are reported to have volunteered to join American physician Dr. Thomas A. Dooley winner of the 1959 Mutual of Omaha Cross award, who has established two hospitals and a clinic in Laos. Clifford Ascher, a teacher at the school for retarded children here, said Monday he was told recently by Dr. Dooley that about 120 Canadians who saw the doctor on television volunteered to join him, but he had to refuse them because of lack of funds and other restrictions.

Punishment to Fit Criminal, Not Crime, in New Prison Opened at Joyceville Tuesday

JOYCEVILLE (CP) — The federal government has opened a modern with its ninth and newest penitentiary.

It's the new $4,000,000 Joyceville institution, Canada's first medium-security federal prison and the first real test of a fresh penal reform system under which punishment is made to fit the criminal rather than the crime.

In opening ceremonies Tuesday, Justice Minister Fulton said:

"Our concern here is not with the cause of offending, but cannot reform a man. You can only reform an individual—and then only if you treat the individual that we will concentrate our efforts."

460 CONVICTS

By next September there will be 460 convicts in Joyceville. It already has 98 inmates.

It's a place where a convict can have a private, quiet room with a radio and a scenic view. He can shower each day and have a bath every day, and can join other inmates for meals served upon heated food wagons.

Most important—both the prison staff—the man can work and be trained in a skilled trade, get educational help, moving through doors that are not barred. Visitors can mingle outside on a 640-acre beef cattle farm with only occasional supervision. Guns and clubs are never armed.

There are no high walls. Getting out of Joyceville would be more like walking out of a railroad station.

There will be the same control as over the rest—just speak a month or 10 years in nearby penitentiaries, including a new and dingy maximum-security prison that eventually all of the other seven penitentiaries across Canada.

BIG CONTRAST

There, the convict got one change of underwear a week and sometimes only by asking. He lined up for his meals, then ate them back to his barred cell to eat alone.

He stayed in the cells, each with a strong wooden door, are arranged in 18 units of 21-36 cells each. Here the convicts segregated into these groups according to their age and temperament and possibly their work or their Christian faith.

A big courtyard will be used for tennis, handball and such. There is a modern machine shop, a garage, a tailor shop, a bakery and a big Kingston Penitentiary classification board.

Fence inside. It's not a breeze. A wrong move or an escape can bring the guards and convicts security. It still has enough fences and guard towers and electronics to make it unpleasant enough for men not to want to come back.

At Joyceville, the guns are available to the guards are shotguns, rifles, tear gas, revolvers and three gas guns, stowed away for emergency use only.

"I hope we never have to have armament," Warden Ross Earl told reporters Tuesday. "I hope we never have to put a wall around this institution."

India Sends Strong Note Of Protest

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—India has sent a strong note of protest to China against the "cruel and inhuman" handling of Indians taken prisoner in the Chinese border clash, parliament was told Tuesday.

Ten Indian border police were killed in the clash. Ten others were captured and held for 15 days. The note said they were subjected to treatment that was "opposed to all canons of civilized behavior." It said adequate action could be taken against the Chinese responsible for "subjecting helpless Indian prisoners to such inhuman treatment."

Deputy police superintendent Karam Singh, leader of the Indian patrol involved in the clash, has stated since his release that he was severely beaten by Chinese. Now in hospital where doctors are trying to save his frostbitten leg, he said he was forced to sleep on snow in the open for three nights and was kept without food for two days.

His statement said he and six other Indians were kept in a narrow pit, three feet only by 6 paulla, and fed on dry bread in freezing weather for five days. He said he first was interrogated by 12 communist officers.

Meanwhile, the New Delhi Evening Newspaper, in a story from Kathmandu, Nepal, said Nepal accepts Nepalese deputy defence minister, B. H. Gurung, as saying China has built up heavy concentrations along Nepal's northern border.

Bishop Critical Of Carols Being Played in Stores

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Religious Christmas carols played as background music in stores have been criticized as "almost irreverent" by the Rt. Rev. George Luxton, Anglican bishop of Huron.

In an article in the diocesan paper, he says stores catering to Christmas shoppers, anxious to provide their customers with seasonal music, not a religious carols.

"It always irritates me to hear a saxophone to the tune of Adeste Fidelis 'Oh Come all ye Faithful.' It is not that music is most irreverent to have choirs singing in the background 'Oh come let us adore Him", while everyone in the foreground is carrying on their usual business and concentrating on the difficulties expected shortly."

The bishop also said store owners should make Santa Claus their gimmick instead of Christ out of a commercial Christmas.

Universities Getting Behind Petition for Ban of Tests

Students and faculty at Canadian universities are gradually getting behind the University of Toronto's 3,000 - name petition calling for the end of testing and production of nuclear weapons.

Most of the interest is centred in Ontario and Quebec where similar petitions are being circulated in three universities and drafted in two others.

It tails off towards the east and to west as well.

However, the University of Alberta Monday addressed a memorandum signed by nearly two-thirds of the faculty, including President Walter Johns, to External Affairs Minister Green.

The memo urged Mr. Green, in Paris for NATO meetings, to express Canadian opposition to French nuclear bomb tests to be held in the Sahara next year.

Goal of the so-called "regional revolution" is massive pressure on Ottawa to urge confinement of the atomic bomb and its offshoots to nations that already have it.

Dr. David Gauthier, philosophy professor at University College and leader of the University of Toronto nuclear weapons committee, said his appearance in Ottawa Monday when he presented the university's petition was "was only the beginning."

Prof. Frank Scott of McGill University, Montreal, is among those including those of several deans, have been collected to add to the Toronto petition.

Students at McGill, Montreal and the Waterloo Williams College are co-operating on a separate petition to include opposition to nuclear weapons coming to Canada.

Montreal students also have arranged a mass motorcade to Ottawa Thursday to present a petition to Governor-General Vanier.

At the University of Western Ontario a faculty-student committee is in charge. Circulation is in circulation. Signers include University President Dr. G. E. Hall.

Student petition is being circulated so far at Queen's University but at Ottawa University one is being drafted which will stress the role of Canada's defence.

Interest is high among professors at Carleton University though no petition has been started. At Assumption "a good deal of favorable comment" is reported. But at both Laval University in Quebec City and Montreal University the reign has sparked little interest.

Accused Says Fatal Shot Was Accident

VANCOUVER (CP)—Raymond Leonard Schultz, 29-year-old Korean War veteran charged with murder in the shooting death of his wife, Ida, took the stand Tuesday to testify that the fatal shot was fired accidentally as he struggled with the woman.

Cross-examining Schultz, Crown prosecutor George Murray asked the accused:

"You're in the dark as to who pulled the trigger, and you are saying that it was accidental death?"

"Yes," replied Schultz.

Schultz was the only witness called by defence counsel Harry Rankin. The case was expected to go to the jury today.

Mrs. Schultz, mother of a 15-month-old girl and the former Lois Thomas, was shot in the face in the bathroom of their home last Oct. 4.

Evidence was that Schultz, who surrendered to police shortly after the shooting, served in the Korea with the Canadian forces for two years.

He married his wife before going overseas. He returned to Canada, was sentenced to six years on conviction of break-ins and later remanded with his wife and they came to live here.

Schultz testified he went into the bathroom with his wife in order to hold a private conversation.

"We were standing face to face. I had my left hand on her hand on my hip and felt the gun in my belt," he said. "My hand slipped and the weapon fell Lasd.

"I made a grab for the gun with both hands and we struggled and the gun went off."

Schultz said that although he knew the gun could be a dangerous weapon, he had no intent to shoot his wife, nor cause her bodily harm.

He mentioned as to why he felled one guest with a gun blow to the head, "I thought the gun fell on another guest's stomach prior to fleeing the apartment, he said he was "frightened and was in a panic."

Phoney Talk Of 'Spacemen' Causes Flop

NEW YORK (AP) — "One, two, three, four, testing," a telephone intelligence operator announced Tuesday. "One, two, three, four, testing."

Subscribers began overcrame him. He switched his line of patter:

"Space dust, this is space ship one, come in space ship one. This is Estella leader. I now am in space ship one. Do you read me, space ship one?"

Starting a chain reaction among other workman:

"Space dust, this is Estella leader. We are now approaching New York. First wave now in control. Do you read me?"

A quirk of electrical circuits, however, sent the first message out over telephone lines in five directions instead.

Started subscribers called police.

"I have spacemen on my telephone," wailed one woman.

Police solved the riddle and passed the complaints to the telephone company.

From the latter came an edict:

"From now on they stick to saying 'one, two, three, four testing.'"

"But if they get bored with that they can try, four, three, two, one, testing."

Police Officers Deny Mishandling 2 Youths, Girl

TORONTO (CP) — Two Metropolitan Toronto police constables denied they mishandled three youths and a girl stopped for questioning July 4.

But they said they "scuffled" with Fred Garland, 19, charged with assaulting police. The case was remanded until Thursday.

Garland, 19, testified he took full inquiry into his car belt, that Mavis Chu, 17, and David Wing, were mistreated by policemen dressed in old clothes.

Constable Donald Banks told the court he and Constable Anderson stopped the car to talk to it because the girl answered the description of a robbery suspect. It was a routine stopping, he said in recent.

Constable Wozniak said he produced his identification card and added: "Both officers said Garland, who didn't believe the men were policemen, hit Constable Banks on the temple with his fist.

Prime Minister Macmillan's Conservatives Have to Face Their Main Challenge Abroad

LONDON (CP)—British politics in 1960 are likely to entail problems for the Conservative government and bigger worries for the opposition Labor party.

With Suez far from comfortable years stretching ahead of them after their surprisingly decisive victory in the general election last Oct. 8, Prime Minister Macmillan's Conservatives appear to face their main challenge abroad.

Among their immediate preoccupations will be European trade and the "retreat from Africa." They will be trying to reconcile themselves with the European Common Market, now dominated by France and West Germany, and come to terms with black African nationalism without upsetting white settlers.

Macmillan's visit in January to South Africa, Ghana, Nigeria and the Central African Federation is the first such trip by a British prime minister in office—will be important news. Governments officials say the prime minister's decided upon the tour as a way to grasp the immensity of Africa problems.

Macmillan's announcement that South Africa would be declared persona non grata in Commonwealth quarters opposed to the Nationalist government's racial policies. Some felt the visit implied British government approval of Premier Verwoerd's policies.

Macmillan's announcement that Gaitskell had the right idea, but the old faith died hard in Blackpool.

Some independent commentators, including Canadian - born Roland Huntford, have criticized for "failing the nation" as a political party. Labor government by its apparent inability of unwillingness to settle its internal problems.

"Jest a Second"

It's the nagging club's new tie."

Civil Servants Getting Brief Ready for Frost

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Civil Service Association Tuesday put together its annual brief on pay and working conditions to be presented to Premier Frost.

It was reported the package, to be presented early in January, will ask for a 10 per cent salaries, overtime pay, collective bargaining rights and a group insurance plan.

A draft of the brief says the association regards increases announced by Premier Frost last year as inadequate. It says the $500 a year as only "an interim move to establish good salary levels."

It calls for implementation of "the government's undertaking to proceed immediately to revise salaries on a class basis."

The association's executive board voted to underwrite a complete job evaluation survey in one of the provincial departments, possibly lands and forests or highways, at a cost of $15,000 to $20,000.

Union Blocked In Effort to Get Rights

TORONTO (CP) — The National Union of Public Employees was blocked Tuesday in its attempt to get bargaining rights on behalf of 130 Workmen's Compensation Board Hospital employees in Malton.

A recent ruling by the attorney-general's department to the effect that the compensation board doesn't come under the scope of the Ontario Labor Relations Act closed the door to union organization of employees.

An organizing drive by the Public Employees Union among staff office employees of the compensation board also was stalled.

The ruling threatens bargaining rights held by unions on behalf of employees of all government boards.

Following on the ruling the Ontario Food Terminal board and the Canadian Brewery Teamsters Union for certification on behalf of terminal employees Tuesday.

Labor Minister Daley said Thursday he was taking the matter under advisement.

Under the interpretation act, Crown agencies are excluded from the provisions of labor statues unless specifically mentioned. Under the Ontario Crown Agency Act, passed during the bright legislature session, becomes a Crown agency as any board, commission, railway, public utility, municipality, company or agency owned, operated or controlled by the province.

Unions now hold bargaining rights for employees in such government - controlled agencies as the Ontario Northland Railway said the University of Toronto.

Labor Minister Daley said Thursday night the new rulings posed a questionmark over the future of the right to bargain rights.

"I don't know how they will affect them," he said.

David Archer, president of the Ontario Federation of Labor, said a meeting of all interested parties would be held to discuss the situation.

Silent Concert Will Be Staged At Detroit

DETROIT (AP)—Anyone who likes silent movies can see Pola Negri in 1924 at Detroit's Cass Theatre at regular ticket prices.

John Grubba, a University of Detroit student who promoted silent movies, said Tuesday the scheduled concert was "the spontaneous idea of a lovers' whelming public endorsement for more quiets."

Student Government University of Detroit chorus will "sing" silently. Pianists will play, but nothing except silence will come out.

Grubba promoted a series of records to students at the University of Detroit. They will put a dime in the jukebox and "get his money back" if there's just as a jazz enthusiast can "get the full moment of musical ecstasy".

The silent records were later distributed to students abroad.

Detroit corporations are helping sponsor the silent chorus, billed as the "first musical hush label silent record concert," an advertisement by Detroit students. Tickets will cost from $1 to $3.

Turkey Growers To Be Polled On New Program

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario turkey growers today polled by mail on the question of a plan designed to stimulate the production and consumption of Ontario grown birds.

G. F. Hewlis, commissioner of the agricultural development, marketing branch, said the plan would include regulation and control over the marketing of turkeys and a "vigorous" promotional campaign.

The proposed plan calls for levy each to exceed one-tenth of a cent per pound on all turkeys marketed, Mr. Perkin said.

A vote of 66 2/3 per cent in favor is required before the plan becomes effective. The mail vote will be held from Jan. 25 to Feb. 15.

Exempted from the vote are Prince Edward, Lennox, Addington, Renfrew, Hastings, Prince Edward, Peterborough, Victoria, Haliburton, Simcoe, Muskoka, Parry, Timiskaming and Thunder Bay.

Ontario Expresses Interest In New Plan for Granting Federal Aid to Universities

By DON ATTFIELD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ontario is the only province besides Quebec which has expressed interest in the federal government's offer of a new plan for granting financial aid to universities.

The plan, announced last Thursday by Prime Minister Diefenbaker, would allow provinces the alternative of receiving the money through tax concessions instead of by direct grant.

The plan was directed at Quebec, which has refused to accept direct grants in aid of universities on the ground they infringe the constitutional right of the province to administer education.

Quebec Premier Sauve, whose reply to the federal offer is expected to reach Ottawa today or Thursday, has said the Ottawa plan is in line with his own provincial proposed made earlier.

Premier Frost of Ontario said he is definitely interested in the statues unless specifically mentioned. Under the interpretation act, Crown agencies are excluded from the provisions of labor statues unless specifically mentioned. Under the Ontario Crown Agency Act, passed during the bright legislature session, becomes a Crown agency as any board, commission, railway, public utility, municipality, company or agency owned, operated or controlled by the province.

Pegged Rates On Export Grain Touchy Issue

OTTAWA (CP)—Faced with a fast - approaching Christmas holiday, Canada's royal commission on transportation is doggedly driving ahead with its investigation of the touchy issue of pegged freight rates on export grain shipments in western Canada.

At least three more railway witnesses are to be heard by the commission before it adjourns later this week.

Then from the commission won't be cleaned up on the grain by Aug. 31.

Seeking more time, the Prairies want to suspend their cross-examination of the railways' case of study of grain shipments until next March — perhaps even later.

TOUR TO COME

And the commission still has to tour western Canada to hear regional submissions on railway transport problems. It has set Feb. 8 for the start of the western tour and said the report has not disclosed dates for sessions in Regina, Edmonton or Vancouver.

After that, the commission will have to return to the east to hear more witnesses and then possibly go back to Montreal for some French - language submissions. It has already been to Quebec and the Maritimes.

Only four days sessions will likely be held in Ottawa.

Arguing that the Crowsnest type level of grain rates is the biggest inequity hitting the hard-pressed rail system, the three major railways have gone before the commission with a appeal for federal help in transporting prairie grain to the Lakehead, Pacific coast and Churchill, Man.

Health Minister Not Critical of Canada's Effort

GRAVENHURST (CP) — Ontario Health Minister Dymond said he would not be the least bit critical when he said Monday that Canada's admission of 100 tuberculosis refugees is "pretty paltry gesture."

Mr. Dymond was quoted as having said in Windsor that he thinks the only investment in the project, this country's contribution to world refugee year, "frankly I'm not all that ashamed of it."

Thursday he said he feels the admission of the 100 tubercular refugees and their families is just the first step. He said he feels sure Canada can admit many more.

Mr. Dymond was speaking at the Muskoka hospital here which he was visiting on his tour of provincial tuberculosis hospitals.

Weather conditions cancelled a helicopter visit to the Sudbury-Algoma sanatorium.

Britain Welcomes Election Of Bishop Makarios in Cyprus

Canadian Press Staff Writer

It's ironic that Britain, which once banished Archbishop Makarios from Cyprus as a leader in terrorist activities, should welcome his election to the new republic's highest office.

Even more ironic is the fact that Makarios could be openly cheered into the presidency by the Turkish Cypriots, who once branded him as the "red" Greek churchman.

But the 46-year-old Archbishop firmly established in office, both the British and Turks are hoping that the republic's constitution is likely to be formed on a basis of partnership between the two parties. This was, unquestionably, the only single issue on everyone's minds.

If Makarios' only opponent, Dr. Kutchuk, withdraws before he is elected — he collected half as many votes as the archbishop — the issue would be far from settled. About the only clear issue on his platform was his strong opposition to the proposed constitution. On other issues, he faced the impossible task of appeasing his Communist and extreme right wing supporters. As his campaign eventually bogged down in conflicting policies, his basic position became virtually indefinable.

While Makarios had some similar difficulties — at times his campaign was reduced to a personal feud—he always had the Turkish community behind him.

It was clear that Whitehall wanted nothing to do with Gierek. And that also applied to part of a revised constitution. On the basis of this, Makarios found new supporters.

But what about the future?

The British government is reasonably confident that all-important links will be tossed out —particularly there deciding the British role in bases now linked —before the republic comes into existence in February.

There are dark shadow on the seemingly pleasant situation in Cyprus. Of 1,000 voters not supported Clerides. There was surprise in London that the Greek leader had not run against Makarios.

There is little danger of the archbishop being driven from office regardless of the opposition, but government sources in London say that any antagonistic gestures against Makarios might result in him taking a firm dictatorial grip on the republic. They don't want this.

As it stand Britain's view of the election is general relief, reasonable confidence and reserved optimism.

Country's First Large-Scale Atomic Power Station to Be Started Before '67 Centennial

By JOHN E. REID
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — By the time Canada celebrates its centennial in 1967 construction may be well under way on the country's first large-scale atomic power station capable of generating electricity commercially.

At the end of the second decade or early in the 1970s similar stations generating up to 200,000 kilowatts of electricity or 268,000 horsepower may be springing up in power - hungry Ontario, Manitoba and the Maritimes.

This forecast of economic atomic power is predicted on the success of the current Canadian program for construction of nuclear power plants.

The Canadian approach involves the use of natural uranium as a fuel and heavy water to control the fission used to transform heat to raise steam to drive turbines.

BEST PROSPECTS

Atomic Energy of Canada Limited, crown company in charge of the federal nuclear program, is convinced this approach holds the best promise of producing economic electric power from the atom.

The program has been under sharp criticism from outside experts but federal atomic officials remain unshaken in their faith in the natural uranium-heavy water concept. They are convinced that if the atomic energy program is reviewed by a special committee of the 1960 session of Parliament there will be no change in policy.

Wismer Boyd, a Montreal engineer, says Canada is making a multi-million-dollar error in the design of nuclear power stations. He advocates a design of his own employing the use of helium gas and graphite in place of heavy water and as enriched and expensive uranium fuel.

However, atomic officials say no experts now can forecast which system will turn out to be the best. They believe the Canadian approach has a greater chance of success than others, especially as it involves big plants producing large blocks of power required in this country.

Much will depend on experience gained in the operation of a demonstration plant now under construction at Rolphton, Ont., 110 miles northeast of Ottawa.

This $22,000,000 plant is being built jointly by Atomic Energy of Canada Limited, the Ontario Hydro - Electric Power Commission and Canadian General Electric. Construction will be mostly completed next year, allowing a start-up by mid-1961.

Information gained from the operation of the plant will go into the final design of the first full-scale atomic station, to be built near Kincardine on Lake Huron by late 1964 or early 1965.

Some federal atomic experts feel this 200,000,000 plant may be the economic answer if development costs of some $30,000,000 are not taken into account.

They are convinced that the next plant after this one will produce electricity as economically as thermal stations powered with coal or some other fossil fuel.

This is the plant that likely will be well under construction by 1967.

IMPORTANT TO URANIUM

Advent of economic atomic power in the late 1960s or early 1970s will be of major importance to Canada's uranium industry.

The United States, the industry's main customer, has decided not to buy more Canadian uranium than contracts completed in contracts expiring in 1965 and 1963, but has agreed to a stretch-out to 1966 on deliveries. After 1966 it's hoped that a demand for uranium for power plants will inject new life into the industry.

In an effort to increase Canada's knowledge of peaceful uses of atomic energy, preliminary work will start next year on the design of a new research and development centre in Manitoba. Construction will start in about two years on a site north of Winnipeg, likely on the Winnipeg River.

Other projects planned for next year include further studies on the design of a large - scale reactor using an organic liquid instead of heavy water as a heat transfer agent, and on the design of small atomic power plants suitable for the Canadian Arctic. Further facilities will also be provided at the Chalk River, Ont., atomic project including a small reactor for testing uranium fuels for large power plants.

Canada's first nuclear-electric power station, scheduled to go into operation in mid-1965, is half finished.

When the $22,000,000 project in Rolphton, on the Ottawa River 50 miles from Chalk River, is completed it will feed power into the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission's system in southern Ontario.

In main purpose, however, is to serve as a test plant to provide experience in design, construction and operation of a nuclear-electric plant. As such it will be a pilot plant for the first full-scale, 200,000 horsepower, nuclear plant to be built near Kincardine on Lake Huron in 1964 or 1965.

refugees were huddled in a rear compartment as a health precaution. One of them, Josip Cabra, a 35-year-old Yugoslav seaman, spoke a little English and this helped Dr. Wood in caring for the ill.

However, all the other refugees in several rooms and offices spoke only Yugoslav, Polish and Italian. The only communication between doctors and crew members and the doctor and nurses was provided by an airline hostess and steward who had a limited knowledge of the three languages.

Mr. Cabra, who spent four years in Italian refugee camps, said the group only fully realized they were being offered a new life in a free country when they were told they had actually arrived in Canada.

LAND AT GANDER

Full realization that they were in Canada occurred before daybreak when the plane landed at Newfoundland's Gander airport for fuel. The excited refugees had their first breakfast in the new terminal at Gander.

"Canada will be our mother country," Mr. Cabra said. "We had no mother country a long time.

"We have Christmas in Canada. We very happy."

When the refugees were loaded aboard the plane at home, they were told to understand at first why it was necessary for these with TB to be isolated.

Several women separated from their tubercular husbands cried when the plane took off to enter the rear compartment but were gently restrained.

Wants Clothes

NEW YORK (AP)—Actor Errol Flynn's last girl friend, 17-year-old Beverly Aadland, went to court Tuesday to try to get back several thousand dollars worth of clothing.

She said Flynn had put the things in storage for her before his death and that the warehouse firm now refuses to let her have them back.

In papers filed with the court, Miss Aadland said the garments are about $18,000 but now are worth about $4,000.

TENDER SPOT

Order Inquest Into Deaths of Three Persons

OSHAWA (CP)—An inquest has been ordered into the deaths of two teen-age sisters and a family friend drowned Monday night when their car plunged into Lake Ontario.

Drowned were Judith Claire Wallis, 16, her sister Arlene Marie, 15, and Harvey Rowe, 31, all of nearby Port Perry.

Police are trying to determine why the trio were in the harbor area. Mr. Rowe picked the girls up after school and took them Christmas shopping in Oshawa. Friends believe the sisters, after leaving their shopping, may have persuaded Mr. Rowe to drive them to the lakefront to see a dance hall they frequently attended.

LLANRHIDIAN, Wales (CP)—More than 200 sheep were lost in a gale that hit the Glamorgan district. Many of the sheep suffocated in the 90 mile-an-hour winds.

Happy Couple To Find Haven In Canada

LATINA, Italy (CP) — Farid Fooz and his bride of six months, Mosira, are to go to Canada.

When the news swept through the refugee camp housing exiles of Latina, 45 miles south of Rome, camp officials and refugees cheered or broke into tears.

"I saw people cry," said Dr. Edesio Babic, movement officer of the camp for the International governmental committee for European migration.

The Fooz story is one of a man's love for his childhood sweetheart.

Farid, 29, could have gone to Australia last April but turned the chance down. Mosira, 24, had tuberculosis and the Australian refused to accept her as an immigrant for health reasons.

The two left leave Rome for Toronto today aboard the first Canadian Pacific Airlines plane moving tubercular refugees and their families to Canada under federal government sponsorship.

Farid and Mosira grew up together in Sarajevo, Yugoslavia. They planned to get married when Farid could earn enough money as a jeweller.

But that day never came. Farid learned to be an electrician but even that didn't help him find a better job.

They both hated communism and escaped to a camp of refugees in Austria. In 1958, they decided to make their way across the Yugoslav border separately.

Farid escaped to Trieste and when Mosira learned by letter that he had escaped, she and two other girls succeeded in slipping into Trieste in November.

When Mosira was rejected for entry to Australia, "I couldn't leave my beloved Mosira," Farid said through an interpreter. "I decided I should stay with her even if it meant living in a refugee camp for the rest of my life."

Following his decision, Farid and Mosira were married June 20, 1959.

"Everything is going to be all right now," Farid said. "My wife will get well in Canada and I will get a job."

FRANCE IS

on the Allies to choose sides in the French-American dispute.

VERBAL PROTEST

French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville avoided this issue when he spoke at Thursday's opening session of the annual NATO review, although he and General de Gaulle's Chief of State Secretary Christian A. Herter.

Herter, at the opening council session Tuesday, insisted NATO military forces under a unified command to counter the growing strength of improved Soviet arms.

With equal firmness, France has been holding out for a system to preserve what the President de Gaulle refers to as the "national entity" of the participating forces—that is, each nation retaining full control of its forces.

Couve de Murville appeared to be conducting a diplomatic delaying action until President Eisenhower arrives Friday and can meet with de Gaulle. The French hope the two old wartime associates can iron out the dispute.

As his allies understand it, de Gaulle wants American forces to remain in Western Europe. But he also wants France to have a bigger role in NATO and a stronger voice in world affairs.

One suggestion towards a solution is a step-by-step arrangement to unify Western defenses, at least in the air. In return, the United States would be allowed to officially overlook de Gaulle's refusal to accept stocks of U.S. nuclear weapons in France unless he has sole control of them.

The United States insists on joint control, a system accepted by Britain and Italy.

Informed diplomats reported meanwhile that West Germany has won approval from her allies to build warships up to 3,000 tons and submarines up to 1,800 tons. These sources said the tonnage ceiling on West Germany's growing navy was raised at a secret session last summer of the Western European Union, a security association group set up in 1955 to "contain" a rearmed Germany.

The sources said, however, Britain vetoed a West German bid to make accoustic mines because they are regarded as offensive weapons, which the Germans are not supposed to manufacture.

West Germany's present tonnage limit is 7,000 for surface warships and 350 for submarines.

OFF AGAIN, ON AGAIN

COVENTRY, Eng. (Reuters)—Sixty-four strikers at the Jaguar automobile plant returned to work Monday after a three-day wildcat strike — and then promptly walked out again. The strike by men on the assembly finishing line has stopped 3,600 other men from working. The strikers walked out over a pay dispute.

Leaders in Canadian Industry Assured by Prince Philip He Will Head World Conference

By FORBES RUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Thirty-five men—leaders in Canadian industry and labor — had come to see the Duke of Edinburgh aboard the royal yacht Britannia at Montreal.

They wanted to know if the duke would head a Commonwealth conference in Canada of industrial and labor representatives, similar to the one he had headed at Oxford, England, in 1956.

The time was 5 p.m. June 25, one of the busiest days of this year's Royal Tour.

The 35 men filled up the gangplank, were met by an aide-de-camp and were shown to a drawing room. Within a few minutes the duke came in.

MET IN DINING ROOM

They were presented to him, then went to the yacht's blue-and-gold dining room.

Three long tables had been arranged in U-shape, at which the delegates took their places.

Prince Philip sat at a small table at the open end of the U. Beside him sat E. P. Taylor of Toronto, president of Argus Corporation, representative of an "action committee" formed by those interested in holding a conference in Canada.

Mr. Taylor outlined what had been proposed so far and expressed the committee's hope that His Royal Highness would be conference president.

W. M. W. Ash, president of Shell Oil Company of Canada, then moved that Prince Philip be invited to become president. Claude Jodoin, president of the Canadian Labor Congress, seconded.

He took the chair for the rest of the meeting.

CONFERENCE ASSURED

From that moment, in the words of one of those present, the proposed conference for Canada in 1962 became a fact. It probably will be held in June.

"Up to then," the delegate added, "everything that had been done over the last few weeks had been exploratory. But on the Britannia it quickly became evident that the Duke was so enthusiastic that the conference was a sure thing."

Prince Philip said he hoped the conference in Canada would have the same objectives as the Oxford meeting, but with a strong Canadian flavor.

The conferences are a means, he said, whereby industrially-advanced Commonwealth members can give assistance to developing countries in dealing with the human problems of industry.

In selecting those who should attend, emphasis should be on youth. People should attend as individuals, free to air their own views.

The meeting lasted nearly an hour. At its conclusion Philip S. Fisher, president of The Southam Company, extended to Prince Philip the thanks of those present.

The Canadian conference will be called "HRH The Duke of Edinburgh's Second Commonwealth Study Conference Canada 1962."

Its general theme will be "the human consequences of the changing industrial environment in the Commonwealth and Empire"—a continuance of the 1956 Oxford theme, which was "the human problems of industrial communities within the Commonwealth and Empire."

Since the Britannia meeting, Vincent Massey, former governor-general, has accepted chairmanship of the conference council. Mr. Ash has become vice-chairman and Mr. Taylor honorary treasurer. Headquarters have been set up at 505 University Ave., Toronto, with Gordon Hawkins, former associate director of the Canadian Association for Adult Education, as executive director.

From now on a number of working committees will meet more and more intensively, and it is expected that the over-all council of around 100 members —industrialists, labor leaders, agriculturists and educationists— will meet once or twice a year between now and the conference proper. Prince Philip has expressed his intention of presiding over certain of these meetings in Canada.

Donald MacDonald, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Labor Congress, one of those at the Britannia meeting, says of the conference:

"The first at Oxford in our view was a departure and an experiment and we need a number of representatives without knowing what was expected.

"It evidently served a marvelous purpose, however, judging by the enthusiasm of our delegates when they returned. They and the business people got together and kept urging that another conference be held and that it be in Canada.

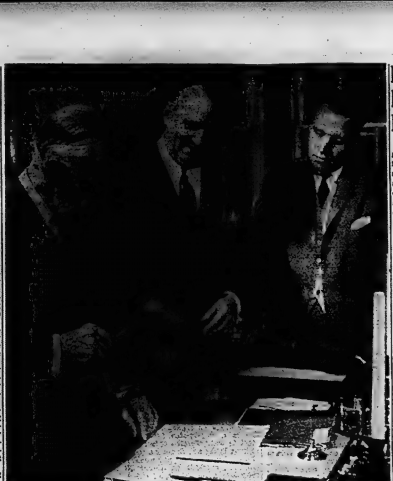
"We intend to put everything we can into it to ensure its success."

Mr. Ash commented:

"All Canadians who attended were enthusiastic about the forum provided to exchange views and ventilate ideas. The meetings enable industry and labor to speak for themselves from such varying climates as exist in the Commonwealth."

The conference does not deal with such matters as collective bargaining or things which are regarded as in the normal field of industrial relations.

TO SHARE COST



Canadian industry and labor unions will bear the cost of the meeting, including travel and expenses of delegates after their arrival in Canada. Delegates will number around 300 and are expected to be of the "junior executive" type, probably between the ages of 25 and 45. The idea is that the conference is primarily for future leaders, rather than the top men of today.

It may take the form of opening study sessions in either Eastern or Western Canada, then a tour across Canada, followed by closing study sessions — with the whole period covering about three weeks.

The 1956 Oxford conference was held July 9-27 and was attended by nearly 300 delegates, including some 30 from Canada. It took the form of study sessions at Oxford; then study tours of various forms of British industry, for which the delegates were divided into 20 groups; and, finally, further sessions at Oxford. The published proceedings take up two volumes of nearly 350 pages each.

The following—from the group which attended the Britannia meeting—will form a conference steering committee:

Mr. Ash; D.W. Ambridge, president of Abitibi Power and Paper Company; W.J. Bennett, president, Canadian British Aluminum Company; Thomas W. Eadie, president, Bell Telephone Company of Canada; Mr. Fisher; R. M. Fowler, president, Canadian Pulp and Paper Association; Donald Gordon, president, Canadian National Railways; Mr. Jodoin; Mr. MacDonald; Roger Mathieu, president, Canadian Catholic Confederation of Labor; and Mr. Taylor.

DISCUSS CONFERENCE — A group of Canadian industrial and labor leaders are planning a conference on Canada of their colleagues throughout the Commonwealth to be presided over by Prince Philip. The Canadian conference will be HRH The Duke of Edinburgh's Second Commonwealth Study Conference Canada 1962." It will be a continuance of the first conference held in Oxford, England, in 1956, when human problems of Commonwealth communities were studied. The 1962 conference will deal with the human consequences of industrial change in the Commonwealth. In this photo, Vincent Massey, former governor-general, discusses conference arrangements at Batterwood House, his home near Port Hope, Ont. Mr. Massey is chairman of the conference council. With him is W. M. V. Ash, council vice-chairman and president of Shell Oil Company of Canada (centre), and Gordon Hawkins, executive director. (CP Photo).

Pacifist Trades His Freedom For Conscience

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — A grey-haired pacifist traded his freedom "for his conscience" and was sent to jail Monday after defying a court order to disclose the names of guests at a world fellowship summer camp in Conway.

Dr. Willard Uphaus, 69, of New Haven, Conn., a prominent Methodist layman, was given a one-year term for contempt of court after a dramatic hearing during which he said his conscience and deep religious convictions would not allow him to become an "informer."

"I stand upon loyalty to God, the constitution, the bill of rights and my conscience," Uphaus declared as he refused the judge's order that he turn the camp's guest list of 1953, 53 over to state Attorney General Louis C. Wyman.

Wyman demanded the guest lists for use in a state Communist investigation he was ordered to conduct by the New Hampshire legislature. The attorney general said he had "reliable information" that some of the camp's guests were Communists.

Uphaus said no guests or speakers at his camp "ever suggested subversion or any organized effort to overthrow the state of New Hampshire or the United States."

Meet Charlie, life of the party
Quite a guy, Charlie. Tall, handsome, everybody liked him—and Charlie was the life of the party whenever their crowd got together. Take Christmas. They were all there. It had been quite an evening. The party finally broke up around two-thirty. "See you all at our place tomorrow," called Charlie. But tomorrow never came for Charlie. He had made the mistake of having one more for the road. Oh, sure, he felt O.K. But he wasn't. Alcohol had dulled his reflexes and changed his attitude toward driving. At any other time Charlie could have avoided the accident. But this time he didn't move fast enough. What Charlie didn't realize was that a few ounces of alcohol had slowed his reflexes, impaired his ability and changed his driving attitude. Your Ontario Department of Transport asks you not to take that chance. If you intend drinking, don't drive. You'll have an easy conscience and a lot more fun.

It will take some time before everything is back to normal again.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bell and the Misses Barbara and Jocelyn Bell of London, were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Leavens. They visited their mother, Mrs. Mabel Bell at Clinton Lodge, also.

APPROVE PLAN

LONDON (Reuters)—The Common Monday night approved by a vote of 185 to 3 the setting up of the British-led European Free Trade Association better known as the "outer seven." Members include Austria, Denmark, Norway, Portugal, Switzerland and Sweden.

Liberal Opposition Leader Asks Resources Development

QUEBEC (CP) — Georges Lapalme, Liberal opposition leader in the legislative assembly, has proposed an alliance of English-Canadian and French - Canadian capital for development of Quebec's natural resources to offset American control of mining enterprises in the province.

At the same time he proposed officially different government approach to the problems of administering and developing natural resources in the province.

Mr. Lapalme said he would not hesitate to back a plan whereby the provincial government would give financial guarantees to a steel - making enterprise in the province using Quebec iron ore.

If farmers are to continue family type operation the government would have to establish many associations with limited numbers of farmers, Mr. Lapalme said. They could share mechanical equipment and use association credit.

Paul Beaulieu, minister of trade and commerce, replying in the legislative assembly budget debate, said Quebec has all the elements to become Canada's wealthiest province if these elements are put to work in the right way.

He said criticism of the past administration of the Union Nationale party was not founded because the province had modern schools, modern hospitals and a modern road network. The situation here compared well with the situation in Ontario and yet Quebec's net debt was $294,000,000 compared with $1,000,000,000 in Ontario.

exploited haphazardly; some forests were being cut too quickly while others were left to rot.

URGES STEEL AID

PROVE CELL'S EXISTENCE

KINGSTON (CP) — Queen's University medical scientists have proved the existence of a rare cell in the kidney which has been sought since 1880. Pathologists Dr. S. Benoceme and Dr. David M. Robertson, using a powerful electron microscope, made the discovery, said to be a big step in understanding reactions of kidneys to kidney disease.

I am most grateful to so many friends for their efforts on my behalf on election day.

Minister Opens Joyceville Prison Near Kingston

JOYCEVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Canada's first large-scale venture into medium - security penitentiaries without walls was launched today with the official opening of the federal government's Joyceville prison.

Justice Minister Fulton, addressing the opening ceremonies, said the $6,000,000 institution at Kingston embodies much of the modern concept that prisons should be used to reform and rehabilitate law-breakers so they will not become a continuing public burden.

Design of the new prison also was strongly influenced by the overcrowding at other federal institutions. By far the largest part of Canada's penitentiary population of about 8,500 did not require detention in walled maximum-security prisons, yet the vast majority were being held under such conditions.

The country needs more medium- and minimum-security institutions to which selected prisoners can be sent to undergo carefully-planned treatment and training, Mr. Fulton said.

Joyceville, which will offer training in industry and agriculture, was designed to inculcate good working habits during a full-eight hour day and to permit individualized treatment of prisoners.

Living accommodation is arranged to house groups of about 30 prisoners, each group having its own common room for eating and off-hours recreation. This is expected to facilitate individual treatment.

Jockey Gets Royal Welcome

SAN MATEO, Calif. (AP)—Jockey Ralph Neves, 41, returns to the races today via helicopter. The popular jockey suffered almost fatal injuries in a bad spill at Hollywood Park nearly seven months ago.

Today, he will step from a helicopter at Bay Meadows Race Track while band leader Harry James's trumpet heralds his approach to the winner's circle.

James, husband of Betty Grable, will lead a six-piece band attired in jockey silks.

Jimmy Durante will be master of ceremonies. The comedian will introduce Miss Grable, Mickey Rooney, Aldo Ray and several jockeys.

Climax of the brief ceremonies will be presentation of a memento to Neves by Joe Cohen, president and general manager of Bay Meadows.

On The Tracks

NEW YORK (AP)—Thoroughbred racing broke all records for attendance, pari-mutuel turnover and revenue to the states in 1958, the annual Associated Press survey showed Tuesday.

With incomplete and in some cases unofficial totals from some of the 24 states where pari-mutuel wagering is legal, the reports show that for the first time, more than 30,000,000 persons attended the running races this season.

The 1958 attendance of 30,484,907 was up 3.43 per cent as compared with 29,472,325 in 1957. Pari-mutuel turnover for 1958 showed $2,331,647,521, compared with $2,270,216,516 last year, a gain of 7.07 per cent. The states will receive $180,382,360 in revenue, a 7.49-per-cent boost over the $167,817,231 reported in 1957.

EXTRA SPEED

CHRISTCHURCH, N.Z. (AP)—The New Zealand Navy vessel Endeavour, which maintains communications with New Zealand's Antarctic territory, now carries a jibsail and a staysail aft. The idea is to improve stability while carrying out oceanographic work at slow speed, but under favorable conditions the sails will give an extra speed of two knots.

'Cindy's Fella', Fairy Story Cowtown Style, Big Switch

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Cindy's Fella, Tuesday night's NBC star-time show, was a cowtown version of the Cinderella story. It nothing else, it contradicted the widely-held theory that any play can be successfully dressed up in boots and 10-gallon hat.

The action hewed pretty close to the familiar plot, but the actors played it tongue - in - cheek. The result was that the show landed somewhere south of Frisian's Rainbow and Wyatt Earp. James Stewart played a Texas paddler in a broadcast town who picks up a drifter (Georgs Gobel). Whether they meet up with the wicked step-mother, the two ugly sisters and pose as spected Cindy.

The big switch was after the slipper but it turned out that the peddler was prince charming and sweetness - George was the soft godmother.

Say, what's won't they try to get a saddle on next?

June-is-January note: CBS will repeat Lucy Makes Room for Desiny, on the Jan. 8 Desilu show . . . Edgar Bergen's The Count Bog was the inspiration — with credits even — on this week's Bourbon Street Beat, but the show needed more than inspiration. Poe, incidentally, will be one of the writers whose work will be adapted to television in a series of 60-minute mysteries, classic and modern, scheduled for NBC next year. The first will be aired March 31.

TV's top advertisers in the third quarter of 1959 were two soap companies who b e l i e v e them spend more than $20,000,000. Just when the industry is concerned about the clagging ratings of musical variety shows, NBC scheduled a new one to replace the cancelled Ilaveup Jan. 27, it's titled The Ore Great. With George de Witt (late of Name that Tune) as host.

James T. Aubrey, new CBS-TV president, is the industry's boy wonder. His age is given officially as 41 although there is a suspicion that he is really 40 — much as five years younger. . . . Versatile Steve Allen has written the theme song for the movie On the Beach.

CBS's Conquest next Sunday has a French scientist who has discovered how to decipher the sound of locusts and who can, by reproducing the sound, talk back to them, even controlling their movements.

Recommended tonight:

Perry Como Show, NBC, 9-10 p.m. — including Maurice Evans reading from Shakespeare.

Steel Hour, CBS, 10-11 p.m.— One Red Rose for Christmas, starring Helene Hayes and Patty Duke.

Hospital Tax 'Out' for Most Amateur Clubs

TORONTO (CP) — The Telegram says Ontario's Hospital Tax Act has been altered so that most amateur sport clubs in the province will not have to pay amusement tax.

The paper quotes an unidentified official of an amateur hockey team as saying the present tax formula has been "broadened" so that the 10-per-cent amusement tax on tickets over $1 will only be paid by "strictly professional teams."

Under the present tax setup, amateur clubs have to pay the tax if any of their players receive any salary or remuneration other than "reasonable travelling and living expenses."

Recent investigations into the Belleville McFarlands Hockey club showed most amateur hockey clubs were not paying the tax even though the players were being paid, Provincial Treasurer Allan said that he would look into "the whole amateur sport situation."

COACH QUITS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The University of Southern California announced Tuesday that Don Clark has quit as head football coach and that assistant coach John McKay was to succeed him. Clark, 36, said he will accept a position as executive vice-president of a California clothing supply firm.

We Like Ours on The Cob

TORONTO (CP)—The five roughest Toronto Marlboros made a bid for national recognition Tuesday when they turned up for practice resplendent in white tie and tails.

Marlies, leaders of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, came in for some criticism from Eddie Bush, coach of Guelph Biltmores, at Monday night's OHA junior council meeting. Bush called them the sloppiest team in the league and said they turned up at Guelph in dungarees, sweat shirts, windbreakers and old sweaters.

So to prove to Bush they could look elegant, Roger Cote, Jim Pappin, Gus Brasard, Jack Martin and Don Curry donned their formal attire.

Stamps Lick Warriors 7-4; Totems Win

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Calgary Stampeders are whipping up the Western Hockey League pace on the Prairies.

Hitting for form and spurring the Stampeders with him, is Lou Jankowski a 42-goal man last year. He scored three goals Tuesday night as rains his season's total to 16 and pace Calgary to a 7-4 win over Winnipeg Warriors.

Meanwhile, league - leading Vancouver Canucks blew 5-1 lead as Seattle Totems scored six third-period goals to win 7-2.

Stamps now have a six-game unbeaten streak and are within four points of third-place Victoria Cougars. Their other goals were scored by Jackie McLeod, Norm Johnson, Doug Barkley and Fred Hucul before 2,015 fans. Steve Wilson, former Calgary forward, was a three-goal man for Warriors, whose other tally was by former Stampeder Barry Ross.

A Vancouver crowd of 2,166 fans saw their game delayed five minutes when Canuck forward Colin Kilburn and Totems' Jim Powers were both charged. Each got two minor penalties and a 10-minute misconduct for the fight which began in the penalty box and continued into the dressing rooms as both players fought with stadium police.

Seattle's scoring was shared by Bill MacFarland, Rudy Filion, Cord Sinclair, Gerry Lessard, Don Chlupsa and Marc Boileau and Pete Gisell. Orland Kurtenbach and Dave Duke scored for Canucks, playing their first game without injured star centre Eddie Dorohoy.

Hal Holbrook Not Interested In Doing Play on Screen

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Success is not without its problems, as you can see with the case of Hal Holbrook.

The handsome 34 - year - old actor triumphs nightly into the cherishing eye - and - ear figure of Mark Twain and regales audiences with flashes of the author's great wit and wisdom. It is one of the great impersonations of the theatre world.

During his three - week stand at the Huntington Hartford Theatre here, he is talking with movie producers about film roles. The talks have brought him face to face with his problem.

"At first, they speak in terms of my doing Mark Twain or something like him," said the actor. "After the first half-hour I sometimes am able to convince them that I'm not interested in playing Mark Twain on the screen.

"In 12 years as an actor I've played all kinds of roles. I was on a TV soap opera for five years. It just happens that in the past six years I've had success portraying Mark Twain. I'm grateful for it, certainly. But I realize that it can become a problem if I'm determined that it doesn't."

BROKE NON-TWAIN ROLE

His present search is for a non-Twain role in a film or play—"and I'm not a fan of television". He'll play anything, provided it all but it's understandable that he might prefer to use his own unlined face. For a role as Twain requires one of the most tedious make-up jobs since the days of Lon Chaney.

Holbrook's impersonation of Twain began during his early days after his graduation from Denison University in Ohio. An instructor gave him the chore of enacting Twain as part of a thesis.

"I hadn't read Twain since my boyhood, when I must have read Tom Sawyer and Huck Finn," he said. "I had to research his writings for the assignment, and I became more and more impressed with the scope and wisdom that he had.

"I still can't get tired of him.

Aces, Americans Play 2-2 Tie

QUEBEC (CP)—Quebec Aces and Rochester Americans fought through three regulation periods and a 10-minute overtime to a 2-2 draw in an American Hockey League game Tuesday night.

The tie — Aces' second in 52 games this season — left the standings unchanged with Americans in third and Quebec in last place well off the pace. It was the only league action of the night.

A crowd of 4,704 saw Aces tie the score with 8¼ minutes remaining in regulation time.

Quebec goalie Al Millar was exceptional, stopping 28 shots. Chadwick handled 30 for Americans.

Rudy Migay and Stan Smrke scored for Americans while Norm Corcoran, back after four - game layoff, and Chuck Blair scored for Aces.

Only 10 penalties were called, including a team penalty for too many players having seven players on the ice. Five penalties went to the visitors. All goals were scored at even strength at equal strength and each had one goal disallowed in the first period.

You can pick up his writing's any time and find things that apply to today's happenings . . .

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Cesare Maniago loves hockey. He loves to play it. He likes football, too, but not acting in the pigskin role.

In other words he does not like being kicked around, nor does he relish being a pawn in the Canadian Olympics hockey chess game.

Getting down to brass tacks, the "beans were spilled" when the Klicker Dutchmen manager Ernie Gosman stated the other day he would like the services of Don Head, Windsor Bulldogs' goalie, as stand-in for veteran "Dan" Harker for the Olympic tournament.

"That means," Cesare says, "he will use me merely as trade bait for Windsor. When the Olympics are over and Head returns, he will go back to the Bulldogs—and I will be out of a job."

CESARE MANIAGO

Th tall slim goalie, he stands six-three in his pinkies and weighs 180 in his birthday suit, smiled sadly.

"I do not like that," he said. "I want to play hockey, and I want to play for the Belleville McFarlands.

"I am going to do my best to convince Mr. Gosman of that."

He repeated: "I want to play with the Macs, for I think they are the best bunch of fellows I ever played with."

"Some of the Macs have told me how to correct my shortcomings and what to do in certain cases. I have improved my play 75 per cent. in this medium."

"I have found there to be no cliques, and nothing but harmony in the club."

"But," Cesare added, with a serious expression on his long features, "why we do not win more games, I do not know."

Cesare was born in Trail, B.C., of Italian parents. He has two brothers, Walter and Dino. Dino played junior "A" hockey with an Edmonton club along with Russ Kowalchuk and Johnny Bayck of Boston Bruins.

The youngster played his first hockey when he resembled a shadow of macaroni. He was a forward in the Trail peewee league.

One day the goalie failed to show up and Cesare was pressed into service.

"I had a shutout in my first game—and from then on I was tabbed as the regular goalie."

There was a twinkle in his eye when he described that first shutout. "I was so long and skinny all I had to do was lie on the ice between the posts. The kids couldn't raise the puck—so I was a cinch for that zero."

He tried it in his first year in bantam hockey. But, he said, "those fellows could raise the puck and when I flopped down they whistled nine pucks over my body."

Later he played three years junior "A" with Toronto St. Michael's. In his second year he finished second in the league goalie standing with a goals-against average of 2.19. His tidiest year saw him in third place with 3.15.

How does he like the mask idea?

"Fine, I would wear one all the time, if they were not so expensive. I have tried the one Gordie Bell has and it is the best made to date. I thought there would be some visual obstruction, but there wasn't. I could see my toes, and what is going on over my head. I think every goalie should wear one."

"Some forwards and defencemen have played hockey with one eye, but it is too big a chance for a goalie. It is not worth it. He has to keep his eye on the puck all the time," Cesare said.

Maniago is a good goalie. He is one of the best to show this season in this district. But he has not yet reached perfection. And none knows it better than young Master Maniago.

The fans like him. His team-mates like him. A shutout gives him elation but not skull inflation. He is and when the team loses—and glories in their victories.

He wants to rank among the best goalies in the game. But he knows he has lots to learn—and is willing to apply himself. He is an apt pupil and a strict student of the game.

We believe young Cesare has a hockey future. He is the property of the Toronto Maple Leafs with a long life of puckstopping ahead of him.

And we also believe that, barring accidents, it won't be too long before he reaches the top pro ranks.

Young young and of a romantic nationality, Master Maniago would like to meet "some nice girls."

Tribe Gets Johnny Temple For Mclish, Martin, Coleman; Giants Acquire Blasingame

NEW YORK (AP)—Baseball's first inter-league trading period ended at midnight and, as usual, it was Frank (Trader) Lane of Cleveland Indians who got the last word.

Just as the lower clock was striking 12 in Cincinnati, Lane's Indians and Cincinnati Redlegs completed a major deal that sent ace second baseman Johnny Temple to Cleveland in exchange for pitcher Cal McLish, fiery infielder Billy Martin and a promising young first baseman, Gordon Coleman.

"We didn't get him cheap," Lane said of Temple, 30, who hit .311 last season, batted in 67 runs and scored 102 times. "But getting him gives us a pretty damn good infield—the best one Cleveland has had for many years, both offensively and defensively."

The infield will have Vic Power at first base, Temple at second, Woodie Held at shortstop and Bubba Phillips, acquired from Chicago White Sox, at third.

CRITIC LEAVES

Departure of Martin also will be removed from last season was a sore point between Lane and manager Joe Gordon. Gordon never shared Lane's high opinion of the 24-year-old Martin. Billy was openly critical of Gordon for using Jim Baxes and other players at second.

Truman Clevenger of Washington Senators broke through with a pitched ball last August and Billy was on the sidelines rest of the way. In 84 games he hit .251, a point above his 10-season major league average.

McLish, 31, top Cleveland pitcher over the years, was the key Indian player in the trade. Last season the right-hander won 19 games, lost eight and had a 3.63 earned run average over 222 innings.

Lane's deal, made after exchanges were halted, added much needed power by acquiring left fielder Minnie Minoso from the Indians and third baseman Gene Freese from the Phillies. Minoso hit 23 home runs and drove in 82 runs while Freese had 24 homers and 79 RBI. They'll be given Johnny Callison, a highly regarded outfield slugger, and Freese, and sent three players to the Phils. They are pitcher Dick Brown and pitchers Don Ferrarese and Jake Sheller.

The key man for the Indians was Bubba Phillips, a chief-defying third baseman, who also does a commendable job in the outfield. With Phillips at third, Cleveland manager Joe Gordon can play Vic Power at first, his strongest position, and shift Tito Francona to left.

MAY BE A COMER

Catcher John Romano and first baseman Norm Cash came along with Phillips. Gordon said that Romano, a 23 - year - old who batted .300 last season, eventually will be the big man in the deal.

The Giants' acquisition of pitchers O'Dell and Loes in exchange for outfielder Bob Speake and a couple of lesser lights, figures to plug their weak spots for the season—on the mound.

Blasingame, a good doubles player with good speed and gives the Giants a dependable lead-off man for the first time since the days of Eddie Stanky.

Will Discuss Dallas Entry

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Brandt Rickey, president of the Texas Longe Continental Baseball League, is scheduled to confer late today about a possible Dallas - Fort Worth entry.

Allan Russell of Austin, seeking to promote such a team, is expected to meet with Rickey.

Just this will crystalize real quick and my idea is to have it there last so that we don't continue to be in the dark," Brandt Rickey, president of the Austin Senators of the Texas League.

Royals, Hull Play 0-0 Tie; Kingston Wins

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Summary of Eastern Professional Hockey League games Tuesday night: a road in Kingston, a drought in Montreal.

There were 15 goals scored, but all of them in one game as Kingston Frontenacs belted Sault Ste. Marie Thunderbirds 11-4 and Montreal Royals and Hull-Ottawa Canadiens tied 0-0.

The scoreless tie was the first this year in the new-established league and moved Montreal into a third - place tie with Troise-Rivieres Lions.

The rout at Kingston vaulted the Frontenacs out of the league cellar for the first time this season and left the luckless Thunderbirds at the bottom.

CROWDS OF 2,000

Crowds of about 2,000 watched both games. At Montreal, the teams never looked like scoring in a dour defensive battle. At Kingston, the fast-riding Frontenacs scored their seventh win in eight starts and playing-coach Cal Gardner equalled the league's one-game high - scoring record with three goals and three assists.

His linemate Orval Tessier, who has nine goals in five games, had three goals and two assists and picked up two assists. Red Ouellette, the other member of the Kingston front line, got a hat trick.

Rounding out the big Kingston score were Allen Cressman, with two; Buddy Boone, Stan Maxwell and Barney Krake.

Players for Thunderbirds, who have lost six straight, were Bobby Woods and Bob Wilson and Mervy Kuryluk.

COACH'S DEBUT

Sault Ste. Marie Thunderbirds first game with new coach Jerry Brown. They just didn't click. Despite outshooting Kingston 42-31. Nothing went wrong for the home team in the first period, however, as the first period, traded goals by Cressman, Gardner and Orval Dejordy with seven goals in the third.

Hull-Ottawa remained in second place, six points behind Sarnia Sports, as a result of their one point from the game at Montreal. They were outshot 26-13 but had a distinct chance to score in the last period when Yves Sarrazin skated in alone towards the Montreal net. Goalie Ken Mosdell came out 20 feet and stole the puck.

Montreal and Trois - Rivieres now have 20 points. Hull-Ottawa Canadiens, with Kingston three points back of Montreal and the Lions and two points ahead of the Thunderbirds.

The league ruling could put them even closer to the pack. They were leading 2-0 Saturday night against Sudbury when the game was called at Chatham in the second period because of power failure. A ruling will be made this week on the score.

Majors Shade Biltmores 4-3

GUELPH (CP)—A power-play goal by Larry Keenan at 19:10 of the third period Tuesday night gave Toronto St. Michael's Majors a 4-3 victory over Guelph Biltmores in Ontario Hockey Association Junior A game.

Biltmores led 3-1 after the first period and 3-1 at the end of the second but Mike Kilkenny came back with three in the third period, including one by Keenan just past the 15-minute mark, which ended the scoring.

Ray Gee and the winner with Barry Jakeman of the Biltmores sitting in the penalty box.

Besides Keenan's two goals, Bruce Draper and Jake Cole got one apiece and Ian Ratelle, Rod Gilbert and Paul Andres scored for Guelph.

Suburbs goalier Dave Dryden played an outstanding game for Majors.

Bulldogs Shade Chatham 4-3 In What Could Be Swan Song

WINDSOR (CP) — Chatham Maroons played their final game of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A season here Tuesday night, losing to Windsor Bulldogs 4-3.

Operations of the club, which is in a third-place tie with Windsor, are being suspended because of a lack of funds.

Originally, Maroons were not going to play Tuesday night's game, insurance from OHA president Ken McMillan that the association would be responsible for player benefits in case of injury prompted the Chatham group to go on with the game.

"We told the OHA Monday night that we were through and we meant it," said club president A. L. (Mark) Hanna. "We'd rather pay our debts than go into bankruptcy like a lot of other clubs have done."

MEET TODAY

Meanwhile, OHA officials called the Chatham executive and asked for a meeting there today to discuss club operations and financing.

"What the purpose of the meeting will be, I don't know," said Hanna. "If they come with a barrel of money, we'll talk to them."

"We made a very close analysis of our financial affairs. The fans are disappointed, the players are disappointed and we are too.

"We have been playing good hockey, but we haven't been getting the crowds. And we're a non-profit organization with no sponsors. I guess Senior A hockey is too rich for our city."

An OHA Senior council meeting Saturday night had demanded that Chatham pay a $2,000 performance bond, which was to have been posted before the season ever started, and to contribute 10 per cent of the club gates to a league pool covering travelling costs, officials' pay and administrative expenses.

FUTURE DOUBTFUL

Although OHA business manager Bill Hanley in Toronto said he hoped for a quick resumption of hockey in Chatham, Hanna said such hope was not justified.

"We are all businessmen on our executive. We're losing money and if we kept on we'd be $15,000 in debt."

On Tuesday night's game, Windsor took a 4-2 lead in the second period following a scoreless first. Bruce Draper, Lou Bendo and John Ustendale scored for Windsor, Gary Sharp, Ali Cleary and Joe Maio tallied for Chatham.

The visiting bantams and seniors won by scores of 18-8 and 46-34 respectively while the Belleville juniors emerged with a 41-30 victory.

BANTAMS

BCI held a slight edge of the play during the first quarter but lacked polish around the basket. The half-time score was 9-7 for Queen Elizabeth.

BCI then opened up with Peter Annis scoring 10 points in the fourth quarter to pave the way to a 41-30 score. Annis topped BCI boosters with 20 points; while Hank Kelly came up with 13 in a losing cause.

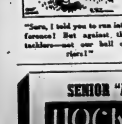
REMORKS

Both teams were checking hard during the first quarter with Kingston outplaying BCIVS for a 16-10 score at quarter time.

Again in the 2nd quarter, sharp rebounding and passing on Queen Elizabeth's part built up a 33-12 score at half time.



BCI was outscored 16-10 in the third quarter as both teams battled on fairly even terms.

In the last stanza Belleville rallied, but not quite enough, and the whistle blew giving the victory. Brian McKenzie swished 13 points for the losers while Randy Kline had 14 for Kingston.

Trimble Starts Tiger Cats Building Job

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton Tiger-Cats, who failed to win the Grey Cup this year, are in for a big rebuilding job for the Big Four Football Union's 1961 season.

Coach Jim Trimble, just returned from an extensive scouting trip through the United States, said Tuesday night: "We're going to have to rebuild from the top down."

He said all four Big Four teams will have to improve next year or be overpowered by the West in the Grey up. Winnipeg Blue Bombers beat Ticats 21-7 in the classic last November.

On his trip Trimble went after quarterbacks, halfbacks, tackles and ends. He declined to disclose names but mentioned he has signed a quarterback he rates higher than all-American Richie Lucas of Penn State and Don Meredith of Southern Methodist.

Speculation is that he is Charlie Britt of Georgia Tech, second draft choice of Los Angeles Rams of the National League.

Trimble said "It's about time we started grooming someone to eventually take over for (quarterback) Bernie Faloney. And Bernie would be an excellent teacher."

Commenting on rumors that he is a candidate for the Rams' coaching job, Trimble said he wasn't interested.

Redlegs Offer Half Million For Killibrew - - - No Deal

By WHITNEY SHOEMAKER

WASHINGTON (AP)—Money isn't its voice last weekend. Calvin Griffith, Washington baseball president, said Thursday he turned down an offer of $500,000 for Harmon Killebrew.

"You can't play money at third base," Griffith said.

Griffith said a National League team made the gigantic bid during the weekend for the 23-year-old third baseman who led for the American League home run lead in 1959, both Killebrew and Rocky Colavito of Cleveland socked 42 homers.

Later Tuesday in Cincinnati, general manager Gabe Paul of the Reds said he made the offer.

Paul added that when Calvin Griffith turned down the offer last summer, Griffith raised the amount for Camilo Pascual, a 36-year-old righthand pitching standout for the Senators.

That offer also was turned down, the official said.

"Killebrew will be a great asset to baseball and to the Senators," Griffith commented. "He is still a young boy and will improve each year.

"And he will add to our revenue."

Killebrew was awed and surprised.

"It's quite a feeling," he said from his Payette, Idaho, home. "I'm certainly surprised that they offered that amount and more surprised that they turned it down. It's quite a feeling to know that Mr. Griffith and the Washington ball club feel that way about me."

Killebrew's early - season home run barrage was a big factor in luring attendance at Griffith Stadium almost 30 per cent.

Three years ago the Red Sox reportedly offered $1,500,000 for pitcher Herb Score of the Cleveland Indians. They were turned down and, if the account is accurate, economized. Score has labored the last two years with a sore arm.

Ingy's Friend Gets Offer for Patterson Fight

GOTEBORG, Sweden (AP)—Edwin Ahlquist, adviser of heavyweight champion Ingemar Johansson, said Tuesday he has received offers to promote the Johansson - Floyd Patterson title fight in New York, but has not made any commitments.

"Reports here that I am ready to step in as promoter are very premature, however," said Ahlquist.

Off to London to discuss a possible Johansson title defence against British champion Henry Cooper, Ahlquist said:

"It is true that I have had offers from some Swedish - American cans to take over the arrangements for a New York return fight, that is of course, together with an American co-promoter as I cannot myself stand as sole promoter."

LONDON (AP) — Heavyweight boxing champion Ingemar Johansson and his adviser, Edwin Ahlquist, are expected to confer with British boxing promoter Jack Solomons today about a proposed title fight with Henry Cooper.

Solomons said Tuesday he will make Johansson a "firm offer," believed to be about $200,000, for a title bout May 31 against Cooper, the British champion, at Wembley Stadium.

Leafs Call Pat Hannigan

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs have called left winger Pat Hannigan up from Rochester of the United States American Hockey League for their game with Montreal Canadiens Tuesday night.

Leaf coach Punch Imlach watched Rochester play Quebec Aces in Quebec City Monday and selected Hannigan, Rochester's second highest scorer with 16 goals and 17 assists.

Caught in a four-game losing streak and hard hit by injuries, Leafs have two left wingers, Bert Olmstead and Dick Duff, out of action. Olmstead is recuperating from a knee injury and Duff from bruised thighs.

Pat, 23-year-old native of Timmins, scored 37 goals and 66 assists in 69 games last season.

Defenceman Tom Johnson, with an American contract and is being with a shoulder separation since Dec. 3, is expected to rejoin Leafs Thursday. Canadiens will still be without Maurice (Rocket) Richard and Marcel Bonin.

NO SHUTDOWN

WASHINGTON (AP)—The International Labor Press Bureau said duck hunters Tuesday there are no plans to shut down the 1961 fall duck hunting season early. It said a special survey showed no greater-than-expected drop in the mallard duck population.

Wants Standard Set for Amateur Sports

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial Secretary Allan said Tuesday he will present proposals to the cabinet Thursday to redefine the term "amateurism" as it pertains to an Ontario sport.

He introduced earlier reports that the Ontario Hospital Tax Act will be altered in regard to amusement taxes charged sport clubs. Amateur teams are not required to pay the tax.

He said Premier Frost has not yet had a chance to study the proposals.

The minister said he would like to have a standard set to show more clearly which "players are or are not amateurs."

Under the present tax setup, sport clubs have to pay a 10-per-cent tax on tickets over $1 if any of the players receive salary or remuneration other than reasonable travelling and living expenses.

Recent investigations into the Belleville McFarlands hockey club's amateur status have shown it are not paying the tax even though players were being paid.

General Tendencies: Now you have a day when you can take a well-rounding look at everything about you and see just where you can devise a more sensible standard for getting your ideas or wares to the attention of those who can help you make things marketable. However, be sure you avoid being overcreative or you cause yourself unnecessary unhappiness today or tonight.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — This day should be spent getting confidence in better order condition. Also, all family affairs should be handled wisely so that you can increase harmony within the home and show affection where it is sorely needed.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — A particularly fine day to shop, make purchases of all kinds since money can be saved thereby. Then you can sit down and make out any statements, bills, reports that await your attention. P.M. write letters and study seriously.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Today you can get a better picture of your actual standing in monetary and material affairs. Later, be sure you make out a holiday list, with approximate amount you will spend for each side each name. Start shopping and keep within this budget.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Get out early to your barber or beauty shop and health center. Get your health and appearance improved. This will bring out the inner glow that draws others to you. P.M. go out sociably and increase happiness and prestige. Be happy.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Mock backing can be yours if you quietly seek out those persons who can give you a friendly express your ambitions and needs, your true ideas. Later, be good to the needy. Sometimes just a friendly smile and a pat of the hand is sufficient.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) — Here is one of those days when much can be accomplished simply by making out a detailed plan for your activities. Fine day for coming to meeting of minds with comrades, too. P.M. entertain socially and get ahead faster.

Libra (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23) — Don't be forever expending upon your family — get out on your own and soon you have enough money to make this coming Christmas a jolly one. Fine day for civic duties and progress in all spheres.

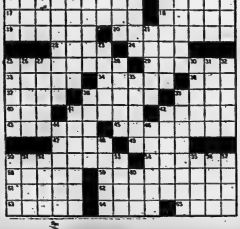
Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21) — Progress is possible today through communications or visits with those from out-of-town. And you can glean much information or get ideas via your radio, newspaper, TV. Be sure to make new contacts.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — A day for delving into secrets and disbursements, getting a true picture of your financial standing. Plan the Christmas holiday accordingly. Go after goodies you want. Evening is fine for romance.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — You have every opportunity now to get together with partners and set up a wiser plan of action for the future. Co-operate and understand their point of view. Delve into new business, sign contracts, etc.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Get busy and attend to all the duties facing you. Then contact your regular partners and assure them you will co-operate fully with them. P.M. get your home and wardrobe in better order. Better early.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — At last you can go out for a day of pleasure and recreation as you most prefer. Dress at your very best and impress others. Let them sample your talents and they will give you support when you need it most.



If your child is born today... The little child born today will almost appear to have two natures, one independent and the other dependent. Heroes you will have to handle your talented youngster with kid gloves or badly make the positive stronger. This is best accomplished through teaching order and giving little jobs to complete very early in life. This is a very fine chart for the psychologist or psychiatrist, especially.

VALUABLE CROP

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario department of agriculture has estimated the value of field crop production in Ontario, excluding tobacco, at $303,253,400 for 1958. This is a decrease of 4.6 per cent from 1958. Tobacco production is estimated at 75,000,000 pounds compared with 138,364,000 pounds in 1958. Higher prices are expected to raise the value to about $31,500,000.

Press Members Get Jolt From General Yates

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Maj.-Gen. Donald N. Yates, commander of the air force missile test centre, Monday barred members of the press from all service information on launchings, military sources said.

He also said reporters will not be able to cover military homecomings from the press site on the Cape.

Yates said he took the action because Unified Press International carried Saturday a story which pinpointed the launching of a space probe. The UPI story, datelined Washington, said the United States would attempt Tuesday to send a payload toward the vicinity of Venus and into orbit about the sun.

The probe story has been postponed because of technical difficulties.

Yates said UPI violated an agreement not to write this information for publication after he had briefed the press on the launching. He had warned the press at a meeting last week that one violation would mean that information would be withheld from all press representatives.

The ban applies to launchings of rockets such as Polaris, Atlas, Titan, Thor and Jupiter. It does not apply to scientific shots sponsored by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, such as the Venus probe.

High School Activities

By STEVIE DAHL

Last Wednesday, December 9th, in the morning assembly, the BCIVS Radio Club presented its annual talent contest. Appearing for the first time on our stage, Wayne Sobie sang a Christmas song, and although he did not win, it was felt his voice shows great promise. Next, Barry Simpson, an extremely gifted comedian and ventriloquist, delighting his audience by his conversation with a handpuppet, "Elmer," making it seem alive by his humor and clever handling of it. John Brooks and Carolyn Bowler teamed up in an amazing comedy song routine. Singing an old Al Jolson favorite, they capered comically around the stage in black faces and tattered costumes. One of the majorettes in the Santa Claus Parade, Alice Vanneste, impressed everyone with her skilful baton-twirling and well-executing steps which were done right in time with the music. Finally, a young group known as the "Kingston Trio from Belleville," composed of John Miller, Eric Deacon and Jim Hurst, hilariously pantomimed a rock-and-roll record. After each performer appeared again briefly, the applause meter was read, and the 1959-60 winners were announced — the "Kingston Trio from Belleville." (Many thought that Brian Miles the master of ceremonies of the contest, deserved a trophy too, for his excellent job and his good jokes!).

However, every year the same criticism arises against this popular talent contest. Although the winners have usually fully deserved their trophy, many people feel that an applause meter should not be used because it is not a true judge of talent. It has been suggested that perhaps a panel of judges should choose future winners. The decision would probably be the same, but this method seems fairer.

Well, Christmas is coming very soon. We are all looking forward to holidays, big dinners, presents, parties, mistletoe, carols, and Yule fun and gaiety. Two big events have been planned at B.C.I.V.S. to add to holiday enjoyment. On Friday, December 18th, the Art Club will start the ball rolling with a Christmas dance, the "Holly Hop". Then on Sunday afternoon, the 20th, the Glee Club will present, at the school, a Christmas Pageant and Musicale. This program is under the direction of Mr. Templer, and as many of us have been surreptitiously listening to some rehearsals, we can promise that it will be an afternoon of wonderful Christmas music.

Floor hockey season was nearly completed last week with the game between the B.C.I.V.S. All-stars and the Moira Allstars at B.C.I. Unfortunately, B.C.I. lost 6-3, but it was a fast, exciting game, and both teams played well.

Right now, sympathy and pity are being extended to the hopeful basketball heroes who have to practise at eight o'clock in the morning, before classes. At most of the boys haven't even begun to get up at that time, usually. It is quite a hardship and they deserve to win for their efforts!

By the way, have any of you students noticed a certain amusement creeping steadily into our assemblies? Oh well, who can blame us? Removed are the Boys' Athletics Society for wasting to remind you of Kampus Kapers! It isn't too far away, and it is going to be the best show yet. (Buy your tickets early.)

2 Million Dollar Fire Sweeps 3 Kitchener Blocks

Loblaws, Metropolitan, Zeller's Stores Destroyed

KITCHENER (CP)—The worst fire in this city's history swept three downtown business buildings Wednesday night, destroying property, goods and records and causing damage estimated at up to $2,000,000.

More than 200 firemen from eight communities fought the fierce blaze for six hours and stopped it spreading to other buildings in a King Street block, a short distance from city hall.

Street-level stores occupied by Loblaw Groceterias, Metropolitan Stores and Zeller's were destroyed. So were 30 upper-storey apartments.

100 FORCED OUT

A few minor injuries to firemen were reported. No one else was hurt. About 100 people fled to safety when the stores and offices after the first alarm was turned in at 6:15 p.m.

Most of more than 4,000 thronged the fire area as flames leapt 30 feet into the air and sparks as big as baseballs burst from the roof.

Police finally cleared the entire block of spectators — except the opposite side of the street were closed, trolley buses were rerouted and traffic on that side was shut off.

The fire started in the basement of Loblaw's, which occupied half the ground floor of the three-storey building, and spread to the Jen Realty Company whose secretary is Elizabeth Warren, former national president of the Progressive Conservative Constituency Association.

It was the second time in 25 years that the building had been damaged by fire. A $125,000 fire swept the building on Good Friday in 1934, injuring six firemen.

RAGS WERE HOT

Fire Chief Hildebrecht, a Loblaw cashier, discovered the blaze when she picked up some cotton rags from the floor and was startled by their warmth. She noticed a wisp of smoke rising in the basement and smoke poured out. Chief Hildebrecht telephoned the alarm, cleared the store and occupants of offices above moved into the street.

Customers were also cleared from the Metropolitan store in which occupied the other half of the ground floor. It was to open in late next - door Zeller's store kept shopping as far away as signs of fire in that building were a few wisps of smoke.

Firemen cleared out when the smoke thickened within an hour, but Deputy Chief James from the Jansen Building ate through the adjoining wall and swept into the blaze.

The Zeller Building is owned by Jansen Realty, headed by Norman E. Schneider, former Liberal member of Parliament for Waterloo North.

BANK THREATENED

The Bank of Nova Scotia of the Jansen building, the flames jumped across the roof of a building formerly occupied by the Bank of Dominion bank and another oc-

J. P. ROBARTS NEW/MINISTER OF EDUCATION

Dr. W. J. Dunlop Resigns From Post

TORONTO (CP) — John P. Robarts, 42, Progressive Conservative member of the legislature for London North, today was named Minister of education for Ontario.

Premier Frost made the announcement following a cabinet meeting—less than 24 hours after he announced the resignation of Dr. William J. Dunlop from the post because of ill health.

Mr. Robarts has been ministerwithout-portfolio since 1958, along with Hon. H. Rose, progressive Conservative member for Wellington-Dufferin. Mr. Dunlop has agreed to accept a ministerwithout-portfolio post.

The swearing-in ceremony was performed by Lieutenant-Governor Michener in the vice - regal suite at Queen's Park. Present were Mr. Robarts' fellow new cabinet ministers, H. A. Stewart, right of the Greenville, council, and the rest of the office.

Dr. Dunlop, still suffering from the illness that forced his resignation, was present at the ceremony to wish Mr. Robarts best wishes in his new post.

FAIR TRIBUTE

Premier Frost presented the new minister to the lieutenant-governor and paid tribute to Dr. Dunlop for his long service.

"The old warrior will be back on the road in all his fighting trim in a few weeks," Mr. Frost said.

He said of Mr. Robarts: "This is a young man but he has already taken his part in the parliamentary life of this province."

He said Mr. Robarts' experience in municipal politics in London would be useful in his new post "for one of the pressing problems of the future will be the incidence of educational taxation in the area of municipal affairs."

SERVED ON COMMITTEE

Since his election, to the Ontario legislature in the June 1955 elections of 1955, Mr. Robarts has been chairman of the select committee on highways finance and on civil rights. Recently he has served as a member of the Ontario Water Resources Commission.

Born Jan. 11, 1917 at Banff, Alta., Mr. Robarts was educated at the University of Western Ontario and Osgoode Hall. He served from 1940-45 as a lieutenant in the RCNVR. In 1951 he was elected an alderman in the city of London, the same year going to the Ontario legislature.

"I am almost well again," Dr. Dunlop said Wednesday, "but my doctors have said I should not undertake the heavy work of a cabinet minister."

IN CONTROVERSY

Dr. Dunlop, who started teaching in a country school, has been involved in a number of controversies with the Ontario Teachers' Federation. He opposed Grade 13 as a school leaving age and was criticized for his opinion that the little red school house could still give the best educational service in rural areas.

He attended a rural school at Durham in the Owen Sound district where he was born and later studied at schools in Durham, Collingwood and Clinton. He graduated from the University of Toronto and Queen's

Lion Cub May Have Later Meal If Pogo Sticks

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Leo the lion is having a get-eat time with his new-found chum and chihuahua pup.

Maybe that's because Leo doesn't know he's a lion—yet. He's only a cub, weighing nine pounds, 12 ounces, which isn't much bigger than Pogo the chihuahua.

Both live at the Jim Yearsean residence here and seem to be hitting it off fine.

Leo is expected to tip the scales at 100 pounds when he's six months old. Even then he'll still be a "baby" compared to his 400-pound father, Rama, reported to be the largest male lion in captivity.

Yearsean, an advertising man, acquired Leo last week at an animal farm in rapid City, S.D. He plans to keep Leo as a house pet but not use him in promotional work.

The cub has complete freedom in the Yearsean den. He sleeps in a poodle bed, dines three times a day on formula from a baby bottle, walks on a leash and likes to sit in laps.

Pleads Guilty To Manslaughter

MONTREAL (CP) — Mrs. Denise Meunier, 25, of nearby Ste. Geneviève Wednesday pleaded guilty to manslaughter in the strangulation death of her 2½-year-old son. She is to be sentenced Dec. 29. She was originally charged with murder.

She gave birth to another child Wednesday and the court was told that at the time of the child's death, last April 6, Mrs. Meunier was emotionally disturbed.

In Glittering Ceremony Pope Confers Red Hats on Cardinals

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John today conferred the red hats of their rank on seven new cardinals in the second pre-Christmas consistory of his reign.

An eighth new member of the church, Paolo Cardinal Marella of Paris as apostolic nuncio to France, He will receive his red hat at a broad ceremony in Paris upon his return to the Vatican in a few days.

A hushed throng of thousands watched in St. Peter's Basilica as the new cardinals one by one climbed the red - carpeted steps to the Pope's throne and greeted him. For each the pontiff had a brief personal word and a smile.

As each in turn knelt, two archbishops held a symbolic hat over his head and the Pope repeated the ritual phrases conferring cardinal's rank.

COLOR EVERYWHERE

In Peter's, the world's largest church, glowed with color — draped in red damask, the pre-lates in scarlet, purple and ermine vestments, papal nobility in black with white ruffs and gold braid, diplomats in full dress with their colorful decorations, and the Swiss guards in orange and blue uniforms. Thousands of electric lights glittered.

The same symbolic hat was used for each cardinal. Their personal hats were to be delivered in them later in the by pontifical emissaries. They will never wear them. The hats will be suspended in their cathedrals and displayed at their funerals.

SAINTHOODS PROPOSED

Preceding the conferring of the galeros, the Pope heard orations pleading for the beatification—possibly a step to sainthood — of two Italians and a French-born Canadian, Francois Laval de Montmorency, first Bishop of Quebec, who established the Roman Catholic hierarchy in Canada in the 17th century.

The other two were the late Cardinal Giuseppe Benedetto Dusmet of Catania, Sicily, and Alfonso Carinci, a Vatican economic aid to Tunisia were also brought up.

The two presidents talked at the palace more than two hours. They wound up the discussion at 10:20 a. m., then drove to a U.S. military cemetery near the city of ancient Carthage for a wreath-placing ceremony.

El Aouina airport, six miles from the palace, was the point of departure for Eisenhower's flight by helicopter to the cruiser USS Melena in Tunis Bay three miles off Carthage.

A flood estimated at more than 200,000, including swarthy men in thick burnooses and women in veils, clapped, cheered and waved U. S. and Tunisian flags as the presidents drove by in an open car.

Giant signs along the highway called for a union of friendship between the U.S. and Tunisia.

It was a day of great festivity for the Tunisians, whom Eisenhower's forces liberated from the Germans. His stopover was considered a matter of pride and prestige for Tunisia and a boost for Bourguiba and his pro-Western policies. These policies have been maintained despite strong pressures for adoption of Arab neutralism.

Ike and Bourguiba Agree Algeria 'Source of Grave Pre-occupations'

TUNIS (AP)—President Eisenhower and Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba today agreed that Algeria constitutes a source of grave pre-occupations.

A Tunisian government communique issued an hour after Eisenhower sailed for France said the two presidents "examined with great frankness the difficulties in Algeria" and "declared that a peaceful solution until this day constitutes a source of grave pre-occupations."

They held that "only the realization of self-determination by the people of Africa and Asia is one of the most important events of our era."

They accepted favorably the possibility from now on offered by the establishment of relations which are now based on "the common attachment to the fundamental principles of rights and dignity of man."

Tunisia sympathizes with the rebels and gives them bases on Tunisian soil to carry on their five-year-old war with France. This has strained relations with France, which Eisenhower visits next on his 22,000-mile goodwill tour.

Increase Fees For Third of Ontario's Autos

TORONTO (CP)—Increases in licence fees for about a third of Ontario's motor vehicles in 1960 were announced today by Transport Minister Yaremko. The increases range from $2.50 to $10 for passenger vehicles and bring the province in $2,200,000 new revenue for a total amount of about $23,000,000.

The categories under which vehicles are licensed will be reduced from seven to four," Mr. Yaremko said.

The vehicles affected by the increases are:

Cars up to 28 horsepower $15 (up $2.50); commercial vehicles such as station wagons, and commercial vehicles with a maximum gross weight of 4,000 lbs., $20 from $15; small trailers less than one ton $5 from $2.50, and motorcycles, except those owned by municipalities, $10 from $5.

CRASH KILLS THREE

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — A young motor boy fatally injured in a hospital for the birth of her second child died Monday along with the unborn baby, her husband and another motorist in a high-speed crash. Mrs. James Arthur Hogue, 24, was being hurried to Lubbock hospital by her husband, 22. Killed along with them was Juan Vela Frausto, driver of the other car which had just entered the divided highway from a farm road.

GANGLAND GUNS SNUFF OUT LIFE OF ROGER TOUHY

Shotgun Barrage Wounds Friend

CHICAGO (AP)—Roger, Touhy, a kingpin among the beer barons of the prohibition era, was slain from an ambush Wednesday night in typical gangland fashion.

The 65-year-old Touhy, paroled from state prison only 23 days ago after serving nearly 26 years for a kidnapping he said he did not commit, was mowed down by six shotgun blasts by two assailants.

He died on the operating table in St. Anne's Hospital after telling police he did not know the assailants. Police said they had no leads immediately.

ASSASSIN WOUNDED

Seriously wounded in the shooting was Touhy's companion, a retired police sergeant. He also believed he wounded one of the gunmen before he collapsed.

Touhy, known as The Terrible during his gangland reign in the 1920s, was shot as he was about to enter the home of his sister, Mrs. Ethel Alesk.

With him was Walter Miller, 62, a retired police sergeant and a principal defence witness in Touhy's trial for the kidnapping of John Factor the Barbers' Factor, a one-time confidence man. Miller was wounded in the back and arms.

Factor, who lives in Beverly Hills, Calif., was in Chicago in connection with a libel suit against Touhy. Told Touhy had been killed, he said in a reporter: "I am very broken up about it. I hope they get the killer."

WAS IN RESTAURANT

Factor said he was in a north side restaurant when he learned of the shooting.

Factor had sued Touhy and others for $3,000,000 in connection with publication of Touhy's biography, The Stolen Years. He contended statements in the book libelled him.

Touhy's ambulance on the way to the hospital, Touhy told police-men, "I'll be all right, I'm OK."

However, Touhy lost much blood from a gaping wound in the left leg, police said later. Other pellets from the shotgun wounded him in the right leg below the knee.

The shooting occurred shortly after 8 p.m. Touhy died at 11:20.

SIGNED BADGE

Miller told police that one of the killers was tall and the second short. He said that as he and Touhy walked up the front steps

Four Devastated Towns Refuse Another Dam

FREJUS, France (Reuters) — The four towns devastated a few weeks ago by the Frejus dam collapse announced today that they will oppose any future dam overhanging their valley.

The decision was taken at a stormy night at a meeting of the four mayors and other officials and technicians, met in the office of President de Gaulle in person to put forward the case for not building here.

The collapse of the Malpasset Dam Dec. 2 unleashed a raging flood that swept through the valley, destroying everything before it. The official casualty figures have stood at 302 dead and 500 missing.

Canadian Gallery Gets Vast Work By Intervention of Lady Dunn

LONDON (CP) — Connoisseur Magazine, a publication devoted to the fine arts, today announced in a rent issue the story of how the Beaverbrook Art Gallery in Fredericton acquired a vast work by one of the world's most controversial artists.

The painting — Santiago el Grande, by surrealist Salvador Dali—will be the centre piece of a gallery instead of the Escurial that Dali originally had in mind.

Connoisseur reports that the painting was to have been bought for more than $35,000 for the Spanish government.

Lady Dunn, president of the Sir James Dunn Foundation, intervened to purchase it as her since presented it to the Beaverbrook gallery.

The painting, on canvas 10 feet by 14 feet, is huge. Dali says he was done by Dali in 1957. It shows St. James astride a white horse, on horseback, carrying aloft a living Christ instead of a sword, over a Gothic arch cross crossing the heavens.

Dali is reported to be considered so important that the Spanish government has declared it a cultural monumentating it with a special postage stamp.

Connoisseur says the purchase, Connoisseur says:

"The Sir James Dunn Foundation is furthering all the projects in which Sir James Dunn was interested . . .

"A 27-foot-high stained glass window, depicting the Resurrection, has been placed in Saint Luke's Cathedral at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., to commemorate the life and limes of this foremost industrial leader."

France Yields Proverbial Inch On NATO Issue

Study Technical Points Without Accepting Plan

PARIS (CP)—France was reported today to have given way under pressure from her NATO allies and agreed to technical talks on a unified defence system in Western Europe.

A highly placed informant quoted by Reuters News Agency reported the French move as "a turn for the better." He said France is reserving judgment on a final political agreement for unification of NATO air defence, communications and a radar screen.

The NATO defence ministers this afternoon held their final session of a three-day NATO conference here. They debated whether to hold another meeting in two or three months to discuss standardization of NATO weapons.

SUMMIT PROBLEMS

At the morning's session, the foreign, defence and finance ministers of the NATO powers discussed problems they will present before an East - West summit meeting.

A NATO spokesman said the problems covered disarmament; Germany, including the Berlin question; East-West relations in general, and aid to under-developed countries.

State Secretary Christian Herter of the United States has outlined his 10-year NATO development proposals "in connection with security" but did not give details. He first presented the proposals in April.

France's decision to hold technical discussions on unification of defence was generally welcomed.

The source quoted by Reuters disclosed earlier that the French were expected to take part in technical talks on unified defence. This was the first break in France's opposition to integration of its national forces under NATO command.

The source predicted that SHAPE (supreme headquarters allied powers Europe) now will be able to go ahead with complicated technical discussions on unifying NATO's communications system, which is the basis of a unified NATO command system.

RESERVES AGREEMENT

Reuters said that the same time it is understood France continues to reserve political agreement on the basis of the NATO term "unification" — the phrase now used instead of integration—while permitting purely technical discussions.

On the source's view, progress on the French-NATO dispute over unified defence, communications and defence, which has dominated the three-day NATO council meeting later today was as satisfactory as could be expected under the circumstances. It was learned that it will be a top source or diplomatic one, privately Saturday. This private meeting will parallel sessions of the Western big Four during the weekend.

France has said it doesn't want to withdraw from the unified air-defence system being pushed

Difficult Problems Ahead For Ontario Schools

Problems of Western unity, Canada-U.S. unrest and U.N. economic aid to Tunisia were other topics.

The two presidents talked at the palace more than two hours. They wound up the discussion at 10:20 a. m., then drove to a U.S. military cemetery near the city of ancient Carthage for a wreath-placing ceremony.

El Aouina airport, six miles from the palace, was the point of departure for Eisenhower's flight by helicopter to the cruiser USS Melena in Tunis Bay three miles off Carthage.

A flood estimated at more than 200,000, including swarthy men in thick burnooses and women in veils, clapped, cheered and waved U. S. and Tunisian flags as the presidents drove by in an open car.

Giant signs along the highway called for a union of friendship between the U.S. and Tunisia.

It was a day of great festivity for the Tunisians, whom Eisenhower's forces liberated from the Germans. His stopover was considered a matter of pride and prestige for Tunisia and a boost for Bourguiba and his pro-Western policies. These policies have been maintained despite strong pressures for adoption of Arab neutralism.

NATO Crisis: Someone Forgot Wastebaskets

PARIS (AP) — Janitors at the new NATO headquarters claimed today that they are the most overworked members of their profession in Europe—snowdrops forced to buy any waste baskets.

Jean Marceaux rubbed his back, pulling fours picking up refuse from corners.

"Everyone throws everything on the floor," he complained, "paper, old newspapers, orange peels, apple cores and candy wrappers. It's awful."

The North Atlantic Treaty Organization's first permanent home in its 10-year history is shiny new, warmly heated, its air conditioning ready for summer, freshly painted and splendidly illuminated.

Ceilings are soundproofed, windows are wide and high and easy to open. The telephonic equipment is said to be the most modern on the continent.

But you can count the waste baskets on one hand. In a press room — with dozens of desks and scores of chairs—there's not a single refuse receptacle, and newspaper men are not exactly noted for neatness.

Hope to Use Difference to Build Shoulders

Negotiations were currently underway with the Ontario Department of Highways to apply the difference accumulated in the removal work at the Lake Ontario interchange at Highways 401 and 45 in the Huntsville area, Noffce of the awarding of the contract was made by the department this morning.

Mrs. Lyle Wesse, R.R. 1, Carrying Place, winner of 52-piece set of dishes at O'Connor's Jewel Box.

City engineer Malcolm Turnbull stated today that his department was hoping to be allowed to make use of the difference to build up the soft shoulders along Dundas Street and Front Street in the event fatality when a cyclist's bike overturned, thereby causing the death of a passing vehicle, as he was attempting to swerve from the pavement onto the shoulder.

Meanwhile other city works' projects have been completed. The sanitary land fill to the east of the Bridge Street Bridge is nearly progressing much faster than were originally anticipated. It is hoped to have the extension of the dump ready for the winter period in the near future.

The sewer crews have been extremely busy over the past week with an unusually high number of calls to clear choked sewers and drains. This has caused the maintenance program for the entire system to be worst part of the city to be held up.

Asphalt maintenance by the city crews has been quite active this week with the sealing of the junctions of excavations by the Bell Telephone and the Lakeland Gas Heat and various locations throughout the city.

Road grading operations on the city's gravel roads have been continuing due to the fact that there has not been a proper freeze as yet. It is the department's hope to be finished these roads at present surface when the freeze-up comes.

Alterations, as authorized by city council, have just been completed to the city works branch of the yard. These have provided for a new mechanics shop to include maintenance of the various pieces of equipment owned by the department. The new gas heaters have also been installed at the yard building.

Moira Secondary Cafeteria Used For First Time

As workmen put finishing touches on additional rooms, the city's new Moira Secondary School is seeing more use and with the resumption of classes following the Christmas holidays it is hoped the entire school will be ready for occupancy.

School principal James Dancey said today that without still not ready would be completed by the end of January, special opening for the new school is planned for late January or early in February, he stated.

Yesterday for the first time classes were held in the school cafeteria and long lines of students jammed their way through to try out the new facilities. The cafeteria milk bar was open on Tuesday.

Four of the shop rooms are close in use while workmen this week are laying the floor in the school gymnastorium. Also still to be finished are the music room and one of the shop room areas.

The school was opened for classes in September with only the academic wing ready for use and since then many of the classes have had to get by on a "make do" basis.

Sports Body Holds Second Annual Party

DESERONTO — The second annual party of the Deseronto Athletic Association for the participating youngsters of the town was held at the Bayview Theatre on Wednesday night. The master of ceremonies for the evening was Mr. Jack Hamilton, who in address of welcome and introduced the president of the association, Bill McGregor.

Mr. McGregor spoke of the baseball activities of the past year and the future possibilities of the club in Deseronto. He also talked of the operation of the rink last year by the Association and spoke of the difficulties encountered. Apparently the Deseronto Band has decided to have a rink of their own at the school and because of the loss of revenue this would entail; it will be impossible for the Association to operate a town rink. However, Mr. McGregor said, the Athletic Association would be glad had the support of the schools.

He extended the thanks of his association to Mr. Jim Merrick for again donating the use of his projector and to Mr. Dan Lee for a ample supply of soft drinks, hot dogs and popcorn which had been distributed throughout the program to the some sixty youngsters present.

William Houle, sports director of the High School, thanked one of his students show their ability at tumbling and cheer-leading. This was followed by a tap dance by Marvin Brosky.

The climax of the evening, Mr. E. Hare is the president of the Church Athletic League of Deseronto, then presented to Deseronto by Harold Harvey, professional golfer and native of former Deseronto boy. Porter, and Queen's Guardsmen champs of the Little League — the Rams, Lynnie B. Brant, D. Hare, D. Brooks, E. Stone, P. Dimmell, J. Fox, C. Keith, and D. Brosky. Each player spoke on sports for children and the formation of Deseronto Athletic activities for sports. He showed films showing different sports being played in this and district. Stan Mercy's sick showed films of the Ferry Cup Final and were very short.

Mother of Five Dies in Detroit Welfare Shelter

DETROIT (AP)—Little Gloria Sinclair, 11, sobbed in juvenile court Wednesday:

"What will we do now? Who will we live with?"

Finally, Judge Nathan Kaufman told her: "You'll stay with us. If we find some nice relatives who take you, they will. If not, we'll take permanent charge of you."

The five children of Mrs. Hattie Sinclair, 32, hadn't misbehaved. They were in court because their mother had died of tuberculosis as the little family huddled in a room in the city's welfare shelter that had been home since Monday.

The tragedy was discovered at 1 a.m. A watchman walking his rounds heard whimpering in the room. He stepped in. Mrs. Sinclair was lying on the floor.

Twelve - year - old Hilliard Jr. told him: "My mother's dead and I don't know what to do."

"She was coughing," said five-year-old Carol. "Then she stood up. Then she fell down."

Policemen took Hilliard, Gloria, Frank and four-year-old Sharon to a juvenile home and carried seven-months-old Penny to a hospital to be cared for.

Hilliard said his father, Hilliard Sr., a metal worker, left home last September or October.

Round of Activities Starts For Christmas at Hospital

TRENTON — Santa Claus will take time out from his busy schedule this year to pay a visit to all hospital patients well enough to join in the Christmas activities at the Trenton Memorial Hospital.

Mr. Christmas, dressed in traditional red and carrying a bulging bag of toys over his shoulder, will be making the rounds of rooms and wards on Christmas evening during visiting hours, December 25.

The worthwhile Yule season project is sponsored, for the first time, by the Trenton Lions Club, and was planned as an annual affair.

Lions Old St. Nick distributes candies and "goodies" among the sick. He will be assisted by club members Ross Forster, Roland Reid and Stan Linton, respective Lion Nostrum Sprague, heading up the project, said this thought of the move of the Lions Club to spread Christmas cheer through the hospital is only part of the extensive arrangements planned for patients and staff this season.

In store for the patients is a Christmas dinner, complete with all the trimmings. The trays will be decorated with appropriate cards and favors provided by the Women's auxiliary to the hospital.

The round of activities for the staff started off on Friday night at the Trenton Country Club. The club's dining rooms were the setting for the hospital's annual staff party. With a buffet supper served from 7 o'clock, dancing to the music of Ted Mac Donald's orchestra followed by the Women's auxiliary members, members of the medical staff and their wives, and other persons interested in the hospital. Supper, dancing and a social time with prizes and lucrative games were enjoyed by all who attended.

WILL PROVIDE MUSIC

A week before Christmas, carol singing choirs will provide carol music for hospital patients. The choirs will sing nightly to tell their stories of Christmas.

It is noted that the first Air Force baby born Christmas Day in Canada was born in 1941 the year the RCAF Women's Hospital Auxiliary presented a special silver drinking mugs or silver spoons to the proud parents of the first new arrival on December 25 and January 1.

Mrs. Christmas decorations at the hospital this year are again in the hands of pre-teaching, in keeping with hospital policy. The eight Yule trees adorning the halls of the hospital, inside the building are illuminated with strings of multi-colored lights. Hand-painted scenes on the windows of the nursery and children's ward add to the atmosphere the staff and auxiliary have created.

Though the Christmas season is usually a busy one for the hospital nurses and doctors will be standing by in case of an emergency.

$300 Damage To Two Vehicles

TRENTON — At 4.05 a.m. this morning a car driven by Mrs. Kilroy Brinacombe of St. Hubert Street, Middleton Park, while travelling west, collided tracks at the junction of Marmora and Dundas Streets, and on the tracks and before the driver could straighten it out struck a car driven by Alfred Lee Sinclair, 100 Marmora St., and parked in front of his residence, causing an estimated $300 damage to both vehicles.

Passenger in the Brinacomb car, Leslie Robert Mosetter, of South Trenton Street, received facial injuries and a cut on his right knee cap. Mrs. Brinacomb received similar injuries. Both were treated in the RCAF Station hospital.

Another passenger, William Kenneth Nelson, N.B., escaped unhurt. Mr. Mulley usually parks his car in his garage, but this morning was unable to do so, due to the parking of a car in the garage, which indicated in no uncertain terms that he did not wish to be disturbed, thus forcing Mr. Mulley to park the car on the boulevard in front of his home.

Christmas Party By Women's Club Much Enjoyed

TRENTON — The dining room of the Gilbert Hotel, gaily decorated in traditional Christmas motif, was the scene last evening of the annual Christmas party of the Trenton Business and Professional Women's Club. The decorations had been arranged by Miss Marion Baker and her committee.

The meeting was held by Mrs. Mary Thompson. Mrs. Doris Hall was in charge of the program, which was followed by the several selections by the Community Trio — Elsie Beth Blackledge, Mrs. Eva Smith, Mrs. Mary Thompson.

Miss Margaret Paxton gave a very amusing monologue, "Learning To Drive." Mrs. Ruth Coutts told a very appealing story of "The Littlest Angel."

Mrs. Gertrude Hayward introduced to the members, Mrs. Pat Hellwell. Mrs. Hayward was station and Mrs. Kay Baldwin, Membership chairman, Miss Elizabeth Hall, secretary, presented the members and the president, Mrs. Wills, presented them with their constitutions and hand books, and welcomed them into the club.

The members had brought gifts, which were given to underprivileged children in the town and also to the Nursing Home and the Shannick Nursing Home.

Mrs. Helen Coutts announced that members had bought for persons living at Panda's Villa and Shannick Nursing Home and several members volunteered to deliver those parcels on Monday morning.

A letter was read from the secretary-treasurer PEI, will in the congress of B. and P. Women, Belleville. The Trenton club has a donation of $80, which the members had sent to assist a young high school student of Nagoya, Japan, who was a victim of the recent typhoon.

The members were also told that the Hazel Parley Scholarship, sponsored by the club, had been presented to Miss Sally Ann Brown of Trenton.

It was announced that Saturday, December 19th, will be the last day that the club will sponsor a booth on the Market Square and Christmas decorations are still available.

Architects Get $20,000 for Winning Design

WINNIPEG (CP) — A city hall and building for a stone office building and a glass - walled council building with a wavy roof was picked for Winnipeg Wednesday by an international jury of architects.

Whether the building will become a reality still is a question.

Green, Blankstein, Russell and associates of Winnipeg won $20,000 for the winning design.

Faced with Tyndall stone quarried in Manitoba, the 30-storey office building would feature unusually narrow windows to reduce the glare from the prairie sun.

The two-storey council chamber's reinforced concrete roof, supported by a series of Y-shaped concrete pillars on each side, would look from the air like a row of giant concrete pipes laid side by side. The technical term for the roof is "continuous barrel vaulti."

The triangular site proposed for the new building was given to the city by the province in 1956 and approved by voters in a 1957 referendum. Other sites have been suggested since the referendum.

If the building does not go up within three years, the architectural firm still will receive an additional $15,000.

2 Wanted Men Appear Briefly In County Court

Two of the RCMP's most wanted men, Warren W. Durning, 24, of Economy, N.S., and Richard Madison, 17, of Boston, were remanded for one week when they appeared before Magistrate T. Y. Willis in county magistrate's court this morning on charges of kidnapping and using armed robbery.

The pair were led into court this morning handcuffed singly to Provincial Police officers. Immediately after remand they were put into a car and returned to Kingston Correctional Jail.

The two men, charged with armed robbery and kidnapping of the Percy Moore family at Millbrown last fall, were returned on Monday from Bangor, Maine, where they were arrested.

The pair originally had declined to waive extradition proceedings but on Monday agreed to return to Ontario to face trial.

In addition to charges at Belleville, the pair will face another charge from Niagara-on-the-Lake, and at Morrisburg. Investigation of the case is in charge of Inspector Don Nicol of the Ontario Provincial Police Investigations Branch.

SANTA MAKES FLIGHT

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP) — Santa Claus flew north Monday in a United States Air Force Dakota to deliver nearly a ton of gifts to 186 Indian children. The youngsters are students at a Roman Catholic Indian residential school on the British Columbia-Yukon boundary. Because most of them live in isolated places far from the school they are unable to get home for Christmas with their families.

Mrs. Billy Graham Tells OUR CHRISTMAS STORY

Here is an inspiring series of special articles which will give you and your children a new understanding of the meaning of Christmas.

In simple but moving language, Mrs. Graham explains why the birthday of Jesus is only a part of the wonderful story, why it really began centuries before in the Garden of Eden.

Her Christmas story is different from any you have ever read. It will want to share each instalment with your family, for it makes wonderful reading to children. The second chapter of Our Christmas story appears on page 5.

Christmas Card Sales Rise With Better Quality Sought

The $8,000,000 business in Christmas card sales estimated by the Postmaster-General last year has taken another jump this year — at least on the local scene.

Local card retailers state that season sales in Christmas cards have been "better than ever before."

Although some state card sales have been fairly steady since November, indications at time this year to "early buying," others believe the "rush is on."

One merchant estimates he sells approximately 75 per cent of his total stock of Christmas cards between December 10th and December 17th.

Card buyers this year have an even wider selection of cards to choose from than last year when some 110 different styles of boxed cards were offered for sale.

This year local card retailers are offering 130 varieties of boxed cards, and over 500 styles of individual cards for sale, ranging from religious to the humorous.

Prices of boxed cards range anywhere from 59 cents to $4.50 for a selection of 12 cards. The average price of "good quality" cards is around $1.25 to $1.50 a box. Individual cards sell anywhere from five cents to $1 for the larger, "de-luxe" type card.

"People are buying the better type card this year, rather than exchanging the cheaper type from door-to-door salesmen," one local gift shop proprietor said.

In boxed cards the trend is toward the "single packet" rather than a box of one design.

In the "specials" cards containing reproductions of paintings by Mandy Macdonald are selling well in this category, as tall card buyer states. Other popular types of boxed cards this year are those containing inspirational messages of hope and faith by the late Norman Vincent Peal, poems by Edgar A. Guest and Stephen Vincent Benet, and Christmas cartoons by Steinberg.

One retail card outlet reports it is sold out of these "specials."

In individual type counter cards, the most popular this season are those depicting religious themes such as the "Nativity" and those containing conventional Christmas symbols. The humorous "Contemporary" cards, newcomers on the market this year, have had only "limited sales," card merchants report. However, a few import numerous requests have been received for cards with typical Canadian scenes for overseas mailing.

The boxed "family type" cards and "album lines," comparative newcomers on the market last year are back again this year and are enjoying even greater popularity.

Other popular "repeats" stocked by local card retailers include the "specials" to send to your favorite doctor or dentist, your boss' secretary, secretary, priest or minister.

Local stores also have in stock Christmas cards for special occasions coinciding with Christmas, such as a Christmas birthda; or anniversary," as well as cards expressing sympathy and comfort for those recently bereaved and "get well wishes" for those ill at Christmas time.

Christmas cards have come a long way since an English edu-cator and art patron, Henry Cole originated the world-wide custom of exchanging yuletide greetings by mail around 1843.

Cole, wishing to send Christmas greetings to some of his friends, commissioned a Royal Academy artist, John Calcott Horsley, to design a card for him. He had a thousand lithographed and hand-tinted by a professional "colorer," and after printing some to his friends, offered the remainder for sale in a London stationery shop.

What were probably the first Christmas cards ever printed depicted a typical Victorian scene — a family gathered at the table with "roast beef" as the now-classic greeting. "A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to You."

New Board Will Consider Driver-Training Course

The possibility of re-introducing a driver-training course for high school students attending classes in Belleville will be considered by members of the 1960 Belleville Collegiate Board early in the new year.

This was disclosed at the final meeting of the 1959 board held Tuesday evening when the assembly was addressed by Mr. John Ricketts, public relations officer for the Canadian Safety League. Mr. Ricketts outlined features of the driver - training course and said that the League give consideration to re-introduction into city high schools. Later in the meeting members decided to take the matter up early in the new year.

And the Cadet Corps at Belleville Collegiate will not be allowed to die. At this week's meeting board members decided to continue the cadet training again next year with Stanley Barbour, R.S.M. instructor at the school as the chief instructor. He will be assisted by senior cadet members. The cadet training will be confined largely to Grade 9 and 10 students.

In a measure to reduce the time required for school functions, organization members using the gymnasium at Quinte Secondary School will be asked to arrive and leave the school in groups. This will reduce the time which the janitor will be required to be on duty to unlock and lock up the school.

ALLOWED TIME

Board members agreed that Lloyd F. Reid, principal of Quinte Secondary School, be allowed time off from his school duties to enable him to carry out duties required of him as city councillor. Mr. Reid took the aldermanic poll at the recent municipal election.

The school architect will be asked to consider a change in a door leading to the auto shop at the new Moira School. The door presently installed allows excess cold into the room, it was stated.

Board members also asked that a letter be sent to city council asking that early consideration be given toward the extension of Victoria Ave.

The offer of Lightfoot Construction Company for the purchase of a used lathe from the RCE school for $400 was accepted by the board, while next year's board will be asked to consider a proposed replacement schedule for typewriters and other equipment in the commercial departments.

Letters regarding coaching of high school pupils for participation in International Plowing Matches were referred to the agricultural representative at Stirling.

Appreciation to Bishop Seeds for the donation of samples of tulip bulbs at a nominal cost for planting on school properties was extended by the board.

Concluding the meeting board member J. B. Tarrant expressed his appreciation for the cooperation of members during the year. Members of the 1960 board will hold a caucus meeting on January 4th to name committees, while the inaugural meeting of the board will be held on January 12th.

U.S. and Russia to-Be Allies?

Mr. Walter Lippman, who has acquired an enviable reputation for accurate analysis of international affairs and trends, has been writing on the future of China and the tremendous impact which this giant of the Far East will inevitably have on world politics if her industrial and military power continues to grow to the point where it matches the size of her population.

Mr. Lippman concludes that the great problem in world politics in the future will be the containment of Red China and that this problem will concern Soviet Russia as much or even more than it will concern the United States and the western democracies.

He sees in this coming crisis the basic reason for Nikita Khrushchev's present efforts to end the Cold War with the West.

Mr. Lippman is too wise a man to welcome this counter irritant to the present conflict between Russia and her satellites on the one hand and the United States and her allies on the other. There will be those, though, who will see in his analysis, if proven correct, a welcome relief from the present situation. What these people do not seem to understand, and indeed combined to contain Red China would be likely to result in conditions more, rather than less, dangerous than those prevailing today. The very existence of a situation demanding containment is becoming the practical equivalent of disaster.

By the very nature of things, with the so-called "population explosion" building up throughout the world, the future will see a situation in which more living space will have to be provided for people of the Chinese race. Unlike some of the nations of Asia, China has not yet taken vigorous action to curb the steady increase in population. She has blown hot and cold in dealing with this problem, first sponsoring birth control campaigns and then abandoning them. This, in itself, is frightening, but it need not be disastrous providing the Chinese themselves, and other nations, do not follow policies which, a few decades from now, bring about a policy of "containment." Some of these millions of Chinese will spill over the present borders of China into neighboring lands, with Siberia appearing to offer the best area of absorption. Other tens of thousands may emigrate across the seas. But the only world which can absorb this inevitable increase in population in peace is a world in which the old ideas about national expansion and containment have become outmoded, a world in which nations have disarmed and are prepared to work with, rather than against, each other in solving the problem of providing living space and the necessities of life for a swollen world population.

It is not at all certain that we shall be able to produce such a world in time, but if we do not we have scant reason to cheer the changing circumstances which, according to Mr. Lippman, may make Soviet Russia and the U.S. allies instead of foes.

They Love Their Work

At least once recently, perhaps oftener, we have been guilty of sloppy phrasing in a sentence referring to professional sport. As a result some may have gathered the impression that we believe a man who plays a game for money cannot also enjoy it. This, of course, is nonsense. Many people enjoy their work. With professional players, there is the added fact that every one of them started playing the game because they enjoyed it. The fact that they are now paid for playing doesn't automatically eliminate the appeal of the game. If any proof of this were needed, it is provided by a story from New York. Four National Football League players may jump to the new American League because they have not been seeing enough action with their National League teams. And this in a sport which some critics have denounced as savage and brutal!

LITTLE MISS WINDOW WISHER

By EDGAR A. GUEST

I passed along the crowded street
Where shoppers hurried to and fro,
And then with worn and weary feet
I saw Miss Window Wisher go
Up to a store with lights ablaze,
\"\" all the people tramping by,
Upon... doll she fixed her gaze,
And then I heard her sigh.

I watched this ill-clad little miss,
Not more than five she seemed to be,
Envying that and wanting this,
Yet glad perhaps that she might see

The pretty things she could not buy
And yet not understanding why.
Oh, there were toys she wanted too
And then I heard her sigh.

Ah, were I Santa Claus today
I'd seek Miss Window Wisher out,
And I would scatter from her way
The clouds of gloom and grief and doubt.
I'd treat her to a glad surprise,
Nor would I do the job by half;
I'd set a twinkle in her eyes,
And then I'd hear her laugh.

Some Facts About Frost

Aramon World

Steve you ever, on a frosty morning, looked out at nature's glittering coat of white and wondered: Where does it all come from?

Many people think frost is just dew that turns to ice. It isn't. Frost is ice that "just appears"—right out of thin air.

But why?

And why do you sometimes see frost when your thermometer tells you the air isn't cold enough to freeze anything?

States Weather Bureau in Washington. States Weather Bureau in Washington can tell you many interesting little known facts about "Jack Frost". Most countries have at least a touch of frost and then. Frost does heavy calculable harm to crops, but surprisingly it also does some good. Some trees like the bead-tree fruit. One or two fruits at the right time can ship off 25 to 75 per cent of the blossoms — letting the tree pour its strength into less but better fruit.

And in the fall of the year it is Jack Frost who paints our trees in the northern hemisphere into puting a rich red bloom on the leaves. With a few frost to hurry the ripening process along, the apple is all set to put polished ing apples, which are hard to sell, are the result.

To understand about frost, it helps first to know one curious fact about temperature. Sometimes, as it hangs outside, exposed to a clear sky on a still night or in the early morning give you a low reading. Let's say the air is 36 deg. F. But your thermometer may actually tell you the temperature is only 32 deg. — or freezing.

Is your thermometer inaccurate? Not likely. Nowadays, your sheltered thermometer has been reckoning so much of its own heat out into that clear sky that it's actually shivering a degree or two colder than the air. Water wouldn't freeze in the air; but touch it to the thermometer and it will freeze.

This helps explain why you sometimes find frost when the air is 36 or 37 deg. F. Each blade of grass is clear, windless night has been shooting so much heat out into space that it is colder than the air around it. When the air is moist, it touches the blades of grass and puts a sudden frigid surprise. The water vapor in it feels the frozen touch — and turns instantly into ice without even bothering to turn into dew first.

If you are a keen observer and get up just before sunrise some morning, when you actually watch the thickening of the frost blades as the air turns colder. It's a little-known fact that the coldest time of night is just after sunrise. The frost thickens slowly, but in a hurry when it does. Often enough the difference

Why does frost sometimes touch the grass but spare your flowers? Only recently, weather-wise scientists found the answer. In interesting discovery; there's only a few tenths of a degree's difference in the weather between your knees and the soles of your feet. You may feel a chill standing, but flowers at your knees may be warm. Frost may lace the soil that is five degrees warmer. And a high sunflower over your head may find the climate up there a full 10 degrees warmer than you do.

Perhaps you've heard of "moon-light frost." Many farmers think the moon brings frost. But the real fact is that it's not the moon because the sky is clear—and that's why sunflower your head may find the climate up there a full 10 degrees warmer than you do.

Why? On a clear night your lawn, flowers, and even the top of your car — radiate heat rapidly into space. The earth is losing its stop. It.

But something happens on cloudy nights. The clouds become a heat mirror. The precious heat waves that would be given is recklessly shooting off into space hit the clouds and bounce right back. Result: the ground stays warm and the frost! You get a same effect if you spread a sheet over your plants: it becomes the heat right back into the soil.

Wind — even the slightest of breezes — can prevent frost. That's because wind is like a spoon in your cup of tea: it keeps mixing the cooler and warmer bits a lot of warm air that often floats just about your head. Result: no frost.

It may seem odd but ice hitting the ground can actually keep frost from frost! And so some growers actually spray their crops with water on a freezing night. Water freezes quickly on the plants, and the heat of freezing helps the plants. But by continually spraying with water, the growers play a cute little trick on the ice and keep it from getting wet it can. So even if the air is much colder. This seems like "frost on frost blanket" works only on certain plants that are strong enough to stand the weight of frozen spray. The system is used even to protect banana trees and some Central American plantations.

You have heard of the harm life in frosty weather by "frost heaves" which buckle and break the pavement. Here's exactly the kind of frost you see on the lawn: but it is a lot colder. When the ground gives up heat (to outer space) day after day, it keeps on losing more and more of its heat. This while advice on how to break the habit of eating too fast, which seems to be a serious in the system as too much alcohol or smoking. It affects many more people, (I speak here as a full-fledged gulper.)

It is a dangerous half-truth to say that "practice makes perfect," for a person who is taught the wrong way only confirms and hardens his mistakes into habits and practices. Countless singers, for instance, have been ruined by practising under bad teachers.

No man is so despicable as the man without a capacity to despise himself.

Giving advice to someone you have not met, or know only slightly, is about as useful as a legless person coaching a sightless person to jump the high hurdles.

Nobody is as attracted to dirt as the fanatic who finds it everywhere.

Tabernacle Sunday School was crowded with eager scholars and happy adults last night on the occasion of the annual Sunday School entertainment by Mr. A. Christmas entertainment of a varied nature, including a visit of Santa Claus to St. Andrew's Church, and the lectures of the Royal Tour, Belleville pictures and suitable Christmas pantomime that proved adaptable for the occasion, were enjoyed by Christmas carols which were sung by the largely attended audience.

With a delightful capacity audience showing its appreciation with continued applause, members of the Bridge Street branch of the Salvation Army gave its annual Christmas concert last night. The programme was of a highly entertaining nature, and brought out the clever artistry of many juvenile talents, consisted of songs, recitations and exercises, dialogues and instrumental selections.

The annual St. George's Church Sunday School concert, a most entertainment was held last night. The programme proved highly entertaining as it carried the season's Christmas spirit in carols, readings and dialogues.

Mr. George Sine, who conducted the Sine Bros. store at Frankford and Belleville, has left Canada for Alaska, where he is engaged in ranching in the west.

The Rev. J. Allan Petrie, of this city, will leave shortly for Greenwood, where he has accepted the pastorate of the Presbyterian church. The evening friends will wish him great success in the new field of endeavor.

Canadian PLACE NAMES

KILLARNEY, MAN.

A village in Manitoba, a village in the Parry Sound district of Ontario, and a township in B.C. They were all named for a town in Ireland. The word is derived from the Celtic "cill" or "kill" meaning church, and "larney" meaning "blackthorn or sloe." In the early days a church was the centre around which a village grew.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE LOVE OF FREEDOM AND BEAUTY

This world is a garden of beauty and it behooves us to see that it will have love and appreciate it. Flowers, birds, trees, hills, insects, mountains, and endless number of other things belong to all, as human beings. Each country is universal, it is enfolded everywhere. It influences and is influenced by other. Like all created things, beauty is a free gift from the Father of us all.

We wouldn't be what we are were it not that Beauty dominated the earth, in all its infinite variety, and that we have a place in it. Were we not here, we are in a brief breath in comparison to what has passed before us. We are here in this world to do what we can to make others happy and healthy. We should be kind and take our place in life where we can be the most helpful, trying to interpret life in terms of the greatest good to all mankind.

We must bear in mind that kindness and usefulness are considered in the human heart. We are a part of all mankind. Why should we, then, struggle against it? Imagine what this world would be with all war before taxes? I keep thinking of the thousands of miles of land and boundary between Canada and the United States, as a world example of Peace and Good Will between Nations.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

SMALLPOX AND TETANUS — IMMUNIZE YOURSELF AGAINST BOTH

I hope you will forgive me for getting on my soapbox, but the fact is that I think I should, occasionally.

Two things, seemingly very different, came across my desk in the mail recently.

One was a report that smallpox (among a number of other things) was a subject at the Pan American Health Organization meeting.

The other was a remark about the "ubiquity (a game of tet-ubus, and comment by Dr. Geoffrey Edsall, of the Walter Reed Army Institute of Research, that "since all human beings are subject to some disease-producing tetanus, all people should ideally, be immunized with toxoid."

Smallpox and tetanus are two pests for which we have had for most of our two in fairly recent years. We can keep them essentially harmless, however, only as long as we keep alert and take proper steps to protect ourselves. This is, perhaps, like the unpleasantness of brushing which lets down its guard for a "week-end" and then suddenly finds itself trounced in a so-called "upset."

Smallpox, ordinarily transmitted from person to person, has not been a problem for us. The percentage of vaccinated people, who, for a large number of years have not had a booster vaccination, have been on the minority. Heavy exposure to the virus — as in an epidemic — would result in their getting the disease. Some, perhaps, not. The "mild" case of smallpox is no laughing matter.

In other American republics, not enough people are properly vaccinated to prevent the disease from spreading. Let's not be one.

Now for tetanus. It does not pass from person to person. It is acquired when tetanus spores — which are ubiquitous, or are to be found everywhere — invade the body through some wound.

All of you have had the image of the "puncture wound." The tetanus bacillus, which grows in soil, thrive in a deep puncture — or in any wound, dirty, soiled, or contaminated. The spores are closed in and can multiply in the absence of air. Any wound can admit tetanus.

The answer is the toxoid (or bacillus) vaccination. It is a simple procedure. Once every four or five years .The cost is trifling, and your household can do it by itself.

Now, we add a special warning to hunters, campers ,tourists, machine operators — or anyone who has a nick or scratch. Do we get any such injury? Need we add that mothers can acquire cuts from tin cans, kitchen knives ,broken glass near the garbage can, or sharp slivers in the garden? Avoid the risk. Ask the doctor to give you the toxoid.

"Dear Dr Molner: Enclosed you will find a clipping . . . I would like your opinion about it."

The clipping is a blurb about a "money-back" pill to develop brilliant, fuller bosoms. My opinion (I do not know of any pill will ever do it) is that it would be so ,if for no other reason than to save postage for all the hopeful people who repeatedly keep asking me about this, that or the other touted products.

Law-Breaking Law-Makers

Ottawa Journal

Mr. Oswald Parent, MLA for Bull, has made an excellent point in the legislature which is sitty at Quebec in speaking against the Quebec flouting of the Canada Temperance Act with what he said was the spurious excuse of Provincial Liquor Commission.

Mr. Parent would make it more direct. The law in Quebec province is being flouted spearheaded with the connivance of governments of Quebec and of Canada.

Mr. Parent said it was noted that some liquor representative establishments in Montreal had been closed down, "but others remained open, selling liquor by night and sell liquor and bier on Sunday openly."

Mr. Parent might have added that conspicuous vendors of liquor are operated in Montreal are the luxury hotel restaurants, one of which is a Canadian National hotel; that is to say, a Canadian government hotel.

The governments of Quebec and Canada ought not to be parties to making the law appear a mockery and contempt.

Just now we are seeing a drive to enforce closing laws of restaurants and clubs in the Hull area. Such enforcement is essential so long as the law is what it is. But a law is a law, whether on the Ayliner route or the Yonge Street route, a posh hotel pent-house. If it is a bad law it should be changed.

Or is there, indeed, one law for the rich and one for the poor, one for those in the charmed circle and one for those outside?

CONCERNING THE NARROW-MINDED

Who are the most narrow-minded people? Are they not those who are unprejudiced observers that there are in every community a certain amount of narrow-mindedness. There are always a few persons who have no use for religion. There is an even larger group of people who are lukewarm in any or the other but show their negative attitude toward religion by staying away from church. Then there are religious bigots who are guilty of dissention who are always finding fault and criticizing. This may devour. "Religion is a personal matter, they say," which is full of hypocrites." "I don't need religion to make and keep me decent."

We just fall into the habit of thinking that all narrow-mindedness is within the church. But we are apt to reflect and reconsider a bit.

Outside the church it would probably the conviction of most unprejudiced observers that there is a considerable amount of narrow-mindedness. There are those who have no use for religion. Then there are religious bigots who are guilty of dissention who are always finding fault and criticizing. This may devour. "Religion is a personal matter, they say," which is full of hypocrites." THE PACKSACK

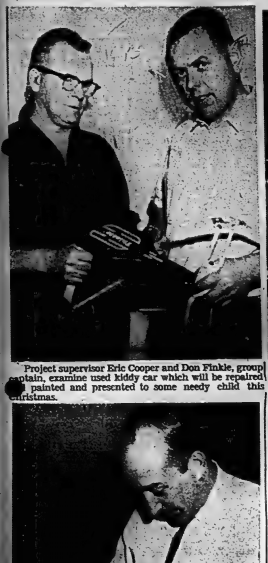
By GREGORY CLARK



My pet table at lunch affords a view of a row of chairs the restaurant provides for customers to wait their friends. It is amusing to have these people as a sort of "human interest" story and dramas take place to entertain a slow eater like me.

Just the other my eye because she seemed to be stood up. She had waited quite a long time. And the way she fidgeted on her chair and kept turning to see who was coming through the entrance revealed her growing impatience. After a good half hour, during which others came and went from the chairs, the girl, in an air of exasperation, snatched her purse to her, shod up and marched stiffly out of the restaurant.

Two or three minutes later, another lady came and sat down. She occurred to me, after ten or fifteen minutes, that she must have misunderstood the time she was to meet her friend and had been waiting. Then her impatience began to show. She looked at her half hour, she too stood up, very vexed, and left. I mentioned her to my waitress.

"Oh, her!" said she. "Yes, they are always there. This goes on all the time. One is always treating others early and waits for them—and they never come! Another time arrives twelve minutes late, waits twenty minutes and then out, most indignant."

Lots of sisters are this.

Project supervisor Eric Cooper and Don Finkle, group captain, examine used kiddy car which will be repaired and painted and presented to some needy child this Christmas.

Belleville Kiwanian Don Rose gets in a bit of doll dressing practice as he helps in the Kiwanis Christmas toy project.

Just one section of the Christmas toys which the Kiwanis Toy Project has readied for distribution this year.

Two volunteers of the toy project, Jim Tischlein and Allan Eros, stand amid another section of the Christmas gifts now ready for distribution at the Kiwanis Centre.

7-Man Toy Repair Program Musnrooms Into Big Business

A seven-man toy repair program started in the basement of a Bridge Street resident eight years ago as a Christmas project has seen a steady growth in the intervening years until it now takes up a major part of two floors at the Dundas Street Kiwanis Club.

Birth of the idea to repair toys for distribution to needy children was at Christmas was the mind of Eric Cooper, 323 Bridge Street, who still supervises the program under the sponsorship of the Belleville Kiwanis Club.

But instead of working alone or with one or two volunteer helpers, Mr. Cooper has upwards of 20 assistants and each year about October 15th sees the toy repair project get into full swing in preparation for another Christmas.

The result is that approximately 4,000 toys are used toys to out to needy children in Belleville and district, and also to children in the North Hastings area.

Already this year approximately 1,200 toys, skates and other such popular Christmas gifts have been out to Madonna House Training at Combermere for distribution to children in that area.

Within the next few days the balance of the toys repaired at the Kiwanis Centre workshop will be taken to No. 2 fire station on Moira Street where firemen will add a quota of new gifts and from specially prepared lists distribution will be made to needy families in the Belleville area.

CAREFULLY PLANNED

The distribution of toys is very carefully planned from a master list prepared from other lists sent in by local organizations. In this way the possibility of duplication is lessened.

As supervisor of the Christmas toy project Mr. Cooper emphasized that the entire operation was a strictly volunteer effort. The used toys come from Belleville and district homes, while the 30 or more persons doing the repairs are strictly volunteers.

Mr. Cooper has his volunteers divided into four groups with each group taking its turn one night during the week at running the Kiwanis Christmas repair shop. Group captains are Kenneth Burkitt, Don Allan, Don Finkle and Ralph Clapp.

Local merchants also get into the act with the donation of used toys, while local manufacturers contribute parts and materials for the repair of wagons, shovels, kiddy cars and other toy equipment.

Public response in the donation of toys this year has been excellent and although the repair work for this year is about wound up the toys will be there for the commencement of next year's program.

"Toys received from now on will be boxed and stored away until next year, Mr. Cooper noted.

Bus Service Will Continue Until January 31st

City bus riders will at least have transportation until January 31st, it was confirmed today by Aldermen Robert Temple, chairman of a special council committee appointed to confer with Rawson Bus Lines regarding possible extension of services.

Alderman Temple stated that as result of a meeting yesterday Mr. Rawson had agreed to continue bus service throughout January to allow the 1960 council to decide on policy with respect to bus transportation following the new year.

The franchise of the Rawson Bus Lines runs out on December 31st and Mr. Rawson has said it would not be renewed unless there was some system of subsidization from the city.

Our Christmas Story

by Mrs. Billy Graham

as told to Elizabeth Sherrill

God liked to see Adam stroke the lions and the buffaloes.

In the Beginning

Chapter 3

If the Book of Luke gives us only part of the Christmas story, where is the rest of it?

To find the beginning we have to go back a long way.

The first Christmas when Jesus was born in Bethlehem was almost two thousand years ago, but we have to go back further than that. We have to go back before Mary and Joseph themselves were born. Back before there was any town of Bethlehem. Before there were any towns at all. Even before there were any people on the earth. In fact, so far back that there was no earth.

There were no stars then, either. No sun, no sky, no rain. In those days — except that there were no days — space was empty. In all the universe there was only God Himself — and the angels.

The Christmas story goes back that far.

In that long ago, unimaginable time, God began to make things. He made things because He was God, and God loves fullness better than emptiness.

MADE LIGHT FIRST

At first the universe was dark, so God made the burning discs — our sun among them — for light. He made our earth and then He filled it with wonders. He put deep oceans and high mountains on it. In the oceans. He put octopuses and silent fish and creatures so tiny that only He could see them.

On the mountains He put goats, and He made them wonderful climbers. In the valleys He put all sorts of animals — caterpillars and parrots and chinoceroses. And, of course, He made oysters. He made billions and trillions of creatures and not one was exactly like another.

God loved the things He had made. He loved His raindrops and His octopuses and His daylight. But He had no children to share them with Him. In all the earth, there was no one like Himself, no one to say, "How beautiful it is!" And no one to enjoy it with Him.

In the whole earth, no one to have a conversation with! God talked to His creation, of course. He talked to His flowers with His warm sunshine and His cool rain. In every little fish egg He put a message, telling that egg how to grow into a fish and a fisherman. And all of His creatures obeyed Him, but not one of them answered Him.

SO HE MADE MAN

To have a companion on earth, God needed someone like Himself. So He made one more creature. He made our kind of creature and He made it in His own image. That is, He copied us after Himself.

He made two of us, a man and a woman. The man's name was Adam and the woman's name was Eve.

As soon as He had made them, God loved them more than all the other creatures He had made. He wanted to shower them with gifts. He gave them all His cows and His fish and His bees — yes, and His oysters, too. Every animal on the whole earth and in all the oceans He gave to Adam and Eve. He gave them all His trees and plants. From the tallest date palm to the flattest mushroom, they were all for Adam and Eve.

Then He found the most beautiful spot on earth for them to live in. It was named Eden and it was so beautiful it was called a garden. In the Garden of Eden God put everything that Adam and Eve needed to make them happy. There were rivers of clear water to drink, fruit to eat, vines to swing on, flowers to smell.

NO ENEMIES

They didn't need spears, or any kind of weapon, because they had no enemies. There were no wild animals in those days, either. Lions and bears and hyenas came when Adam called them and lay down on the ground to be played with, because they knew they belonged to him.

Adam and Eve didn't need a house to live in or warm clothes to wear because it was never cold in Eden, and God kept the wind and rain off them.

They didn't need a stove or an icebox or even pans to cook with, since all the food they wanted grew on the trees for them. And they certainly didn't need money, since God had already given them everything.

God watched the two people He had made, and He loved them. He was delighted when Eve picked the flowers and gave them pretty names and put them in her hair. She loves My flowers, God thought.

He liked to see Adam stroke the lions and the buffaloes and call them wonderful and handsome and marvelous. Best of all, He liked to hear Adam and Eve say, "All these things were made by God!"

LOVED THEIR WORK

For work, God gave them the care of His beautiful garden. Adam and Eve loved their work. All morning they pruned the trees and dug the earth until it was soft around the flowers. Then, when their work was finished, they would run with the antelope, swim with the otter, sing with the orioles. Best of all, they would wait for the moment of God's visit.

For God loved Adam and Eve just as much as they loved Him. At the close of the long, happy day, He came into the garden and talked with them. And then —new joy on earth! — the man and the woman answered Him. It was the moment God had waited for since time began.

As we have thought, I have My children with whom I can share the joy and the glory of My creation.

DONKEYS DISPLACED

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Life came to a halt in the country town of Andizhan, in the Soviet Central Asian republic of Uzbekistan, when authorities banned donkeys because "they were rather unsultured and made the town dirty," the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia said Wednesday. Women's Hospital Auxiliary Dessert Luncheon Well Attended

Guy Christmas decorations and a festive array of desserts provided by the executive graced the large group of Women's Hospital Auxiliary members who attended the dessert luncheon and meeting in the nurses' residence yesterday.

Members brought new articles for the table at the Quinte Society shop and these were placed under the Christmas tree.

The luncheon was convened by Mrs. Ben Sale and Mrs. R. Kean.

The business meeting, conducted by the president, Mrs. R. Burley, heard reports from the Cobbler Shop, convened by Mrs. N. Merry; treasurer, Mrs. W. Dallas. They will take action at the second luncheon meeting in January which is to be held at the Hotel Quinte and is being convened by Mrs. J. Lennox Smith.

AUXILIARY ACHIEVEMENTS

In accepting her re-election as president, Mrs. Burley noted the many worthwhile achievements of the auxiliary. She expressed her warm appreciation and thanks to the hundreds of volunteers who in so many ways are contributing to the many faceted auxiliary projects which are benefiting the hospital.

EXPRESSION EXPRESSED

Both chairmen spoke most appreciatively of the army of volunteers whose gifts of time and materials had made these financial reports possible. There is a current drive underway for volunteers not only to help but on the four monthly running volunteer services with the hospital convened by Mrs. J. Buchan. One of the latter is a recently-developed program of adult recreation for elderly patients, led by Mrs. W. R. Sibbitt.

An intriguing display of puppets made by the committee convened by Mrs. E. L. Scott, found a number of buyers whose purchases make possible this almost entirely self-supporting project of puppets for children in pediatrics.

Bursaries of $130 each to five student nurses were voted on recommendation of bursary committee chairman Mrs. W. R. Finkle.

Very Christmas day, toys will be distributed to the children and indigent patients will receive gifts of toilet articles, slippers and pyjamas from the auxiliary. Mrs. N. C. MacFee is in charge of these as well as the greeting cards for the breakfast trays of all hospital patients.

REVISED CONSTITUTION

A revised constitution governed by the constitution committee consisting of Mrs. J. Buchan, Mrs. L. Langlois and Mrs. W. H. Fiskin was unanimously adopted. It incorporates a number of changes made during the past five years and provides that no officer shall act in any office for more than two consecutive years.

The nominating committee report was presented by Mrs. J. H. Forestell, chairman. Election of officers for the year 1960 took place and they are as follows: honorary president, Mrs. W. Mitkel; past president, Mrs. W. H. Fiskin; president, Mrs. Ben Burley; 1st vice-president, Mrs. M. F. P. Jones; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. P. Healey; recording secretary Mrs. W. Musgrove; corresponding secretary, Miss N. Merry; treasurer, Mrs. W. Dallas. They will take action at the second luncheon meeting in January which is to be held at the Hotel Quinte and is being convened by Mrs. J. Lennox Smith.

"Lines on Life"

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

Are you one of the "C" men? Brown, if you're for the celebrity the signs of situated [illegible] as a growth.

They are three in kind, these "C" men, and have just now grown up. Each is the product of crowded mass-cultural development. And the pity — for none seems to know it.

The first is the "sage." He comes in two varieties. He may be the successful man who misunderstands his success and believes he alone is responsible for it, he alone knows it all. He is somehow the little boy who has mastered one of the multiplication tables, and then sits back and listens mockingly to the minutes of others. He is convinced nobody else can do it as well.

Or the other type of "sneer." He has failed at so many things, for lack of patience of skill or ill-prowess that he can't understand the man who does succeed. He man, he believes, is somebody's achievement by virtue of his own nettle. Each successful man can only be the product of somebody's evil influence.

The sneer of either stripe, is looking always in the wrong direction. He fails to take where people into account. His gaze is rightly focused only on himself and he can't see the world around him.

He moves within the narrow circle of his own conceits of his own wounds and never ventures out to feel the heartbeat of his fellows. He sees in them only what he doesn't feel for other men. He's an emotional baby, indeed!

And the "know," he, too, is a spiritual coward. He is certain a natural and absolute gulf divides him from most people. While he may believe in the progressive idea that all men are created equal, he is certain that he is "more equal" than all the others. He lives as though he was perpetually saying:

"There is no need for me to know what you know; no need for you to know what I know. After all, we are so different from each other."

His arrogance, however, really betrays his insecurity, his immaturity. He is not a "grown-up" because he has "grown in."

The "sniper" completes our roster of "C" men. He's always shooting from ambush because he is certain everybody's looking at him. He can always explain or rationalize his every shortcoming. But not those of others men — the other fellow is always to blame.

So he's prepared to go through life criticizing, hurting and destroying other people, with or without provocation. He believes it seems, in "preventive wars." Beat down the world before it does the same to you!

The sneer, the snob and the sniper may be big in their own eyes, and even in the eyes of those who behold them. For all that, they are little indeed, spiritually undersized — men who fall short of real manhood.

WILL REMAIN TEACHER

BROOKVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — A former Nazi who broadcast for Hitler during the war will remain on the faculty of Long Island University's C. W. Post College, the school said Tuesday. Dr. Edward V. Stiller, 45, who was hired last summer to teach English and modern language at Post, had been criticized in published reports and by veteran groups for renouncing his U.S. citizenship in 1939 to work for Hitler.

EGGLETON W.M.S., W.A.

MADOC JUNCTION — On Thursday afternoon, Mrs. Bruce Singley, president of the W.M.S. was hostess for the December meeting of the Eggleton W.M.S. and W.A. with 13 adults and two children in attendance.

The W.A. president, Mrs. Wilfred McMullen, presided over a Christmas program prepared by Mrs. Marjorie Clancy, convener of the meeting by reading a poem, "Christmas Thoughts."

Several Christmas carols were sung during the meeting with Mrs. Irving Shapley, pianist.

A lovely worship service had been prepared by Mrs. Gordon Nelson, and this was given by Mrs. Charles Singley, who read the Christmas message from St. Matthew 2: 1-12. Mrs. W. McMullen gave the meditation on the lesson, with Mrs. W. Harlow assisting.

The "Dime Bags" and "Mite Boxes" were handed in at this meeting, and will be forwarded to the W.M.S. treasury.

Mrs. Irving Shapley, pianist, also rendered my Mrs. B. Stapley.

A Christmas reading was given by Mrs. Keith Johnson, based on the events found in St. Luke 2, "No Room in the Inn."

The 2nd chapter, "On a Bridge" from in Study Book, "Across the Years" was presented by Mrs. Maurice Clancy, during a film, "Land of the Pharaohs" of Africa. The Africans are generally changing to a new way of life. Many are reaching out to the new Christian way, while still retaining some of their old customs.

Sometimes they become confused. So everything that the West can do to help the Africans in making this change will serve to bring peace and understanding, not only to Africa, but to the world.

The various secretaries gave their reports.

The Christian stewardship secretary, Mrs. Charles Stapley reported that the missionary for Japan, Dr. Florence Murray, of Severance Hospital, in Seoul, Korea, remains the same for 1960 with $157, being the 1960 allocation.

Mrs. Warren Harlow, W.A. treasurer, gave an encouraging report of amount raised during the year.

Mrs. Carl Bridges, W.M.S. treasurer sent a report, which was read by Mrs. C. Fichett.

The Literature secretary, Mrs. Mumsey Kirkey, and Mission Band secretary, Mrs. Maurice Clancey, each gave their reports which showed the splendid work being done in these Junior organizations.

The supply secretary, Mrs. Forde Shapley, reported on the parcels sent to Mission Fields" and to "Overseas Relief".

The corresponding secretary, Mrs. Fitchett, gave her report on number of cards and letters sent out during the year.

Mrs. Keith Johnson, offered her bonne for the January meeting, with Mrs. C. Fichett appointed to prepare the program.

Mrs. Stapley served dainty refreshments and following this a happy half-hour was enjoyed with an exchange of Christmas gifts.

QUESTION BOX

Answer: This indecision is caused by the thoughtlessness of the hosts. When a birthday party is given for a grownup, no mention should be made on the invitation that the party is being held to celebrate such an occasion. Only in the case where all those invited are relatives or close friends of the family should the nature of the party be divulged. If casual friends are to be included, much better to word the invitation just as you would for a regular party. A birthday party is a good time that can be forth coming during the function itself and the chance of embarrassment to those attending can be avoided if these rules are followed.

Question: Is it permissible to allow a small child to use a piece of bread as a "push piece" when he is eating at the table with the family? What about if company is present?

Answer: It depends on the age of the child and the circumstances. If he is under the age of four, a helpful push with a piece of bread may make the going easier as he learns to manipulate eating implements. After four it's high time he learns to forego this pleasure. Before bed he should not be allowed to eat it the table when guests are present. He's just not old enough, and it is unfair to him and to the adults. If fed him before company comes, show him off, and pack him off to bed for the general happiness of all concerned!

Question: Of what does the usual "plain setting" consist when you set the table for, say, Christmas dinner? Similarly when there are to be guests, and for several dinner parties to be very formal (the really formal meal is seldom served today, except for official occasions), the places would be set in the same manner that you follow when guests are not present. Until a short time ago, two separate sizes of silver implements were considered a necessity. One, the large or dinner-sized knives and forks, et cetera, the other, a smaller version formerly referred to as the luncheon size. Today, with the exception of those who entertain very formally, a luncheon, or medium sized fingle-

Y.F.C. Presents 'Missionaries Of Ecuador'

On Saturday night, a good audience gathered at the Masonic Temple for the Y.F.C. Christmas Party. The feature event on the program was the presentation of the film, "Operation Jungle Barriers" and "Invaders Unfold Man." The producers presented a beautiful rendition of the song, "How About Your Soul" and the girls' trio sang "The Breaking of the Bread." The Chamberlain Family staging presented a preview of the film music to be expected at the Christmas Musical Rally that was announced for December 20. Mr. Sherry congratulated singing was enjoyed by all, and Miss Joan Turbyfield gave testimony to her faith in Christ.

One regular feature of the night was the been a film version of Tic-Tac-Toe, using Bible characters. Two groups of Christ-loyed playing a game of this type against each other.

The first film, "Conquering Jungle Barriers," was filmed by Miss Dale Johnston, R.N., while on a missionary in Ecuador, Mr. Johnston was one of the missionaries who were martyred in Ecuador by the Auca Indians. The film portrays the work of a jungle pilot, whose job is to carry supplies and materials over the jungles to the missionary posts. Often, when emergencies arise, the pilot is called upon to fly missionaries in or out. Many times he and his crew times sick and injured, also. The pilot called with a group of messages by Nate Saint's wife, Marj, after challenging people to pray for missions daily.

The film "Intertyed Men" is the documentary film taken immediately after the report of this martyrdom, reached the outside world. Mr. T. McCully of Kitchener, Ont., and Mr. Ed McCully, one of the men killed, shows some fine pictures of the work while on a trip to the scene. He and Mrs. Ed McCully gave their feelings and view points of this incident, on film, which presents a stirring challenge to Christians to dedicate themselves to a greater measure of missionary zeal, also for young people to dedicate themselves to the cause of missions.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Harold R. — We shouldn't push Frank beyond his limits.

Geraldine R. — Frank can make it in the end.

Harold R. — My wife and I recently had quite a shock concerning our 14-year-old son.

Frank started high school this fall and wasn't doing too well. One of his teachers sent for my wife and told her that the work is too much for the kid. He is taking a general course which is really preparatory for college. The teacher said he should be switched to a vocational or commercial course.

My wife and I are both college graduates and we expected the same for our children. However, I feel that we shouldn't try to push the boy beyond his limits. He is very nervous and I'm afraid of what could happen if things get too rough for him. I think we ought to take that teacher's advice.

Geraldine R. — Harold just worries about pushing Frank too far, but I'm worried about what could happen if we tell him that he isn't college material and that he'll have to give up the course his older sister is taking without any difficulty.

I know that Frank isn't a fast learner, but he's a plugger and he wants so much to go to college. He already has the school picked out and has its pennant on his wall.

Harold is always ready to trust everything to the experts, but I think parents know a thing or two about their own children. Frank may need a little coaching, but he'll make it in the end.

The Council: This is certainly a difficult decision to make. Harold is right in worrying about pushing the boy too hard, yet Geraldine is justified in being reluctant to tell him that he can't do something he wants to do and he's willing to work for.

Geraldine is also justified in her reluctance to "trust everything to the experts," but she should be aware that an experienced teacher has the ability to spot some difficulties which may not be evident to parents.

Nevertheless, we don't think the course of Frank's life should be determined on one teacher's say-so. The R's should discuss the problem with other teachers and the principal. If Frank's academic ability is really so poor that his future might have had a long history. Since he has managed to get this far with the grounds so far, he probably has strengths as well as weaknesses in his favour.

In general, we think it is more important to help Frank discover what he can do than to tell him what he can't do. If he finds he has skills — perhaps musical, perhaps athletic or technical — his basic goals will be less of a sore spot with him.

Geraldine shouldn't assume that Frank can't change his goals simply because he now seems set on college. It is very likely that he is now echoing her goals and desires for him, but if he finds a big new interest in life, his attitude might change overnight. The important thing is for him to be sure that he is a boy with worthwhile abilities. He should set some goal and should get plenty of encouragement in his attempts to achieve it.

Blessed Christmas Eve will be surrounding us in one week's time, and I imagine, if my eyes are to be believed, that you are watching for my suggestions for a Christmas dinner menu par excellence. If I am right may I ever so modestly claim that you will enjoy this menu? Some items, as you will see, are included because they may be prepared in advance, a comforting thought for all well-organized hostesses.

port wine jellies (Saturday, December 12, 1959) fresh green beans with shredded almonds potato puff (below)

Christmas salad (below)

HOT SPICED PUNCH:

Combine 4 1-2 cups apple juice or cider, 1 cup orange juice, 1-2 cup lemon juice, 1 2" stick cinnamon, 4 whole cloves and honey or sugar to taste (about 1-2 cup). Simmer for 10 minutes. Strain and serve hot.

MUSHROOM STUFFING:

To the standard bread stuffing (using 1 loaf crustless diced bread) add 1-2 pound washed and sliced mushrooms sauteed with 1-4 cup chopped onion, in 1-4 cup butter — omitting any other butter and onions from stuffing.

BROCCOLI WITH BLACK BUTTER:

Cook broccoli quickly, covered, in not more than 1" water until barely done. Drain at once. Just before serving pour over Black Butter: Cook 3-4 cup butter over low heat until very dark but not burned. Put in 1 tablespoon parsley and cook until crisp, (about 1 minute). Add 3 tablespoons vinegar, 1-4 teaspoon salt and dash of pepper and pour over hot broccoli.

POTATO PUFF:

To 4 cups mashed unseasoned potatoes add 1 tablespoon lemon juice and 4 tablespoons each butter and grated cheese and 2 eggs and beat hard until light and puffy and hot, over low heat. If desired this may be piled into casserole and baked until tinged with gold.

CHRISTMAS SALAD:

Combine 1 medium cucumber, thinly sliced with skin left on, 1 green pepper, sliced in thin rings or 1 cup coarsely chopped celery, 1-2 cup sliced radishes or 1-2 cup raw carrot slices, 1 small head lettuce, washed, crisped and torn into bite-size pieces, 1-4 cup French dressing, salt and pepper to taste in a large bowl. Toss together lightly and add 3 tomatoes, cut in eighths. Toss again and serve immediately.

Canadian Stylists Find Ready Market in U.K.

By JUDITH ATER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—An "ice-breaking" tour by a group of Montreal garment manufacturers has resulted in broad smiles all round, and bright hopes for the future.

Eight firms from the Montreal Dress and Sportswear Manufacturers' Guild, encouraged by recent British relaxation of restrictions on dollar goods, put on a show in London and came away brimming with confidence.

"The whole show has been a smashing success," said Ry Pantel (of Pantel Ltd.) whose clothes were described by the Canadian group as having been among the most popular.

BUYERS THRILLED

"All the buyers seem to have been thrilled by the merchandise we displayed, and we have already received substantial orders."

A Canada House spokesman described the show as "encouraging." He said the garment manufacturers are the first organized group to take a crack at the British market since the wraps were taken off dollar imports.

Things are stirring in other lines, the spokesman said. He cited the example of a Canadian moccasin salesman who has appointed a sales agent in Manchester, and is receiving reports of brisk business.

Canadian garment manufacturers came to Britain at short notice. They were handicapped by the fact that they were showing spring and summer lines in a country whose buyers have pretty well made up their minds by now what they are going to order for 1950.

The exhibition put the emphasis on cheaper dresses. One British buyer was so impressed, officials said, that he decided to fly to Montreal to see a wider range of goods.

COTTONS POPULAR

Cottons were the most popular choice in the material can be imported duty-free which there is a 27-per-cent tariff on man-made fabrics.

One of the Montreal group, P. Warman told a reporter that one or two small shops who bought his firm's dresses were planning to set aside a week for a special display of Canadian clothes.

"We have been very courteously received," he said. "And the majority of people who saw our clothes have placed an order."

Irving Lapkoff, whose firm deals primarily with sports clothes, said:

"From what we have seen, I would say that Canadian sportswear can compete favorably with garments produced anywhere in the world."

Maurice Zisman called the British market "interesting." He said that the general acceptance of Canadian merchandise was encouraging.

"Our new ideas in style and fabrics could make a real contribution to the British dress industry."

Pine Grove W.I. Holds Yuletide Meet

MARSH HILL — The Christmas meeting of Pine Grove W. I. was held at the home of Mrs. Grace Bartlidale with 13 members four visitors and seven children present.

The president, Mrs. Slater, opened the meeting with reading a "Christmas Thought" and the singing of a Christmas carol.

During the business it was decided to make a $5 donation to CARE and also to have a social evening on January 13. The committee in charge is Mrs. Harry Coulter, Mrs. Charles Ross and Mrs. Ivan Clare.

Conveners of standing committee reported. Current events were given by Mrs. Harry Coulter.

Mrs. Leslie Finkle presided over the Christmas program which consisted of the singing of Christmas carols and readings.

Mrs. Alex Tanner read, "An Old Fashioned Sleigh Ride". Mrs. Harry Coulter, "Christmas Time Long Long Ago". Mrs. Charles Ross, "A Safe Christmas" which told the proper care of a Christmas tree. Mrs. Harold Detlor "An Christmas Time", Mrs. David Little, "A Christmas Journey and Mrs. Fred Campbell, "Thoughts by the Way".

Mrs. Leslie Finkle gave a paper on "A Few Thoughts on Christmas".

"In a world, that at times, seems to have gone awry, where old customs fade out in the face of a new atomic age where nothing seems stable any more, it is good to have a standing appointment with Christmas that most wonderful of all celebrations.

"Changeless in date, in its tradition and in its inmost spirit. Christmas when we keep a date with love and worship, with fidelity and beauty and with Christmases past, rich with remembrance."

"Our purses may be slender but there are always gifts within our means. Take time to sit and think in one who is lonely and sad — time to read the lovely message of Christmas to one whose eyes have grown dim — time to make friends with the stranger within our gates. It doesn't take money to make a Christmas full it takes love. May the real spirit of Christmas fill our hearts".

Mrs. Finkle conducted a short quiz.

Refreshments were served.

After the call to order by Charles Gray, president, business of the club was taken care of.

During the devotional period Christmas carols were sung. Mr. Boyd Moorcroft read the Scripture, followed by prayer.

Mrs. Nellie Greenwood favored with a piano solo, "Star of the East," which was much enjoyed.

Recreation followed with games and quizzes.

The evening ended with hot mince and pumpkin pies, with whipped cream and coffee. The evening was in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Hills's group.

Winter Suit

By YERA WINSTON

Dark brown needlepoint, winter-weight woollen is used for a suit that can fare forth on any but a really cold day. The beautifully cut jacket, which closes with four large, self - covered buttons, has dropped shoulder seams. It is semi-fitted, as are so many of the newer suits. The flattering frame collar of chinchilla is finished with a self-fabric bow.

Canadian Legion Holds Annual Dinner

DESERONTO — An event eagerly anticipated among the members of the Deseronto Branch of the Canadian Legion is the annual Christmas dinner. This is the time the Legion members entertain their wives and the Ladies' Auxiliary. A sumptuous turkey dinner is served and at the close presents are distributed. Each one attending brings a present and these are distributed around the tables. Some are useful, some are decorative and some are plainly amusing. All in all, it makes an event that is enjoyable and one that promotes the spirit of good fellowship that should be a part of every Legion branch.

The dinner this year was under the chairmanship of Al. Fraser, who had a willing and ambitious committee to do the work. The hall was tastefully decorated in keeping with the spirit of the season and the entertainment was excellent.

To open the evening the master of ceremonies, William Mc Gregor, called to the platform the president of the branch, William Miller, and, on behalf of the Ladies' Auxiliary, Kathy Fraser presented him with a substantial cheque for the use of the branch. Mr. Miller gratefully thanked the Auxiliary not only for the cheque but also for all the assistance given them throughout the year.

Comrade Bert Gosling said the grace.

In order to give the ladies a chance to enjoy the evening waitresses had been obtained, and Mrs. Estelle Jackson donated her services to supervise and serve the dinner.

Special guests included the immediate past Zone Commander, William Bailey, and the guest speaker, Comrade Ed. Smith of Belleville. Mr. Bailey introduced the speaker, who spoke to the gathering on the "Pubs of England." He told how many had obtained their names and showed the variations of names that were used. He contrasted the drinking habits of the English in their pubs with the Ontario way and in conclusion said that all should work to improve the standards of the Ontario places and bring them more to the standards of the English.

Following the address entertainment was provided by the Brenda Dancing School of Belleville and consisted of 6 number by 6 speciality tap dancers and baton twirlers.

The feature event was a Flash Tap by Brenda Archer, the instructress. The pianist was Mrs. Evelyn Warham.

U.S. VISITORS CHARGED

TORONTO (CP) — Gordon Cavanaugh, 37, and his wife, Lynn, 23, United States visitors, pleaded guilty in court here Wednesday to a charge of causing a disturbance over the presence of Negroes in a restaurant. When Mr. Cavanaugh challenged the evidence, Magistrate J. L. Prentice ordered the pleas struck out and remanded the pair on $200 bail to Dec. 22 when the arresting officer will be present.

Mrs. Mac Anderson, Mrs. Doug Doriand, Mrs. Max Haggerty, Mrs. J. McCullum and Mrs. Gladys Herrington served refreshments.

MARMORA W. I.

Two Elder Statesmen of U.S., Dulles, Marshall Die in '59; Movies Lose Several Stars

By KEN SMITH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

John Foster Dulles, architect of U.S. state secretary's policy for seven years to shape the West's foreign policy to his own unbending principles, died during 1959 of the cancer he had battled for more than three years.

Mike Hawthorn, 29, who in 1958 brought the world auto racing championship to Britain and then retired, died in the wreckage of his car June 22 when it overturned on a highway.

Jean Behra, France's leading racing driver, died Aug. 1 when his racing car went out of control in the Grand Prix of Berlin race.

Jerry Unser, 36-year-old stock car champion of the USA, died on May 17 of burns suffered when his car overturned.

Other prominent sports personalities, was found dead in his mid-town Manhattan hotel room Dec. 11.

HULL HALSEY GONE

Death took these baseball figures: Grover Cleveland Alexander, 59, who pitched a 16-inning no-hit game against the Braves against Philadelphia in 1908; Nat Lajoie, 83-year-old baseball immortal; Connie Mack, 96, with Philadelphia and Cleveland, and Casey Stengel, 69, who managed 46 games for Chicago White Sox in 1918.

Willie Hoppe, 71, rated the greatest billiards player of all time, winner of 51 world billiards championships, died Feb. 1.

There were these other deaths during the year:

Vincent Lopez, 71-year-old "poet of the people" whose piano segment on the daily newspapers, Aug. 5; Federico Garcia Lorca, Spanish poet, artist of the bastiles of St. Peter, Nov. 1; Fleet Admiral William Frederick Halsey, 77, commander of the U.S. 3rd Fleet in the Pacific during World War II, died Aug. 16; Field Marshal Lord Ironside, 79, British's Imperial General Staff at the start of the Second World War, died Jan. 22; Lillian Gish, 55, who ruled the southern Mayan state from 1895 to 1935, May 27.

Pilot Gets DFC For Attaining World's Record

WASHINGTON (AP) — "I didn't know my speed. I was too busy watching my altitude."

The man who has flown a plane faster than anyone else in the world — 1,520.9 miles an hour — modestly described Air Force Maj. Joseph W. Rogers, 33, flew into Washington for a press conference and to get a Distinguished Flying Cross for his feat.

The reason Rogers was so anxious about his altitude was that to qualify for an international record he had to keep his F-104 just lighter on level flight for two passes through an 18-kilometre course. A kilometre is about 3/5 of a mile.

If the jet had drifted up and down more than 50 metres, about 150 feet, the record claim would have been tossed out.

It was Rogers' first try at a speed record, and was made Wednesday over the Edwards Calif., Tuesday morning.

He had 40,000 feet for turned on the powerful afterburner and the plane leaped to 41 times the speed of sound while Rogers guided it through the measured 18 miles at more than 1,000 miles.

Some Clergymen Approve Carol Playing in Stores

TORONTO (CP) — Not all clergymen are even with Rt. Rev. George Luxton, Anglican Bishop of Huron, in his attack on playing of Christmas religious Christmas carols.

In an article in the diocesan paper the bishop said it seems "downright ridiculous" to purchase to the tune of Adeste Fidelis.

Rev. Arthur Gowland, secretary of the Board of Evangelism of the Presbyterian Church, said Wednesday "truth cannot be changed. Christ has a place in the market or any other place."

Rev. Ernest Forbes, rector of Bloor Street United Church, Toronto, said he could not think it is "at all irreverent. Anyone has the right to pray openly if they wish and it does not offend."

A hearty support" of Bishop Luxton's views was expressed by Rev. Dr. Quarrey H. Hyndel, editor of the Presbyterian Record. The current issue of the Presbyterian Record, he said, suggests that today's trend is to put Christ in second place at Christmas time.

Dr. Percy Romanos, general secretary of the Ontario and Quebec Baptist convention, considers the singing of carols a contribution of something really good for commercial ends."

Speedy Disposal Of Coroner's Inquest Lacking

OTTAWA (CP)—Attorney-General Kelso Roberts of Ontario said Wednesday there is evidence of slackness in the system under which coroners' inquests are arranged in the province.

"The system should be as foolproof as possible, so as to prevent regrettable confusion," he told reporters at Uplands airport on completion of a flight from Toronto. He was officiating at the opening of a new terminal.

Mr. Roberts was commenting on a police report into the circumstances of the death of Mrs. George Bracken and this led to the inquest.

Referring to the five-months delay, Mr. Roberts said:

"I am not sure, I regard that those things conducive to a clear and speedy disposal of the cases were conspicuously lacking."

NATO Publication Says Reds Have 100 Principal Missiles Bases Operational Since '58

PARIS (AP)—The Soviet Union has set up what amounts to a huge arm in its military forces to manufacture, test and fire a growing family on missiles and rockets, a NATO publication said today.

It said the Russians have about 100 principal missiles bases. Soviet Intercontinental and Intermediate-Range missiles, capable of carrying atomic warheads, have been operational since July, 1958. A missile with a solid-fuel engine for firing from a submerged submarine already is in service.

The report was prepared by Sir Ian Jacob for Strategic Studies Group, covering military developments of both East and West. It was published by the NATO Parliamentarians of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The NATO letter estimated that the Russians now have about 2,500,000 men in the army, 700,000 in the navy and 350,000 security border and labor troops. The report said the increase of 1,600,000 men today from 600,000 in 1940, which gives it second rank in the world. The navy has about 2,270 ships and submarines. The air force may as 500 to 600 submarines.

The Russian Air Force has about 20,000 operational aircraft, flying from about 1,000 bases, the report said. All fighter and light bombers are jet propelled. An extensive radar warning and control system is in operation and ground-to-air missiles have been installed for air defense of great numbers.

The principal Soviet missile bases, about 100 in number, are situated in a belt or "missile corridor" which conforms' logicts are arranged in the Ottawa area.

Canada Takes Down-to-Earth Role on Disarmament Issues

by JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

In world councils, Canada has largely taken a responsible, down-to-earth role on the questions of disarmament.

External Affairs Minister Howard Green has played a leading part at the NATO ministerial meeting in Paris. He has said, in effect, that disarmament is the only thing that is up there in the clouds, but it does not stay there long, where it should be plowed, and cultivated.

He is certainly not alone in NATO when he advocates that smaller nations must be consulted on disarmament matters, for there is a feeling that the Paris meetings that a more balanced view of the nuclear menace could be found in the words of smaller powers than in the super-heated atmosphere of summit diplomacy.

Green obviously is determined that the next summit meeting — expected in April or thereabouts — will not be a flop. That is what the current ministerial conversations are about.

The Paris meeting is the first of its kind for the Canadian foreign affairs chief and he has said he was impressed with the unanimity of the alliance shown by delegates.

But Green is insisting that not only principles but hard facts—especially on disarmament—must be dealt with, and soon. His words are a direct challenge to the Western summit meeting that begins this week - end among President Eisenhower, Premier Macmillan and President de Gaulle.

Green has been saying at every opportunity that Canada is a member of the new 19-nation disarmament committee established at the NATO ministerial meeting in Paris. He has said, in effect, that disarmament is too important a thing that is up there in the clouds, but it does not stay there long, where it should be plowed, and cultivated.

State Funeral Will Be Held On Saturday

EDMONTON (CP) — A state funeral service will be held Saturday for Lieutenant-Governor John James Bowlen of Alberta.

The 83-year-old former rancher, farmer, businessman and politician died Wednesday of what hospital officials termed cardio-renal disease. He had been in hospital several weeks with kidney ailment.

No mention of a successor to the post has been made in Ottawa. Alberta Supreme Court Chief Justice C. J. Ford of Calgary, acting lieutenant-governor during Mr. Bowlen's illness, will continue in the post until an appointment is made.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Mr. Bowlen's death "removes from the Canadian scene one of its most picturesque, a devoted servant and a fine gentleman."

Alberta Premier Manning commented: "Few men have been for themselves such universal respect and affection as Mr. Bowlen. He was highly regarded throughout the province and beyond."

A funeral services will start at 10 a.m. at St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Cathedral.

Gang on Prowl On Roads Around Hull District

HULL, Que. (CP) — A gang of laughing highway users is on the prowl and causing fear in the minds of many motorists out of their vehicles and roaring off for a joy-ride in the nearest car.

Quebec provincial police have issued a warning to the gang not to pick up hitchhikers at night. The warning came after four persons had been forced out of a truck and a car, dragged the drivers out and thrown them into the ditch, and took off in the vehicles.

Police said the thugs struck on lonely stretches of the highway below Montebello and Templeton, about 10 miles east of Hull.

Police quoted the two victims as far as they can as saying they stopped when the youths, standing in the feet apart across the road, waved their arms in a way that indicated distress.

Both vehicles were found abandoned, police said.

Anyone Know Whereabouts of Aunt Fanny?

NEW YORK (CP)—Reuters news agency Wednesday delivered to its North American headquarters the following dispatch concerning a Canadian estate which has been unclaimed for a recorded in recent years:

"The estate of Israel, Jack, 15 (Reuters)—Relatives in Israel are pressing a claim in a recent legacy case of many millions of dollars left by a Canadian woman known only as "Aunt Fanny."

The family of already prosperous Moshe Dankner of Netanya, Israel, reported receiving a letter from a Montreal lawyer looking for beneficiaries to the estate of Fanny Jacobs of a rich Canadian businessman.

They knew that their aunt Fanny had died in Montreal recently and left an estate of many of the U.S. dollars, owner of a diamond-polishing factory, had imported.

A member of the family is leaving for Canada soon to press the claim.

Neither Dankner nor his cousin, Yosef Dankner, a prominent businessman and former Israeli Ambassador to Ottawa, disclose the name of the widow, of her deceased husband or of the Montreal lawyer. They would not even reveal in what part there aunt lived. It is reported, however, that her maiden name was Fanny Gilbert.

The only hint about their aunt's husband was that he had owned large interests in transportation, shipping, oil, lumber and forests.

He was said to have been a devout Roman Catholic.

Some reports said a difficulty about the claim may arise because a clause in the will declares that all beneficiaries should be converted to Catholicism.

The relatives are all of the Jewish faith. One of "Aunt Fanny's" nephews lives in the United States but four other nephews and five nieces live in Israel.

The fortune has been variously estimated at up to $50,000,000.

First Roman Catholic Bishop Of Que., Monsignor Laval, Proposed to be Beatified

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec will learn Tuesday that Father Ivanhoe Caron, secretary-general of the Roman Catholic bishop of Quebec, whose beatification is proposed by the archdiocese of today at a Vatican ceremony. The announcement of the proceedings was Charles-Augustin de Saffray's refusal to accept the appointment of some of the governor's demands to coveted administrative posts.

The incident was only one of many difficulties encountered by Msgr. Laval in founding the Roman Catholic Church in Canada and administering a diocese that stretched from Quebec to Hudson Bay.

Born at Montigny - sur - Avre, France, on March 30, 1623, Francois de Montmorency Laval was called to Canada from his native land from an early age. At 22, when he was ordained a priest, he had his parish in Quebec. Two years later he was appointed vicar apostolic of the territory, founded its first seminary and was consecrated titular bishop of Petrea.

The incident was only one of many difficulties encountered by Msgr. Laval in founding the Roman Catholic Church in Canada and administering a diocese that stretched from Quebec to Hudson Bay.

Born at Montigny - sur - Avre, France, on March 30, 1623, Francois de Montmorency Laval was called to Canada from his native land from an early age. At 22, when he was ordained a priest, he had his parish in Quebec. Two years later he was appointed vicar apostolic of the territory, founded its first seminary and was consecrated titular bishop of Petrea.

Conflict marked his footsteps from the time of his episcopal appointment until his death.

The new bishop arrived in Canada June 16, 1659. He immediately began to exercise his jurisdiction against Gabriel de Queylus, a Sulpician appointed vicar general by the archbishop of Rouen.

In 1663 Louis XIV, to whom the Council of the 100 Associates had surrendered its seigniorial rights, sovereign council to administer the colony. Organization of the council, however, followed disputes between the governor and the bishop.

Four months after the council was founded Governor de Mezy fired three councillors and the attorney - general. He sought to replace them by four of his friends. He tried to refuse to approve the appointments. Msgr. Laval refused and it was then that the governor made his unsuccessful attempt to have him shot.

In 1684, then 61 years old, Bishop Laval submitted his resignation to the king. A serious fire in Quebec's cathedral, a heart condition and frequent bouts of illness had undermined his health.

Before his death on May 6, 1707, l'Ancien (the Old One), as his flock affectionately called him, was to know more adversity. There was the siege of Quebec by the British in 1690; differences of opinion with his successor; two fires which destroyed the cathedral he had once had built; and his temporary banishment to St. Joachim.

Learn Reaction Of Que. Cabinet To Proposals

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec will learn today whether Premier Maurice Duplessis and his cabinet will accept or reject the Diefenbaker's proposal for an alternative system of grants to the provinces.

Contents of the letter Mr. Saxon will transmit to Mr. Diefenbaker likely will be read in the Legislative Assembly Thursday by Premier Duplessis.

There are three possible courses for the province—immediate flat rejection or setting out a counter - proposal that would include objections of striking out some of the elements in the proposal.

Most observers say the government will not flatly reject the proposal to let provinces tax an additional one per cent, 10 instead of nine per cent, of corporation profits to raise money as they see fit instead of directly to the universities.

Then it likely will make such reservations on those portions of Mr. Diefenbaker's proposal which have stirred up unfavorable comment — the requirement for the provinces to have the federal formula of allocating grants and the formal engagement provincial governments will spend the money raised by the additional taxes for the purposes specified.

Autonomists say the Canadian constitution brooks no interference by the federal government in matters of education.

Northern Trappers, Hunters Heading Into Settlements To Take Part in Celebrations

COPPERMINE, N.W.T. (CP)—Christmas in Northern Canada is a bright spot in the long, dark winter nights.

Trappers and hunters are heading into settlements this week to join in the festivities which will end after New Year's Day.

In far northern points such as Coppermine, Cape Dorset and Edmonton gifts were ordered from the south by ship during the summer by the barges and boats that ply the Mackenzie and Arctic coast.

More southern communities—Yellowknife, Inuvik, Fort Smith—have stores stocked with Christmas goods. Eskimos, Indians and Eskimos drift in to trade furs for gifts.

The December darkness is being brightened by colored lights and Christmas trees. The sound of carols and hymns eases the bite of the bitter wind.

Christmas trees were cut this year under government licence from the Liard Valley in the Northwest Territories. Some were sent to Coppermine and Cambridge Bay — Coppermine, Yellowknife, Spence Bay—where trees don't grow.

In Yellowknife, the big city of the N.W.T., electricity restrictions were lifted this week to allow outdoor decorations to be lighted.

In Fort Smith, administrative centre of the territories, northern affairs employees sing carols on the corners, raising money for the needy. Funds for the office party also have gone to this cause.

The RCAP is flying turkey and trimmings to the far northern detachments of Isachsen, Mould Bay, Alert, Thule.

In the schools, Santa Claus is travelling at his annual series, the parents of Cree, Chipewyan, Dogrib and Slavey Indian children often get as much kick out of old St. Nick as do the whites.

The church missions will hold services along the same pattern as those outside. Most missions plan a party and dinner for Christmas Day.

Dogsled races are becoming a Christmas tradition on Christmas Day in the Arctic coast communities.

The ancient Eskimo and Indian drum dances will be performed both Christmas and New Year's. Hundreds join the dance at Aklavik.

Christmas in white men are well off in the North, some Indians and Eskimos also are.

"Fur prices are good locally but trapping results have been poor," says Don Millichrod of Spence Bay, N.W.T. "Few Eskimos can spurge but some is likely to be hungry this Christmas."

Heavy spending is reflected in communities with liquor stores. Part of the heavy demand is the result of treaty Indians being allowed to buy liquor this year for the first time.

With John L. Lewis Gone Mine Union May Join CLC

OTTAWA (CP) — John L. Lewis' impending resignation as boss of the United Mine Workers of America raises the possibility of the independent UMW joining the Canadian Labor Congress.

Four years ago Lewis abruptly severed his union out of the Canadian Congress of Labor, one of the two forerunners of the unifying congress. Many Canadian Mineworkers officials resented this.

Today, Lewis has announced that he is quitting early in the new year as he approaches 80 years, and his resignation paves the question of a possible bookup between the Canadian operations of his union and the 1,100,000-member congress.

Much would depend on the attitude of Thomas Kennedy, who will automatically succeed Lewis. The 72-year-old Kennedy is UMW vice-president.

Congress officers are believed to be receptive to bringing in the Mineworkers, though some jurisdictional problems would be involved. The UMW, it was expected, would have to make the first move.

Officers of the UMW in the Congress and the CLC are engaged strictly in coal mining—the Canadian section of the UMW is in with the congress. It is not known here how the Canadian section of the UMW's action with all District 50 would look on this.

While it never has been accepted very well, the suddenly grew hostile to the CCL in 1955 information developing since then has been to the effect that Washington headquarters of the UMW under Lewis came to the conclusion that District 50 was not getting enough "protection" from that congress.

The UMW's international board at Washington in early 1955 quickly stopped paying per capita dues to the Canadian congress. Eventually, the congress regretfully had to drop the union.

Radioactive Waste Disposal Not Easy Problem to Solve

By Daniel Behrman in UNESCO Features

A pressing need for more research into the depths of the earth and the depths of the sea was brought out by the first international scientific conference on the disposal of radioactive wastes which recently concluded a six-day meeting at Monaco.

More than three hundred scientists from thirty-two countries participated in this meeting convened jointly by the International Atomic Energy Agency and Unesco. It was held in an appropriate setting, the huge Oceanographic Museum at Monaco built to house the fruit of thirty years of ocean exploring before a World War I by a pioneer oceanographer, Prince Albert I of Monaco.

The theme of their discussions can be stated very simply; how to get rid of radioactive waste. Unlike normal industrial waste, it cannot be merely thrown away or burned. Some way must be found either of storing the byproducts of atomic research and industry safely until their radioactivity disappears (in some cases this means hundreds of years), or else treating them to the point where they can be discharged without any danger into rivers, oceans or the atmosphere.

MISCONCEPTIONS

The conference probably did a good deal to clear up two general misconceptions about the peaceful uses of atomic energy. In the first place, it was brought out that waste products, at present, represent far less manmade radio-activity than the fall-out from nuclear explosions. If radioactivity being put into the Irish Sea at Windscale amounts to 1/2000th of the radioactivity in the Atlantic Ocean resulting from fall-out of strontium 90. While no scientist at the conference minimized the need for precautions and research — especially in the future when the nuclear industrial revolution will be a fact — the problem was faced in its proper proportions.

Secondly, the postulate that atomic energy is a power source which can be used universally, summed up in considerably restricted by the limitations raised at Monaco. No one can build a nuclear power plant just anywhere. Careful studies of geological formations are needed if the waste is to be buried underground. Equally careful research into marine life, currents, the geology of the bed of the sea and even the sailing habits of human beings has to be carried out before waste can be disposed of into the sea.

Buried into the ground appears to be the safest way of getting rid of unwanted fission products but, ironically enough, it is a method available on a large scale only to big countries usually rich in natural resources. Huge "waste farms", for example, are not practical on densely-populated islands where atomic energy is often badly needed.

The methods used to dispose of radioactive wastes stagger the imagination in their variety and ingenuity. Strictly speaking, scientists and engineers divide the wastes into three categories based upon their radioactivity: low-level, intermediate-level and high-level.

It is only the low-level wastes of course, which are put directly into the sea or rivers after treatment. Here, the conference split into two camps: one maintaining that no radioactive waste should be discharged into the sea under any conditions and the other holding that it can be done under proper conditions.

When land is available, radioactive wastes are sometimes put into huge storage tanks (65,000,000 gallons of such wastes are now being stored in the United States alone); or into the ground once a study has been made of rock formations to ensure that there is no risk of seepage into the water table. In general, a way has to be found for disposing of radioactive waste as close as possible to the site of an atomic energy establishment. The cost of transporting it is enormous.

The more radioactive intermediate and high-level waste problem has led to various solutions, some original and others almost fantastic, which were described at the conference in Monaco. Such wastes products are buried in the ground in special concrete coffins worthy of the Pharaohs. Or else, as in the case in France, they are placed in drums and housed in huge concrete hexagons (containing 18,000 drums) which might well be called the ships of the atomic age.

One way of getting rid of atomic waste is to vitrify it, before burial — to put it into glass, which offers more protection against radioactivity than concrete. This method is being developed notably in Canada and the Soviet Union.

The meeting in Monaco took on, by liveliest aspect when the problem of waste disposal into the sea was discussed. Oceanographers were at pains to point out that we still know very little, about the great ocean depths, certainly not enough to use the deep trenches as atomic rubbish heaps indiscriminately.

Here, scientific disagreement was rather marked. Some participants maintained that water from the depths takes from 500 to 1,500 years to move to the surface — while others stated that the period was only 30 years adding that marine organisms such as fish and plankton constitute short radioactivity through the various layers of the sea.

Fisheries experts had their say, too. They stressed the capacity of certain forms of marine life — fish and molluscs, in particular — for accumulating radioactive elements in the water. In other words, a fish may concentrate many times more radioactivity in its bones than is found in the surrounding water.

RESEARCH URGED

The conclusions of this discussion — and perhaps of the entire conference — were summed up clearly — by Mr. Roger Revelle, the director of the Scripps Institute for Oceanography in California. He declared:

"In my opinion, this discussion shows that ten times as much money and facilities are needed for research.

"The Russians say that no radioactive waste should be put into the ocean. The British say they know how to put it in safely.

"However, we are bound to get more and more radioactive waste into the ocean whether we like it or not, if only from the operation of nuclear-powered ships. The more we find out about the circulation of radioactive elements in the ocean, the more economical we will be able to dispose of them".

Previously, more conference heard a plea from Soviet scientist, Mr. V. I. Spitsyn, for closer relations between oceanographers on the one hand and physicists and chemists on the other.

The meeting at Monaco probably took a long step forward in bringing about such closer relations, both among various branches of science and among scientists for various nations and regions.

It also proved quite forcefully that the disposal of radioactive wastes, like so many other problems facing the world, cannot be solved unilaterally by any single nation. It is as deep and as broad as the ocean itself.

KEYRAL NEW METHOD

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Two University of Minnesota scientists said Tuesday they have developed a simple and inexpensive method of removing radioactive strontium-90 from milk. Dr. W. D. Armstrong, head of the department of physiological chemistry, and Dr. Leon Singer, an associate professor in the department, said they perfected a method of using powdered animal bone as a chemical filter to remove the radioactive element.

Couple Gets Last of 14 Rabies Shots

ST. MARYS, Ont. (CP) — Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Gregory were given the last of 14 anti-rabies injections yesterday and doctors expect to know by Christmas whether they have escaped the disease.

The couple handled two rabid pigs in the second week of November but the disease was not diagnosed until three weeks later. The daily injections were begun 14 days ago as soon as it was learned the animals had rabies.

The couple farm in nearby Blanshard Township in the Stratford area.

MARRIAGE BOOM

TORONTO (CP) — The civic marriage bureau in city hall is doing a booming business this Christmas season. With the office handling its maximum seven ceremonies each day all but three openings have been booked through until Christmas Day, including an extra seven Thursday morning. Couples are racing to get in under the New Year wire so the brides may be claimed as 1959 tax exemptions.

CAN MAKE A-WEAPONS

NEW DELHI (AP)—India has advanced technically far enough to produce atomic weapons without external aid, it was reported Tuesday night. A participant at a meeting of the parliamentary consultative committee on atomic research said this information was given by official spokesmen.

Christmas cards tend to be "real square" this year. Sick humor and the slim jim style are being replaced by the square card with the conventional message.

While cards are wider, Santa is slimmer. St. Nick — with a waistline — romps across cards telling well 'n every providence.

Most popular in card stores across the country are packs of 25 cards of one design. D. R. Wallace, district manager for the Prairies of a large card manufacturing company, estimates that 50 per cent of total sales will be solid packs.

"The sender used to look at a card and say, 'It suits Aunt Sue or Uncle Ben.' Now the receiver gets a card and says, 'Isn't this just like good old Joe?'" Mr. Wallace says.

This reflects the change from 10 years ago when the sender matched cards to the personality of the receiver. Now cards reflect the sender's personality.

Winter scenes, popular everywhere, are especially popular along the west coast. At Vancouver, citizens can buy boxes of assorted Vancouver scenes. The snow scenes are used extensively for both personal and business cards at Edmonton. Personalized cards are in vogue on the Prairies this year.

Contemporary humor, popular in the East last year, has gained considerable popularity in the West this year. Called studio, contemporary, sick or beat, the cards sell for 25 cents each. Sample greeting:

"Hope a very special friend has a very special Christmas . . . and I hope yours is nice too."

POPULAR IN QUEBEC

Religious cards have wide appeal in the province of Quebec. One firm, which produces cards in French, turns out 20 per cent of its work with religious motifs. Reproductions of contemporary Canadian art and the old European masters are growing in demand. Half of the 50 designs by a six-year-old Quebec farm were done by Canadians. One of the Canadian reproductions is a felt-brush drawing of Colin Haworth, 43-year-old Montreal public relations executive who draws in his spare time.

Pastel shades, particularly turquoise and pink, have made great inroads into the traditional red and green shades in Ontario and Quebec. Gold and silver sparkle on many Ontario-sold cards.

In the Maritimes, the demand for religious cards appears to be confined to elderly people. In the West they make up about 15 per cent of the card market.

At Vancouver, one retail outlet reported the sale of religious cards down 40 per cent but other outlets reported the cards were major sellers this year.

Prices, generally, run from $1 to $4 for a solid pack of 25 cards and assorted 50-to-a-box cards sell at 98 cents. They feature typical Christmas symbols—holly, candles, wreaths and bells.

Third Fall Proves Fatal

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When he was 16 years old, Allen Gable fell from a third-floor apartment window and lived.

In 1956, while hiking, he fell 100 feet down a mountainside and lived.

Monday night, he fell from the fourth floor of a Hollywood hotel.

This time he didn't make it.

Gabble, 23, was trying to escape a fire in his room. He climbed out the hotel window and clung to the sill. A fire department ladder truck was summoned. Just before it arrived, Gabble lost his hold and fell.

Diplomatic Service Work Just Starts After Busy Day At Office Says Member

By DAVID ROWNTREE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (CP) — Thomas Stone's jump from the Canadian diplomatic service into Wall Street "was not such a shock as I thought it would be."

"One great difference is that when I leave my office here — indicating the room set aside for the special assistant to the president of International Nickel Company at 67 Wall Street—"My day is generally ended."

"But in the diplomatic service, after getting home from the office, I had to jump into a black tie and the day's work was just beginning."

Stone, 58, resigned from the foreign service last April 30 for the second time in a distinguished career that took him to Washington, Paris, London, Oslo, Stockholm and The Hague.

DECLINED POST

He had been picked as ambassador to Mexico in September of last year but was forced to decline the post because of the effect the altitude of Mexico City might have had on his health. Mr. Stone suffered a heart attack in September, 1958, and had to retire from active work for about seven months.

"But I must confess I feel anything but ill now," Stone told an interviewer. For the first time in years he has been able to devote more of his time at a cottage in Maine to his favorite hobbies—woodworking and fishing.

Stone says he found the diplomatic circuit more of an all-consuming job than the business world.

"People have the impression that a diplomat doesn't do anything. But it's no slouch. I've been busier any day in The Hague than I have been here—except for one or two days."

WIFE WORKED HARD

Thumbing back through his appointments diary for the first few months of 1958 during his term as ambassador to The Netherlands, Stone recited a list of dinners, lunches, receptions and ceremonies that kept him and his wife busy after full days of work in their offices.

"Looking over this I can well believe I was due to have bad health some time. The only surprise was that my wife was not ill. As is well known, ambassadors' wives generally carry 75 per cent of the load—and mine was no exception. One of the great treats I had in the last few months is that I've been able to sit down to meals with only my wife."

A native of Chatham, Ont., he studied at the University of Toronto and in Paris. He entered the diplomatic service in 1927 and was posted to Washington. In 1932 he was in Paris.

He first retired in June, 1936, and moved to his farm at Mount Pleasant, N.C., to raise beef cattle as his main occupation.

"Mr. Hitler put an end to all that," in September, 1939, in response to a request from Ottawa, Stone returned to the diplomatic field. After the war he was appointed minister at the embassy in Washington, later served as minister to Sweden and Finland. His last post, ambassador to The Netherlands, began in 1952.

He joined International Nickel in May this year.

In response to questions about business and Canada's international trade, Stone smilingly declined to get into a discussion "because I'm no financier."

But he said he thought that the debate over United States investment in Canada has been overplayed.

"Mind you; I don't think it's done any harm though. It should result in Canadian subsidiaries of American companies having more leeway in running their own affairs."

CHARGE FRAUD

TORONTO (CP) — Abraham James Biddle of Toronto, former national secretary of the now defunct Canadian Merchant Navy Veterans' Association, is to appear in magistrate's court here Dec. 21 on charges of fraud and attempted fraud. Police said that since the association's charter was cancelled in 1954 pamphlets have been circulated and funds solicited in the name of the association throughout Ontario.

DIPLOMAT TURNED BUSINESSMAN — Thomas Stone, Canadian ambassador to the Netherlands from 1952 to 1958, poses in the Wall Street offices of International Nickel Company of Canada. He is special assistant to the president. Now 58, the Chatham, Ont., native resigned from the foreign service in 1958 after a distinguished diplomatic career. Woodworking is one of his principal hobbies. He made the frame for the painting in the background from wood from an Ontario barn. —(CP Photo)

New Tanker Has Propeller On Her Bow

VANCOUVER (CP) — A new tanker, the B.C. Standard, operating out of this port, has an egg-beater type of propeller on her bow.

She is the second vessel in general shipping in British Columbia coastal waters using it. The Princess of Vancouver was the first.

Capt. Robert Cormack, master of the Standard, said the bow propeller gives greater manoeuvrability, allowing the 170-foot vessel to move easily in and out of narrow passages to make deliveries to logging camps and fishing villages.

Many of the stops are made in waters with minimum dock-age facilities and confined quarters.

The propeller is mounted in a tunnell running perpendicular to the ship's keel.

Under way the vessel is driven by a conventional propeller at the stern. It has a 6,000-barrel 210,000 gallon capacity.

LOCKED UP BY THIEVES

HAMILTON (CP)—A 79-year-old woman shopkeeper battered down a door Tuesday night to free two customers, one of whom she had been locked by three thieves who robbed her and stole $28. Mrs. Grace Micelli told police she battered the door for nearly an hour before it gave in.

Barber Finally Joins Union

HAMILTON (CP) — Constantino Desmotis has joined Hamilton local of the Journeymen Barbers Union of America (CLC) and stopped cutting hair at 50 cents a head.

He's charging the standard $1.25 now, but "if my people can't afford it, I will quit the union," he said Wednesday.

He has decided on a three-month trial.

Mr. Desmotis increased his price after the union declared war on him by having union barber David Robbins, across the street from Mr. Desmotis, cut hair free one day a week and for 50 cents a head on other days. The union paid Mr. Robbins and his two helpers $10 a day on free-haircut days.

"I charged 50 cents so the poorer people could afford a haircut," said Mr. Desmotis. "Now they don't come. I don't want any more trouble."

WORK COPPER FIND — A Vancouver Island copper deposit discovered more than 60 years ago but until now considered inaccessible for economic mining, is being drilled for the first time.

A helicopter has enabled work to begin on the project on the rugged slopes of Big Interior Mountain, miles from the nearest roads.

Toronto engineer Andrew Robertson and a group of associates are drilling the deposit first staked in 1899.

A helicopter was brought in to fly tons of equipment and supplies into the region. It also will fly the workers to and from the site.

The peak of the 6,107-foot mountain, about 120 miles north of Victoria, is permanently capped with snow. The mineralized zone stretches from the 3,500-foot level to the top of the bluffs at the 4,500 foot elevation.

Drilling operations will continue until the end of the year; when avalanche conditions make further work hazardous until spring. — (CP Newsmap).

Maritimes and West's Plains Provide Locale for Books

By The Canadian Press

A' group of related stories, spread over a century and a half of life in Nova Scotia, make up what author Charles Bruce calls a chronicle — The Township of Time Macmillan.

The setting is the same as that of Mr. Bruce's novel, The Channel Shore, now in its second printing. The people are some of the settlers who left the United States after the Revolution for new wilderness homes under the Crown, and the generations they produced.

The jacket on The Township of Time says rightly: "Charles Bruce's purpose, as the storyteller's must always be, is simply the telling of tales and he achieves his purpose with great skill and sensitivity".

The name of Will R. Bird appears on the cover of two recent book releases.

On one, These Are The Maritimes Ryerson, he is the author. On the other, Atlantic Anthology McClelland and Stewart, he is editor-in-chief.

Together they capture much of the Maritimes way of life. Atlantic Anthology contains the collected writings—fiction, non-fiction and poetry—of scores of writers ranging from Samuel de Champlain to Thomas H. Raddall.

The book is heavy on historical background, interesting to readers of Atlantic provice ancestry.

These Are The Maritimes is a travel book of sorts, telling of Mr. Bird's own experience as he travelled through the three Maritime provinces. Woven throughout the book are many of the legends that have become part of heritage of these provinces.

When Ike Canton died in 1913 his adopted son Mede set a slab of mountain stone over his grave, and on it these words: "He purchased my life, did no man evil, lived bravely, and died with hope."

Ike Canton is the central figure in Alberta — born Robert Christie, novel of the cattle country, The Trembling Land Doubleday. From the day on which he saves a Negro's life by breaking up a hanging-party until the morning 20 years later when his son saves him from the same fate, the book is an elaboration in action of the terms of the epilogue.

It is also a picture of a cattleman's life in Montana a half-century and more ago, and the story of one man's battle with man, weather, luck and sometimes his own impulses, to set up a permanent home.

Christie, born in Cardston, Alta., spent much of his youth on his father's ranch in Montana, and obviously writes from experience of the country and deep feeling for it. He is the author of a previous novel, Inherit the Night. He now lives in Sharon, Conn.

There is a little something for everyone in Psyche Longman Green; Phyllis Brett Young's romantic story of the infant daughter of a wealthy family who is kidnapped and grows up in the shack of a poor miner.

Adventures with an artist, a prostitute, an automobile accident and finally romance with a newspaper man maintain a lively pace as the intelligent but rough-hewn beauty moves instinctively on the rocky path back to her evasive parents.

This is a first novel by the Toronto-born author who now lives in Ottawa.

Just Add Water and Stir McClelland and Stewart by Pierre Berton is a collection of the cream of the author's Toronto Star columns. He is at his best when dealing with people and many of the columns collected here are in the nature of skilled portraits.

But it is in the slim, pink-paged centre section of the volume that Berton's compassion for people gives way to his unbridled passion for cooking. Here are Berton recipes — masterpieces, every one.

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Tigers disclosed Wednesday night they turned down a recent offer for Al Kaline that would have brought them three regulars reported to be worth $500,000 from Pittsburgh Pirates.

"But that was as far as the Pirates got," said Detroit general manager Rick Ferrell. "We gave it no consideration."

Games for the holidays

Grapefruit Race. The contestants are paired off, and each one is given a grapefruit. A race course is marked out, and the contestants race a pair at a time. The method of racing is to hold the grapefruit between the knees. If the grapefruit drops, then the person who drops it has to go back to the starting line. The winners of each pair are then paired off again, and so on, until there are two finalists; and hence the winner.

Lipstick Race. Men and women are paired off, and the couples are seated facing each other. Each couple is given a lipstick, a blindfold, and a tissue. With the tissue, the woman first removes her lipstick from her mouth. The man is then blindfolded, and sitting opposite the woman, he attempts to put lipstick on her lips. She may instruct him, but must not touch him. The first pair to be successful are the winners.

Charades. An amusing variation on the usual game of charades. Guests are divided into two teams. Each team is given a pad of paper and a pencil. The host sits outside the room with a list of popular song titles. The first member of each team gets a song title from him, goes back into the room, and makes a drawing to illustrate the title of the song. As soon as his team guesses it, another team member goes out, and so on. The first team to complete the list of titles correctly, wins.

Who am I? As the guests arrive, a piece of paper bearing the name of a well-known person is pinned to each of their backs, without their reading it. They must then guess their "name" by asking questions of the other guests, who must answer the questions "Yes" or "No". The name is removed from the back of the dress or suit to the front, as soon as the wearer has guessed it. The names are chosen in "pairs" which are usually associated, like "Romeo and Juliet", "Tom and Jerry", "Laurel and Hardy". This is an ideal way to "pair off" people for other games.

Ty Cobb, Famous Ball Star, Getting Better in Hospital

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP) — "I'm on the threshold of old age," said Ty Cobb, "and believe me, it's quite an adventure."

The voice on the telephone came through in a hoarse, throaty whisper.

"I'm all right," he said. "I'm feeling 100 per cent. I've had more x-rays and tests in the last few days than I've ever had in my life. The doctors say I should be out of here soon."

By "here" Cobb meant Emory University Hospital in Atlanta where he has been confined with a back ailment since Sept. 29.

Cobb hopes to be permitted to leave by next weekend. That means he will spend his birthday at the hospital. The famous Georgia Peach, who played the first of his 3,033 major league games tomorrow to attend a testimonial dinner for me at Ty Cobb Memorial Hospital."

It's 24 years now since he hung up his spikes, but Cobb's interest in baseball hasn't waned though he sees only a few games each year.

"I see where the boys are stealing bases again," he remarked. "That's wonderful. I don't get to see many games any more, but I make it a point to see the Big Six Golden Relay at Aparicio whenever I can. And of course the Giants' Willie Mays.

"The managers are finally beginning to realize the value of the stolen base. The stolen base is a mental hazard to the pitcher. It's more upsetting to him than even a home run."

ENVIABLE RECORD

The man who owns a lifetime mark of .367 and 12 times led the American League in batting, once stole 96 bases during a season.

"I never stole a base with the idea of setting a record," said the man whose 892 total is unchallenged. "I stole only to get in scoring position.

"You know, people wondered why I tried to steal when we were eight or 10 runs ahead. I'll tell you why. I did it for psychological reason... I wanted the pitcher to know I'd run any time."

"I think they're overlooking old timers deserving of making the Hall of Fame," said the first man to be elected to the shrine, back in 1937. "Fellows like Roger Bresy, Sam Rice, Joey Sewell, Eddie Roush, Urban Faber and Burleigh Grimes belong in it. The writers had better hurry and do something about it."

Fans Take Legal Action For Tickets

BALTIMORE (AP)—A group of Baltimore Colts fans have gone to court to try to obtain seats for the National Football League championship game here Dec. 27 between the Colts and New York Giants.

The West Baltimore Sportsman's Club Inc. launched a suit Wednesday against John Shipley, a taverkeeper, and Baltimor Football Inc.

The club claims Shipley has been buying season tickets for club members during the last six years, but that he refused to sell them the title - game tickets available to season subscribers.

Thirteen 88 tickets are involved. The suit claims Shipley said he had been offered $80 apiece for the tickets by an unnamed New York agency.

The defendants have been given five days to answer the complaint.

Argonauts Sign Two Players

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four Wednesday signed tackle Nick Mumey and halfback Hal Waggoner for the 1960 football season.

Waggoner is expecting his citizenship papers in April. He was a former all-star with Hamilton Tiger-Cats, who released him during the 1957 season.

Mumey, a 250 - pound former Purdue player, was here briefly last season after being cut by Philadelphia Eagles of the National League.

Surprised To Learn About Shot Accuracy

TORONTO (CP) — Johnny Wilson, Toronto Maple Leafs' stiffest left winger and penalty killer, was astounded to learn he owns the most accurate shot in the National Hockey League.

"That's a shocker," said Wilson when informed by a reporter that NHL statistics give him an accuracy rating of 50 per cent. Wilson has scored only 30 tries to sink his first nine goals.

Next to Wilson in Toronto's Bronco Horvath, who was hitting at a 4.48 rate, roughly one goal for every five shots.

The rates for some of the league's top stars: Bert Olmstead 2.15 shots: Richard, 10.50; Jean Beliveau, 6.66; Andy Bathgate, New York Rangers, 10.89, Wilson, Bathgate and Richard are much of his success this season.

"Everything I've tried has turned out pretty well.

"Of course, I always work on my shot. I've been added. "Doesn't every player? In the summer I go down in the basement and practice.

"Another thing: I think you have to aim for one of the small spots. If you hang back, the defence gets in position and you can't get a shot through legs and sticks."

Marlies Plan To Wear Soup-and-Fish

GUELPH (CP) — Toronto Marlboros, first-place club in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, will get the red carpet treatment when they play Guelph Biltmores here Friday night.

Marlboros plan to wear white ties and tails to the game and are expected to parade around the arena ice before changing into their uniforms.

The affair follows an OHA meeting Monday night at Toronto when Eddie Bush, coach of the Biltmores, criticized the dress and appearance of junior players.

"The way some of these juniors come off the ice after games in some of the out-of-town rinks is a disgrace to the world's fastest game," said Bush.

"Some of the boys that come to Guelph are dressed in jeans and jackets and wearing a day's growth of beard."

The coach himself will greet the "Dukes of Marlborough" for Friday's contest with a city-owned red carpet leading to the entrance of the arena.

Larks' Manager On American Scouting Trip

MONTREAL (CP) — Percy Moss, recently hired by Montreal Alouettes as coach and general manager of the Big Four football club, is on a month-long scouting trip to the United States, it announced 12 U.S. players on the negotiation list:

Jim Gleason (Alabama State); Walter Storey (Southern Connecticut State); Bobby Lee Sims (Florida State); Lou Cordileone (Clemson); Monty Stickles (Notre Dame); John Saunders (South Carolina); Bob James (Purdue); Andy Stynchula (Penn State).

FOUR HOT PROSPECTS

REGINA (CP) — Manager Ken Preseden of the WIFU Saskatchewan Roughriders says the club has a good chance of signing about four more highly-rated import prospects. Riders already have signed Bill Burrell, an all-American guard and linebacker from Illinois, and Leonard Wilson, a six-foot one, 190-pound two-way halfback from Purdue.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

OPEN LETTER TO ERNIE GOMAN, MANAGER KITCHENER DUTCHMEN

Dear Ernie:

I notice where you are selecting players for Canada's Olympics hockey team.

I also note that the boys of the Ontario Senior "A" League have not "done bad" by you in offering puck talent.

Paley Wren Blair has offered Bobbie Attersley, Fred Etcher and George Samalenko and thrown in defenceman Harry Sinden to boot.

You will go a long way to find a better trio than the first-named three.

Belleville McFarlands has offered their ace bui-warker Stan Benoit, whose puck-stopping recited as brend-ed knee is almost as good as any goalie in the league.

Sinden will supply a lot of headwork "agin those fur-riners". Moe will furnish the most of the brawn.

Both have seen action against European teams. What they already know about their style and play will be invaluable.

BUT—we also note that you are not too much in-terested in Samalenko and Etcher—but Attersley.

Don't break 'em up, Ernie!

The Russians, Czechs and Swedish teams your Dutch-men played in Cortina, Italy, back in 1956 are just reason-able facsimiles of what they will face at Squaw Valley come league's third-highest point-getter.

A snappy stick-handler and effortless skater, Keon has pick-ed up 18 goals and 14 assists in 19 games this season.

STARRY TEAM

Other members of the first team are Jack Martin of Marl-boro, left wing; Jim Pappin of Marlboros, wing; Pat Hind of Stapleton of St. Catharines Tee-Pees, defence; Terry Gray of St. Michael's, defence, and Wayne Rutledge of Barrie Fly-ers, goal.

Pappin was a surprise choice over Gilbert for the right wing post since Gilbert's 46 points are the best in the league. His 17 goals make him third highest scorer.

Martin, left-wing choice, has 2 points. He has played centre most of the year but Keon ousted him for the all-star club's centre spot.

Stapleton, a stock defenceman, is the only member of last year's all-star club to be picked this year.

O'Malley will be a doubtful starter. He recently suffered a concussion when he slid head-first into the boards.

To date this season Rutledge has allowed 63 goals in 20 games for an average of 3.15. He has one shut-out.

Hawks' Glenn Hall Gets First Shutout Of Season

Fist-Fights, Brawls Feature Chi 4-0 Blank of Bruins; 'Ole Scarface' Starts the Fun

By The Canadian Press

Goalkeeper Glenn Hall's record games have been free and fre-tween since he joined the Chicago Black Hawks at the start of the 1957-58 National Hockey League season. But when he hits one he takes full advantage of it.

Wednesday night his defence corps — normally among the league's most porous — held the high-scoring Boston Bruins to a total of 24 shots on the 28-year-old veteran and he got his first shutout of the season, 4-0 over Bruins.

While he was turning in this flawless job his teammates al-ternated scoring with fighting and the game developed into one of the season's rougher af-fairs.

Hall, whose pushover mild demeanor belie his hectic life in the Chicago nets, has a re-markably consistent record in four NHL seasons.

WAS BEST ROOKIE

In 1955-56, with Detroit Red Wings, he was named the league's best rookie and made the second all-star team.

The next two seasons with De-troit and then Chicago he was the first-team netminder. Last season was the first in which he missed any sort of action.

Wednesday night he relaxed in the first and second periods, mak-ing only five and seven saves re-spectively and then put in a busy third period and finished off the stops. Hanks had a total of 36 shots on Boston netminder Don Simmons.

Left winger Ted Lindsay scored at 10:07 of the first and Eric Nesterenko followed it at 18:07 with an unassisted goal, while Hawks were a man short. In the second, rearguard Pierre Pilote got his first of the season at 8:50 and rookie Bill Hay banged in the final at 12:15.

SECOND-PERIOD BRAWL

Referee Matt Pavelich handed out 15 penalties—six after a sec-ond-period brawl involving nearly every player on the ice.

Old-time Lindsay, as willing to mix it as ever, started things off by exchanging blows with Boston defenceman Bob Armstrong.

The pair got five minutes each for fighting and Stan Mikita of Hawks and Dick Meissn-er got Leo Boivin of Boston were given minors.

Chicago moved from last place to fifth—one point ahead of New York Rangers. Boston still is fourth.

Tonight the Hawks take on sec-ond-place Detroit in Detroit and the fifth-place Montreal Canad-iens are host to third - place Toronto Maple Leafs.

Canadiens, winless in six starts, will have defencemen Tom Johns-on and forward Marcel Bonin back off the injury list and Leafs —missing left wingers Bert Olm-stead and Dick Duff—have called on left winger Pat Hannigan of their Rochester Americans farm team.

Gerry James, who has been working out with Leafs since he finished the football season with Winnipeg Blue Bombers, may see action.

Marlies Choice To Meet All-Star Team

TORONTO (CP)—The hustl-ing Toronto Marlboros are the current choice to meet a hand-picked team in Guelph Jan. 5 for this year's edition of the Ontario Hockey Association's Junior A all-star game.

The club that leads the league at the end of December has been picked to defend against the all-stars for the last two seasons. Marlboros top the Inland'ers at present by three points. Barrie Flyers and Tor-onto St. Michael's are tied for second place.

Coaches of the seven Junior A teams have finished their selections for the all-star blue but their only unanimous choice was centre Dave Keon of St. Michael's, at present the Keon has picked-up 18 goals and 14 assists in 19 games this season.

STARRY TEAM

Other members of the first team are Jack Martin of Mari-boros, left wing; Jim Pappin of Marlboros, wing; Pat Hind of Stapleton of St. Catharines Tee-Pees, defence; Terry Gray of St. Michael's, defence, and Wayne Rutledge of Barrie Fly-ers, goal.

Junior 'B' Booster Club Is Organized

The Junior "B" Booster Club came into being last night.

A small but enthusiastic crowd of some 30 people turn-ed out to the city hall for the inaugural meeting.

They elected Jim Murphy president; Mac Douglas vice-president; Sheila Canning secretary; Jack Waverly treas-urer; Jane Gray membership chairman and Judy Moore so-cial chairman.

They set the date for the next meeting for Tuesday at the Recreation Centre, Pinnacle Street, starting at 8:30.

And a large turnout of boys and other younger fans would be greatly appreciated.

A solid executive will be named at this meeting.

Membership in the newly-formed club is but a half-dol-lar. Membership cards will be issued to the club by Harry Rollins, treasurer of the Mac's Booster Club.

Patterson Says He Is Ready For Ingy Right

NORTH BAY (CP) — Pointing to a still-bruised world heavyweight title fight with champion Ingemar Johansson, Pat Patterson of Toronto said Wednesday night.

Patterson floored Ritchie Nor-dan with a left-right combination in the bout. The other sparring partner was Billy Tisdale.

Earlier Patterson said he was confident that a more cautious attitude would help him regain his title.

"I'd like to fight him again to-morrow but it looks like the re-match will not be completed un-til next June", he said. "He has promised me the return match and I know he is a man of his word.

"I underestimated Johansson and that right hand of his the last time. This time I'll be more pro-per respect for him. That right-hand punch is no secret and I'll be prepared for it".

Champ Hopes To Settle Fight Dilemma

LONDON (AP)—Heavyweight champion Ingemar Johansson said Wednesday he hopes to solve his title fight dilemma on a visit to New York in January.

The unbeaten Swede is signed for a title defence against Floyd Patterson in the United States and is being courted by British promoter Jack Solomons for a defence against British ruler Henry Cooper in London.

Johansson and his adviser, Swedish promoter Edwin Ahl-quist, conferred with Solomons and visited the outdoor Wembley Stadium Wednesday. Solomons wants to stage the fight in that huge arena on Derby Day eve, May 31. Johansson knocked out Cooper in the fifth round 3½ years ago.

Nothing new came out of the meetings.

Dutchmen Blank Dunnies 3-0

KITCHENER (CP) — Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen cut Whitby Dunlops' first-place lead to four points in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series Wednes-day night by blanking the Dun-lops 3-0.

Goaltender Bost Hurley handled 25 shots in gaining his second shutout of the year. The Dutchmen and the Dunlops, old playoff rivals, put on a game that looked like a league final.

Only three minor penalties were called. Whitby drew two of them but none figured in the scoring.

The Dutchmen had four good chances in the first period but couldn't click. They finally grab-bed a lead in the second period when Don Rope banted home a rebound after two minutes of in-tensive pressure during which Jobs Henderson performed smar-tly in the Whitby cage.

Cliff Pennington gave the rail-birds something to talk about dec. 9 when he drove a shot right past Whitby goalie Bill Ran-dall on a solo rush.

Pennington, who dug the puck out of the corner.

Archie Wilson Leaf Coach

TORONTO (CP)—Archie Wil-son, prize clutch hitter of the Toronto Maple Leafs of the Interna-tional League, will sign next week as playing coach.

Wilson, 36, said Wednesday night he has not reached a salary agreement but expects no difficulty in negotiating with general manager Danny Meeres. He will succeed Lou Kahn.

Wilson, an outfielder, is a six-year veteran with the Leafs. His 100 runs batted in led the club last season.

FIRST COACH

BUFFALO (AP) — Garrard Buster Ramsay, defensive coach of Detroit Lions, Wednesday became the new American Football League's first coach. He was named to head the staff of the Buffalo Bills. Terms of his three-year contract with the Bills were not learned.

OHA Will Assist Maroons, Grants Deadline Extension

CHATHAM (CP) — A last-ditch effort to save Chatham Maroons will be made as a result of a meeting Wednesday night between Ontario Hockey Association officials and representatives of the Chatham Hockey Association.

The meeting was arranged after the Chatham association announced Monday night that operations of the Senior A Maroons would be suspended because of the club's poor financial position.

The Maroons played their final game of the Senior A series Tuesday night at Windsor losing 4-3 to the Bulldogs.

An OHA senior council meeting Saturday night demanded that Chatham pay a $2,000 performance bond, which was to have been posted before the season started, and to contribute 10 per cent of the club's gate receipts to the league pool covering travelling costs, officials' pay and administrative expenses.

EXTEND DEADLINE

Following 3½ hours discussion Wednesday night, OHA president Ken McMillan told the meeting that the Maroons' deadline for payment of the bond and the team's share of the league pool has been extended.

A deadline of midnight Wednesday for payment was set by the OHA executive last week.

Chatham club president A. L. (Mack) Hanna said that on behalf of the association an immediate effort will be made to arrange necessary adjustments in the town's over-all financial position.

Wren Blair, manager of the Allan Cup champion Whitby Dunlops, has been invited by the OHA to assist in the effort.

Blair and Maroons' coach John Horeck will meet all players on the Chatham roster today to discuss problems as a preliminary to a general meeting of directors of the Chatham Hockey Association in the evening.

Chatham, which is a good hockey town, should continue to be a hockey town since it is an integral part of the league, Blair said after the meeting.

Royals Will Stick With Gerry McNeil

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal Royals of the Eastern Professional Hockey League will stick with goal-keeper Gerry McNeil for at least the first few games of their coming five-game road trip.

McNeil, who replaced regular Charlie Hodge recently because the parent Montreal Canadiens felt that Hodge needed the rest and McNeil the work, has allowed only three goals in two games—all three of them in his first game.

Royals' coach Floyd Curry said he feels the team should be in good shape for the road trip and the Montrealers should improve their off-home-ice record.

"I know our record on the road hasn't been very good, but...we should do much better."

Royals have won one and tied three in 13 road games but have managed to hang on to their place. Only winger Fern Perreault is on the injured list.

The Royals play at Sault Ste. Marie tonight and Sudbury Friday.

Dennis Hall sparked the Maple Leafs to a 7-1 victory over the Red Wings, scoring two goals and assisting on another pair. Dave Reid scored a pair, with Art Jones, R. Symons and Doug Boomhower each potting one and Dan Lucas drawing a single assist. Bruce Swans fired the Wing goal with help from Rod Turner.

Hockey Hints

by Lloyd Percival

"SHOOTING TO SCORE"

Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings, Rocket Richard of Montreal Canadiens and Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks need three clear chances to score one goal. The average N.H.L. star needs seven chances, young players need ten chances.

SHOOTING TO SCORE

Howe or Richard need fewer chances because they know the goal areas to shoot at. They know from experience whether to shoot low, high, to right or left. Why don't you start using their tricks right now!

Usually, low shots score more often than high shots. The goalkeeper can use his hands on high shots which puts the odds on his side. To recover. The hands can be moved nearly twice as fast as the legs.

When possible, shoot to the side on which the goalkeeper holds his stick — his right side if he holds his stick in his right hand. Why? He can't use this hand there it holds his stick. On the other side, he has a free, fast moving hand. Remember the best scoring areas when you get in on goal for a chance to flash the red light.

Question Was Who Owned What Ball?

MISKEDOON, Mich. (AP)—A hole-in-one golfer could claim left golfers Paul Antel and Elmo Bullis their stick, sick today.

Teeing off at the 130-yard, 14th hole at Pontchartrain here, Antel drove to the green Wednesday. Bullis matched the drive. But leaves on the green hid the roll of the ball. Each had used the same make ball, identical down to color marking and number.

At the green they found one ball in the cup and the other two feet short.

Mickoski Leads Reds to 8-2 Win

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Veteran Nick Mickoski of Providence Reds, recently farmed out by Boston Bruins, had the American Hockey League spotlight all to himself today.

Mickoski, who spent 11 seasons in the National Hockey League, turned in a brilliant effort Wednesday night in triggering Providence to an 8-2 victory over the Bears in Buffalo. No other games were scheduled.

The 37-year-old centre reached the NHL with New York in 1948 and also played with Chicago, Detroit and Boston.

Other Providence scorers were Ray Ross, Larrie Davis, Rudy Paragabko, Bo Elik and Earl Reibel. Dick Gamble and Billy Reed scored for Buffalo.

The Reds moved to within four points of first-place Springfield. The Bisons are fourth, five points behind third-place Rochester.

Braves Will Have More Zip, Says Dressen

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Charlie Dressen, new manager of Milwaukee Braves promising Wednesday night that his ball club "will have more zip" next year and win a few games earlier in the year."

"The boys in the dugout are going to talk a little more baseball this summer and see if we can't steal a few signs once in a while," he said at a press conference and in a speech before a sports club.

Ellis Loses To Armstrong

CAMDEN, N.J. (AP) — Gene (Acs) Armstrong of Elizabeth, N.J., scored a decision over Rudy Ellis of Chicago in a 10-round lightweight paddling boxing event Wednesday night.

Armstrong weighed 135½, Ellis 135.

The referee, Paul Cavalier, scored it 7-3-1 in favor of Armstrong. There are no judges in boxing matches.

The Associated Press scored it 8-2 for Armstrong.

Armstrong's won — lost record now is 18-1. His only loss was here Sept. 2 when he was upset by Dick Tiger.

MAY BE TEST CASE

WINDSOR (CP) — Windsor was invited Tuesday to submit to the Ontario Hospital Services Commission a proposal to charge non-resident patients a surcharge to cover hospital expansion costs. The invitation came from Dr. J. B. Neilson, director of hospital services for the commission, during a meeting with city council's capital works committee. He said the application could form a "test case" of present regulations prohibiting such surcharges.

GANGLAND GUNS

of the home where Touhy has been living since his parole, two men appeared. Miller said he showed them his retired police sergeant's star and said, "We're police officers."

The blast of shotguns followed. Touhy slumped forward on the porch. The wounded Miller, before firing at the fleeing gunmen, fell to the top of him.

Mrs. Alesia and her husband, Henry, rushed to the porch but said they did not see the slayers.

Miller told police a third man possibly was with the gunmen, and probably was near their car in a nearby parking lot in the quiet residential district.

Touhy and Miller were returning home after visiting with Ray Brennan, a San-Times reporter and a co-author with Touhy of the ex-convict's autobiography, at the Chicago Press Club in the Loop.

FLAMES BOOK

Brennan, who hurried to the hospital where Touhy was taken, said a reporter "sat with Touhy but not written the stinking book. Roger would be alive today." He did not amplify his remark.

Touhy was sentenced to 99 years in prison for the 1933 kidnaping of Factor. He also was given a 199-year sentence for an escape and several other prison terms in 1942. He was recaptured about three months later.

Touhy contended throughout his long years of imprisonment that the kidnaping was a hoax perpetrated by Factor.

When he was paroled last Nov. 24 he told reporters he held no grudges and was bitter.

"All I want now," he said, "is peace and a chance to rest, to live my life."

RECALLS GANG WARS

Touhy, one of six sons, of a Chicago milkman, came during the roaring 1920s to become a gang ruler in the northwest suburbs. For a time the gang had a working agreement with the Al Capone gang, under which they divided territories for the sale of bootleg liquor. However, the two gangs fought a war between the gangs raged for several years. The last unsolved gangland murder was laid to the strife.

Repeal of prohibition cut off the Touhy gang's sources of income, but police said the gang turned to bank robberies and kidnapings and efforts to muscle into labor unions.

Basil (the Owl) Banghart then became Touhy's chief lieutenant. Banghart and other members of the gang were sentenced to 99 years each in prison for the $100,000 ransom kidnaping of Factor. Banghart still is in prison.

BLIND MARCH IN UPTOWN OTTAWA — A large group of blind persons marched through uptown Ottawa in a plea for support and for more aid and encouragement from the federal government. University and received his first-class teacher's certificate at Hamilton Normal School.

He later was principal of Twistock public and continuation schools and of Peterborough's King Edward and Queen Alexandra schools. He founded and was first president of the Canadian Association for Adult Education.

OUT OF RETIREMENT

He became minister and was elected in the Toronto riding of Eglinton in 1931, coming out of retirement at the request of Premier Frost after 46 years with the University of Toronto, 31 as director of extension and publicity.

He said in an interview that he has tried to make sure that all young people in Ontario had an equal opportunity for education, regardless of whether they lived in remote areas or big urban centres.

"I have been fortunate to be surrounded by a group of loyal and brilliant men and women in the department of education," he said.

Premier Frost said the education department had achieved great results under Dr. Dunlop. In the last four years school grants have doubled, to $150,000,000 this year.

Opposition Leader John Wintermeyer also paid tribute to Dr. Dunlop, saying he "has devoted his life to the cause of education in Ontario, including the difficult and contentious position of minister of education."

TWO MILLION

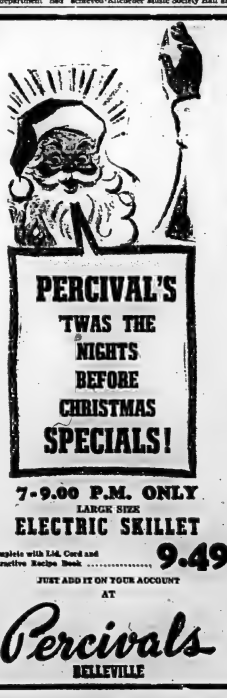
copied by Jack Fraser Men's Wear. The blaze also threatened an F.W. Woolworth store next door to Zeller's.

The fronts of scarcely buildings were hosed down and firemen said mild weather and lack of a high wind saved the area from greater damage.

Many tenants of the business offices lost decades of records. Some locked them in their vaults at the first alarm but the safeguard proved useless. Included were dentists, lawyers, contractors, architects and realtors.



Offices in the Jazzen Building included the Motor Licence Bureau with its stock of 1960 plates and licences. Also housed the Kitchener Music Society Hall and several union offices.

MANY REMAINED HELP

Dense smoke hampered firemen, some of whom came from Waterloo, Wingham, Brantford, Preston, Galt, Guelph, Welesley, Baden, Elmira and Countryton.

Firemen on roofs of buildings west of the fire centre were nearly caught when flames shot out of the Jazzen Building. Another fireman got a ladder propped against the Zeller Building was nearly trapped when flames leapt from a window. Other firemen sprayed water on him as he climbed to safety.

Fire chief Kenneth Putnam described the blaze as "a hoodcaut." Four hours after the first alarm was turned in, the three buildings were an inferno of bare walls and crashing beams.

Toronto Professor Presents Intriguing Glimpse of China In Book on Three-Week Trip

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Three weeks is hardly enough time to give a traveller a complete picture of what is happening in Communist China.

But J. Tuzo Wilson, professor of geophysics at the University of Toronto, managed to see enough in that time to provide an intriguing glimpse of the rapid changes in the vast country.

His book, One Chinese Moon (Longmans Green), is a day-by-day journal of a trip he made to 1958, the first Canadian scientist officially received in China in eight years.

Although he came away with no sympathetic feelings for communism as a political doctrine he admits he was impressed with the examples he saw of progress in education, industry and farming.

A good eye for detail is evident in the best of interesting anecdotes of his travels. Gourmets may be particularly interested in some fascinating menus from "delectable" meals he was served.

Prof. Wilson doesn't attempt to gloss over the unpleasant aspects of the revolution that brought the Communists to power.

But, rather than engaging in a campaign of hate, he considers it more important to help China find a solution to the problem of feeding, clothing and educating a population that, at the present rate of growth, will reach a billion in 20 years.

"The world is much too small and China much too big for us in the West to suppose that we can continue much longer to ignore what is happening to the hardest-working quarter of the world's people," he says.

He warns that unless China is stricken by great natural calamities, intensive an effective program of birth control or finds some radically new means of producing food, it must expand, a matter of serious consideration for the rest of the world.

"The problem is terrible for China, but it is likewise a terrifying prospect for us, and the discovery of a satisfactory solution, if one can be found, is as important to us as to the Chinese."

France Refuses to Put Air Force Under NATO

PARIS (CP) — The Western Allies have authorized first steps toward an integrated system to ward off an air attack on Western Europe but have left for president Eisenhower and de Gaulle the major question of whether NATO could order French planes into action against the attack.

This is the chief result of the annual policy review by foreign, defence and finance ministers of the 15 members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. The three-day meeting ended here Thursday with France agreeing to a formula for establishing the warning system still refusing to put any of its air force under NATO's unified military command.

The United States wants forces of all NATO powers united under the alliance's central command to defend Western Europe, in the face of the Soviet's opposition. the Americans urged that at least an integrated air defence be started.

WEEKEND CHORE

The NATO ministers left it up to Eisenhower as well as British Prime Minister Macmillan and Chancellor Adenauer of Germany to see if they could make some headway with the French president during the Western summit conference this weekend.

The NATO council approved a Canadian proposal that the alliance's ministers meet periodically to study disarmament. This was one of Canada's major moves at the meeting, and it is expected to result in formation of a NATO group that will draft specific suggestions for the 16 member United Nations disarmament committee that opens in Geneva next February.

FINAL COMMUNIQUE

The NATO ministers did not mention military integration in their final communique, which proposed to "make a determined effort . . . to guarantee the necessary strength of the alliance."

Paul - Henri Spaak, NATO's secretary - general, told skeptical reporters that despite the routine wording of the communique, "a qualified, very satisfied, despite your apparently cynical smiles."

Admiral Jerauld Wright told a press conference that NATO's arm is more than holding its own in a vast game of hide-and-seek with the submarine fleets of the Soviet Union.

PARIS (CP) — Canadian External Affairs Minister Green spoke hours after Thursday failed about the future of the Atlantic alliance.

Drawing a picture somewhat at variance with gloomy accounts of the NATO meetings published in some quarters, Green told reporters:

"My impression is that there is great confidence in the alliance. There is a deep-seated reality of interest."

The minister stuck to his theme despite reporters who drew his attention to comments by members of the conference head-quarters that the NATO conference has been a "do nothing" meeting.

One correspondent said some members of the conference failed because it had contented big problems and pointed out nothing had been done to solve them.

Green said he thinks the position is far from hopeless.

"I think it's been a pretty good two days," he said. "I think the Western world has reason to be optimistic.

"It was not a do-nothing conference. Why, there would have been no conference if it had not a meeting of 15 Conservative governments of parliament.

He said the alliance is facing a series of international situations. This was caused by Russia's more relaxed policy—"if smiles are a sign of threats."

NATO nations had agreed on need to study disarmament in the world situation. The result would be to make NATO stronger than ever for the old conditions.

Green feels that NATO worries — particularly among the small powers about consultation—have been "met." He said the "whole attitude is to have the fullest possible consultations."

At one point the minister left the Canadian briefing to take a telephone call from Ottawa from Prime Minister Diefenbaker in Ottawa.

"If I come back with a black eye you'll know what happened," he said with a grin before taking the call.

Green returned during over for next week's resumed NATO talks. Defence Minister Pearkes and Finance Minister Fleming left for Canada Thursday night by plane.

Prince Charles Takes Sister Out on Town

LONDON (AP)—Prince Charles, 11 - year - old heir to the throne, came home from boarding school in Scotland for Christmas Thursday and then had a night on the town with his sister, Princess Anne, 9.

They went to the circus and later, look in some of the features at a fun fair.

Prince Charles and Anne went in a family party to London's Olympia exhibition hall where Mills Circus opens its season every Christmas. They entered under the big top in their dressing and sat in the ordinary seats with the public.

The spotlight was on their aunt, Princess Margaret. She sat in the royal box at the edge of the ring and was presented with a bouquet by a white - faced clown.

Dr. Tom Dooley On Way Back to Laos With Cancer

LONDON (AP) — "I'm not worried about dying," Dr. Tom Dooley said Thursday night. "Believe it or not, I am the happiest man alive."

Dooley, 32 - year - old physician who was stricken with a cancer, spoke with reporters at London airport. He arrived from New York on his way back to Laos, the Indochina kingdom where he has built hospitals in the jungle hospitals. He left there to go to the United States for an operation.

"Not long ago I was given 18 months to live," he said. "I recently underwent surgery and the results show the cancer has not spread further. That's why I am going back to the jungle.

"But I am afraid that records of people who have suffered from this type of cancer make my prospects very bleak. It's the fastest growing cancer there is."

Dooley went to southeast Asia in 1953 to work among the sick. After Dooley had been told he was suffering from cancer, he went on a lecture tour through the United States.

NHA INTEREST RATE BOOSTED TO 6¾ PER CENT

Bid to Attract Private Lenders

OTTAWA (CP)—The National Housing Act interest rate has been increased to a record 6¾ per cent in a bid to attract private lenders into the field of government-guaranteed home mortgages.

Works Minister Walker, who announced the increase from six per cent indicated it will mean the participation by interested banks in NHA lending and more by insurance and trust companies. The new rate applies only to six per cent maximum interest under the Bank Act.

It also means an additional $65.16 a year in payments on a $12,000, 25 - year $12,000 mortgage which is close to the NHA loan average.

PEARSON CRITICIZED

Liberal Leader Pearson described the increase as "another unhappy indication" of the failure of the government's fiscal policy.

CCF Commons Leader Argue said the move is the result of the Progressive Conservatives' "deliberate policy of money policy which meant high profits for the lending institutions."

Mr. Walker said he was confident the new rate, effective at 6¾ per cent, would bring insurance, loan and trust companies into NHA lending from which they had "virtually abandoned" because interest rates had risen in other fields while the NHA rate stood still.

There has been an increase in three years and the highest boost since the National Housing Act was passed in 1954. The rate then was 3½ per cent; it was increased to 4½ in 1955, 5½ was increased to 5¾ in 1956 and to six in January, 1957.

125,000 NEW HOMES

At a press conference, Mr. Walker said he expects construction of 125,000 new homes will be started in 1960. Because 80,000 homes are not expected to be finished at year's end, 145,000 will be carried over into 1961, equal to this year's construction.

Mr. Walker quoted statements by Prime Minister Diefenbaker that the government has decided against raising the Bank Act interest.

This year the banks put up 15,000 NHA loans. The 67,000 government-guaranteed housing loans made. Next year, with tight money down and other lending expected to rise, Mr. Walker predicted a further decline in the NHA and government - guaranteed loans had held last year.

Of the rest of the 125,000 homes to be financed by mortgages Mr. Walker said 80,000 would be by conventional mortgages and 45,000 by the government NHA lending.

Parliament today will be asked to vote $160,000,000 for the direct loans, compared with $300,000,000 for them this year.

Postpone Launching

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The Navy has postponed until next month a rocket launching toward Venus and forfeited its last 1959 chance to launch into the outer space race with Russia.

The Navy's Vanguard - size rocket was scheduled to hurl a 90-pound package deep into space today. But the shot has been called off "because of electronic problems involving the final checkout phase of the instrumented payload."

If Christmas Gifts Not Mailed Yet Most Likely They'll Be Late

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

If you haven't mailed your Christmas gifts to friends abroad yet, chances are they'll be late reaching their destination.

Postal officials at Ottawa have set Thursday as the deadline "to guarantee delivery before Christmas." From today on you'll have to trust to luck but post offices everywhere are advising that parcels would be overlooked in sorting.

Officials in most major cities said the public appears to have heeded their advice before Christmas early in mailing and this has helped.

Mailing in all cities was expected to reach a peak in the next few days. With the deadline for overseas delivery past, post offices are concentrating on Canadian and local deliveries.

A Toronto post office spokesman offered this suggestion to those who have not yet mailed their special delivery letters: Don't post them at all. Send a telegram instead. Take them to the post office."

Street mail boxes were often jammed to capacity and with the Christmas rush still coming in, air mail and special delivery letters could be delayed in sorting.

Officials said that the post office was co-operating by doing a "tremendous" wrapping business as well as mailing early.

Montreal was handling up to 3,500,000 pieces of mail a day compared with its normal average of 2,000.

The average for Toronto was about 1,382,000 envelopes rather than the normal 2,378,000.

Post office staffs have doubled and tripled to handle the onslaught.

Eisenhower Lands at Toulon For Western Summit Parley

TOULON, France (CP) — Flights and cheering after a three-day Mediterranean cruise, President Eisenhower landed in France today for a Western summit meeting that may need a peacemaker.

An echoing 21 - gun salute greeted the United States cruiser Des Moines as she brought the president into Toulon harbor. French sailors snapped to attention as the president stepped ashore for a journey to French soil.

Escorting the Des Moines into harbor were the French cruiser Colbert and the destroyers Chevalier Paul and Duperre. Fighters, which picked the presidential convoy up 50 miles at sea.

The president was wearing a dark overcoat and a black homburg.

As he stepped ashore, State Department officials said he looked forward to great him in the name of President de Gaulle.

The French gave him a warm welcoming speech. Eisenhower looked relaxed and smiling beside him. His personal interpreter, Col. Edward D. Walters, discreetly translated in his ear.

The president answered in English that "I am delighted to be here, in person, respect, of our two nations that have, for so long, been stopped."

Eisenhower looked well and relief after three days at sea following his strenuous tour of eight nations and three conferences in the last 15 days. Thursday he was to breakfast President Habib Bourguiba.

He told reporters that he was glad "Here."

"Sleep is what I have done best while aboard," he added with a grin.

The president also got a big laugh out of a small present sent him by some of the men aboard the Des Moines. It was a miniature Essex—a rag doll depicting a golfer in a cap looking up on men.

To Get Rebate

Hospital Tax Is Redefined, Most Amateur Teams Exempt

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial Treasurer Frost announced the long term amateurism today and exempted most amateur hockey teams from paying amusement tax.

The new treasury board ruling says that any hockey player receiving more than $30.25 per game is considered an amateur player.

Previous ruling was that 40 per cent of a team's gate had to be used to collect and remit the tax to the treasury. However, the 40 per cent figure is now set at 50 per cent. This means that a club can show that the salary of all its players on the team is less than $30.55 per game the amount will be refunded to the club.

He said amateur hockey players will be free to accept scholarship from a two-week practice period without losing amateur status.

WILL GET REBATE

Most clubs will be given a rebate for the amusement tax, Mr. Allan said.

The new rules are being forwarded to all amateur hockey clubs in the province.

Mr. Allan said a study will be made of other sports which claim amateur status.

Amusement tax is assessed under the Ontario Hospitals Tax Act.

Plane Missing With Six Aboard

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP)—A plane bound for San Francisco with six persons aboard vanished with eight persons aboard vanished with six persons aboard vanished with eight persons aboard reporting it was in trouble.

The craft, a P - 6 amphibian piloted by Philip Gray of San Leo - ranco, Calif., disappeared somewhere between here and Annette Island, 300 miles to the south, a stopover on the flight.

The coast guard station at Annette Island said it received a radio message from the plane that it had lost one engine. Radio contact was lost after the pilot said the craft was in trouble.

Clues Are Few, Theories Many In Touhy Slaying

CHICAGO (AP) — Slim clues, wild theories and an unidentified dead end have marked the early police investigation for motives in the kidnap slaying of Roger Touhy, prohibition-era gang chief.

Police Thursday pushed the search today for the killers of the 61-year-old ex-convict Wednesday night, and said many motives and many lives that might have prompted the assassination. There were also many clues.

Touhy was shot down by two men with 12-gauge shotguns only 25 days after he finished serving 25 years in a state prison for a term for kidnapping.

Touhy was assassinated from ambush, in typical gangland fashion, as he and a retired policeman companion were about to enter the Touhy's sister's home on the city's west side.

STILL CRITICAL

The ex-policeman, Walter Miller, 72, remained in critical condition but before he collapsed he fired at the fleeing gunmen. He is still in critical condition in a hospital.

Some investigators think the wounding of the old Al Capone gang may be responsible for Touhy's murder. They say Miller was not a target for crime syndicate vengeance.

Robert Tieberg, federal district attorney, blamed the Touhy slaying on the "code of the gun."

"His killing fits into the Mafia pattern of keeping members' lips sealed," he said. "Touhy probably must have talked, at one time or another. They killed him to keep a press other members that no matter how long it takes, they will find you and get you if you talk."

Police Commissioner Timothy J. O'Connor said Touhy's prison associations might have provided the motive for his murder.

FIRST LEVEE

OTTAWA (CP) — Governor-General Vanier will hold his first New Year's levée in the Senate chamber here Jan. 1, to receive the New Year's wishes of public and leaders, government officials, diplomats, members of the armed forces and the general public.

Among other innovations,

MASSEY COLLEGE WILL TAKE ONLY BEST SCHOLARS

Foundation Will Bear Entire Cost

TORONTO (CP) — A college for top graduate students, the first of its kind in Canada, is to be established at the University of Toronto by the Massey Foundation.

To be called Massey College, the building will cost between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000. Construction may begin next summer.

Massey College will house at least 50, possibly 70 or more, of the best brains accepted by University of Toronto's school of graduate studies.

MUST HAVE ABILITY

"It's going to be the kind of place in which Massey men will be gifted must be of a certain intellectual standing," H. Hume Massey said Thursday night.

Mr. Massey, former governor-general of Canada, is the son of Chester Massey and the grandson of Hart Massey, who was head of the Massey-Harris Company. Vincent Massey is the administrator of the Massey endowment, usually the Massey Foundation of which Mr. Massey is one of the trustees.

The only parallel to the proposed Massey College in North America is the Institute for Advanced studies, Mr. Massey said. But the institute will not be just a dwelling place for advanced students.

"I've put a tremendous belief in what a college does," said Mr. Massey, "it's a tremendous instrument quite apart from the facilities that it provides."

Massey College will also be a place where "casual visitors" can stay for a fortnight or more.

MEN ONLY

At the helm is Massey College will be a "carefully chosen" master, selected jointly by the University and foundation. Then there will be fellows, who will be mostly U. of T. graduate students and junior fellows—graduate students. Membership of the college will be interchangeable between arts and science. It would probably be restricted to men.

Interviewed at Batterwood, his residence south of Belleville, Mr. Massey told how the idea for Massey College originated.

"There is a college at Oxford called All Souls in which there are no undergraduates. All the members are doing research or consider themselves engaged in no teaching in the college itself.

The University of Toronto, although it had increasingly good graduate schools, lacked such a college.

"What's what's at the back of all this."

This is the second largest university gift to U. of T. 50 years ago.

Floats to Earth

FULTON, Miss. (AP)—A 500-foot high research balloon carrying scientific instruments floated to earth near this northeast Mississippi town Thursday after it drifted away from South Dakota when it was launched Tuesday.

The unusual balloon, largest ever launched in the world, landed on a farm. Its scientific payload was still intact.

Eisenhower Will Be Guest in Homes Where Naughty Beauties Once Lived

PARIS (AP)—President Eisenhower will talk, eat and sleep this weekend in houses once owned by members of France's naughtiest women.

Les girls were:

Robert Thebes, federal district attorney, blamed the Touhy slaying on the "code of the gun."

Mme. Pompadour, Louis XV's mistress.

The Duchess of Bourbon, a prerevolutionary beauty adored by Louis XV.

And Catherine de Vivonne, out of the same mold as Louis—keepers in France's long history of such establishments.

The houses are the Elysee Palace and the Chateau de Rambouillet.

The palace now is the official home of that austere statesman, President Charles de Gaulle. The chateau is his summer residence.

Through French history the palace has had its ups and downs.

Built in 1718 by the architect Molet it became the property of Madame Pompadour. It was only a short canter from King Louis' royal palace, Tuileries.

Mme. Pompadour decorated her bedroom with a magnificent tapestry based on the Three Graces by Raphael.

De Gaulle has made some changes, too.

When he became president he turned one of the small apartments into offices. He selected Napoleon's old room as a place to work.

It is here that Eisenhower will talk Thursday with Britain's Prime Minister Harold Macmillan and West Germany Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

Sunday Eisenhower will be de Gaulle's guest at lunch at the Chateau de Rambouillet outside Paris.

The Countess de Toulouse Lautrec lived there with her husband and children when she was the beautiful Mme. Le Hon.

Louis XVI liked it so well he bought it and built a dairy farm there for his wife, Marie-Antoinette.

Its 1837 Catherine de Vivonne liked to invite great wits and philosophers to her town house in Paris and then whisk them out to her fabulous parties.

If the walls could talk, Eisenhower wouldn't get much sleep.

China Proposes Talks With India Starting Dec. 26

Chou Welcomes Nehru's 'No Patrols' Proposal

PEKING (Reuters) — Premier Chou En-lai has offered to begin talks with Prime Minister Nehru of India beginning Dec. 26 on the long standing frontier dispute between China and India.

He suggested they meet in "any place in China," or else in the Burmese capital of Rangoon.

In a 3,000-word letter sent to Nehru Thursday and published here tonight, Chou welcomed the Indian leader's proposal to stop sending out patrols and said China already had given orders to that effect to its border guards.

Referring to charges made by Nehru in a letter to Peiping Sunday that China had maltreated Indian personnel captured in recent border incidents, Chou said that has been "arbitrarily asserted" by India "disregarding the objective facts."

Replying to a letter from Nehru on Nov. 16, Chou said the two countries should consult on how far each should withdraw its troops from the border.

Chou wrote that pending agreement on a withdrawal along the entire border, China is prepared to try for a partial solution by applying that to the areas where no troops be stationed at the northeast outpost of Longju or Kongka Pass in the western sector.

The Chinese government proposed that no armed personnel of either side should be stationed in the disputed places.

The Longju outpost, manned by 60 Indian troops, was attacked by troops in August, one of a series of incidents in the last year that has sharpened the frontier dispute.

Two Survivors Picked up From Wreckage

MONTREAL (CP) — Two survivors have been picked up from the wreckage of two United States aircraft in Northern Ontario, Air Defence Command said nearby St. Hubert reported today.

The two rescued were Capt. Ron N. Minor, 34, of Manchester, Penn., and Lieut. Theodore G. Adami, 24, of Greenville, S.C.

The condition of both men was reported good.

Lieut. Adams, co-pilot of the B-47 jet bomber which collided with an F-102 jet interceptor Thursday, was flown after his rescue to the United States radar site at Pagwa by the RCAF for medical treatment.

Capt. Minor, pilot of the bomber, is believed to be aboard a rescue helicopter.

SEEK TWO OTHERS

Meanwhile, searchers continued efforts to locate two other persons aboard the B-47 and the F-102 that crashed.

Reports to St. Hubert were that Lieut. Col. Ralph Hall and others were heard during the night while he sailed around in circles. Minor said he fired only two shots. This was taken to mean that others may still be alive and RCAF continued an intensive search of the area in Northern, north of Sault Ste. Marie.

Temperatures in the area this morning was not reported to St. Hubert but snowfall was given as 12 miles with a 4,000-foot ceiling.

IDENTIFY OTHERS

Identity of the others aboard the planes at the time of the crash was given as Lieut. Gaylord B. Trez, 24, of Garnett, Kan., pilot of the F-102; Lieut. Lloyd A. Horn, 27, Boise, Idaho, and Lieut. Carleton W. Hunt, 26, Oklahoma City, Okla.

Plane Dumps Fuel to Make Safe Landing

DETROIT (AP)—An Eastern Airlines four engined jet-prop Electra with 75 persons aboard circled over Detroit for about an hour in dumping its fuel before making a safe landing at Detroit Metro airport Thursday night.

The plane's wing flaps failed to retract shortly after it took off at Idlewild for Miami Fla. No one was injured.

The pilot, Capt. Edward Rodan of Miami, radioed the tower that he was returning to the airport because he was low on fuel.

He said he was dumping 10,000 pounds of fuel. This took half an hour. He made a normal landing with the flaps in their set position.

SEEK REVERSAL

PRESCOTT (CP) — Mayor Mark P. Salmon of this seaway city will head a three - man delegation to Ottawa which will ask Transport Minister George Walker he should approve a 50-acre land assembly project here which Ottawa has turned down twice. Mr. Walker has turned down the project, submitted earlier by the Ontario department of planning and development.

Merchants Relying on Late Rush to Go Over Objective

The majority of local merchants are relying on last minute Christmas shoppers this year to bring their Yuletide trade "up to par" with that of last year.

All are anticipating a big rush over the next five shopping days before Christmas this season, and are optimistic that total Christmas sales will at least equal those of last year.

The majority of those contacted by this Ontario Intelligencer in a general survey of local stores stated that no great rush has been experienced to date.

Comments on this season's trade as compared to the same period last year ranged from "disappointing" to "biggest hike of all", although the majority of replies were that it was about the same as last year.

Several felt there has not been "too much enthusiasm" for Christmas shopping this year, which resulted in many stores experiencing a lull in retail trade up until this week.

One local store manager claimed, "There is not the usual Christmas kick."

However, however, reported up to a 20 per cent increase in Christmas sales this year over last year.

SALES UP

One chain store reported last weekend was their biggest to-date, despite the unfavorable weather, and that their sales were up more than 20 per cent over the same period last year. He believed this was due to a bigger and better variety of articles being offered for sale. Others reported no big increase this year.

On the the other end of the scale, local men's wear stores report business down approximately 30 per cent from the same period last year.

A variety of comments were received from local retailers as to whether people are doing their Christmas shopping earlier this year or later. The majority felt there is just as many last-minute shoppers this year as last year, indicated by the fact business did not start to pick up until about a week ago.

Others, however, report a gradual buildup in Christmas trade over the past month or two, suggesting a trend to early buying.

Many feel the trend in gift buying is toward the smaller, more moderately priced articles this year.

The majority of local stores have taken on additional temporary staff for the Christmas season. One store reported it has tripled its staff this year.

No Solicitor To Prosecute City Cases

Appointment of a special solicitor to prosecute infractions of the city by-laws will be an additional problem for members of the 1960 Belleville city council.

The city has had no one to prosecute by-law cases in court since late in November when Crown Attorney John A. Pringle indicated that he would no longer act in that capacity.

City solicitor E. Gus Porter noted today that prosecution of infractions of city by-laws did not come within the duties of a crown attorney, while normally neither was a city solicitor expected to prosecute such cases.

He noted, however, that in many centres either the crown attorney or the solicitor for the municipality did press such charges in court.

In other centres a local lawyer is appointed to act as prosecutor in charges for infractions of by-laws.

The Belleville Police Commission has written to the city council asking that such an arrangement be made for the prosecution of city cases.

Almost Too Much of a Good Thing

Of the many types releases from various firms and advertising agencies which come into a newspaper office none has surprised us quite as much as a recent five-page communique from an advertising firm extolling the architectural virtues and living conveniences of the new federal institution at Joyceville, which was duly opened on Tuesday last.

Never did we expect to see prisons advertised or the federal Department of Justice spending money with the hucksters for promotion on a new prison. Just wait until it gets filled up to overflowing and then we will hear complaints about prison overcrowding, and the need for reform.

And who will be to blame for this situation when it arrives? We dare say the Department of Justice will assume its hands are clean and it must be due to an increasing crime rate brought about by the need for more and better policemen or stemer parental control in the home or zone environment or some such thing.

Little will they think of their folly in advertising the prison as such a nice place, resplendent in its "bright white plastered exteriors with red brick trim and interiors painted in eye-easy green with its "central courtyard and recreation" and the "bright, modern common rooms with meals being served from glistening stainless steel steam tables."

"Common rooms remain open for card playing, or the viewing of television . . . if the inmate desires he can go to his cell and listen to the radio . . . or work on hobby craft activities . . ." continues the advertising copy, adding that "the inmate still engages in a full day's work in the large airy shops or in the cattle slaughter house or on the big beef cattle farm operated there."

About all that we can think of after reading this somewhat glowing account is that there will probably be a lot of people around whose present homelife is not up to these standards and who wouldn't mind working with animals . . . and these people will be impressed when they read it, and a few of these will undoubtedly be only too happy to seize the opportunity of being placed in a prison where life is nicely regulated, protected and secure.

The above situation is possible but we do not see why it should be made so. Surely a federal agency can get publicity on a $5,000,000 project without resorting to the services of the same people who extol the virtues of soap, cigarets, and shiny cars. There is such a thing as overselling a product or service.

Let us not make prisons seem like too much of a good thing.

Doctors Speak Out

Doctors are sometimes criticised for not telling their parents the truth about their condition. Many doctors think this policy not only wise but necessary in scores of their professional activities. Could it be, though, that a rebellion by their unconscious mind is responsible for a marked inclination to speak plainly when they become politicians?

Latest example is a remark by Hon. Mathew B. Dymond, Ontario Minister of Health. At Windsor he said that he had not talked about Canada's contribution to the International Refugee Year, the admission as immigrants of 100 tubercular European refugees and their families, "because, frankly, I've been rather ashamed of it. It seems a pretty paltry gesture on our part."

Not the way to win friends and influence people in the party. But then we recall another Conservative doctor-politician who, in the days when "health insurance" was a dirty phrase in his party, told a carload of henchmen on route home from a campaign meeting that the day would have to come when hospitalisation costs were lowered or were assumed by the state—"and if that's socialism I don't care." It isn't—and they have been—but in its day this was an even more daring statement that Dr. Dymond's remark on part of the Refugee Year program. Of course, there was one difference —the other doctor's remark never found its way into print until now.

THE REGULAR ADVICE

By EDGAR A. GUEST

'And now the wise man goes about
Unto his friends who soon will wed;
He puts them on the back and smiles
And wishes them much joy ahead.
"It is the proper course to take,"
He says in accents soft and low.
"I'm glad to see you make the jump.
You should have done it long ago."

With this formality gone through
The wise man takes his friend aside,
"You'll get along all right," he says
"But you must learn to swallow pride.

"Things will go wrong, they always do,
And in those times, my boy, take care.
The happiest married folks are those Who learn to bear and then forbear.

"The first year always hardest is,
Because your natures are unknown;
Do not eulogize upon her faults,
Remember you've some of your own.

Be patient. Grumble not, my boy.
Do nothing that is born of spite;
And when perchance disputes arise
Remember, you're not always right."

St. Nicholas and Santa

Rumbled Expedition

On Saturday we ran a report from Port Elizabeth, South Africa, which quoted a clergyman of the Dutch Reformed Church there as denouncing Santa Claus as "a pagan and a heathen creation." In this the reverend gentleman appears to be considerably behind the times. Hundreds of years ago by his denomination to the effect that Santa Claus and his ways are not the same.

Others, of course, contend that they are. Their school of thought insists that Santa Claus is simply a shrewd corruption of the way the Dutch pronounce St. Nicholas. Which, any intention of becoming too involved in the discussion on points of language and pronunciation, we do recall that in Brazil St. Nicholas is Papa Noel, which might come pretty close to Santa Claus. Also in Germany enough Sao Nicolau is more often referred to as Santa Claus than Papa Noel, as can be translated as Father Christmas, the latter name being usually applied to Santa Claus in England.

However, there was a Saint Nicholas, born at Patras, a city of Lycia, in Asia Minor, who grew up to be a learned bishop and Myra, and was renowned for his personal charities. Source material of his life and work is somewhat scanty. A couple of Greek manuscripts in Zion Monastery, Myra, but legends concerning him are innumerable. At any rate, he seems to have been the Undisputed head of what became patron saint of Russia (by the way, a favorite patron saint of other countries, places, trades and occupations). In America he is patron of bankers, pawnbrokers, maidens, children, merchants, travelers, sailors and scholars. He died, full of years and honors, on December 6, about the year 342. So Dec. 6 is St. Nicholas' Day in many parts of the world.

However, somewhere along the line, perhaps with much contribution from the early Dutch settlers in what is now New United States, St. Nicholas became transformed — some will say for the worse, others will assert vehemently that it was for the better — and America he gradually doffed his mitre, vestments and pastoral staff, dropped a little flesh and exchanged his bishop's robes for a fur suit. He became, as the famous poem relates, a "jolly old elf," and, finally, "right jolly old elf."

And here we are, before we become enmeshed in controversy over origins, derivations and genealogies, let's make still another suggestion. Some schools have St. Nicholas, St. Nick and St. Nicholas just become mixed up in our children and the Santa Claus, whom we know as Santa Claus, is really the modern survival of the Great God of the Northern Tribes in the days before the Christian era and any of its mixed. This theory makes one Santa Klaas — which also sounds something like Santa Claus, doesn't it?

Strictly Personal

Men Need To Let Their Hair Down'

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Some time last year, I wrote a column defending women against the jibes of a male friend, who took issue with numerous scorn to the women's long and rambling telephone conversations.

I suggested at the time that these conversations were with friends served a useful therapeutic purpose for the woman, and if men had such a friend to unburden themselves at easily, they would not be so likely to go home and tell that women seem relatively immune to — such as sudden heart attacks.

Now, in a recent issue of the Journal of Social Hygiene, a professor of psychology in Florida has come up with some research that confirms this observation of mine.

The reason that men die younger than women, he remarks, is that "men are less likely to disclose their inner feelings in a personal relationship." Being unable to talk them down, they have to play a role that may conflict with one's true nature, and which impose a stress which may cause psychosomatic or mental illness, he adds.

He outlines his thesis that to be healthy one must be in communication to at least one other human being in therapeutic — a sign of the times, perhaps, to find such a term to achieve such health.

"Women seem to be more adept at self-disclosure than men; they seem to have a greater capacity for intimate and personal-to-personal relationships than men."

There is no doubt of the truth of this. Comparatively few men in our society have "intimate" friends. They may work with men, play with men, discuss current affairs or sit idly jokes with men — but rarely do they let down their hair to another man.

Yet their needs for emotional release are just as great as women's — which may explain, in part, why men will turn to alcohol and sexual adventure when the pressures get too severe. Psychologists have described it "unmanly" for a male to engage in self-disclosure.

At any rate, we know that the ratio of male to female suicides is two to one. Just as true to say that many more men die young of heart disease, or high blood pressure; that the United States now has a surplus of 7 million males and the census is increasing daily.

We also know the telephone is an instrument; maybe it is a clinical one.

I hymn a paean of praise to our Premier Kronenbergoff. When mean and worthy citizens would like to see Pooschloff. In days of old he drank deep toasts to god-like Joe Stalin. In vodka, whisky, brandy and gin by the gallon, Dishing out hooch against the unlikely Schweppervoss. The while an inner voice warned him: "Watch your Steppes". Now, broadcast by travel to Washington, Hollywood and Peking.

He further increases his ample girth and paunch with milk, cream, butter and cheese from his own Moo-Cow.

"Peace, it's wonderful," he pants, as he sips Chateau d'Yerre, And rash dissenters find themselves in a Siberian mine. But he lives a life free from scandal and slander,

And, the while, faithful old Mother Goose, sticks to his own propergander.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

It is wonderful the way the cowboys in the Western keep their ten gallon hats on riding like the wind across the deserts, through deep canyons and up steep cliffs, and even when shot at. They and heroes are equally gifted in this respect. I have seen, but I think our RCMP, when they are doing their armed exhibition rides, wear little straps under their chins or maybe around their heads, in order to keep their starched stiff Stetsons on. All the cowboys I have met in hundreds of corrobees, rustlers, marshals and deputies can ship-lap their hats in these great long hats and never lose a can, regardless of the terrain or the weather.

But this is nothing compared to the fact that they can fight with their fists, socking each other in the most terrific fashion, and men bowling the marshal right over the bar, marshal insisting the bad men practically up through the transom with one punch, without ever losing their hats.

There are many remarkable things about the Old West as created by TV. You never see a fly in the soup, or cow towns. The streets are always spotlessly clean, no ash cans, the horses are remarkably tidy in their habits, much tidier than most horses I have met. And in such fights as I have seen in the flesh, the hats of both good and bad outlined were almost the first things to be knocked off.

The great strain of the West, a hat is perhaps not a hat, but a symbol.

The Capitol Theatre was filled to capacity last evening for the band concert under the auspices of St. Michael's Band for the purpose of raising funds for the Canadian Army Hut campaign being conducted by the Belleville Council Knights of Columbus. An excellent program was rendered. A surprise feature was the privilege accorded the band of broadcasting for the first time, a new composition by Reg Hinchey. This number, an overture written especially for St. Michael's Band by a gifted musician, is full of melody and spirit. Although having practised only one week, the band played the number in a manner, brought prolonged applause.

Mr. P. S. Deacon, local manager of the Bell Telephone Co., presided over today's session of City Police Court in the absence of Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., who is confined to his home through illness.

Mr. Vincent Topping has returned to Westport after spending some time in Belleville.

Dr. E. Noble and Mrs. D. T. McClintock left today for the Canadian Pacific coast.

Over a foot of snow has fallen in Belleville and district since the storm struck two days ago; a large amount of this fell on the 100th meridian. In this city the situation is never so bad, as it is to-day. Trains are late and the every street. Some slight damage is reported through but arrived very late. The Frankford stage arrived drawn by horses this morning, the motor. The Tweed stage will not arrive here today as the road is blocked. The Ameliasburg stage got through drawn by horses. Trains are running fairly well on time.

Our Christmas Story

By Mrs. Billy Graham

as told to Elizabeth Sherrill

The Testing Tree

Chapter 3

So far, this has been a happy story because it has been about God's plan for His world—and for us.

God's plan was far us to live always in perfect fellowship with Him. In His plan, there was no sickness, no hunger, no war, no unhappiness. We were to be His companions, to live closer to Him than His other creatures.

But wait. Are we living the happy life God planned? Has anyone you know ever been sick? Do people fight? Do you ever quarrel with your brothers and sisters? Is there unhappiness in the world? Something must have gone wrong with God's plan.

Something did go wrong, and the something was this: the people whom God had made did not follow His plan.

But, you say, He was God! Why didn't He make them follow it?

ANIMALS HAVE NO CHOICE

But there, you see, was the difference between the animals God had made and these new creatures, called humans. Animals must follow God's plan for them; they have no choice. A caterpillar does not say to himself, "Let's see, shall I spin myself a cocoon and turn into a butterfly, or is it more fun just to be a caterpillar?" He spins a cocoon because he cannot help it.

But from human beings, God wanted something more than blind, unthinking obedience. He wanted Adam and Eve to follow His plan not because they had to, but because they wanted to. He wanted them to join Him willingly, eagerly, in a joyous meeting of wills — in fellowship rather than mechanical agreement.

And so He made, alone among all His creatures, God gave the power of choice.

It was a bold experiment. Before there was the terrible possibility that this new creature might choose not to follow God's plan. That was the risk God took when He made Adam and Eve. But, in His loneliness, God took that risk.

A BEAUTIFUL TREE

In the very center of the Garden of Eden was a tall and beautiful tree on which grew a strange and lovely fruit. But beautiful though it was, this tree was forbidden to Adam and Eve.

"For," God had said, "in the day you shall eat thereof you shall surely die."

This was the testing tree, to see to what extent Adam and Eve would choose to follow God's plan. Surely, thought God, it is an easy test, when there are hundreds of trees in the garden whose fruit they may eat. After all I have done for them, surely they will do this much for Me.

Here is where sorrow enters the story. For Adam and Eve, instead of listening to God who made them and loved them, listened to the words of someone who hated them.

THE TEMPTER

One day a snake who lived in the garden came up to Eve. "Yes," said the snake in his high, soft voice, "hath God said, ye shall not eat of every tree in the garden?"

"Oh no," said Eve. "We can eat most kinds of fruit. Only the fruit that grows on the tree in the middle of the garden we mustn't eat. God told us we would die if we ate it."

The snake laughed, a soft, secret laugh. "God is tricking you," he said. "The fruit of that tree will not kill you! Do you know what it will do, instead? It will make you wise! As wise as God! Eat it," he whispered, "and you will know everything that He knows."

In the very centre of the Garden was a tall and beautiful tree on which grew a strange and lovely fruit.

Now this snake, as you have already guessed, was no ordinary animal. This was Satan himself.

Once, long, long before, Satan had been an angel living with God in Heaven. But he was so proud of living with God that he began to imagine he was just as good as God — maybe even better! And so God had to send him away.

SHUT HER MIND

Like a bolt of lightning Satan fell from heaven. Now, in Adam and Eve he saw a way to get even, a way to spoil God's plan.

Ya Eve, the snake's words sounded wonderful. To be as wise as God! She shut her mind to what God had said about the tree. In fact, she turned her back on God and His plan.

She was full of her own plans now. She ran to the centre of the garden and looked up into the branches of the testing tree. There, just above her, ripe and tempting, hung the fruit.

She picked one. For a moment, she wondered if it would really kill her. She took a tiny bite of it, and waited. Nothing happened. She felt as strong as ever, and the fruit was so good!

She ate it all and then she picked a piece for Adam and took it to him. And Adam ate it.

It was the first evil thing that ever happened on this earth.

Company Seeks Injunction To Again Open Firm's Plant

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Three federal judges today heard arguments over whether Minnesota Governor Orville Freeman bowed to mob rule or acted to avoid bloodshed when he closed a strike-bound meat-packing plant last week.

"The mob wanted the plant closed; they (Freeman and co-defendants) have respected the will of the mob," said lawyers for Wilson and Company Wednesday, seeking an injunction to re-open the firm's plant at Albert Lea, Minn.

"People are today living that otherwise would be dead," Freeman argued as he fought to keep the plant closed.

The panel of judges gave no indication when a ruling would be made on the Wilson petition.

AFTER VIOLENCE

Pounding the table, Freeman defended his action to close the plant after three days of rock-throwing, car-upsetting violence in Albert Lea. The plant was shut down after Freeman rallied throughout the National Guard and put the city and surrounding Freeborn County under martial law.

"If we turned out everybody in our guard, we would not be sure there would not be blood-shed and lots of life," he said.

"I suggest this is too high a price to pay. I recognize mob rule cannot be tolerated, but human life is important."

Donald Peart, counsel for Wilson, said that in closing the plant the governor "surrendered the whole force of the state of Minnesota to accomplish the objects of a lawless mob."

"The defendants say that when these people who are at work are attacked by a mob, the law means that officials may meet the situation by removing them from their place of work, where the mob does not want them to be.

"WHAT THE MOB WANTS"

"They may protect their lives by compelling them to do what the mob wants them to do. These people do not need the officials for that purpose."

Wilson has not contested Freeman's right to declare martial law or call out the guard—only the closing of the plant which the plaintiff declared in violation of liberty and property without due process of law.

The violence began last week after Wilson hired non-union workers to continue production following the strike that began Nov. 3.

City Secondary School Students Rate High in Provincial Averages

Grade 13 students in the two Belleville High Schools did right well by themselves in their June examinations.

In 13 out of 14 subjects written the students' average at Belleville Collegiate and at the Quinte Secondary, exceeded the average in the province and in one subject, history — was almost 30 percent higher than the provincial average.

Belleville students failed to equal the provincial average only in Latin Composition, the local average being 73 percent as against 79.2 percent for the province.

Following is the average of Belleville high school students in various subjects written as compared with the provincial average, which is shown in brackets:

English Composition, 85 (80); English Literature 86 (82.5); History 81 (71.4); Algebra 75.5 (72.3); Geometry 78 (72.8); Trigonometry 92 (76.8); Physics 80 (74.5); Chemistry 87.5 (82.2); Botany 91 (79.4); Zoology 86.5 (80); French Authors 78.5 (73.2) French Composition 81.5 (78.1); Latin Authors 81.5 (78.4); Latin Composition 73 (79.8).

AIR SPEED RECORD

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—The United States Air Force says its newly established world air speed record is 1,525.95 miles an hour—a step-up of five miles an hour over the claim announced earlier. Maj. Joseph W. W. Countryman, Hanover School Head, Resigns

The resignation of Mr. W. J. Countryman as principal of Hanover District High School was received by the High School Board at the regular meeting at the school on Wednesday evening.

Mr. Countryman will remain there until the close of the school year in June, 1960.

He will assume principalship of the new Thousand Islands Secondary School at Brockville, Ont., opening in September, of next year.

Mr. Countryman went to Hanover as high school principal in September 1954, from Belleville. Since that time, the high school has made outstanding records academically, and all organizations in the school have grown and functioned smoothly and effectively under Mr. Countryman's leadership.

The members of the School Board have had enormous assistance from Mr. Countryman in preparing financial statements, Provincial grant estimates, and in all the general business pertaining to the school, which has developed to the point where an addition is necessary to accommodate the growing registration.

While in Hanover, Mr. Countryman has taken an active part in all community affairs. He and his family are members of Trinity United Church and church organizations; also of the Hanover Curling Club and Mr. Countryman, of the Rotary Club.

General regret will be felt in Hanover and district at the Mr. and Mrs. Countryman and their family will be leaving.

CONTOUR'S NOTE

Active in community affairs, Mr. Countryman served on Belleville city council before leaving Belleville and since going to Hanover has continued in this role.

He was born in this city and was a teacher in the Collegiate Institute before going to Hanover.

Christmas Concerts

BETHEL CHAPEL

The annual Sunday School Christmas concert was held on Monday evening, in the Bethel Chapel with a large crowd in attendance.

The program, under the direction of Mr. W. R. Belch, opened by the singing of "Hark the Herald Angels Sing."

Fellowship prayer by Jr. Choir trained by Miss Marilyn Belch, Miss Donna Lewis and Mrs. Burl Lutz, proudly displayed their vocal talents.

A well performed Christmas pageant, with narration by Sharon Mowbray, spoken by various classes and songs by the grades 7 and 8 girls, preceded "The Christmas Story" film.

Mr. A. Parks, Sunday School superintendent, addressed the audience. He complimented the teachers on their ability to handle so many young children. For the Jr. grades alone, the superintendent has enrolled 60 over 50 children between two and six years old.

After thanking Mr. Parks, Mr. Belch encouraged parents to bring their children, not send them, as the Church services and Sunday School classes are now both being held at 11:00 p.m.

The awards and gifts pleased the boys and girls most. From under the tree, Mr. Belch, assisted by Mr. Parks, brought forth a number of parcels for the popular teachers.

He also presented 13 students with their pins, which showed they had earned 250 points. As five points are given each Sunday, this only allows the child to be absent twice in the year. The Sunday School teachers distributed gifts and bags of candy to their respective classes.

The happy expressions on both the faces of the younger set and the parents were sufficient reward to those responsible for the evening's success.

FRONT ROAD S.S.

A Christmas party was held on Friday evening in the Front Road church hall for the Sunday school. Many of the parents attended and all enjoyed the singing of Christmas carols.

Mr. Ross Jelfs, the occasion was provided by Miss Joan Clark on the portable electric organ which was also enjoyed. Many of the well known Christmas tunes were sung, the favorite among young and old being "Rudolph the Red Nosed Reindeer" and "Jingle Bells."

A number of games were played with the Rev. W. E. G. Dovey as organizer. These caused much hilarity among the children.

Although Santa Claus was not in attendance each child received a gaily wrapped gift and a bag of candy. To bring the evening to a close soft drinks were served and a social get-together enjoyed.

Holloway W.A. Reports on 1960 Executive

The December meeting of the Evening W.A. of Holloway Street United Church was held last week at the home of Mrs. June Sine. The Christmas decorations were the background music of Christmas Carols, everyone enjoyed the evening in a Christmas spirit.

Opening with the singing of "Joy to the World", the devotional period was led by Mrs. Alfreda Vader. Mrs. Laura Martin read from the Scripture, A Christmas meditation, with the theme of "A Star and A Saviour" was read by Mrs. Helen Joslin, Mrs. Cora Young and Kitty Hodgson. The devotional closed with "O, Little Town of Bethlehem".

Mrs. Marion Doxsee reported for the Flower and Gift Committee. A presentation was made to the out-going president, Mrs. Jean Bateman. A sum of money was also made available to the sister for use for needy families of the church at Christmas.

Mrs. Helen Joslin reported for the nominating committee for the 1960 executive.

With the help of Mrs. Phyllis Howe and Mrs. Eilleo Cronkite everyone exchanged Christmas gifts.

Two contests were enjoyed and a delicious buffet luncheon was served by Mrs. Ruth Bailey and Mrs. Alfred Vader's groups.

Front Rd. S.S. Holds White Gift Service

On Sunday the Front Road Sunday School held a White Gift Service with a nice number of parents present, also a few members of the Sunday School. Mrs. Ross Jelfs, the superintendent of the Sunday School was a charge of the service and handed the call to the ship with "Now when Jesus was born in Bethlehem" and "Joy to the World," there came wise men from the east to Jerusalem." "Angels From the Realms of Glory" was sung followed by the congregation uniting in a short prayer.

The Scripture was taken from St. Matthew's 2:1-11 with Mrs. Phyllis Cleary and the primary class reading it in unison. An old favorite of the Christmas carols "Joy to the World", followed.

The intermediate class consisting of Terry Greatrix, Norma Bolting, Patsy Cleary and Cathy Jelfs gave a pantomime unison, stressing how those of today shut the door on the Saviour as they did in the days of the Inn was closed on Mary and Joseph at the time of the birth.

The Primary and Beginners classes took their places. Pastor Mr. Mayrie Gaskin led the Communion table and sang "Silent Night, Holy Night". Miss Joan Clark accompanied these the children on the electric bone organ. Scripture was read by Susan Gaskin and Susan Bateman sang "O Come All Ye Faithful", the Junior Choir under the leadership marched to the front of the church and sang their bells while to a suitable container.

CHRISTMAS STORY

Miss Lois Bradshaw once again told a Christmas story about a man named Simon who set out to find something to give to the baby Jesus. On his way he met many people who gave him the gifts. When Simon returned home, his wife cried when she saw that he had not been glad that Simon gave his gifts to the child as it showed the Spirit of Christmas as it should be. The truest meaning of this Christmas story was best expressed in your thoughts, your prayers and your gifts for others.

The service was brought to a close with a short session in keeping with this Christmas season.

Fellowship Group Meets in Trenton

Tuesday evening the Adult Fellowship Group of the Alexandra Street United Church held a social evening in Trenton, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Hagerman.

The first portion of the gathering was spent in social singing with the Reverend Llewellyn Palmer at the piano, Miss Grace Veley at the piano.

Mr. Harold Ward gave the invocation which was followed by an inspiring talk by Miss June Edmonds, on the meaning of Christmas, stressing the word "service" in the form of an acrostic.

Mrs. W. Sila also favored with two selections on the violin accompanied.

Later, the playing of games of skill, and the recounting, by request, of humorous, and sometimes scary, Christmas episodes, caused considerable merriment.

Refreshments were then served, passed around to each guest, then seated and enjoyed in appeal to him or her, and found upon unwrapping to contain candy canes. Christmas tablecloths, wall plaques, and napkins, were used.

Refreshments were served including coffee, doughnuts, pie and cake, and then, by the hostess assisted by various members of the group.

Following the voicing of appreciation to the hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Hagerman, by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lally, who said, in part "It is my privilege to extend to Mother Lennox a token of our appreciation for the many years she has given to us and in recognition of what she has given to Community activities as Principal of St. Michael's High School." PRESENTATION

A presentation was made to Mother Lennox by Mrs. Richard Barrett.

In reply, Mother Lennox stated, in part, "Words almost fail me. I find myself completely overwhelmed by your great kindness. This is indeed a night I shall long remember. It was very joyful experience to assist at the Solemn Benediction tonight and see our own boys officiating at God's Altar. A special word of thanks to our Priest Celebrant whose kindness revealed some distance to be with us this evening. I accept it, not as a tribute to myself, but as one for all your former teachers and students that is the way you would want it." Mother Lennox also thanked Mrs. Barrett and at the time she had spent as principal of St. Michael's High School.

Mrs. Lennox was then assisted by Mr. Roluf, of the Music Centre, who presented her with Karen Campbell and Robert Brown, for their aptitude in music, their ability to play instruments and the generous giving of their time in so doing.

Father Flurey led the assembly in singing "Auld Lang Syne" and "God Save the Queen" accompanied by Miss Mary Cranston.

Following this, refreshments were served by Mrs. F. R. Ross and her committee.

Plans for this reception and presentation were made under the chairmanship of Mrs. H. Brown and Mrs. G. Donoghue.

TIPS TO THE CONCERT-GOER

There would seem to be many people who make a point of being late, having a total disregard of the inconveniences they may inflict upon others in so doing. I have never seen this more graphically illustrated that at a concert I recently attended.

Those of us who had arrived on time, filled with anticipation at the glorious voice we were to hear, were forced to sit for what seemed an eternity after the singer's first number while the many late-comers straggled in. I mean straggled. They didn't even have the grace to hurry. Unfortunately, the singer stood with all his dignity — waiting. I wondered what she was thinking.

It goes without saying that circumstances sometimes may force others already in the audience, to be late. But there are far too many people who either think it "smart" to always be tardy or, even worse, who just don't care whether they arrive on time or not. (This applies to things other than concerts, too.) The fact that it is really an insult to the performer, as well as a matter of extreme annoyance to those already in the audience, bothers them not at all. In my opinion, the penalty for these late-comers should be that they not be seated until after the intermission (instead of after the first selection), thereby missing the first half of the performance.

Perhaps I'm being too critical, but, aside from the aforementioned inexcusable habit, I was not at the total lack of consideration for others shown by many of those attending the concert. While some of the following "hints to a concert-goer" may seem childish, I can only say "Let those whom the shoe fits, wear it."

The ladies should remove their hats, the same as they would when attending the theatre. People like to see as well as hear. When taking off your coats, be careful not to flip it over the back of your seat into the lap of the person behind you. In a gracious enough to stand if people wish to pass you to get to their seats. Forcing them to stumble over your feet is not thoughtful.

It is to be trusted that you are not the type of self-styled critic to whisper to your neighbor, rustling your program, or fidgeting in your seat. Not only are you being discommoding to those around you, you are being downright rude and ill-mannered.

If you must leave the concert hall before the program is finished, the only courteous and polite thing to do is to take your departure at intermission. If it is extremely urgent that you leave before intermission, the only time to do so is during the applause after a selection is finished.

Question: My daughter is being married next month. Her husband-to-be is in the Navy, as are the best man and four of the eight ushers. They will all wear uniforms. What do the four ushers who aren't in the Service wear? It is to be a formal wedding at high noon. — Mrs. P.L.K.

Answer: This is one case where it is impossible for all the men to dress alike. The four not in the Service should wear morning coats and striped trousers. Those in civilian clothes should be together, as should those in uniform, when going up the aisle and back.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Editor's Note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Sylvia T. — He doesn't talk to me anymore.

Charles T. — Her babbling drives me crazy.

Sylvia T. — My husband and I have been married five years and have two children. We are doing pretty well, but we have one problem that is really driving me crazy.

Charles was always "the quiet type." I guess I thought it was a sort of cute when we were going together. He just seemed shy, but now he doesn't talk as much as he used to and he doesn't even answer me when I talk to him.

All day I am left alone with the two kids and then when Charles comes home I hardly know he is there. He sits and reads the papers or watches TV and tells me I'm annoying him when I try to talk to him.

Charles T. — I know I'm not the talkative type, but I never pretended to be. I didn't tell Sylvia a bill of goods. I am the way I am.

Sylvia thinks she's going crazy, but she doesn't know how she drives me crazy with that constant babbling. It starts the minute I get in the house and doesn't stop until she falls asleep — all nonsense about the neighbors, her family, the kids, the delivery man, something she saw on the street.

Sylvia says that if I loved her I'd talk to her, but I don't see what it has to do with love. I don't believe in talking for the sake of making a noise. She does

The Council: We doubt that any woman has ever gotten a man to talk by crying "You never talk to me any more!" If anything is calculated to shut a man up that is it.

However a woman who must spend her entire day talking to children or to other women about household matters, needs and deserves the benefit of adult conversation with her husband in the evening.

The husband, on the other hand, has probably spent the day in contact with others, has exchanged a few words with friends, acquaintances and co-workers, and looks forward to an evening passively. He simply doesn't want to make the effort of conversational interchange.

If husband and wives could imagine themselves in the other's position, they might be willing to make a greater effort to make things more pleasant for one another. Sylvia is, in a sense, quite right when she feels that her husband would talk to her if he loved her enough. Love is the insensitive that makes us forget our selfish inclinations in the desire to understand and be of service to another.

Charles should make an effort to talk to his wife of the day's happenings, even if it hurts at first. If he listens attentively and tries to make a contribution to the conversation he may find that there is much that isn't trivial in what his wife has to say.

Sylvia should make conversation more fun by avoiding the whining, complaining kind of talk and trying to find interesting or amusing anecdotes to relate. She should also try to keep herself informed so that she can talk to her husband about some of his favorite subjects. And the couple should entertain or go out together as often as possible to bring variety and more interest into their life.

Police Check Bonus Cards Game in B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP)—City detectives moved fast Wednesday to prevent the spread of supermarket bonus-card games, the latest in several provinces this year, but only now becoming a contentious subject in British Columbia.

Armed with search warrants, six fraud detail detectives seized "about 20,000" bonus cards from the W. H. Malkin Company, head office of Shop-Easy Stores (B.C.) Limited, and from a number of the supermarkets' retail outlets.

It was the first move by B.C. authorities against the promotion-type activities used in various forms across the country.

Police said two detectives visited all the stores last week, made purchases and obtained cards as part of their investigation.

City prosecutor Stewart McMurran said every phase of the bonus-cards game is being investigated, "including the role played by customers." He added that under the Criminal Code customers are liable as "aiding and abetting" if they accept such items. No decision has been made on whether charges will be laid.

Police said the cards are given to customers and punched in accordance with value of their purchases. When the purchases total $100, the customer takes the card to the store manager, who lifts a tab on the card hiding a figure and a question.

If the customer answers the question he wins from $1 to $1,000.

Turkeys May Be in Short Supply in Eastern Centres; Production Heavy in West

By GERALD D'ANGE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

There's a plentiful supply of Christmas turkeys in most provinces, with prices the same as last year or slightly lower.

But a cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press shows there may be a shortage in some eastern centres, with consequent higher prices. Despite higher production by western turkey farmers, the biggest local demand in the West may not leave enough surplus to satisfy entirely the increased appetites in the east.

The turkey market in British Columbia was thrown into some confusion by the recent sale to an Edmonton company of 60 carloads of B.C. turkeys, after earlier forecasts that prices would be the lowest in years.

Prices in British Columbia however were still expected to be lower this Christmas than last year, ranging from 47 cents a pound for the larger turkeys to 57 cents for smaller birds. Top prices last Christmas was 65 cents.

ALBERTA STOCKS

Alberta dealers expect plentiful supplies for Christmas, with prices averaging 45 and 49 cents for turkeys above and below an 18-pound dividing line. Last year equivalent prices were 49 and 53 cents respectively.

By the new year, however, a shortage is expected to develop, boosting prices. Chickens and ducks are in fairly good supply but although they are cheaper are not as popular as the traditional turkey.

Saskatchewan, where a steady year-round demand has stabilized production, has all the turkeys it will need. Prices, between 45 and 49 cents a pound, are as much as six cents lower than 1958. Demand for 28-cycle-pound chicken is low.

Henry Moore, secretary of the Food Distributors of Western Canada, reports turkeys galore in Manitoba, where mass production has valued output 24 per cent this year. Advertising and the advent of packaged turkey sections for small families have boosted demand.

Toms can be had for 34 cents a pound and top grade, oven-ready hen turkeys for 49 cents a pound, compared with a price range last year of 38 to 55 cents.

KEEN COMPETITION

Toronto's highly competitive supermarkets are again keeping their prices secret as late as possible. They are expected to vary between 39 and 45 cents, which is up to eight cents less than last year.

Ottawa chain stores are expected to price their toms at last year's figure of 39 cents a pound, but to push up the price for hens by five cents to 45 cents, although hens are plentiful and more scarce, due partly to exports to the United States. Large hens may cost 49 cents a pound.

Quebec will probably exceed its 1958 turkey production of 1,218,000 birds to give a plentiful supply, but prices are up to five cents higher at 43 cents a pound for large birds and 53 cents for small. A production of 12,000,000 chickens will sell at unchanged price of about 35 cents. In addition more than 250,000 ducklings are expected to come on the market.

SHORT IN N.B.

A turkey shortage in New Brunswick will mean shipped birds in from the west, but dealers say there will be enough to go round. Farmers, dissatisfied with last year's prices, have cut down their turkey production, but ducks, geese and chickens will be as plentiful as last season. Turkeys run from 49 to 65 cents a pound, geese and ducks from 49 to 65 cents as they did last year. Chickens have dropped about six cents, selling between 45 and 65 cents a pound.

Nova Scotia dealers are also reluctant to forecast any changes in prices too early, but turkeys recently have been selling between 45 and 55 cents a pound, a few cents below last year. With turkeys in good supply, prices were expected to drop a little by Christmas. Geese also are cheaper than last year.

Turkeys and other poultry are plentiful in Prince Edward Island, with prices lower than last year.

Newfoundland dealers, with a home production of only about 2,700 turkeys annually, buy extensively from the mainland. They anticipate only average, however, and forecast unchanged prices, ranging from 51 to 59 cents a pound.

CHEVY'S SUPERLATIVE WAYS

STURDY SAFETY-GIRDER FRAME
Here's the solid basis for your driving safety. Chevy's Safety-Girder frame is X-built, not just X-braced as on some cars, to give you all the protection of strong box-girder side rails reinforced by extra-rigid "X" design. Your safety comes first with Chevy.

SMOOTH FULL-COIL SUSPENSION
Mats, holes, bumps seem to vanish like magic for the '60 Chevy. Husky coil springs at each wheel top up road shocks and vibrations before they can reach the passenger compartment. Test-test Chevy's ride soon.

STABLE WHEELBASE AND WIDE TREAD
The firm footing for Chevrolet's Custom-Comfort Ride! Chevy's long wheelbase and wide tread give you a new kind of solid, well-balanced ride, plus a remarkable ability to take rough going in its smooth new stride.

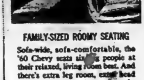
LIVELY BALL-RACE STEERING
Next best thing to power steering . . . and it's standard on every Chevy. Precision steel balls rolling in a spiral track relay your every steering command with less effort on your part, but with better response at the front wheels.

RIGID UNISTEEL CONSTRUCTION
Another great Chevrolet safety feature. The rigid roof, body and floor panels, all of rugged heavy-gauge steel, are welded together into a solid, strong unit. Quiet-riding, too, for your driving pleasure.

SAFETY-MASTER BRAKES
The brakes you need for today's driving conditions — sure, safe, longer-lasting. Rugged lining design is extra-big, and extra-efficient air cooling carries off the heat responsible for fading and rapid wear.

NEW, LARGER BODY MOUNTS
You're seriously relaxed and "hushed" in a '60 Chevy, thanks to new formula rubber body mounts. New softness, new silence, two more good reasons why your new car should be a '60 Chevrolet.

CONVENIENT WIDE DOOR OPENINGS
Chevy's the easiest car in its field to get into . . . doors open extra wide. And listen to a Chevy door "wump" shut. That's solid, safe Body by Fisher protection.



TO INCREASE

SPACIOUS LUGGAGE COMPARTMENT
That sleek rear deck drops a big secret . . . a huge 30-cubic foot of trunk space. In Chevy you have enough usable, practical space to stow everyone's gear.

V8 ZIP ON REGULAR GAS
That's Chevy's terrific new standard economy TURBO-FIRE V8. It's specifically designed to give you all the exhilarating performance of an Eight coupled with top gasoline economy. Put one through its paces soon.

FAMILY-SIZED ROOMY SEATING
Sofa-wide, sofa-comfortable, the '60 Chevy seats six big people at their relaxed, living room best. And there's extra leg room, entry and room, too. Fared down transmission tunnel gives the "middle man" more room.

LIGHTER ARMRESTS NO-COST EXTRAS
The convenience of crank-operated ventipanes, cigarette lighter and dual sun visors, plus the comfort of front armrests are yours as standard equipment on every low-cost new Chevrolet.

CRANK VENTIPANES
DUAL SUN VISORS

CONSTANT SPEED ELECTRIC WINDSHIELD WIPERS
Now peace of mind is a standard equipment with Chevy. Now electric windshield wipers never slow down during rain or sleet or snow periods. And their wide area ensure clear visibility.

LONG-LASTING RUSTPROOFING
Every Chevy undergoes the industry's most thorough rust-proofing process for unsurpassed, long-lasting value.

NEW FOOT-OPERATED PARKING BRAKE
Easier, safer to release, and with new better-gripping action. Set the brake by pressing down on the pedal. A T-handle pops out below the dash to show brake is "on". Just pull out the handle to release the brake.

SAFETY DOOR LOCK
Triple-safe action keeps doors securely closed at all times. And just one key fits all doors and locks. And the ignition can be set to work without a key.

LUSTROUS MAGIC-MIRROR FINISH
Another reason why your Chevy outshines others in its field. Chevy's deep, jewel-bright colors are "locked in" . . . can be restored to "new" brilliance by simple washing . . . for years!

ECONOMY H6-THRIFT 6 WITH V8 SPIRIT
Undoubtedly, the economy leader among full-sized engines. Has all the spirit and pep of a V8, with true "6" economy. Quiet-operating hydraulic valves give smooth performance, never need adjustment. Put Chevrolet to your test soon.

UNUSUAL MONUMENT — Armand Vaillancourt (inset), 28-year-old Montreal artist, created this unique cenotaph for the Saguenay Timber city of Chicoutimi. The monument consists of a 34-foot long piece of scrap metal welded to a large base, also of scrap metal. Because of expensive tools he says he lost money on the project for which he was paid $3,000. (CP Photo).

Chicoutimi Cenotaph Unlike Once-Popular Monuments

MONTREAL (CP) — Opponents of abstract art have criticized it for being understandable only to the artist himself or a small coterie of connoisseurs.

But the mass appeal non-representational art can sometimes have was demonstrated last month when a cenotaph was unveiled in the Saguenay River city of Chicoutimi.

Erected in honor of the city's dead in the Second World War, it could not have been more unique. The once-popular heroic statual monuments.

The Chicoutimi cenotaph is a 24-foot long creation of welded, jagged scrap steel mounted on a large base—also of scrap steel—at roughly a 45-degree angle.

To some it looked like a piece of artillery raised to firing position; to others like a ruined tree on a battlefield and to still others like a wounded man, his arms raised in supplication.

But to nearly everyone it suggested something of war and its horrors.

The reaction was gratifying to the cenotaph's creator — Armand Vaillancourt, a 28-year-old Montreal artist who thrives on controversy.

"I was touched," he said recently. "There was almost a meeting of minds. . . in their own simple way those people see in it the horrors of war. . ."

IMAGE IMPORTANT

And this, he says, was all he intended to convey; the precise image it suggests to the viewer is unimportant.

"I believe in peace," he says in explaining the purpose behind his design.

Vaillancourt is a resolute and sincere nonconformist. A slim, muscular figure in a blue sweater and blue jeans, his handsome face is framed by a thick beard and a maze of dark brown hair which falls to his shoulders.

Though he is one of the more successful of Canada's young sculptors, Vaillancourt lives and works in a two-storey galvanized iron garage at back of a parking lot on Bleury Street in downtown Montreal.

One corner of the second floor has been converted into his one-room living quarters, heated only by an oil heater.

POOR QUARTERS

The room is partially divided by a tattered brown blanket, the floor is covered with scraps of rugs and the window glass supplemented by paper.

But Vaillancourt does not live this way because of any romantic notions about artistic privation—the fact is his art is an expensive one.

The Chicoutimi cenotaph—built of scrap steel instead of marble or granite — might appear relatively cheap to create.

But because of the material he uses, a modern sculptor must have tools far more expensive than the traditional mallet and chisels.

Vaillancourt's garage - studio for example contains huge electric drills, welding torches, an air compressor and tanks of oxygen and acetylene.

Because of the cost of these tools, he says he lost money on the cenotaph, for which he is to be paid $3,000 by the Chicoutimi Timber Chamber of Commerce.

MONEY SCARCE

"Blasting after dollars," as he terms it in accented but fairly fluent English, has been a constant and ad-annoying feature of his life.

"I," he says, "I have lost thousands of dollars in commissions because I will not do anything I do not believe in."

For instance, he says, he was once asked to do some Polynesian figures for a Montreal restaurant. He told the prospective clients that if they wanted "indirect" sculpture "they should go and talk to an Indian."

But he is becoming better known and some day may reach the $400 monthly income he feels would supply his artistic and bodily needs.

Two of his larger works in wood "which I often use because it's cheap" are owned by the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts. Commissions for abstract pieces to decorate apartment and office buildings are becoming more frequent.

Vaillancourt is the 15th of 16 children born to a couple in Chicoutimi, a large French-Canadian community in Quebec's Eastern Townships. His father was employed in an asbestos miner but during the depression took to farming.

Farm life, Vaillancourt says, has given him a better training for his work—more valuable than anything he learned in five years at Montreal's Beaux Arts school, where he was frequently in hot water.

On the farm he learned, while inserting handlebars, how to deal with the tools he uses today.

Will Not Renew Permit for Nursing School

TORONTO (CP)—Health Minister Dymond said Thursday the permit to operate the Canadian Schools of Practical Nursing in Toronto will not be renewed after Dec. 31.

The school began operations on Jan. 1, 1958, as an experiment to train nursing assistants. Mr. Dymond said the reason for the non-renewal of the permit have been explained to officials of the school.

All students who enrolled at the school between its start and Nov. 1 this year will be given an opportunity to try the Ontario certified nursing assistant examination.

Mr. Dymond said "that it is proposed to delete the provisions which deal with the training of practical nurses from the regulations under the Nursing Act."

This way, he added, such schools may continue to train practical nurses without reference to the department of health. They would in future be registered under the Trade School Act, which is administered by the education department.

PROTESTS MOVE

Earlier Robert Burns, director of the school, said it was being "quietly and judiciously" squeezed out because it was embarrassing the provincial health department.

He told a press conference Thursday he will not close the school unless the students are guaranteed some status after they graduate.

"The school will not enroll or train any woman unless it can promise her that she will have a recognized and certified status," he said.

He said the health department is embarrassed by a comparison between his school which graduated 300 students in 1958 at no cost to the taxpayers and the 288 students given the province's 11 schools at a cost of $1,200 each. Mr. Burns said the entire cost of his school was generated by the Registered Nurses Association of Ontario, but only one of the 11 has graduated a "two-year program to represent private organizations helping resolve the nursing shortage."

Only One of 13 Bus Occupants Seriously Hurt

TORONTO (CP) — A slow-moving freight train backed into the middle of a Toronto Transit Commission bus as it was crossing in suburban North York Thursday, but only one of the 13 bus occupants was injured seriously.

Two of the passengers were taken to hospital and only Miss Rita Blake, 18, was admitted. She suffered slight broken ribs. The bus driver, Stanley Fisher and Constable Jack Hunter.

Sauve Seeks Clarification Of PM's Alternative Plan In Assisting Universities

QUEBEC (CP)—Premier Paul Sauve has found out a modified hint to Prime Minister Diefenbaker that his recent proposal for a alternative plan of federal aid to universities does not quite fit in with Quebec's ideas.

The Quebec premier, in a letter to Mr. Diefenbaker made public Thursday, said he would like a definition of the meaning of the alternative plan for aid to universities as it might apply in Quebec.

Mr. Sauve does not ady say where in his letter, written in a cordial tone, that he disagrees with Mr. Diefenbaker's alternative plan, but he notes the letter largely concerns those provinces in Canada which have leased their tax rights to the federal government. Quebec's position is different, he writes.

Mr. Sauve also gave notice to the Legislature he intends to bring down his bill overhauling the whole structure of provincial grants to universities.

A number of basic points now are known about the grants system Quebec wants to adopt. Principal is the annual 10% increase of one per cent—to 10 from nine per cent—in the corporation tax. Most of the proceeds are to be regular, sufficient and permanent.

The formula for calculating the grants is factual in that the formula worked out by the government for its program started in 1959 and rejected by Quebec in 1953.

Quebec proposes to calculate the university grant of each year on the basis of $1.50 for each person in the province and to distribute this according to the number of students in each institution.

Whether or not the government will propose organization of a Quebec University Council — a provincial equivalent of the National Conference of Canadian Universities which now distributes federal aid for the province not known. There is speculation that this is part of the government's plan.

Quebec acknowledges say the federal government cannot dictate to the provinces how they are to spend their money in a field of exclusive provincial jurisdiction.

What Quebec is obviously angling for is for Parliament to say, in a law, that where a province levies an additional tax on corporation profits for education purposes the government would allow the tax to be deductible from federal payments.

The Quebec premier is emphatic about his wish to settle the question of university grants before final grants refused by Ottawa and the provinces since. The money refused by Quebec and now held by the TCC totals $25,000,000.

Western Farmers With Small Holdings Face Austere Holiday

EDMONTON (CP) — A white Christmas is promised for most of the rural West but it won't be a happy one for many farmers. The snow came too early.

Millions of bushels of grain are still unharvested and many harvest operations in early October.

Cash is short. Merchants in some areas are tightening credit. No one is reported desperate but some farmers, particularly those with large operations, face an austere holiday.

The Meadow Lake district in northwest Saskatchewan suffers most.

Paul Saum, agriculture representative, said much of the area is in critical condition.

"Farmers are going to find it hard to scare up sufficient operating expenses for next spring," he said.

Average figures for the area show 50 per cent of flax still on the ground, 40 per cent of the oat crop and 10 per cent of wheat and barley.

Agriculture Minister Nollet of Saskatchewan said he figured 10,000 farmers would get relief payments from the province while another 10,000 will get federal-provincial aid.

In Manitoba more than 20,000,000 bushels of grain are on the ground and H. A. Craik of the agriculture department said chances of recovering the crop are slim.

"Most of this will be ruined," he said, "and not even good for feed."

West of Winnipeg small centres report cash payments to farmers than normal.

But Ottawa says early snow hit hardest through the centre of the province, an agriculture official said large farms should weather the winter well.

The Alberta communities report reduced sales but there are no areas of distress.

In southern Alberta and Saskatchewan, where storms were less severe, farmers report few curbs on farm spending.

Retail merchants in the three provinces report many farmers requesting forms for federal aid.

Method of payments varies with each province, but the aid will be $3 an acre to a $600 maximum. Applications will likely begin until after Christmas. Farmers who harvested more than 50 per cent of their crop will not qualify for federal aid and will have to rely on provincial schemes.

If the ground is firm enough in the spring to support heavy combines, grain in heavy stubble may be harvested. If the ground is soft or the grain is lying flat, it is lost.

Liquor Delivered From Distillery Says Paper

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says two of its reporters ordered several dozen cases of liquor from distillers in the Toronto area by telephone Wednesday.

The newspaper describes the practice as "thoroughly illegal" and adds:

"In no instance was a permit or written authorization for the order requested. In no instance did there seem any hesitancy about delivering the order to the address supplied."

The newspaper notes It is illegal under the Ontario Liquor Act to buy or sell liquor except through a government store, to purchase liquor without a permit, to purchase liquor on anything except a cash basis, to possess liquor unless it has been purchased in accordance with the foregoing, or to deliver liquor to any address except in accordance with the foregoing.

It quotes representatives of several distilleries as saying a permit would not be necessary or there would be no problem about it, and says they offered to send a bill rather than take payment on delivery.

The Globe and Mail says it informed W. H. Collings, chief commissioner of the liquor control board of Ontario. It says he described them as "absolutely shocking."

The Liquor Control Board of Ontario Liquor Act issued a statement in connection with the story.

"All the members of the staff of the industry and their employers are well aware that a course of conduct such as described here constitutes the provisions of the Liquor Control Act," it said.

"The liquor control board will not be intimidated by any distillery, any company or individual if evidence is forthcoming that a sale such as described has taken place."

Twin Brothers Acquitted of Theft, Fraud

TORONTO (CP)—Twin brothers Ben and Harry Smith, wealthy hotel owners, were acquitted by an assize jury Thursday of charges of theft and fraud.

The two were charged with stealing 399,823 shares of Spooner Oils from Perseverance Mines and Developments, a company they headed. They also were charged with fraud over $58,000 and 63,920 Spooner shares by false pretences.

Defence counsel Arthur Martin, said in his address to the jury of eight men and four women that for years of practice that he had heard a man use a charge of theft in which the alleged victim made a profit.

The prosecutor, he said, made a $5,990 guaranteed profit on the deal out of which the charges arose.

President Already Thinking Of Another Trip Next Year

By DAVID ROWNTREE

President Eisenhower is already thinking about another trip to Latin America in addition to his projected journey to Russia in the spring of next year, it appears from or more visits to a European countries are two separate matters.

U.S. import restrictions on lead and zinc are a big issue in South America economies. Coffee prices are low and Latin countries get excellent accounts for a quarter and a third of all U.S. imports from Latin America. Exports of Venezuelan oil are controlled by quotas set by Washington.

Anticipated, too, are more assurances that private operations will be done begun in Uruguay in 1958, providing commercial quantities of uranium and thorium clear, the tasty fish with a growing market in the north.

The Torrington' first tourist association also is expected, coinciding with a major push to boost tourism in the Yukon and Western territories. Two char-fishing camps started this year on Bathurst Inlet provided the first Arctic sports camps, with some seafanning tossed in.

ASUNCION, Paraguay (AP)— The pro - government newspaper La Patria said Thursday 115 persons had been killed in fighting between Paraguayan government troops and rebels at Encarnacion on the Argentine border.

Economic, Social Progress Stirred Canadian North in '59, Hunt for Oil Prominent

OTTAWA (CP)—Economic and social progress stirred the Canadian North in 1959.

The hunt for oil surged into new prominence with prospects of development by private interests. For the first time, the department of northern affairs and national resources reported a new oil discovery by private interests among the 10,000 Eskimos.

There were more notable firsts, indicative of things to come.

Base No. 1, an oil and gas producer, was brought in 40 miles south of the Arctic Circle in the western sector of the Northwest Territories. Oil interest in the Arctic Islands burst into life early in the year when applications zoomed for oil exploration rights. They totalled more than 105,000,000 acres near the end of the year.

The first Arctic tourist camps were built and the first co-operatives designed to stimulate Eskimo and Indian enterprises were organized.

Preliminary study began of the polar continental shelf at the west flank of the archipelago, with scientists seeking new information, data on ice currents and ice, fish food potential and diverse other information. The years - long study, largely now undertaken by Canada in the north, will proceed next year on a permanent basis.

HUNT FOR OIL — The hunt for oil gained new life in the Canadian North during 1959 as private interests indicated increased interest in development work. breaker—largest in the country—hauled a record 120,000 tons of cargo to Arctic points in the short summer season. Grain shipments from Churchill, Man., to the north reached a record 2,300,000 bushels.

The battle continued to provide basic health services for a shifting population of fewer than 20,000, scattered over 2,500,000 square miles in the Yukon, Northwest Territories and northern Quebec.

By seaboard and air patrols, government doctors checked more patients than ever before. They reported that tuberculosis, once a prime Eskimo killer, had been tortured by drugs, northern treatment and re-acclimatization sojourns back south to rehabilitation centres. The mortality rate was about 48 per 100,000 persons. That was the death rate in Canada 70 years ago for the southern population.

Meanwhile, a school - building program designed to provide education facilities for all northern children by 1970, pushed ahead.

A LOOK INTO FUTURE

Officials forecast these developments in 1960:

Additional gas and oil exploration permits will be issued for the northern mainland, with expectation that more than $50,000,000 will be spent in the next 10 years in exploration alone. Acreage under permit totalled more than 36,000,000 with more than 40 crews at work in 1959. Drilling of perhaps 20 wildcat wells to be drilled next winter.

With the issuing of permits for the islands, large-scale activity is now there is anticipated. Drilling may start in the next two years.

Mineral exploration, on the increase in 1959, is expected to continue. Plans for development of a tungsten deposit in the southwest sector of the territories is to be completed and work to begin next year.

Other expectations over a wide area are foreseen, including in the region of Great Slave Lake, the mouth of Hudson Bay, already the site of an Eskimo-staffed nickel mine. Baffin Island, near Great Bear Lake and in the Yellowknife and Mackenzie mining districts. Sought are copper, nickel, molybdenum, silver, gold and other minerals.

Anticipated, too, are more assurances that private operations will be done begun in Uuguva in 1958, providing commercial quantities of uranium and thorium clear, the tasty fish with a growing market in the north.

The Torrington' first tourist association also is expected, coinciding with a major push to boost tourism in the Yukon and Western territories. Two char-fishing camps started this year on Bathurst Inlet provided the first Arctic sports camps, with some seafanning tossed in.

Ottawa Notables to Spend Conventional Christmas Day

OTTAWA (CP) — For most of Ottawa's notables, it will be a quiet Christmas around the tree here or within reach of the capital.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker will be in the West, Governor-General Vanier will spend Christmas in Quebec City, Opposition Leader Pearson will be at his home here.

For the majority, it will be an entertaining time of visiting and dining, visiting with children, grandchildren and friends, and helping with the turkey.

However, there will be some exceptions.

Mr. Diefenbaker and his wife will be in Saskatoon, where they will visit with his aged mother, Mrs. W. T. Diefenbaker, in hospital there, and his brother Elmer. Next day, the prime minister will be in his home town and constituency of Prince Albert, Sask. He will travel by private railway car.

Liberal Leader Pearson will start off Christmas Day by cooking breakfast for the family including grandchildren at Stornoway, official home of Commons opposition leaders. The day will

His wife said she guessed Mr. Argue might spend some time feeding their crop, "but on the other hand, what crop?"

All of the much-travelling cabinet ministers will be in Canada —though not necessarily Ottawa —on the day.

Immigration Minister Ellen Fairclough, is going to Hamilton to spend time with family.

Transport Minister Hees and his wife will spend Christmas in capital, as they have done for some years, to ski in the Laurentians.

Labor Minister Starr will be in his home town of Oshawa for a quiet family day. Though a fair bit will be said by Mrs. Starr handle the oven department.

Finance Minister Fleming will spend the day at his home here.

Ty Cobb Predicts

Tough Road for New League Sox, Frisco in World Series

NEW YORK (AP) — Ty Cobb, 72 today, gave his views Thursday on the proposed third major league and the 1959 pennant races.

Reached by telephone at Emory University Hospital in Atlanta where he has been undergoing a series of tests and xrays since Dec. 6, the famous Georgia Peach was his old blunt and provocative self.

"There third league fellows have a tough road ahead," he said.

"The majors have all the players they can use, right down to the high school boys. But if I knew Mickey (Branch Rickey, president of the Continental League) he'll give 'em a battle. I expect he'll raise cain with Congress and I know many of them fellows in Washington are anxious to investigate baseball."

Cobb predicted tight pennant races again in the American and National leagues. He favored San Francisco and the Chicago Cubs to meet in the world series.

Argos Seeking New Talent

TORONTO (CP)—M. C. Reynolds, Chicago Cardinals' second string quarterback, has been placed on Toronto Argonauts' negotiation list and the Big Four club hopes to sign him if he is waived out of the National Football League.

Managing director Lew Hayman also disclosed Thursday that Argos are pursuing a remote possibility of obtaining quarterback Tobin Rote of Detroit Lions. Rote now is a free agent after playing last season without a contract to fulfil Detroit's option on his services.

Argo coach Lou Agase plans to see Rote in Detroit, but has told Hayman they have only a slight chance of landing Rote.

"Rote apparently wanted to become a free agent for personal reasons having to do with his business," said Hayman. "We understand that he will play with Detroit next season if he plays pro football at all."

Argos believe Reynolds has become expendable by the Cards since they have signed quarterback George Izo of Notre Dame. Reynolds was the Cards' first string signal caller in 1958 but King Hill dislodged him during the 1958 NFL campaign.

Hull Blanks Three Rivers; Soo Nips Royals

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Five performances by defensive players and penalties by referees played a big part Thursday night in Eastern Professional Hockey League victories.

Defenceman Jean - Claude Tremblay scored two goals from the blueline as Hull-Ottawa Canadiens blanked Trois - Rivieres Lions 3-0, Pierre Pilote and Ken Wathers his second consecutive shutout.

Sault Ste. Marie Thunderbirds scored two goals on power plays in their edged Montreal Royals 3-2. The Royals failed to take advantage of the extra man in the last minute as Pat Egan, when the Thunderbirds, with a player off for hooking and a misconduct, held them out.

LAST-PLACE TIE

The penalty put Sault Ste. Marie into a last-place tie with Kingston Frontenacs, each with 21 points, Montreal and Trois-Rivieres remained in a third-place tie at 28 points. Hull-Ottawa, with 34 points, crept to within four points of the league-leading Sudbury Wolves.

The Wolves get idle action on Christmas Day against Montreal.

Wathers was the star of the game in Hull-Ottawa's French from a 4-0 tie Tuesday night against the Royals. He stopped 32 shots and earned with 17 for Lions' Claude Evans.

The Lions posted 14 at him in the second period, but couldn't find the net as Wathers made some brilliant saves.

The other defensive star was Tremblay, who ripped second and third period goals home from the blueline. One of the smallest crowds of the season — 1,200 watched. Officials blamed late-night Christmas shopping.

Two New Bowls Make Debut On Saturday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two brand new football bowl games, both of which appear ready to take places alongside the older pots - and attractions, make their appearance on the scene Saturday.

The Liberty Bowl at Philadelphia and the Bluebonnet Bowl at Houston were strong enough, financially and otherwise, after two years of preparation to play on four of the top college teams in a year when promoters of post-season contests were considering holidaying for the best.

Penn State, which had an 8-2 season record and had to top-level practices by only two points, meets Alabama (7-1-2) in the Liberty Bowl while Clemson (8-2), the Atlantic coast conference champions, and Texas Christian (8-2), co-champion of the southwest conference, play in the Bluebonnet.

Backers of the Liberty Bowl hoped that good weather would help bring as many as 50,000 spectators into the 100,000 Philadelphia Stadium. At Houston a near - sellout is expected at the 76,000 seat Rice Stadium. Both games will be televised nationally.

Petes Horse-Collar Flyers, Teeps Shade Hamilton Cubs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The brilliant netminding of George Holmes Thursday night gave Peterborough Petes their second Ontario Hockey Association Junior A shutout of the season, a 3-0 decision over Barrie Flyers before 1,393 Peterborough fans.

Holmes, who entered the season contract wearing a mask stopped 24 shots after it was learned that the new goalminder's first game after it was learned that the new goalminder's first game after Orillia, was unable to participate.

Chandick suffered a cut nose late in the first period when he crossed into the cellar when the Tiger Cubs were edged 2-1 by St. Catharines Teepees.

The St. Catharines win gives them sole possession of sixth place, their fourth straight at the expense of the Hamilton Cubs. Toronto Marlboros are two days behind closely by St. Michael's College Majors and Barrie.

Wayne Connelly paced his squad with two goals, in the first and third period, Bob Rivard got the other in the second.

Flyers drew eight of the 17 penalties in the fast, closely-played game.

In the other game, Teeiver win was a valuable one for coach Max Kaminsky's crew who took advantage of Hamilton mistakes to fashion the victory.

POOR DEBUT

The new Hamilton coach, Ralph McFadden, has had little luck with his charges since taking over from George Boucher.

Tiger-Cubs opened the scoring at the 6:37 mark of the first period when Mike Dahmer scored from Jerry Lovell. MacDonald and Bob Dillabough.

The 2-0 Petes scored an equalizer in the second, with Ron Holmes beating Ron Bloom. Dahmer added the game - winning marker at the 9:36 mark of the final period.

The Marlboros, recently named "Dukes of Marlborough," will go after the Guelph squad tonight dressed in white ties and tails because of a recent statement by Guelph coach Eddie Bush that "the way some of these junkers come dressed to play games is some of out-of-town rinks is a disgrace to the world's fastest game."

The coach himself will greet the Dukes with a city-owned red carpet leading to the entrance of the arena.

Red Sox Paid 'Sliver' $60,000 Not $100,000

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Ted Williams told a Miami judge Thursday he received $60,000 last season from Boston Red Sox, not $100,000 as published. He said his income from all sources was $62,000.

The 41-year-old outfielder said also that he hadn't received a contract for 1959 "decided whether he could play because of injuries and age.

The Herald quoted Red Sox general manager Dick Littlefield (Buzzy) Harris as saying in Boston that Williams will receive a contract for next season, and the club hopes he can play.

Harris refused to say whether the slugging outfielder would be used only as a pinch-hitter or substitute. But he said "Ted could still hit if they had to roll him up to the plate in a wheel chair."

Williams appeared in court to oppose a petition of Mrs. Doris Ruby Tritico, his former wife, for increase from $100 to $250 a month a maintenance allow-

OTTAWA (CP)—Ottawa Rough Riders Thursday announced the signing of their first new import for the 1959 Big Four football season, James Reynolds, 21, an offensive - defensive end from Hillsdale, Mich., College.

He also holds the record for the most passes received during his college career —so far 2,119 yards.

General manager George Turnbap said Reynolds, six - feet - two and 215 pounds, also is considered a fine punter. He averaged 43.2 yards on 37 punts during 1958.

Little Publicity, No Scandal, Mac Murray Earned His Fame

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — How many lawyers can an actor have?

In Fred MacMurray's case, there seems to be no limit.

The call for Fred's services is strong again, thanks in large part to a supernatural pooch named The Shaggy Dog. The hit comedy not only revived Fred's career, it brought him a whole new audience.

MacMurray is one of those stars who has made his successes the hard way—through performances alone. He has never had a knack for publicity, and scandal has never touched his name. He's been a nice guy. And as any press agent can tell you, nice guys are hard to publicize.

Fortunately, he has come up with a big hit every few years in his quarter-century in films. He had several during the '30s when he starred with Carole Lombard and Claudette Colbert in sophisticated comedies. Then he took a turn for the dramatic with Double Indemnity.

"I kept telling (director) Billy Wilder I didn't want to do the picture," he recalled. "I had always done comedy, and he wanted me to play a guy who helped kill off Barbara Stanwyck's husband. After two years of persuasion, I finally told Billy I'd do it."

The role established Fred's versatility and he played a variety of parts after that.

"It was back I could," he said, "because after the war, they stopped making comedies. I guess it was because there was so much comedy on TV. I looked around to see what I could do, and the safest thing seemed to be westerns. You can't go wrong with a western. I made a string of them —thank heaven The Shaggy Dog came along to get me out of the saddle."

Right now he's playing another heavy for Wilder—the part of a wealthy office boss in The Apartment. But he returns to comedy for Walt Disney next year. He'll play The Absent-minded Professor who invents a gravity-defying substance. Puts it on the shoes of the college basketball team and scores!

Fred made four and five films per during his 15 years at Paramount and still averages two or three. He's content to do less and choose instead of working harder.

May Close Lansdowne Park

OTTAWA (CP)—The city may eventually close up Lansdowne Park in east-central Ottawa and move the Central Canada Exhibition to a site in the city's outskirts. The park is used by Ottawa Rough Riders of the Big Four.

Alderman Don Reid, chairman of the Central Canada Exhibition Association, said Thursday he has discussed with National Capital commission officials the possibilities of obtaining a site in the green belt — an area surrounding the city in which the NCC is buying land to preserve its lightly-populated character.

Many Turn Up To Welcome Back Lauren Bacall

NEW YORK (AP) — A dazzling array of show biz turned out Wednesday night to cheer Lauren Bacall back to work on Broadway.

The throng, far surpassing the usual first-night crowd in name glamor, was on hand for the premiere of Goodbye Charlie, a comedy, at the Lyceum Theatre.

The show marks Miss Bacall's first stage venture after 15 years of movie-making; and her first major undertaking since the death of her husband, Humphrey Bogart, two years ago.

Filmland figures as well as Broadway stars filled the auditorium, but the offstage excitement regretably was not matched by the play.

Goodbye Charlie, written and directed by George Axelrod of Seven-Year Itch fame, is an awkward and dank effort. There is an interesting idea in the charade which concerns a baby playboy who returns to earth (after being slain by an irate husband) in the shape of an alluring but innocent damsel.

Throughout complications develop when the transformed being falls in love with his (or her) best friend.

Miss Bacall, who has a throaty way with words and a facile comic sense, distills delightfully amusing moments.

The moments come rarely, however.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

Reports from Western Ontario's banana belt indicate that the muddle in which the Chatham Maroons find themselves is nothing less than bad management.

One stated that "what happened to Chatham is a good example of how a non-spectator community can be scared by bad management. There is no question that Chatham fans are fed up with the club operation, in that respect they are in line with other clubs in the circuit and the executive of the Ontario Hockey Association."

"A case in illustration was the refusal of the Maroon executive to send a representative to the Senior 'OHA' council meeting last Saturday when they knew that the main subject was the default of the Maroons in posting their $7,500 bond and paying their share of the league pool."

It is a known fact that from the start of the season the Maroons have been battling with the arena commission seeking a reduction from 15 to 13½ per cent of gross gates. They have the program rights free of charge.

As Lee (Kitchener Rocket) Taylor put it: "Twice in the pre-trial season the club has threatened to withdraw because it couldn't get the deal it wanted. The terms of 15 per cent may look onerous to Chatham but to other centres they have to be regarded as slightly more than generous."

The Maroons have averaged 1,500 paid admissions a game at a $1.75 top.

Other operators say that these conditions, this attendance and that price scale should mean that the Maroons can just about break even if they don't build every hope of making money if they reach the playoffs.

Taylor says: "what seems to be the trouble is that the Maroons' management refuses to put up any working capital at all. They made about $7,000 last season, but that has been pigeoned in case they are asked to pay 'hospital tax'."

The OHA and team members of the circuit do not want to see the Maroons drop out. The senior council decided to extend the deadline for "payment, or else . . ", and scan a trouble-shooting committee in Chatham to see what can be done. Wren Blair is the clubs' troubleshooter and if the Whitby meeting cannot get order out of chaos, nobody can.

There was a meeting held last night, but at this writing we had no reports on what happened.

It is to be hoped that everything was straightened out and that the Maroons will carry on, change or no change of management.

It has been pointed out that it is fortunate the crisis happened with the schedule half completed. If the Chatham club did fail to finish and no successor was found, the other teams of the circuit would merely add one more round to their schedule. It would mean that the Maroons would have to meet Whitby, Kitchener and Windsor once more than scheduled.

Meanwhile, Lanney Lanirande and his pack of Windsor Bulldogs will be in town tonight, snarling and snapping for McFarland puck blood.

The Macs should be up for this one since they have been resting from travel and play all week but driving hard in practice grinds.

The last time the Bulldogs were here they smashed out with a 5-3 victory, the winner being a hard-disputed goal awarded by the referee, despite stalling protests by the Macs who claimed the puck never crossed the goal-line. The puck-judge also said the rubber was not in but Hi Nile was adamant and awarded the marker which eventually won the tilt for the Dogs.

And a tip to Scooter Club members. There will be a reception for the Macs and Dogs at the Hi Nile Inn immediately following tonight's game where you can meet the boys and their wives, besides rubbing shoulders with Lanney's crew.

There will be refreshments and dancing, and the price of admission is your membership card.

Second-Period Free-for-All Sees Ten Sent to Hoosegow; Wings Rally to Edge Hawks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Canadiens' scoring power must have been bottled up too long. The cork popped out Thursday night and Toronto Maple Leafs got swamped.

Canadiens trounced Leafs 8-2 and ended a six-game winless streak. In the streak, which began Dec. 2 with a 1-0 loss to Leafs, Canadiens scored only 16 goals.

Leafs "went down fighting—literally. The game erupted in a brawl late in the second period which resulted in all 10 forwards and defencemen on the ice being penalized.

Referee Eddie Powers' gave majors to Montreal centre Jean Beliveau and Toronto defenceman Tim Horton for fighting and minors to the others for roughing.

42 PENALTY MINUTES

The game was marred by 24 penalties, including four majors and a misconduct.

The win improved Canadiens' six-point first-place margin over the surprising Chicago Red Wings.

Red Wings came from behind to defeat Chicago Black Hawks 5-3 in the only other National Hockey League game and extend their unbeaten record to six games. It was Wings' fourth consecutive victory.

Leafs' lost their fifth straight, dropped them five points behind Detroit. They played without injured left wings Bert Olmstead and Dick Duff.

Canadiens, bolstered by the return of defenceman Tom Johnson from injury, pounded and bombarded Toronto goalie Johnny Bower with 53 shots.

EIGHT HAS SCORERS

Beliveau, Bonin, Billy Hicke, Claude Provost, Doug Harvey, Henri Richard, Jean Claude Tremblay and Ralph Backstrom scored for Montreal. John Wilson and George Armstrong scored for Leafs.

The free-for-all developed a few seconds after Armstrong's goal, with Montreal ahead 4-2. After Powers cleared the ice with two majors and eight minors, some confusion arose as to the order in which the penalties were to be served. A team cannot be more than two men short at any time.

The officials went into a game-delaying huddle soon after the third period started, during which league president Clarence Campbell came to the timer's bench, but finally decided that the majors took precedence.

"WE WANT STORKEY"

The crowd became impatient and began chanting "we want Storey."

Referee Red Storey resigned during the playoffs last spring, saying he had been criticized unfairly by Campbell.

In Detroit rookie centre Murray Oliver scored as though he may make the rookie - a - year award his only stay this year. He scored the tying and winning goals in the third period as the Wings overcame a 2-0 Hawk lead, boosting his total to seven in the 14 games he has played.

Black Hawks took the lead on Bobby Hull's first period goal and Eric Nesterenko's early in the second. Red Wings started to tie when Glen Aldcorn scored just before the end of the second period.

Next league games are scheduled Saturday night, when New York is at Montreal and Detroit at Toronto.

Veeck Comes Up With New Gimmick

CHICAGO (AP) — Owner Bill Veeck of Chicago White Sox has come up with another new gimmick to lure fans—a picnic area under the left field stands—screened off from the playing field at Comiskey Park.

Workmen have started knocking out the nine - foot brick wall which fronts the left field stands. This will be replaced by a fine, but durable, wire screen permitting a view of the field from the area under the stands.

Veeck explained Thursday that a limited menu will be served to large groups of fans, who also may bring picnic baskets, watching the pre-game activities as they dine. It is designed for 1,000 people.

Maroons Remain in League, Players Agree to Salary Cut

CHATHAM (CP) — Players with Chatham Maroons Thursday night agreed to a salary cut to enable the Ontario Hockey Association club to remain in the Senior A series.

Spokesmen of the club were suspended earlier this week because of lack of funds and dwindling attendance, but the salary cut will restore the team's weekly payroll by $640.

The deal was worked out by Maroons' manager - coach John Horeck and Wren Blair, general manager of Whitby Dunlops, who was invited by the OHA and Chatham Hockey Association to help the club adjust its financial difficulties.

The players unanimously agreed to the cut and Blair said "a great deal of credit should go to them for trying to keep hockey in Chatham."

PAY POOL SHARE

The Chatham association directors voted to pay the club's contribution to the OHA league pool that covers travelling costs, officials' and other administrative expenses.

The OHA had set a deadline of midnight last Wednesday for the payment. They extended it when the Maroons decided to withdraw from the league.

Club President A. L. (Mark) Hanna told the OHA Monday that the club was through with hockey for the season because "we'd rather pay our debts than go into bankruptcy like a lot of other clubs have done."

The Maroons are a non-profit organization and have no sponsors. Tied for third place, they haven't missed a scheduled game during the financial wrangle.

FIRE IN HORSE BARN

TORONTO (CP) — Ten men and 30 horses were forced to seek temporary refuge early today when a minor fire broke in barn No. 1 at New Woodbine race track. Damage was slight.

Doug Harvey, Montreal Canadiens defenceman, who spearheaded Montreal's 8-2 victory over Toronto Maple Leafs with a goal, two assists, and solid defensive play.

Gary Aldcorn, Detroit Red Wings left wing, who contributed a goal and two assists to the Detroit victory.

London's Street-Corner Bookies Organize to Fight Betting Act

LONDON (AP) — Britain's illegal street corner bookmakers were up in arms Thursday, charging that the government is trying to run them out of business.

They announced formation of the Street Bookmakers' Federation to fight a new government-supported betting act being considered in Parliament.

"The big bookmakers will monopolize the betting business if this bill goes through," said Wilfred (Nicolas) Sherman of Cardiff, Wales, chairman of SBF.

At present, the only legal off course betting in Britain is on credit, with bets placed by telephone or mail. Settlement must be made by mail. The legal bookmaker never sees his client, and vice versa.

The police, in some British cities, have been trying to eliminate street bookies for a long time. They have had the same luck as a farmer trying to keep mice out of a corncrib.

Now, however, the corner bookmakers are really in a dither. The bill before Parliament would legalize betting shops. Customers could walk in and wager with the same ease as buying a can of peas or a bottle of beer in a grocery.

Sherman said the SBF viewpoint was that the government should legalize street bookies as well as betting shops.

"The small bettor who wants sixpence each way (seven cents to win and show) on a horse will not be welcome in big betting shops. Anyway, he would much rather deal with his street bookmaker, a friend he has usually dealt with for years."

AGASE'S SUCCESSOR

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Vince Carilli, successful coach at East Lansing high school, was named as assistant football coach at Michigan State Thursday. He fills the vacancy left by the promotion of Lou Agase, new head coach of Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Big Four.

Too Many Front Line Brains May Ruin Hotspur Chances

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Tottenham Hotspur, the wealthy North London soccer club, appears to have more talent than it knows how to use.

Spurs, who have reached the halfway mark only one point out of first place in the Football League's First Division, entertain Newcastle United Saturday with echo of the most expensive forward line in the country showing ominous signs of coming apart.

The trouble is generally diagnosed as a surplus of brain-power among the inside forwards, resulting from Tottenham's signing of John White, a teen-age flash who has just completed his military service.

White, one of the few young players in the country with natural ability in all - placings forward, would have been a godsend to most other clubs. But the other Tottenham inside is little Tommy Farmer, who has liked to hold on to the ball, organizing a raid on the enemy goal.

NO COMMUNICATION

Tottenham's disappointing 1-1 tie against Fulham last week, in the two brains seemed to be symptomatic of success in recent frequencies, leaving the other forwards uncertain what to expect from either side. Newcastle, an improving side which has won its last two away matches, is capable of exploiting the confusion.

Preston North End, currently at the top of the table with 37-year-old Tom Finney at his best at centre forward, has excellent chances of success in the home match against inconsistent Chelsea.

Wolverhampton Wanderers, who lost at home for the first time last week to lowly Leicester City, entertain another bottom-of-the-table side this week in Birmingham City.

Murray Oliver 'Ten-Strike' For Red Wings

By DAVE DILES

DETROIT (AP) — Murray Oliver was good enough six-till Infielder to get a baseball contract from the Cleveland Indians' organization, and good enough on hockey to make the Detroit Red Wings' club after only one year in the minor leagues.

Baseball's loss was Detroit's gain as far as the 22-year-old forward is concerned. Oliver never quite got over a broken arm suffered while playing in the Cleveland farm system, so gave up the game in favor of hockey.

When he clicked for a pair of goals in Thursday night's 3-2 victory over the Chicago Black Hawks, it marked the second time the youngster has come through with a two-goal performance.

He is only 14 games out of the minor leagues, but already has scored seven goals. He got the tying goal and the winning goal Thursday night, enabling the Wings to run their unbeaten string to six.

Oliver turned pro a year ago and in his first full season, scored 21 points for the Western Hockey League's Edmonton Flyers, Detroit's top farm club.

He played well in camp, said coach Sid Abel, "but we figured he'd be a year quite ready. Back at Edmonton he was terrific. He was a crowd pleaser and was scoring well, and we hated to take him away from that club. But the Red Wings needed a lift and we thought maybe Oliver could provide it. We're not sorry now."

Oliver, described by Abel as a smart hockey player who recognizes situations and anticipates his teammates' moves, is fast becoming a favorite with Red Wing fans.

Abel talked about Oliver's "hockey sense" and his knack for being in the right place at the right time. Veteran Goodie Howe didn't elaborate that much.

"He's just a good hockey player, that's all," said Howe.

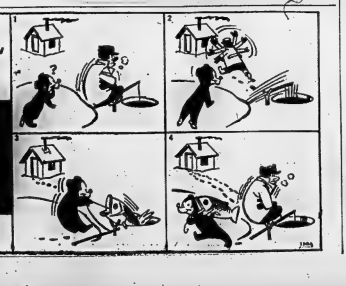
Find Printers Not Guilty Of Bookie Info

MONTREAL (CP)—The printers and publishers of Sports News, a daily containing information on horse racing, were acquitted Thursday of charges of providing "information intended for use in connection with book making."



Judge Irenee Lagarde acquitted Harry S. Gandall and Paul Gandall of the Gandall Printing Company and Romeo Pepin and Lucien Brunelle of the Peel Publishing Company.

Judgment in the cases of Sam Feldan and George Rubin, owners of Peel Publishing, and Gordon Smith, an employee of the company, were suspended until Jan. 12.

Judge Lagarde said "circumstantial evidence offered by the prosecution is not wholly compatible with the culpability of the accused . . . regardless of the defence made. I am of the opinion the Crown has not established proof beyond a reasonable doubt."

Divers Resume Task of Trying To Find Bodies

WINDSOR (CP) — Skin divers returned this morning to the watery stress of a plane crash that claimed the lives of two Hamilton businessmen.

AWAKE NIGHTS — ASLEEP DAYS

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They toss and turn in bed—and then we dull and listless all day. All of which may be due to a temporary kidney condition which calls for the use of Doan's Kidney Pills.

Healthy kidneys filter out excess acids from the blood. If they slow down and impurities stay in the system, backache may result, and headaches often follow. If you don't rest well at night—if you haven't that sparkling step of health in the daytime—use Doan's Kidney Pills. You can depend on Doan's!

Sunday School Lesson

Our Faith Gives It Meaning

BY ROY L. SMITH

The Kiwanis Club is one of the most popular and most highly respected organizations of business men, and enjoys a well deserved tribute for a fine piece of good work. But in one regard it is the subject of much unfavorable criticism.

The name "Kiwanis" is a word that was coined by the founders of the organization, although there have been those who have thought it similar to an Indian word. Actually, however, there is no such connection. "All this is factionist", one of the international officers once said, "for it means that Kiwanis is going to mean in every community an activity that which Kiwanians make it mean."

AND SO CHRISTMAS

Among the Christians of the first century there was no celebration of the birth of Christ, for their minds were occupied with the thoughts of His life, death and resurrection. As a matter of fact, at least two of the Gospels in our New Testament, (Mark and John) make no mention of His birth in any way whatsoever. The first day of the week was observed in memory of the event as the fact that it was on that day that Jesus was seen alive after the crucifixion, and following His crucifixion, and by the time the book of Revelation was written it had come to be known as "the Lord's Day".

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for December 20: "Good News For The World", Luke 2:8-14; Acts 11:19-30.

It was somewhere about 375 A.D. that a festival commemorating the birth of Jesus was observed for the first time in the city of Syria, in Antioch. As early as 376 A.D. St. Augustine has recommended that a suitable remembrance of the birth of Jesus should be arranged for. He suggested December 25 as a suitable date, but he had no authority to establish it as such, or prescribe the rites for its observance. It was until the year 400 A.D. that there was any general agreement in the matter.

And if there be some honest regret in the minds of modern Christians that the day has been taken over by the secularists, perhaps it should be said that for many years the feast was an occasion of merrymaking, and the merrymaking at times degenerated into drunkenness.

POVERTY STRICKEN CHRISTMAS

It was a debauched idea of Christmas which made possible the vogue known as office parties" which is, quite fortunately, passing out among us. Of course there are still those groups who continue to prepare for the commemoration of the birth of Jesus, by engaging in drunken orgies on Christmas Eve, but in an increasing measure the good sense and the reverent heart of America is repudiating the practice.

A WORD FOR CARTHAGE

One of the most famous, devoted and learned of the ancient Church Fathers was Cyprian, the bishop of the Church at Carthage, the great metropolis of North Africa. Preaching one year on the subject of "nativity", he said: "I am not now astonished at the creation of the world, of the heavens, at the earth, at the succession of days and seasons, but I wonder to see God enclosed in the womb of a virgin, the Omnipotent laid in a manger, the eternal Word clothed with flesh".

Had Cyprian been preaching from modern pulpits he would probably have said, "The greatest wonder in the world, to me, is not a universe, a hydrogen bomb, nuclear fission, or any law of thermodynamics. In a way I can understand jet planes, television and electronic calculators. But the thing that amazes me is that God should have, for the sake of His children, in the coming of God among men, can make Christmas magnificent, if we will.

"I'm told you played golf instead of going to church on Sunday."

"That's a lie. And I've got the fish to prove it."

'Just a Second'

stand in awe of the fact that our God submitted Himself to become a child — a helpless baby—in such a world as ours. But I sometimes wonder if He would have done it last night, in view of what this world is doing to today's babies".

THIS IS OUR DAY

It makes little difference that we are unable to fix upon an exact date, and say "This is the actual day of the birth of Jesus". Those of us who are able to invest the 25th of December with the spirit of Christ, and rejoice in the coming of God among men, can make Christmas magnificent, if we will.

Train-Car Crash Kills 8 Persons In South Michigan

Speeding Train Tosses Bodies Alongside Tracks

FOWLERVILLE, Mich. (AP)— A train-car collision killed eight persons in this southern Michigan village late Friday.

Witnesses said the car occupied by five adults and three children drove onto a Chesapeake and Ohio railway crossing just as the streamlined passenger train Pere Marquette sped through at 70 miles an hour.

The crash, just after darkness fell, wiped out all the members of one family—Clyde E. Ballard, 32, his wife, Bertha, 34, and their children, Sandra, 9, and Fenton, Mich.

Others killed were Albert Simpson, 29, of Fenton, driver of the car, and his son, Albert Jr., two months; Mrs. Ruth Kaufman, 36, of Howell, Mich., and her daughter, Dawn, 9, and George Copeman, 36, of Fenton.

CAR CRUSHED

The locomotive diesel engine of the Grand Rapids-to-Detroit luxury train smashed the car and tossed the bodies alongside the track.

"It was awful," choked engineer Ralph Hamilton of Grand Rapids.

Police said the automatic flasher warnings were blinking.

They quoted witnesses as saying the car stopped, then drove into the path of the train. The train came to a stop half a mile away.

Big Four Split On Berlin Issue Seen Developing

By ARTHUR GAVSHON

PARIS (AP)—New Allied difficulties on Berlin were reported developing today among Western Big Four.

Sources emphasized that the differences have not yet crystallized—especially since the Kremlin position has not been worked out. Allied leaders count on at least several months' grace to work out a policy on the divided city before meeting Premier Khrushchev at the summit soonest next year.

The Soviet States has raised no question — without taking a specific stand—whether the Allies should be ready, if pushed by Khrushchev, to abandon their sector.

In any case the American world that existed Western rights in West Berlin, surrounded by Communist East Germany territory, must remain intact.

STOPGAP POLICY

Britain is known to favor a stopgap deal for Berlin pending a real German peace settlement.

France, with fervent West Germany backing, is resisting any "stopgap" deal. The French argue that any change would jeopardize Allied rights in Berlin. The French contend that if Khrushchev really wants a political accommodation with the West he will make no trouble over Berlin.

Accordingly they insist that the Allies go no further in offering concessions to Moscow than those put forward last spring at Geneva. There the Western powers rejected a readiness to cut their troops garrisons, to curb propaganda activities in West Berlin if the Reds would do the same in East Berlin, to accept East German control along the routes into the city from West Germany. They also offered to look at the situation again after five years.

RUSSIAN STAND

The Russians stood firm in Khrushchev's original proposal that Western troops get out of Berlin, but dropped Khrushchev's six-months time limit, which had already expired without incident.

They continued their threat to sign a separate peace treaty with the East German Reds, which government the Western powers refuse to recognize.

In recent exchanges, France and Britain are reported to have agreed on these points:

1. A long-term Berlin solution can emerge only from a real German peace settlement.

2. Unless the Soviet Union comes up with something new, the West must stand on its final Geneva offer.

20 APALACHIN 'HOODS' GUILTY OF CONSPIRACY

Ready to Talk About Underworld Parley

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York State investigation commission has instructed counsel to find out whether several Apalachin delegates convicted of conspiracy are ready now to talk about the underworld conclave.

Following the conviction Friday, seven of the defendants were handed sentences of up to nine Monday before the commission.

Twenty delegates to the 1957 convention at Apalachin, N.Y., were found guilty of conspiring to hide the real purpose of the conclave. The verdict was hailed by Attorney General William P. Rogers as "a landmark in the continuing fight against organized crime and racketeers."

The verdict was returned by a jury of seven men and four women after more than 15 hours of deliberation in the seven-day trial. Some of the well-dressed defendants slumped in their seats and several sobbed.

COULD GET FIVE YEARS

Supreme Court Justice Kaufman set Jan. 14 for sentencing. Each of the convicted men could get up to five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

"I deserve the thanks of the community and the nation by your patience in sitting through this trial," Kaufman told the jury. "This will show the underworld that the courts and other federal agencies cannot be defied or sneered at by people who are considered above the law and beyond the law."

The defendants had explained the meeting of more than 60 underworld figures at the estate in the hillside estate of the late Joseph Barbara as a "visit to a sick friend" and a social affair. Some said they were there because they had car trouble nearby.

Throughout the trial the government conceded that it did not know the secret purpose of the meeting called by Arthur J. Bonanno, Brooklyn, Barbara's son-in-law. Bonanno, 49, is a former Reuter, one-time acting commissioner of investigation, said in a statement.

"I am all over the country and even Cuba and Italy, the gangsters have passed on the mansion of Barbara, a 57-year-old hoodlum who died of cancer and who died of a heart attack last June. The meeting never got under way and I left before the recording the license numbers of automobiles and a roadblock was set up at the entrance to the estate.

The delegates scrambled into their cars and sped straight into the roadblock. Police set a foot into the nearby woods. John C. Montana, 55, a locally elected Republican councilman from Buffalo, was caught in the hopelessly tangled him- self in a barbed wire fence.

Missile Age Means Air Defence Of America Must Start in Europe

WASHINGTON (CP) — The North Atlantic Treaty Organization and United States in the current NATO dispute over military integration is that failure to integrate may hamper and limit future effectiveness of North American air defences.

Gen. Lauris Norstad, Ridder, chief of North America's air defence command, in Washington, has emphasized that the Canada-U.S. air hazlond that the Canada-U.S. air warning system could be pushed northward "to about its practical limitation" and that "we are beginning to look east and west."

The advent of the intercontinental ballistic missile, drastically r ed ing the available warning time against enemy attack, has increased the importance of developing bigger radar networks and pushing the points of detection and missile retaliation closer to enemy fronts.

"Since the (warning) time element continues to grow shorter," Ridder told a meeting of NATO legislators last month, "we in the defence business may be under the necessity of conducting our defence in the air space around

Dakotas Search for More Air Collision Survivors

MONTREAL (CP)—Two RCAF Dakota aircraft droned over Northern Ontario bush country in pre-dawn darkness today in hope of spotting more set by survivors of a mid-air collision.

The United States Air Force planes, a B-47 bomber and F-102 jet interceptor, collided and crashed Thursday 250 miles north of Sault Ste. Marie while on a training flight.

The pilot and co - pilot of the bomber bailed out and were rescued Friday after one night in the open. Three other men, including the bomber's navigator, are missing.

Searchers of the terrain of dense brush and muskeg and the low ceiling, no attempts have been made to land ground parties in the area. But a helicopter was to carry in an investigating team and surgeon today.

The two men rescued Friday were wrecked in the heavily wooded country.

They are Capt. Roy Minor, 34, of Manchester, Tenn., the pilot, and Lieut. Theodore C. Adams, 26, of Greenville, S.C., co-pilot, a bridegroom of three weeks.

Missing are Lieut. Carleton W. Hunt, 26, Oklahoma City, bomber, crew member; Lieut. Lloyd Berry, 26, Nampa, Idaho, observer on the bomber; and Lieut. Gaylord R. Tress, 27, Garner, Iowa, pilot of the interceptor.

The rescued men were interviewed separately at the hospital. They were taken by helicopter to Payne, a U.S. base on the Ship Trout River 62 miles from the crash site and are to remain there until the investigating team begins its inquiry into cause of the accident.

Lieut. Minor, an RCAF survival school graduate, said he landed in a "fairly good" spot, not too close to a spot where its orange markings would be visible from the air.

He said he could see the burning wreckage of the bomber where Lieut. Adams was later picked up. He made and set it in because of dense bush and snow. He made a fire and camped.

Lieut. Adams, the pilot, said he was not located until late Friday, about 19 miles from the crash site.

The missing men are presumed to have baled out and to have been blown from the crash scene by a high wind.

Diefenbaker Says Producers Face Commercial Challengers

TORONTO (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker said today producers are facing commercial challenges that could affect as much as 30 per cent of Canada's gross national product.

"Russia is launching a economic offensive and we must accept the fact that we are in a world in which we live side by side," he told the Canadian Club.

The forthcoming summit meeting of Mr. Diefenbaker said, "would be well advised to give adequate attention and study to the problem of establishing sensible and orderly trade relations between East and West and between Western world countries."

New Air Policy Announced by Federal Govt.

OTTAWA (CP)—A new step in the government's policy of encouraging competition in the air-line industry was announced Friday.

The news announcement by Transport Minister Hees, would open the door to "a more liberal granting of licences" under the Air Transport Board for non-scheduled flights by charter airplanes.

His statement said it is "in the public interest" that licences for this type of service should be made available to the extent to maintain restrictive measures against competition.

The new policy does not apply to regular air services on scheduled routes, which are established in the field.

The Air Industries and Transport Association, which represents commercial air carriers, immediately criticized the announcement.

It "is recognized that Canadian aircraft operations as a whole are presently in a depressed state," the new policy will add greatly to their problems" the AITA said in a statement.

CONSERVATIVES WILL BE UNDER HEAVY ATTACK

Liberals Preparing For Coming Session

By JOHN LEHLAND
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — A many-sided attack on the government will be fired by the Liberals at the coming session of Parliament.

Trade, defence, financial policy and immigration matters appeared today to be the ones on which the main opposition party will concentrate most.

In addition, there will be some sharpshooting at Prime Minister Diefenbaker's gift of a mink coat to his wife. The Liberals probably not objecting to the gift but to the method and questions for charges.

Some of the main actions of the official opposition, as developed in talks with party sources:

Defence: A demand for some form of debate on Canada's Arctic defence policy, following the Commons committee that could keep secrets from the Russians by the unusual procedure of holding some sittings behind closed doors.

Trade: The government will be challenged on its overall trade deficit and also for not getting closer to the tariff-lowering trade talks in Geneva, though the Liberals may not be too sensitive on that policy on this.

Finance: Government money policy is all wrong. This would apply particularly to soaring interest rates. At the moment, no firm alternative appears on the Liberal horizon.

Immigration: The Liberals will probably call for bringing in more people who could be taken care of by the expanding Canadian economy. They may open fire at individual cases of discrimination but are not likely to be too tough in case their own record comes into play. Probably as regards Liberal exclamps on immigrants from the Commonwealth countries.

Housing: A general attack on the government's policies centred mainly on the suggestion that the government is encouraging the wrong kind of home construction.

Romance That Began in Clouds Over Canada Ends in Denmark

AARHUS, Denmark (Reuters) The son of a wealthy Chicago banker and the pretty daughter of a Danish farmer were to be married today, climaxing a romance that began in the clouds in Canada two years ago.

Robert Payne Kellogg, 28-year-old son of banker John P. Kellogg, was to wed 24-year-old Elisabeth Erikzen in the, industrial city of Aarhus, in Denmark.

The romance began two years ago when Robert, sales chief of a Vancouver timber firm, was returning to Canada after a timber and spotted Elisabeth, Danish farmer's daughter who was working as an airline hostess.

"It was love at first sight, I suppose," Elisabeth said. "I was planning to go back home to Denmark—but I stayed for another two years in Canada.

"When I came back this year Robert followed me and asked me to marry him."

The bridegroom's parents, his two brothers, John and Payne, and his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Sherburne Dixon, flew from Paris to Denmark for the wedding.

The wedding aroused widespread interest in the district and attracted hundreds of spectators in addition to the 60 members of both families who are attending.

Payne Thorkild Clausen, who confirmed Elisabeth, travelled from his tiny country parish in North Ceeland to Aarhus to marry the couple.

The ceremony, in both English and Danish, was to last about an hour. The bride was to be given away by her father, 62-year-old farmer Johannes Erikzen.

A champagne and caviar reception will be held in a nearby hotel.

The couple will spend a 12-day honeymoon at fashionable Kitzbuehel in the Austrian Alps before going to their new home in Vancouver.

De Gaulle, Ike Talk Privately As Parley Opens

Integration U.S. Price For Continental Army

PARIS (Reuters) — President Eisenhower today urged President de Gaulle to give ground in his opposition to integrating France's military forces with those of its Western Allies.

This was confirmed by authoritative American sources after Eisenhower and de Gaulle topped off a morning meeting of Western Big Four powers with a private talk in de Gaulle's office.

De Gaulle's reaction was not outlined.

Eisenhower was reported to have fully supported State Secretary Christian Herter who earlier today told the NATO ministerial meeting that an integrated European defence system was the basis on which the United States kept troops on the Continent.

The French and American leaders talked privately for 35 minutes after the opening session of the three-day Western summit meeting with Prime Minister Macmillan and Chancellor Adenauer, called primarily to size up the prospects for the 1960 East-West summit meeting.

FRANCE, FRIENDLY

An American spokesman said the Eisenhower-de Gaulle talk was in private except for interpreters —was "frank and friendly."

State Secretary Herter Hagerty said Eisenhower and de Gaulle may exchange letters on another private this weekend, but he did not say when.

Hagerty said the four states— Britain, France and Germany—and that an East - West summit session should be held.

It was understood that no agreement has yet been reached on an exact date, but that it will be toward the end of April.

(Reuters news agency quoted authoritative informant as saying April 25 is the most likely date.)

The Big Four session concentrated on East - West issues and went into the drafting of specific negotiating proposals for the talks between Khrushchev. A four - power diplomatic working group is expected to be set up to polish these proposals and iron out differences.

In discussing a date for the coming East - West talks the Western Big Four have left room to clearing their own schedules, diplomats said.

SOME ROUGHNESS

Although Hagerty described the discussions as "frank" and "frank and friendly," the subject matter seemed indicative that there may have been some rough moments.

They discussed the French position in NATO, where France is opposed by some other NATO countries in the defence integration issue, and went on to discuss the Algerian problem, the refusal of the United States to support its ally France's position in the United Nations, and Communique Eisenhower signed during a visit to Paris two days ago.

Text of this communique Eisenhower and Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba agreed that there is timed and urgent need for action against France in Algeria

Builders' Group Critical of Rate Increase

TORONTO (CP) — A builders' group says the increase in the National Housing Act mortgage lending rate may open up an active secondary mortgage market similar to that in the United States.

A labor official, however, describes the move as government-inspired inflation.

Clive Kidd, research director for the United Steelworkers of America (CLC), said the increase to 6¼ per cent from six per cent, announced in Ottawa Thursday, will close the door to workers who need new houses and will overburden those in workers' demands for higher wages.

"We have had a lot of penny lectures about the evils of inflation from government leaders," Mr. Kidd said Friday, "but a 6¼ per cent increase in mortgage costs is definitely inflationary."

Maurice Joubert, president of the National House Builders Association, also says the rate rise is "critical to lending at the rate of six per cent."

"We would hope that the bank rate, at least for NHA loans, will be increased to restore their continued participation in the field.

"If it is not, there is the possibility that they will participate actively in the conventional mortgage market, buying up NHA mortgages from other lenders and creating a boom. This would have the beneficial effect of relieving the institution from the pressure for re-investment in the housing field."

G. W. Beardsall, manager of the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation office in North Bay, said the new rate will mean less money will be available for housing in that area.

Eighty - one of the 132 loans made through his office this year were negotiated through banks. Bank loans, with their interest frozen at six per cent, are no longer expected to be available for this purpose, he said.

Speeding into a telephone pole when his vehicle went out of control on a curve at the Canada Cement truck entrance on Highway 2, five miles east of the city, Lyle R. Topping, 32, of R.R. 3, Shannonville, was fatally injured early today.

Police said Mr. Topping was eastbound on his way home from Belleville when he was involved in a Christmas bouquet for employees at Northern Electric near where he worked. The car rolled onto its side and slid into the pole, stopping 50 feet from the wreckage. His body had to be freed from the car.

Dr. D. C. McVicker of Deseronto, attended the victim. Coroner is Dr. John S. Stock.

Provincial police from Belleville who investigated said the accident occurred about 2.30 a.m.

Farmers Warned Not to Sell Hogs Too Quickly

OTTAWA (CP) — Any rush to market hogs before the government leaves the top-hog-price next month will boomerang on the producer, farmers were warned Friday.

Homer J. Maybee, associate director of the agriculture department's livestock division, said any market glut will result in delayed slaughter and settlement and unnecessary carcass shrinkage.

The government is switching from outright purchase to deficiency payments Jan. 9 as a floor price support. After accumulating a surplus of more than 100,000,000 pounds of pork, the government will let farmers do their own marketing and pay them a limited sum if their returns fall below a level based on the 10-year market average.

Mr. Maybee also warned that any rush to sell before Jan. 9, after which prices might drop sharply for a time—could create a surplus of underweight hogs which are spurned by the trade.

At the same time, the agriculture department has revised its October estimate that nearly 30-per - cent more hogs would be marketed in the October-December period than a year ago. The forecast is for 2,200,000 hogs, an increase of only seven per cent. A 1959 decrease in production of 15 per cent is anticipated, totalling perhaps 7,700,000 hogs compared with about 8,600,000 this year.

Y.P.U. Elects New Slate at Yule Meeting

RAWDON — Thirty-eight members of Harden Young Peoples Union attended the Christmas meeting December 10th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Beckett.

Bernard Beckett and his sister Carol welcomed the guests. Raeburn Scott gave the call to worship and the group sang several Christmas hymns. Miss Carol Sharpe read the Bible after which Misses Jean and Janet Tompkins sang a prayer-hymn.

The election of 1960 officers was held. Plans were made for a candlelight service on Sunday evening at Wellmans United Church. It was decided to donate $20 to the M and M fund of Rawdon circuit.

Miss Mildren Morton presided over the program and led in a discussion on the theme, "Christmas Giving". Selections on this subject were read by Allyn Warren and Lois Cook. Frederick Beckett conducted the recreation. An exchange of Christmas gifts provided fun for all.

The January meeting will be in reverse at Mount Pleasant.

The Wellman's girls assisted the hostess in serving lunch.

The president thanked the hostess for her hospitality and the hostess graciously replied. The meeting closed with the "friendship circle".

Profit-Sharing Cheques Mailed to Zeller Employees

In line with Zeller's profit-sharing policy, adopted in 1940, the Company's Administrative offices mailed profit-sharing bonus cheques several days ago to the 1,200 employees in Zeller's Stores across Canada. At the same time, similar bonus cheques were mailed to the staff in the home office and in the company's distribution centre, in Montreal.

Those in executive and managerial positions do not participate in this bonus, but instead share in the final profits of the company when they are known after the end of the fiscal year.

CHEQUES AS HIGH AS $682.56

Based on profits for the period from November 1, 1958, through October 31, 1959, cheques ranged from $81.90 to $682.50 are for 1,354 people who have been in the employ of the company for five years, and are not administrative personnel. The total amount of profit-sharing to these associates is $227,000.

Les Guignoleux To Make Rounds In Coming Week

QUEBEC (CP)—Down through the centuries, Old and New France, les Guignoleux have made their pre-Christmas rounds of the poor.

They'll be doing it again this week in the Quebec City area, although much of the color has disappeared and the operation has been put on a business-like basis.

Where les Guignoleux of the Middle Ages saved in packs throughout the year so anyone who didn't contribute meat and drink, todays version goes quietly from door to door soliciting cash with Water Resources Commission.

Where Quebec Guignoleux once donned the regalia of les coureurs de bois, they now wear business suits under their overcoats.

Quebec City Commercial Travellers Association took over the collection in 1902 and has handled it every year since.

The money collected from each of the city's 29 parishes is divided by La Guignolee and handed over to the parish priest for distribution as he sees fit. Money also goes to Protestant institutions, a Jewish services organization and to the Chinese mission.

La Guignolee (pronounced ging-oo-lay) can't be translated into English. But every Quebecer knows what it means.

It is a word preserved from the earliest days of New France, and is believed to come from the French verb "guigner" — to peer or to beg.

Premier Sauve To Give Grants Under New Bill

INTEGRATION

non-intervference in other countries' affairs; disarmament; and the German problem, including Berlin.

By GERALD LONG
Chief Bonn Correspondent

The main aims of Chancellor Adenauer at the Western summit meeting are: No weakening on Berlin; no separate discussion on Berlin with the Russians; and no change of the Berlin status quo.

The West German leader believes any change of the present basis for western rights in Berlin must be a change for the worse, West German delegation sources said.

He considers any interim arrangement would be subject to denunciation by the Russians—which the present, rights, based on military conquest, are not—and that any separate arrangement for the former capital would unleash prejudice a settlement for the whole of Germany.

Apart from these negative aims, which the West Germans believe have good prospects of success, Adenauer wants to make disarmament the main discussion for the East-West summit agenda.

Several Safe-Driving Tips Given Drivers Before Holiday

OTTAWA (CP) — Don't lose your temper at foolish drivers, or you'll be a holiday-season traffic menace too.

The Canadian Highway Safety Council issued this warning Friday and coupled it with several safe-driving tips.

One is that the "careless, forgetful" driver is here to stay, and it's up to the conscientious motorist to keep an eye out for him.

Another is that even one cocktail impairs a person's driving ability and the excitement of the holiday season adds to alcohol's impact.

On careless drivers, the council warns:

"Don't be angry with these fools. Ignore them and play it safe yourself. Anger, in itself, is a traffic danger. As created, a brake motorist will do things he knows he couldn't do."

SAFE-DRIVING TIPS

The council also offers these driving tips:

Cold motor — Let your engine warm up before you start driving in traffic. Otherwise it might stall.

Wipers—Keep wipers clear of accumulated ice, and don't wait until the windshield is clogged with snow or mud before turning them on.

Rear window—Take time out to keep rear windows clear.

Snowbanks — Don't you can get stuck on ice or in snow. Carry something to provide traction. Carry a pair of old overshoes, old roofing shingles, lengths of chicken-coop wire or sheets of corrugated cardboard.

Sliding — Slow down on slippery roads. If a skid starts, turn the front wheels in the direction of the skid.

Stopping — Pump the brake pedal several times, don't just push on it. Pumping avoids locking the wheels and getting the car completely out of control.

Space—Cars need more space between each other in winter time. Sudden stops by other motorists, stalled cars, pedestrians camouflaged by falling snow or hidden by deep drifts are all reasons why you should leave plenty of room to stop.

Hood—If your car is stuck in snow, clear the front wheels first. A vehicle will overcome rear - wheel resistance more readily than front-wheel blockage.

Poison — Carbon monoxide fumes are odorless and colorless. Always keep a window partly open. If you start the car in a garage, keep the garage door open.

Failure Can Be a Noteworthy Achievement Also

According to the Italian Continentale News Agency the Russians have lost three men and a woman in a series of unsuccessful attempts to put a man into space. The first attempt was made in 1957, according to the report, with other attempts being made in 1958, and in January and February of this year.

The four who died have made a contribution to scientific progress which might well be recognized throughout the world. Although they did not achieve their purpose, they nevertheless made an effort which should not be subjected to the limbo of the archives of unsuccessful experiments. We realize that the Russians prefer to speak only of those incidents which prove successful which may be considered only natural perhaps, but there is certainly no disgrace to be attached to the failures of the Russian scientific efforts or any country's efforts at broadening the scope and horizon of human knowledge.

It is a recognized fact that knowledge does not come to man easily. Sacrifice and failure preceded almost every major achievement by man, whether in his quest for scientific knowledge or in his search for humanitarian truths. Although in their highly competitive attitude towards their actions in any field ,the Russians may feel that failure is despicable and unspeakable, we might point out that man has usually progressed and benefited just as much if not more from his failures as from his successes.

If the Canadian News Agency, which specializes in news from behind the "iron curtain", is correct in its information, as it has been proved with its scoops on other occasions, the names of Alexei Ledowsky, Serenity Schiborin, and Andrej Mitkov and the woman, Mirija Siromoy, should be posted somewhere along the highway of scientific endeavor.

We are sure that no one would object to this recognition, least of all the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Changing Times

Three thousand professors and students at the University of Toronto have petitioned the Federal Government to press for "immediate and permanent end to the testing and production of nuclear weapons and for measures to prevent the spread of such weapons to countries that do not have them."

Writing to the Toronto Star, a Toronto woman complains that the Canadian Labor Congress has not taken similar action.

"It is interesting to speculate on what the results might be if the trade union movement undertook such a petition", she says.

It is, indeed, interesting to speculate today and interesting, too, to realize that a year or so ago there would have been no need for speculation as to the reaction of many to such a petition from organized labor. "A bunch of ruddy Reds" would have been the chorus heard in many circles.

Come to think of it, why hasn't the U. of T. petition met with a chilling response? No references at all to spread of socialists, Utopian theorists, dewellers in ivory towers. Can it be that it is now respectable to be an intellectual?

One Statement . . . Five Questions

Walter Lippman writing: "But the Soviet Union knows that our (U. S.) military mission in Iran is not a military "base" and that as long as we do not set up missiles in Iran there is no military threat."

Question—Does this not imply that if a U.S. missile base were set up in Iran it would constitute a military threat to Russia?

Question—If this is true, do not missile bases established by the U.S. in NATO countries also constitute military threats to Russia?

Question—If these bases are military threats to Russia, can we be sure that the Russians are comfortably certain they will be used only to repel Russian aggression?

Question—If the Russian lack such complete faith in the good intentions of the U.S., is it not natural for them to be as concerned about U.S. missile bases in Europe as the U.S. is concerned about Communist infiltration in, say, Cuba and Central America?

Question—If Russia is really frightened, might not Khrushchev mean what he says when he declares the Soviet Union would welcome complete disarmament?

THE MAN WHO HELPS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

I'll let the man who slaps my back
And bids me smile when I'm feeling blue;
It isn't the man who grasps my hand
And listens my hardluck story through;
It isn't the man with the cheerful words
Who does the most when the wolves all yelp,
But the man who digs in his pocket deep
And says: "Old pal, will a five-spot help?"

A cheery smile helps some, I know,
And a kindly word makes a fellow start
Anew sometimes when his burden's great,
But the way to get at a fellow's heart
Is to go to him now in his hour of need
And scatter his clouds of gloom and doubt;
Put your hand right in your pocket and say to him:
"Old pal, will a five-spot help you out?"

RETURN TO RIDE A WEE
(Article 12)

After all the "padding" about, it was some relief to return to the calm of Ride a Wee, to catch up with the mail from home but most particularly to learn the result of the Ontario Provincial election. Dawson Creek and Grand Prairie radio stations of course were in full flow with details of the Alberta vote but not a whisper of what happened in Ontario until some days later when the Edmonton papers reached the area.

There, from one of the other interesting bits names "Ride a Wee. A new outfit had hut two calves into the valley and they were probably hanging around till some rancher broke in on. But not by this camera. Like every outpost, a new moose protects her young and in the protecting, sometimes takes the lot of territory. There was the lazy cinnamon bear cub which the Indian found in the side of the road as the car went by, a cute little fellow with much to learn about that killer — man.

There was still another motor cyclist, this time a yet unseen colony, that is unseen to this writer, up through the seven-hole Greenlands east of Dawson Creek, an area through which the Pine River flows. Pine River flows north to empty its waters into the Peace River at Peace. This was one of the first sections of northern B. C. to be settled. The land is good, the soil is good and so are many of its present day farmers and residents.

MARRIED A RELATIVE

Finally the car reached the home of Mrs. Moore, a grandson of an early settler, and whose wife was a Moore, a niece of this writer, known as a writer, not her, but now known far and wide as a prairie artist. May Ireland was an officer in a western battalion which trained at Niagara-on-the-Lake, before leaving for overseas, in World War II. It was this battalion that escorted a large number of German prisoners-of-war from Petawawa Camp to the detention camp at Centre Lake near the north-eastern boundary of Algonquin National Park. Since the prisoners were in charge, Taylor runs through his property, it was only to be expected that he would be detailed to inspect with several miles of line to patrol daily.

One of the finest farms, that is for acreage and buildings, in this northern part of B.C. is the property of "Gus" Hendershot, retired builder for the city of Belleville. (sometimes spelled Hendersot, Mr. Henderson, whose son is married to a sister of neighbor Ireland's wife, is one of the most devoted to trotters and pacers and harness horse racing in Canada, yet only not be classed as an owner or driver.

The riding he represents is one of the province's largest and most interesting part of B.C.,

Come to Church for Christmas Services

Christmas Lights the Way

By REV. ALBERT D. BELDEN, D.D.

The light of the sphere which startled the shepherds and guided the wise men on their journey became the Living Light of men in the Bethlehem stable. This Light has never gone out, says the Reverend Albert D. Belden, however much men have tried it, fought it or ignored it down the centuries. The fact of Christmas gives renewed meaning each year to the words, "He that followeth Me shall not walk in darkness but have the light of life."

The Christmas story is bathed in Light. "And the glory of the Lord shone round about them." No wonder the shepherds were startled — Light, glorious Light, at midnight!

And the Wise Men — seekers after light — would they have come 'from afar' if it had not been for the Star?

All through that eager, strenuous journey they surrendered to the lure of Light. Not only was there a Star for them in the Heavens — they knew it led to a more wonderful Star upon the Earth — the Star of Bethlehem — the Living Light of men.

This is the message of Christmas 1959 — that Light shone once and for ever, and its Light is still undimmed — it shines still for us As the poet has written:

"The soft light from a stable door
Lies on the Midnight lands
The Wise Men's star shines evermore
Over all desert sands.

No flickering torch, no
tempering fire
But Light — the Life of men
Whatever clouds may veil the skies
Never is night again."

Never is night again! The fact of Christ has embedded in history must save the world at last. It is irremovable.

However men may flee it, or fight it, or ignore it, the Light abides as steadfast as the planet itself.

"If you wish upon a star!" — what a favorite song that has been; yet there is no star upon which one could with so accurately as the Star of Bethlehem. Have you a Star to follow? Why not this one? This Light shines for the Final Illumination of mankind. Now we can see our way through all the fogs of the world. Even as He said, "He that followeth Me shall not walk in darkness but have the light of life."

Indeed, "Never is night again."

Mr. and Mrs. John Daniel Robinson are shown cutting the wedding cake following their recent marriage in Bethany United Church, Belleville R.R. 6. The bride is the former Miss Carol Louise Welsh, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Welsh of Belleville. The bridegroom is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Robinson, of Actinolite. (Photo by McCormick's Studio, Belleville.)

ROBINSON—WELSH

Basket of white and red-tinted chrysanthemums and ferns formed a lovely background for a very pretty double-ring wedding in Bethany United Church, R.R. 6 Belleville, on Saturday, December 5, at high noon when Carol Louise Welsh, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Welsh, became the bride of John Daniel Robinson, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Robinson of Actinolite. The Reverend J. McCarney, pastor of the church officiated.

Mrs. Beverley Foster, Campbellton, rendered the wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Dorothy Herbert, of Moira, who sang, "The Wedding Prayer" before the ceremony and "I'll Walk Beside You" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, she bride was charming in her bridal gown of white Chantilly lace over white satin with round neckline accented with scrol pearls and sequins and featuring a fitted bodice with tiny lace-covered buttons down the back, long lily-pointed sleeves and a full bouffant skirt. The headdress was a seed pearl crown with tiny points, each having a pearl drop. Her fingertip scalloped veil of tulle illusion was decorated with lace blossoms centred with tiny pearls. She carried a semi-cascade bouquet of red roses and wore a single strand of pearls, the gift of the bridegroom.

The maid of honor, Miss Elsie Martin, of Stirling, and the bridegroom's sister, Miss Ruth Robinson, of Tweed, as bridesmaid, were dressed alike in royal blue velvet with Sabrina necklines with a tiny bow at the back. Long, tone effect accentuated the waistline, ending with full skirts of the same shade. White feather headdresses and white gloves complemented their dresses. They carried semi-cascades of white 'mums centred with red-tinted 'mums.

Little three-and-a-half-year-old Miss Sylvia Meeks of Marlbank was a picturesque flower girl dressed in red velvet with white lace trimmed bodice and the shirt caught up at intervals, with lace trim. She wore a red velvet and feather headdress and carried a small cascade of flowers similar to the bouquets of white and red tinted 'mums.

The bridegroom was attended by Mr. Paul Irvin of Actinolite, while the ushers were Mr. Allan Robinson of Tweed, brother of the bridegroom and Mr. Dennis Nutt of R. R. 6 Belleville.

The reception held at the Hotel Quinte Belleville where the bride's table was separated with white damask centred by a three-tiered all-white wedding cake topped by a bell under which a pair of doves held wedding rings. White tulle united the base and the bridal bouquets added a further nuptial accent. Tall white candles in silver holders and a colored lighting effect from the ceiling added to the atmosphere of the dining room.

The bride's mother received wearing blue lace in princess style with three-quarter sleeves and lace overjacket with dusty pink accessories and corsage of pink carnations. Assisting her in the receiving line was the bridegroom's mother wearing a rose wool in sheath style with white feather hat and corsage of pink and white carnations.

For the wedding trip around the Lake Ontario via Niagara the bride wore a royal blue flowered cotton dress with royal blue feather hat, brown fur jacket and brown accessories with pink rose corsage.

Guests were present from Toronto, Oshawa, Peterborough, Kingston, Actinolite, Frankford, Stirling, Moira and Hallowell.

The bride was the honored guest, prior to her marriage, at three miscellaneous showers—one at the home of Mrs. Lloyd Price, Actinolite, with Mrs. Bruce Price co-hostess; one at the home of Mrs. Ellis Hinse, R. R. 6 Belleville, and one by her girl associates at the Bank of Montreal, Belleville, where the bride is employed.

The bridegroom was also honored at a stag party by his Tweed boy friends and presented with a gift of money.

Mr. and Mrs. Robinson are making their home at Actinolite.

The Experts Say

Women Far too Cautious Handling Good China

By REGA BLAKELY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Handling good china is "handling a baby; says Hugh R. Parker, president of a large china manufacturing firm.

"Women are far too cautious with their china," he said. "It's just like handling a baby — won't break, either."

His particular reproach is against those women who are afraid to use good china every day.

"They buy cheap earthenware and hide away their china. Actually they're paying as much in the long run as they would for good china," he says.

ELEVATES MEAL

"Good china elevates the whole meal to a relaxed, gracious way of living, and we're not speaking enough these days in gracious living."

The casual post-war living is on its way out, he says. So is dinner in the living room and switched between television programs.

TVs are going into recreation rooms and dining rooms are coming back.

In January, his firm is introducing a new British tableware in which members of his company describe as "bone china without the bone."

The china is designed to compete with Japanese, German and other Continental china which is being sold in Canada, the United States and Australia.

The traditional English ceramic industry has been centred in the Stoke area, developed by the master potters in the 18th century, Mr. Parker points out. The new product is designed to be intermediate in both price and quality.

The three types of tableware produced by Mr. Parker's firm are explained by his staff members.

Fine earthenware was developed in Staffordshire nearly 200 years ago. It is translucent, and the plastic ball clay, china clay, flint and Cornish stone, a type of feldspar, used in it, has an opaque body and is porous under the glaze. It is then refired, with glazed stats the color is cream to off - white. The mechanical strength of earthenware and its resistance to breaking and chipping are relatively low.

Bone china was first experimented with by Josiah Lowestoft and Chelsea in the 18th century and perfected in Staffordshire to-ward the end of the same century. It contains up to 30 per cent bone ash. The other principal ingredients are china clay and china stone. It has a translucent body and glaze but which is translucent and delicate in appearance, although it is the strongest tableware body so far invented.

A new English translucent china is a feldpathic china because it contains a proportion of felspar in its composition. It differs from Continental porcelain in both composition of the body itself and in the technique employed in fusing both the body and the glaze.

Where God Has Placed Their Feet

By ALMA MASON

(Sin is a serious)

I had occasion for some years to visit regularly in the home of a family consisting of a young mother and three children, all under five children. The income of the father was completely inadequate to meet the needs of the family. The mother envolved a plan whereby she could add to the family income by running a small business in her home.

The young father objected to the plan, using as the basis of his objection, the fact that long hours of extra work he felt sure they would sap her physical energy and leave her little time to care for the children. However, she overcame his objections.

Often, she found her working day completely traversed the circumference of the kitchen clock as the months and years sped along, she secretly longed for freedom from the endless and arduous tasks and the confinement she knew to be hers.

Being a wise and good wife and mother and one with a deeply religious faith, she did not succumbed at the offset of her problem. She would never neglect in the history of the world, fearless and devoted wife and mother was desperately needed to fight the Prince of the Powers of Darkness.

PRAYER FOR FRIENDS

The parents made their home a gathering place for friends and family. It became a haven for the friends of the children. Many of them lacked a proper home life as their parents were seldom home.

When the children reached college years, they had formed the habit of coming to their home as a mecca where all of their numerous friends were perpetually welcome. Often when holiday time arrived they invited young people to gather hands to gain or around their giant tree and huge dining table, knowing that mother and father never were object to a few lonely extra young people to share the festivities.

The parents never neglected their family or their ever widening circle of friends. They celebrated birthdays and all special occasions. They never failed to pay compliments of their children and took a keen interest and delight in their endeavours, their dreams and their achievements.

They shared their material blessings with the lonely, the handicapped and the sorrowing. They knew pain and compassion on all within their vast scope of thought and vision, trusting that such examples of kindness and unselfishness would be copied by their children.

Personal perplexities and physical disabilities were pushed ruthlessly into the background to make room for the difficulties and myriad needs of others.

Believing that all of God's children is blessed or cursed a little time, that one's share in it can be increased by increase in pleasure, cement faith and intensify brotherly love, they freely and joyously distributed money and energy and time as seeds which they knew would germinate. They did so with no expectation of return from humanity, believing that God took note of their personal needs if they scattered the bread He had given them.

EXHAUSTED BY WORK

The years passed and the husband watched signs of complete exhaustion etch themselves in the face of his wife. He grieved when her once strong body began to show inevitable signs of the impact of the gruelling, arduous years. He scolded her and begged her to relax, but it took effect on

Second Glance

"In for a penny, in for a pound."—An old proverbial saying.

This page-wide advertisement on early coin banks caught our attention because of the little five-year-old lad we saw in the bank, yesterday.

"How much I got?" he demanded of the young lady teller as he thrust a penny bank in the shape of his baby shoe on the ledge of the marble till at the wicket. He soon could have done so had his young mother not been down to lift him up.

CANNIFTON W.A.

The regular social dinner and quilting meeting of Cannifton United Church W.A. was held in the Sunday School rooms. Dinner was in charge of Mrs. G. Lywood and Mrs. F. Putman and their assistants.

The rooms looked festive decorated with red and green streamers and silver bells. The long tables with cloths were pretty centred with red poinsettias and colored bulbs.

Before the Blessing, the children all joined in singing "Jingle Bells". A delicious menu was served to a large number.

At two o'clock the president, Mrs. A. Brenton opened the meeting, with Mrs. H. Empson accompanying at the piano.

The reports were read and approved and showed the W.A. had raised a total of $1,200.00 profit. Twenty-eight quilts have been finished during the year.

As last year's officers were returned there was no election.

Mrs. A. Brenton and Mrs. D. Brenton were appointed to look after the Christmas cards with Christmas remembrances. Donations were given to the Victoria Mission and Mrs. M. and M. fund and others.

The correspondence was read and the card secretary was instructed to send cards to a number who are sick.

The devotional Service opened with all singing "Angels From the Realms of Glory", followed by the Lord's Prayer in unison. Mrs. D. Brenton gave a lovely Christmas reading and the story "Christmas in a homemakers thatin the material and physical sense and thought of Christmas, I one should not forget the spiritual side which is the real meaning of Christmas and should be aware of others' needs at this time.

Mrs. A. Brenton read the Scripture found in St. Luke, Mrs. Fred Furniss sang a solo "Christmas Hymn" with Mrs. Boyd accompanying her on the piano.

Mrs. D. Brenton received a vote of thanks to Mrs. Boyd for her faithful help and untiring efforts on behalf of the Association. Mrs. Boyd said it was a pleasure to help and that she enjoyed the work. She also thanked all for the kindness shown during the past year and wished all a very merry Christmas.

The president brought greetings from the Rev. J. McCartney who wished all the members the joy of the season.

The president closed with the Mizpah Prayer "May the Spirit of the Child of Bethlehem Enter into Our Hearts This Christmas".

Quilting was the order of the day with one finished.

Series of Famous Hymns

"WHAT CHILD IS THIS"

What Child is this, who, laid to rest,
On Mary's lap is sleeping?
Whom angels greet with anthems sweet,
While shepherds watch are keeping?

This, this is Christ the King,
Whom shepherds guard and angels sing;
Haste, haste to bring Him laud,
The Babe, the Son of Mary.

So bring Him incense, gold, and myrrh;
Come, peasant, King, to own Him;
The King of kings salvation brings,
Let loving hearts enthrone Him.
This, this is Christ the King,
Whom shepherds guard and angels sing;
Haste, haste to bring Him laud,
The Babe, the Son of Mary.

The world's treasury of Christmas hymns and carols has a glorious collection which includes contributions from Christian writers and musicians of many lands.

An English bard and man of letters, William Chatterton Dix, wrote this beautiful song nearly 100 years ago. After many Christmases, it seems to be growing in favor. Its music — an old French melody known as Greensleeves — is responsible for much of its popularity.

Mr. Dix was born at Bristol, England on June 14, 1837. He wrote enough religious music to make several song collections, and published several of these between 1860 and 1880. An Epiphany hymn entitled "As With Gladness Men Of Old", was one of his earliest creations. He was only 23 years old when he finished it, in 1860, while recovering from a critical illness.

Managing a marine insurance business in Glasgow, Scotland, called for a good bit of Mr. Dix's time but he found leisure hours for writing and turned out 30 or 40 hymns before his death in 1898. Some of these, like "Come Unto Me, Ye Weary" and "Hallelujah! Sing To Jesus!", proved to be real favorites when he published them in his collections of "Hymns Of Love And Joy" and "Altar Songs". They are still popular in many Scottish country song books of church and Sunday school.

CONSIDERATE GIFT PHOTOGRAPHS

Mrs. Inexperienced has just had photographs made of herself and youngsters, and she is now in the throes of planning just who to receive them for Christmas gifts. Reading my little friend stembles, I thought a few suggestions might help those who are in the market of photographs as gifts would not go amiss.

Now Mrs. Inexperienced is a doting parent, which is perfectly natural. Anyway, we all find the little Susie and Junior are unusually attractive and extremely clever in their parents' eyes, presenting their pictures to the acquaintance who lives up the street would definitely seem an unfair imposition on said acquaintance. It puts the recipient in the position of having to place the photograph on display at all times for fear Mrs. Inexperienced will drop in unexpectedly, with resultant hurt feelings if the picture is among the missing. Mrs. Inexperienced had faced the issue squarely, she would have realized that while the picture of little Susie in her "birthday suit" may be priceless to her, it could have no possible lasting interest to the next-door neighbor.

It's rarely wise to offer your own picture as a gift, except when presenting one to a husband or wife, a near relative or a close friend. To give a photograph of yourself to anyone not in this category indicates a certain conceit. Of course if you have been asked for a photograph by someone who is a friend of long standing, the gift is in order. But never present it in a frame except when given within the family circle, for by doing so you indicate that you expect it to be on display.

While on this subject, it might be well to offer a warning! When giving photographs, avoid the autograph idea of inscribing your picture "To darling Billy, (or Mary, whichever the case may be) with all my love" might in future years become an object of acute embarrassment, not to mention an object of ridicule. Better no autograph at all than one that might boomerang!

A friend of mine has an excellent solution as to what to do photographs of friends which are presented to her from time to time. She makes no attempt to frame them and places them on display, but she has, reposing on her piano, a large, attractive, leather-bound album in which she places all gift photographs. Therefore, all chance of embarrassment is avoided if the giver of the picture comes to call.

A lack of consideration for others is definitely shown when the thoughtlessly put on display next out hither and yon. So, before Christmas, stop and think twice about how the recipient of your gift is going to look at that photograph of you!

OTTAWA LETTER

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Editor's Note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's page editor and a lawyer. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Janet R. — My mother-in-law calls me a "Dirty Housekeeper". Am I?

Bruce R. — We can't run away from trouble.

Janet R. — I have about the most awful baby problem that ever hit anyone. The worst of it is that I realize I am very much to blame.

My husband and I had been married five years and he had a night job the entire time. I got sick of sitting home with the kids every night and I managed to get a babysitter and started going out with one of my old boy friends. We had an affair and I really fell with him.

The whole thing broke up after three months and I begged my husband to take me back. He did and he has been just wonderful about it. The problem is that my mother-in-law will have nothing to do with us and goes around telling everyone what a terrible girl I was before I married my husband. She's succeeded in turning most of our friends against us.

Of course I don't want my mother to like this but how can I make her stop if she won't even have anything to do with me? She's the only one she'd never talk to me if I took Janet back not is disloyal, either. She stuck to her word.

Frankly, I sure would like to move out of this dump, but I have no money to do it on. The car is falling to pieces and could not get us far. If I sold the house I couldn't get enough to tide us over and get us a new house. We just can't win unless we sweat it out.

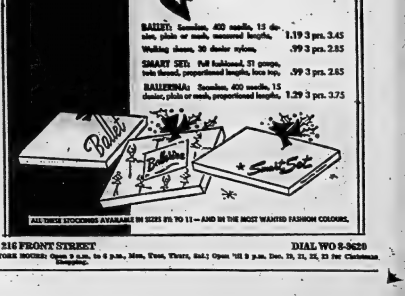
The Council: Bruce has a fine, strong character to have stood up so well in the face of all his difficulties. He certainly could do without an evil-tongued woman telling her nature before her him.



Since it is economically impossible for this family to move to another locality, they must try to make their peace as best they can. However, they need help from someone who could influence Janet's mother. We think the "someone" should be a clergyman.

The older woman must be made to understand that she is causing a severe injury to her son and her grandchildren. Then children must grow up in the community they live. Janet can't afford to let them move in an atmosphere in which their mother is referred to as a tramp.

Actually, no right-minded person would attempt to make a woman, but unfortunately there are enough small-minded, nasty individuals in any community to cause harm. There is no point in blaming the persons.

Bruce and his family are entitled to their chance to rebuild their lives. Their unhappiness will gradually be forgiven, if not forgotten, as they make the contacts to be a decent wife and mother. The only person directly concerned in this matter is Bruce and his forgiveness should set an example.

Janet should hold her head high and behave according to the best standards. If she does, every person with a sense of real justice will respect her — and not the woman who is out to harm her.

Macmillan Launched Most Intensive Period of Personal Diplomacy by Chiefs of State

OF YEAR-END REVIEW

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Less than a year ago Prime Minister Macmillan's white fur hat appeared in the streets of Moscow, launching one of the most intensive periods of personal diplomacy by chiefs of state the world has ever known.

Of all the distinguished travellers of the year, Macmillan was among the most hopeful that the anxiety he at his journey's end. As 1959 was ending, it was still a tantalizingly short distance away.

The climbers were on speaking terms with one another, had likely still differed as to the best course to the peak—not on what they would find there.

CALMED ATMOSPHERE

Something more than a fur hat might still be needed to solve the problems dividing the world. But the British prime minister's performance, viewed with apprehension in most Western capitals, achieved its aim of creating an atmosphere in which negotiations were possible.

Before Macmillan left for Moscow, East and West were frozen into immobility by Premier Khrushchev's ultimatum ordering the Western powers out of Berlin. The latter refused to discuss the problem unless the Russians withdrew the ultimatum; the Russians refused to withdraw unless negotiations began.

Shortly after the prime minister's return, as uneasy compromise removed the time limit from Khrushchev's threat and led to a fruitless conference of foreign ministers in Geneva, Berlin remained high on the list of the world's potential flashpoints but the urgency of the danger diminished.

If the Russian applause for Macmillan's flamboyant headgear started a real thaw in the cold war, it also created problems between Britain and its allies.

France, West Germany and the United States all had expressed fears at the close relations prime minister-deliberately or involuntarily might be led to bargain unilaterally on points of common Western interest during his talks with Khrushchev. Macmillan vigorously denied any such intention.

But, even though he visited all the capitals to offer personal assurances that he had given nothing away, there was continued evidence of distrust between Paris and Bonn. Misunderstandings were increased by mischievous press comment on both sides of the channel.

Months later, Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd visited Paris for private talks with President de Gaulle; Chancellor Adenauer conferred with Macmillan in London; and both leaders declared themselves satisfied. But in the necessity to restore cordial relations with their neighbors, Britain virtually abandoned the initiative as an East-West negotiator.

There were no similar difficulties with the United States. The tumultuous popular acclaim given President Eisenhower on his visit to London in August testified to the disappearance of the last lingering after-effects of the serious breach between the Anglo-Saxon powers at the time of Britain's intervention in Suez.

The Suez affair receded further into the background when Macmillan left Washington with a gift re-establishing relations with the United Arab Republic of Gamal Abdel Nasser, the man whose removal from power was the prime objective of the Suez action.

The long, violence-ridden dead lock over the future of Cyprus ended as Britain reached agreement with Greece and Turkey on a constitution for the Mediterranean island defining the status of its Greek and Turkish inhabitants when it emerges from British rule.

Settlement of these two disputes could greatly improve Britain's standing with Asian and African powers which had seen them as evidence of a persistence of colonialist-thinking in British foreign policy.

To a lesser degree, the same issue arose in two other international problems.

There was criticism, echoed at home by the opposition Labor party, when British spokesmen at the United Nations supported France against protests by African countries over her impending nuclear tests in Algeria. Similar complaints were heard when Britain declined to endorse UN complaints against South Africa's policy of apartheid.

Britain's defence of her attitudes was similar in both instances — that the government had no desire to interfere with domestic concerns of other states.

CANADIAN TOUR

LONDON (Reuters) — Russia's State Symphony Orchestra will perform Tchaikovsky's most important works during a two-month series of concerts in the United States and Canada, This news agency said today. The orchestra will visit 14 American and Canadian cities during January and February.

Our Christmas Story

by Mrs. Billy Graham
as told to Elizabeth Sherrill

Good-Bye to the Garden

Chapter 4

There is a special word for the evil thing that Adam and Eve did. The word is "sin."

To sin means to disobey God, to fall short of His goodness. When Adam and Eve ate the fruit that God had told them not to eat, it was the first sin, so it is sometimes called "the original sin."

At first, Adam and Eve couldn't see that their sin had hurt them at all. They waited, a bit anxiously, for God had said, "Thou shalt surely die"—but, after all, they were still alive.

But Adam and Eve did not understand the kind of death God was talking about. That death was three-fold. One part of it had happened instantly — their wonderful fellowship with God had already ended.

Part of it had just begun — now everything in the world was under a death sentence. All plants and animals and Adam and Eve themselves would grow old and die.

SEPARATED FROM GOD

Finally, there was the death of being forever separated from God. But already God was planning a way by which His wayward children could return to Him. This dreadful eternal death would be only for those who refused to believe that way.

This is what God had warned them about. When He had said, "If you choose not to obey Me, then you will be cutting yourselves off from Me, and this death will follow." Though Adam and Eve did not know it, it had begun already.

They had scarcely swallowed the fruit when a feeling came over them that they had never known before. The feeling was shame!

At that moment, they heard God's voice in the garden. He had come for His evening visit and He was calling them.

"Adam! Eve!"

IN TERROR

Adam and Eve looked at each other in terror. Always before they had run to meet Him, for this was the best moment of the day. But now they were afraid.

For the first time, they did not want to be near God. They wanted to run far away from Him. In their fingers, in their ears, to pretend they couldn't hear.

And so they tried to hide from God. They ran behind some trees and waited hoping He soon would go away.

But God waited for these two children of His. When they did not come, He called to Adam. "Where art thou?"

And Adam came out from behind the trees. He was trembling all over, and he said falsely, "I heard Thy voice in the garden, and I was afraid, because I was naked; and I hid myself."

NOT THE TRUTH

Now this was not the truth. The real reason Adam hid was that he had disobeyed God and was afraid he'd be punished. But he still hoped God wouldn't find out about the fruit from the beautiful tree. So he lied to God.

God's voice was sorrowful as He asked, "Who told thee that thou wast naked? Hast thou eaten of the tree whereof I commanded thee that thou shouldest not eat?"

Now Adam saw that there was no use in trying to deceive God. But he still thought perhaps God would not be angry at him if he could blame somebody else.

So he pointed to Eve and said, "The woman whom thou gavest to be with me, out the tree, and I did eat."

HIS TURN STERN

Then God turned to Eve and when He spoke His voice was stern.

"Eve!" He said. "What is this that thou hast done?"

Eve was frightened and she looked around for someone to blame.

"The snake did it!" she said. "It talked me into it! It was his fault."

But God was not impressed by excuses. He knew what was wrong. All three had to take the consequences.

God turned first to the snake. "Upon thy belly shalt thou go," He told it, "and dust shalt thou eat all the days of thy life."

And ever since, snakes have squirmed along the ground.

As for Adam and Eve, they had shut themselves away from the happy He God had planned for them in the Garden of Eden. They were driven into the bleaker, cold, rainy world outside. Instead of simply reaching up into the trees for their dinner, they had to plant seeds and pull weeds and raise their own food.

HOMELESS NOW

And no matter how hard Adam worked, the fruit and grain that he grew did not taste as good as the fruit in the Garden of Eden. Thorns and thistles grew up out of the ground and choked what he planted. When he tried to pull these weeds up, they scratched his hands. Adam wondered where they came from. He never seen such things in the garden God had planted.

But worst of all, Adam and Eve had separated themselves from God. They could no longer be the very thing they had been created to be in the first place — God's companions on the earth. The warm and constant fellowship with God was broken. They had stepped outside God's love and now they were homeless.

Announcement of Another Royal Baby Pushed Family Activities Into Background

OF YEAR - END REVIEW

By STEWARD MacLEOD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—The announcement that the Queen expects a third child early next year was the biggest royal news story of 1959.

Made after the Queen and Prince Philip returned from their strenuous six-week Canadian tour, the announcement pushed the Royal Family activities into the background.

It diverted the spotlight from the busiest year ever undertaken by the Royal Family.

Starting the last 11 months the Royal Family — including aunts, uncles and cousins of the Queen — have girdled the globe to see the most far-flung members, and territories, of the Commonwealth. There were few periods when no tour was in progress.

FEW FORMAL FUNCTIONS

But because of the birth of the baby, expected in late January or early February, 1960 will begin with a minimum of formal functions. The Queen and Prince Philip have no plans to leave Britain during the year. Only state visits to Britain by President de Gaulle of France in April and by the king of Thailand in July are on the Queen's formal schedule.

Other Royal Family functions during the year included a three-month tour of The West Indies by the Princess Royal, starting in January, a visit to Rhodesia in May by the Queen Mother and a tour of Nigeria by Princess Margaret in October.

Early in 1959 Prince Philip made a 10-day world-wide trip by boat, train and plane. His whistle-stop tour included India, Pakistan, Solomon Islands, Gilbert and Ellice Islands, North Borneo, Australia, Rangoon, Singapore, Bermuda and the Bahamas.

He returned in April, just two months before the Queen left for Canada and the opening of the St. Lawrence Seaway.

OTHER TOURS

In the meantime the Queen Mother had visited Kenya and Uganda, the Duchess of Kent toured Latin-American countries and the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester went to Nigeria.

Princess Alexandra, young cousin of the Queen, made her first overseas tour with a successful visit to Australia in September.

One of the the events postponed because of the baby's pregnancy was a fall tour she and Prince Philip planned for Ghana, Sierra Leone and Gambia. Prince Philip made a one-week visit to Ghana in November, and will return with the queen in 1961.

Although 1959 was a busy year for the Queen, it was not one she had hoped for.

Her 83-year-old mother, Queen Elizabeth the Queen Mother, suffered a heart attack in August and was confined comfortably with specialists at sports functions.

It was a busy year for official duties. The Queen opened new churches, various anniversary celebrations and official court duties. With the Queen and Prince Philip away from London much of the year—they had an extended vacation in Scotland following the North American tour — many of the functions were handled by the Queen Mother and Princess Margaret.

Princess Margaret celebrated her 29th birthday with no lack of suggestion for a future husband. But she continued her gay round of activities without any indication of a serious romance.

Special Meeting To Clear Air About Salaries

KINGSTON (CP)—A special meeting of city council will be held Monday to discuss whether alderman will receive a controversial $700 salary increase they voted themselves last summer.

Alderman will discuss amending a city bylaw to make it clear they may receive half the increase.

They originally were to receive cheques for $350 Tuesday but city solicitor Hugh F. Gibson said finance committee had no power to authorize the payments.

Finance committee last week voted to make the half-payment after the city treasurer said there were sufficient funds to cover that much but not to pay the full $700.

FIRE IN DOG FOOD PLANT

Even those who most enjoy the music of Saint-Saens often do not realize that he was a man. The composer, for instance, it stems from Sidonie-Francoise Saint-Saens, who founded the old monastery of Saint Saens, near Rouen, in France.
Similarly, the flacre — which even in this age of taxis one may still hire in Brussels — is Irish. It commemorates Saint Flacre, who left Ireland, and established a hermitage, near the City of Meaux. His shrine is in the Cathedral of Meaux, and he is the saint and protector of the good gardeners. Maybe he had a "green thumb".
If you are fond of your garden, you'll regret leaving any of your perennials behind, if you move to some other house. And those, surely, you should transplant yourself—yourself, who else could you trust to do that job so well? And if you should personally try to move!

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED WILSON

The nursery public is taking a long time to get over the cold, firmly fixed conception of winter. Often we read about somebody who, by shooting one of nature's useful and interesting birds, is considered a hero. Owls are actually the best possible friends we have, and are known to be one of mankind's every pests.

As leafless trees give us a better view than we have during summer, so we can see more birds of other types to take up residence. This is a suitable season to concentrate on owls. Many spend the winter months settled. Canada. Think of a spot in your town (or may be on the wilderness) where you have old trees, not too much traffic, and abundance of cedar trees. Make this your starting point. The small, friendly screech owl is the one we feeling resident in a cavity of a dead tree or an old woodpecker hole. Husband and wife live there together, sleeping most of the day and foraging by night. Do not be confused if first a grey and then a reddish brown bird looks out of the doorway. This species is found in two phases irrespective of age, sex, or race.

The great horned often uses the discarded nest of a hawk or crow, adding twigs, weed stalks, pods, and feathers. Unlike most owls, its home is in a fork instead of a cavity in a tree. Nevertheless it is probably the earliest of all our birds to begin housekeeping in a mild winter in Michigan it has been known to lay before the end of January, but sometimes in a cold winter time of year. The brooding bird has a feathery nest covered with snow while trying to keep the 2½ inch long eggs warm. Like those of other owls the eggs are pure white and almost round. The big fellow, though fond of mice and rats, is attracted by larger game, as squirrels, chipmunks, weasels, and even skunks.

Barred, long-eared, sawwhet, and screech are four other kinds of owls frequently seen here or sometimes during the cold weather, while great gray and hawk owls might be here on occasional visitors from the north. Then, every four years or so there is an influx of snowy owls from the arctic tundra. Look for them on city dumps where they go for rats — food which here takes the place of arctic lemmings. Food also is the chief cause of all these flights south.

True Value of Elderly Parents Extends Beyond Sentimentality

WEST HUNTINGDON

Hastings Cheese Producers Elect Officers

WEST HUNTINGDON — The annual meeting of Hastings County Cheese Producers was held at Frankford town hall on Monday afternoon with the largest attendance in many years.

Mr. Allan Ketcheson, who has been president for a number of years, was chairman for the afternoon's program. Mr. Philip Carr, the popular secretary-treasurer, recorded the minutes.

Those on the platform included Mr. Walt of Prince Edward County; Mr. Hector Arnold of Belleville; Ralph Campbell of Guelph; Ernest Henderson, dairy inspector; Philip Flagler of CHCH, Belleville; Mr. J. Wilkinson and Mr. George Pollard.

The latter two were inspectors for a large number of years and have retired; they were each presented with a suitable gift and each made a suitable reply.

On motion of Lindsay McKeown and Fred Beckett, the minutes of the last annual meeting and other meetings were adopted.

OFFICERS ELECTED

Mr. Sid McDonald, Agricultural Representative for Hastings County, conducted the election of officers for 1960.

Those who honored were: past president, Allen Ketcheson; president, Ernest Henderson; vice-president, George Wood; secretary-treasurer, Philip Carr. Each township also has a representative and those appointed were: Sidney, George Seaman; Thurlow, Percy Ray; Tyendinaga, Sherry Dendike; Rawdon, Lindsay McKeown; Huntingdon, Russell Sills; Hungerford, Harry Coulter; Marmora, John Bell; Madoc, Edward Robertson; Hastings, Fred Beckett. In addition there were five Ontario representatives on the president, past president, secretary, treasurer and Fred Heseltine.

Following speeches from all the visiting visitors, Mr. Ralph Campbell, as special guest speaker, said he felt it a great honor to come to Hastings County as it was his home county. Mr. Campbell is head of the Economics department at the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph.

He discussed the future of the dairy industry for the next two years and compared prices in the United States and how that affected Canada.

He was presented with ten pounds of cheese. In the door prizes Mr. James McAvoy and Mr. Wayne Shaw each received a nice cheese.

There was an attendance of approximately 130 farmers.

Youth Freed On Charge Of Assault

TORONTO (CP) — Fred Garland, 19, was acquitted Thursday of a charge of assaulting a policeman after he and a friend testified they thought two police officers, wearing old clothes, were kidnappers.

Garland and constables Mavis Chi and David Wing, both 21, said constables Anatole Wozniak and Donald Banks showed their badges, but the trio considered them phoney because one officer was wearing a car coat and the other a striped windbreaker.

In the drowsiness of next Friday afternoon, when the Christmas dinner is cleared away and the grandchildren grow fretful, here are a few matters for older parents to sell over, while counting everybody could up and go home.

Older parents, particularly those around retirement age, are of significant value to their adult children. This is value beyond the sentimentality that comes to the top on Mother's Day and Christmas. It is genuine. It is important, and seldom can the indifference of adult children disconnect it.

The value, in general, is in six parts:

1. Older parents represent security. No matter how poor they are, or how self-sufficient the children, parents are somehow like a platform behind. Should Mr. Wall of Prince Edward County; Mr. Hector Arnold of Belleville; Ralph Campbell of Guelph; Ernest Henderson, dairy inspector; Philip Flagler of CHCH, Belleville; Mr. J. Wilkinson and Mr. George Pollard.

The latter two were inspectors for a large number of years and have retired; they were each presented with a suitable gift and each made a suitable reply.

Your Car

Check the Choke If Car Stalls After Cold Start

By EUGENE R. MILMOE

The engine is really cold but it starts up quickly. It runs well for several minutes, then begins to miss badly and even stalls. Sometimes there's difficulty trying to restart.

When this happens, don't overlook the choke. Make sure it's not responsible for an overrich mixture.

Misuse of the manual type choke will do this. Ordinarily, it is pulled out only when the car is first started, pushed halfway in when the engine begins running, then all the way when normal operating temperature is reached.

With an automatic choke, manual adjustment, a sticking valve or thermostat spring trouble may be the reason for an overrich fuel mixture. The troublesome condition may disappear when the engine reaches operating temperature, but whether it does or not, the choke should be investigated.

B. W. asks: "Why is my car hard to keep steady at 30 or 60 m.p.h. and wheels balanced, aligned, repacked and the shock absorbers, springs and steering inspected."

(A) Tires with different treads, or even different pressures could be the only trouble.

From V. L.: "The battery in my car seems to need water more often than other cars I've had. Any good reason? The car is only three months old."

(A) The battery charging rate is evidently too high and the generator regulator is probably to blame.

U. H. writes: "My car trouble is considered strange. When I try to accelerate suddenly, I hear a slight popping and the engine hesitates, then finally gets going."

R. T. Barnes, Ontario secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association, reports Toronto shoppers, more confident this year of the economic future, are making more use of charge accounts and bank accounts — much of it still beyond the grasp of the low-paid, heavy-expense young years of life.

As long as older parents hold to what existing wealth they possess, they have a value to their children that is tremendous. Once they let it go, the other five values cited here nearly always tend to crumble.

Cross-Canada Survey

Volume of Customers Higher Than Last Year but Shoppers Showing More Discrimination

CP Across-Canada Survey
By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Christmas shoppers are spending freely this year in Canada, though not freely enough to set any records.

While merchants in most of the larger cities anticipate an increase in sales over last year, they are cautious in their view of the trend this season.

If any pattern is emerging, it is that shoppers are showing more discrimination. The policy seems to be to spend well but wisely, a Canadian Press survey shows.

Apparently only one region will face a decline in spending. In Edmonton, the grain failure and general shortage of money has hit Christmas business, described by one store as "pretty poor."

"The volume of customers is the same, but less higher, as dollar-wise buying is down," said a department store executive.

From the prairies to the east, refrigerators, television and hi-fi sets, purchases have shrunk this year to small articles, and shoppers are "being more carefully-minded" for quality items, not junk."

BIGGER IN CALGARY

One Calgary store, though, is doing bigger business than ever before. "Maybe it's the cattle farmers," said a spokesman.

In sharp contrast to Edmonton, Winnipeg cash registers are jingling merrily. Last year the city led Canada's percentage increase over the previous year's Christmas sales and M. M. Wocks of the Winnipeg division of the Retail Merchants' Association expects a repetition this year.

"I've never seen so many people shopping in my life," said Mr. Wocks after a recent tour of the shopping area.

Extended evening shopping hours this year are expected to boost spending. Even the finest-hour liquor stores are doubling their December business this year.

Unseasonal snowless weather has discouraged shoppers in Montreal and Toronto, but the stores are standing by for a last-minute rush expected to push sales above last year's figures. Even last night shopping is expected to help.

NEEDS THE SNOW

"You need a snowfall and a Santa Claus to bring out the shoppers," said a Toronto department store spokesman. "It's the sun shining and birds singing city kid doesn't feel in the mood."

"Snow makes a big difference to the Christmas shopping spirit," a Montreal store executive agreed. "Our weather has so far not encouraged shoppers to come out, even though most stores have bigger and more attractive selections this year."

All About the Christmas Rose

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

The legend of the Christmas rose relates that while the Mother of Christ was fleeing into Egypt with her Child the shepherds pursued them. As the soldiers drew near a common wayside shrub threw out its branches and offered to hide the infant. Mary placed the Babe in the heart of the bush and the branches folded quietly over to conceal him.

When the soldiers had passed the bush opened and Mary took up her Child. The branches burst into lovely waxlike blooms.

This plant is Helleborus niger present, called the Christmas rose since it blooms about that time each year.

There are several members of the Helleboro family. At one time, and no many years ago, a great quantity was grown for the poison in their roots. This was used in medicine for good and evil.

The Hellebore, Christmas rose is the earliest to bloom in the fall. It may start in September and continue into February, according to weather conditions. It likes a cool place during the summer with light shade and full sun in the fall. It should be protected from strong winds. It will stand sub-zero temperatures with some protection.

A prairie gardener grows them for Christmas flowers by placing a glass topped box over each plant, and covering the plants with loose excelsior, in the late fall when the weather gets really cold.

Last February in England a Hellebore was exhibited which had been grown in the potteries district. It was named the Niger praecox Potters Wheel. The blooms were five-inches across.

The foliage of the hellebores is evergreen and attractive all year. The flowers are white, shaped like a shallow bowl or flaring cup. H. niger is white or pink with delicate green tings in the petals.

H. foetidus blooms with the earliest daffodils and has delicate green flowers.

H. orientalis, Lenten rose is a hybrid with spotted petals from green-white to pink or rust. It is a good ground cover for shady places. Another good Hellebore, equally useful is H. lividus. It holds its bloom into May and has lovely chartreuse bloom in the paddies. The foliage is blue-green. It makes a good companion to plantain lilies, ferns and plants.

Here rare is the Corsican Hellebore. It is very slow in growing but in a few years grows to a real treasure. It is in bloom January through February. The flowers last for weeks.

Frost, snow, heeling rain, softer seems to mar the waxy beauty of the blooms of these plants.

There are very difficult to grow from seed in the open ground. Plants are offered by some nurseries but are scarce. Look for them, they are long-lived trees, once well established and their season of bloom makes them doubly welcome.

Marlies Out Of Character?; Dress Like Gentlemen

Sport Slices

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The family of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hall, Sr., of Point Anne, is a "natural."

That is if you believe in genes and clevage.

It contains four puck-chasing boys. But that's not the "Hall" of it. There are seven daughters.

Typical, of course, would be finishing a brilliant puck career as the pro hockey heir-apparent is Bobby, named after his former puck-chasing father.

BOB HULL

Next in line are: Ramsie, 12; Gary, 10, and Dennis, 14. The trio farms a front line on the Belleville Lombert-Rollins Junior "B" team.

Dennis has been nabbed by the Chicago Black Hawks, who signed him for hockey future for the youngster. He will likely make a Hawks' Junior "B" club next season, and from there on to the NHL.

Their biggest rooting section is the seven sisters, also mother and dad.

The girls are: Mrs. Ken (Laura) Stafford; Mrs. Ray (Barbara) Brannigan; Jacqueline (Jackie); Mrs. Bill (Maxine) Mercer; Caroline, Judy and Peggy.

Bobby, a husky young blonde giant, is not only the pride of the family and the cement village, but thousands of Chicago hockey fans.

He won't be 21 until January 3rd, stands five-foot ten and weighs 195 pounds. He can whip a softball across a plate almost as fast as he drills the puck at opposing goalies.

His powerful skating, shooting and all-round play this season has made him one of the current sensations of the National Hockey League.

Bobby is undeniably on his way to his best season yet. Leagues ahead of him as one of the best left-wingers in the professional ranks.

He is in his third season with the Chicago Black Hawks and playing with the steady assurance and poise of a veteran.

Actually Bobby had the assurance and poise ever since he played his first game with the Hawks at the age of 18.

He has never missed a game in the big time either.

In his first season he scored 13 goals and added 34 assists for 47 points. Last season he netted 15 goals and added 33 assists for 48 points.

To date this season with only 30 games played, Bobby has scored 16 goals and has 18 assists for 34 points. Which puts him in a second-place tie with Montreal Canadiens' Dave (Boom Boom) Geoffrion behind Bronx Bathgate. He is a mere five points behind the points-leading Bronco Horvath of the Bruins.

At this writing both Hull and Howe have had the most shots on goal. Bobby had 113 shots for a 10.63 average while Howe had 106 shots for an 8.15 mark.

Lynn Patrick, Boston Bruins general manager said: "That Hull is only 21 yrs! and he's the top left-winger for my money. Chicago Black Hawks will play Hull anywhere, including goal! and he would star."

Patrick added: "I think he could win a Mr. Atlas contest. He can carry 195 pounds on his powerful 5-10 frame. Bob has size, power, shoots and passes. I myself favor Howe. I think he'll be around a long time and become one of the game's all-time greats."

Alfie Pike, the newly-appointed coach of the New York Rangers, says Bobby is the best young player he has seen in the league.

And Baz O'Meara, Montreal Star, who has seen nearly all the NHL greats writes: "Hull plays left wing like a virtuoso, and at times he plays centre with equal dexterity. He could be the man who will eventually lead the Hawks back into the playoff circle this year. In any event if his playing isn't an inspiration, it should be a challenge to his teammates."

Fourteen-year-old Dennis proves to be destined to carry on the Hull family's brilliance on the hockey bases.

He attended the Hawks' training camp last fall and was signed by the management. The Hawk brass thinks the youngster has the potential of brother Bobby and will groom him for junior "A" and possibly National Hockey League activities.

Meanwhile Bobby is cutting a sensational swath across the scoring horizon and it could very well be this kid brother in the National Hockey League, he will win the scoring championship.

More power to his puck-potting elbows!

Maroons Clobber Dutchies In Merciless 5-1 Assault

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chatham Maroons are back to a share of the scoring. Jack Douglas got three goals, his first three-goal effort in the league this season, and Tennant and forward Ali Cleary fired singles. Kitchener's lone scorer was Bob McKnight, who tied the game temporarily early in the first period.

Maroon winger Jim Connelly picked up three assists to move into a third-place tie in the individual point race.

HEAVY HANDICAP

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP)—Hillsdale and Sword Dancer Friday were assigned an unprecedented 132 pounds each as the top-weighted horses nominated for the Feb. 27 $100,000-added Santa Anita Handicap. Never before in the history of the race, inaugurated in 1935, have two horses been asked to carry more than 130 pounds. The handicap at 1¼ miles highlights the Santa Anita meeting which opens Dec. 26.

White Ties, Tails, Top Hats Garb 'Dukes of Marlboro', Unimpressed Bilts Lick 'Em

GUELPH (CP) — Resplendent in tuxedo white ties and tails, "the Dukes of Marlborough" received a regal welcome Friday night at the Memorial Gardens.

The parade of pomp was in retaliation to Guelph coach Eddie Bush, who earlier this week said too many out-of-town teams arrived looking like "whistlestrad bums."

Coach Turk Broda of Toronto Marlboros introduced his top-hatted players as "the best-dressed hockey team in the world." In return he received the keys to the city from Fred Carlick, an executive of the Guelph Chamber of Commerce.

The festivities over, the Marlies paraded over the city-owned red carpet to their dressing room preparatory to getting on with the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A game against Guelph Biltmores.

A record crowd of 3,500 turned out to see Marlboros dressed like gentlemen. They rode the team's detractors easy' they do not always play on the ice.

All the sartorial splendor went for naught as the Dukes were defeated 6-3 by the unimpressed Biltmores but the stunt turned the game into something resembling the social night o' the year.

Local dignitaries, including Garlick, dressed appropriately for the occasion. So did two sportscasters.

Arena manager Eddie Bishop was more modest. He wore a tuxedo. Bush himself wore a sober business suit.

During the introductions of Marlboros, Goalie Roger Cole, their penalty king, drew the loudest hoots of derision.

Bilts Shade Marlboros 6-5; Flyers, Petes Tie

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

It was a night of thrilling finishes in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A Series Friday.

In Barrie the Flyers pulled their goalie and scored late in the third period to tie Peterborough Petes 3-3. Guelph Biltmores, playing at home, fought through a three-goal deficit in the final bell and held on for a 6-5 win. Toronto Marlboros battled within one goal of a tie by scoring with one minute remaining in the game.

Billy Knibbs got Barrie's tying goal, his second of the night, at 19:32 of the third period. Petes goalie Wayne Rutledge on the scoot. Jeamot Gilbert had Petes' other tally, Wayne Connelly, with two, and Wayne Roddy were the marksmen for Barrie.

In Guelph the Biltmores rallied away their two goal deficit within 90 seconds in the third period to take a 6-4 lead. The score was 2-2 after the first period and Guelph led 3-2 after the second but the game played for two 3,500 fans.

Rod Gilbert, Jean Ratelle, Bob Nevin and Andy Bathgate paced Jakeman and Johnny Bower through 60 minutes as Sudbury Cubs horse scored two for Marlboros. Jack Martin, Tom Stewart and Brian Conacher adding singles.

Royals Whip Sudbury 4-1

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Royals finally overcoming a road jinx that has been with them since early in the season, took sole possession of third place in the Eastern Professional Hockey League Friday night.

They beat league-leading Sudbury Wolves 4-1 at Sudbury for their seventh win in 13 road games. Their last and only other win away from home was during the second week of the season with a 4-3 win at Hull, Que.

The game at Sudbury was tied 1-1 until late in the third period when the Royals scored on three quick goals. Rookie Roger Sawicki scored first, Bill Sutherland (2) second and Ted Gooden Denis a few minutes later.

Wolves had taken an early first-period lead on a goal by Jack Hendrickson, defenceman turned forward. Sawicki tied it up before the period ended with the first of his two goals.

Gerry McNeil, who recently replaced regular Charlie Hodge because the latest Montreal Canadiens felt Hodge needed a rest and McNeil the work, was in goal again. He has allowed only seven goals in four games but has been comparatively easy time Friday night, handling only 19 shots. Sudbury's Gerry Ja ne ta r stopped 27.

Hendrickson was moved to the forward line to replace injured Cleland Mortson. Defencemen Jacques Desjardins was paired with Royals' after missing the previous game because of business.

BAUGH TO COACH PROS

NEW YORK (AP) — Sammy Baugh, passing great with Washington Redskins for 16 seasons, Friday was named head coach of New York Titans of the new American Football League. He has been coach of Hardin-Simmons College, Abilene, Tex., for the last five seasons. Steve Sebo, ousted as Penn coach earlier this month, is the general manager of the Titans.

Teams, Fans Enjoy Booster Club Party

The Mac Booster Club played host to the McFarlands and Bader wives and the Wheat Kings Bulldogs at Kiks Hall last night at a post - game Christmas party.

Jim "Snipe" Matthews, Bunde Club president, welcomed the teams and a large number of the Boosters who enjoyed an evening of dancing, refreshments and lunch.

Players from the two clubs mingled with the fans in true Christmas spirit while Don Mace came in for a good deal of congratulations for Friday night's 6-3 victory over the Bulldogs.

Benny Kid Paret Defeats Scott; Seeks Jordan

NEW YORK (AP) — What a difference one night can make!

Cuba's Benny (Kid) Paret was a so-so fighter Friday, hoping to impress Manager Gainer Scott, top - ranking welterweight contender, in order to get a few more paydays in the ring.

Today, following his decisive unanimous decision over the 24-to-1 favored Scott in a Friday night 10-rounder, Paret was looking for a shot at welterweight champion Don Jordan. Paret weighed 149½ pounds, Scott 148.

Scott, 23-year-old Philadelphia, had won six straight and was batting .667 with Jordan at Jordan's title. Now he's hoping to get a return bout with the unranked 22-year-old Paret.

"No more Scott," said Manuel Alfaro, Paret's manager, "Benny beat the No. 1 once, that's enough. Get Jordan, title fight if we can, or non-title."

SEVERAL POSSIBILITIES

Matchmaker Teddy Brenner said he will try to get him Jordan, Scott, middleweight Joey Giardello or Frederico Thompson, the Argentina champion who knocked out Jordan in a non-title fight recently. A return bout with Scott probably is the most likely to happen.

The muscular Cuban stayed on top of the hard-hitting Scott all the way, rarely giving him punching room.

Benny the Uzzzzsaw pinned Scott to the ropes or to corners and belted him to the body and head with both hands. He climaxed a sweep of the closing round by dropping the once - favored Scott with a left and right to the jaw. Scott got up at seven, was given another second under the mandatory eight-count rule and seemed to neat shellacking in the remaining minute or so.

The officials had Paret the winner this way: referee Harry Kessler 6-3-1, judge Tony Ellis 6-4, and judge Mike Pazit, 7-3. It was the unanimous decision of the card, rugged Willie Greaves, 160½, Edmonton, outpointed Mickey Hall, 160½, Detroit, and Irish Eddie Jordan, 164, Brooklyn, scored a split decision with a narrow, split decision over Walt Byars, 165½, Boston.

Greaves pushed Moyer's body steadily. The defeat spoiled Moyer's New York debut and snapped his winning streak at five.

The decision was unanimous. Referee Al Lina had it 6-3-1, Ruzzi 6-4 and Farid 7-3, all for Greaves.

Ontario Amateur Sport Tax Has No Parallel in Canada

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ontario's gate tax on amateur sport, levied on the basis of players' salaries, appears to be without parallel in Canada.

Only two other provinces—Quebec and British Columbia—tax their amateurs in any way, and in neither case has it any relation to how much the players are paid.

Quebec's provincial tax of 10 per cent is collected at all games where admission is charged and the proceeds go into the Public Charities Act fund. In addition, municipalities may levy a surtax which varies but averages about 25 per cent, bringing the total levy to 12½ per cent on each ticket sold.

B.C.'s tax, also 10 per cent, goes to aid hospital construction. It is charged when admission prices are more than 50 cents.

DROPPED BY SASK.

Saskatchewan has no provincial tax although there are some local jurisdictions. Alberta wiped out its amusement tax early this year, and Manitoba sports also are taxfree.

The same situation applies in the Maritimes and Newfoundland.

Ontario teams formerly were exempt under the Hospitals Tax Act if they paid no more than $2 per cent of the gate receipts or than $30 a game.

The limit was raised Friday to $30.55 a game. If no player gets more than that, the club need not pay or collect a tax.

If any player receives more than $30.55 a game the club must pay the tax on all of it, but it is refunded if the team can show at the end of the season that the average salary of all players was no more than $30.55.

The Ontario Hockey Association, whose Junior A and senior A players are the highest-paid amateurs, welcomed the ruling but said salary limits should be set. Most clubs are exempt, even under the old rate.

The Ontario Junior A clubs have a $60 weekly limit, which is higher than most senior leagues across the country.

Nova Scotia's two senior leagues, for instance, consist mainly of homebrew players. A few players may receive salaries, but nowhere near the $30.55 per game figure. Some Maritime players obtain jobs for sports and pay their employers for time lost.

Even in Ontario, amateur salaries drop sharply in the lower rankings. Woodstock senior B players, for example, received a maximum payment of $15 a game last year. This season they get paid on a share-the-wealth basis which is expected to work out well below $30.

Macs Send 'Dogs' Back To Kennel With 4-3 Defeat

'Wiener' Brown in Pivot Spot Sparks Offensive With Pair, Scoreless Third Is Thriller

By GEORGE H. CARVER
Sports Editor

Perhaps "Wiener" Brown likes pickerel or lake trout—or both—but it looked last night as though he liked playing at centre ice.

The converted left-winger came up with a brilliant performance, his best of the season, to spark the McFarlands' thrilling 4-3 victory over a pack of starving Windsor Bulldogs.

The McFarlands led 4-3 going into the third period—and the Macs outshot the Dogs 36-25 and had the better of the play, but Brown guarded the slim lead more jealously than a love-hungry Ralph would his harem in sparkling defensive effort that almost checked Lammy Lamirande's drooling Dogs into the ice.

Brown, with linemates MacDonald and Boucher, led the Macs' offence. "Wiener" coming up with a pair of goals and assist; MacDonald a goal and Boucher two helpers. Ron Meir scored the fourth, with Lionel Botly getting two assists and Benoit and Smrke one each.

It was one of the Macs best team efforts of the season. They outshot the Dogs 33-25 and hurrying a couple of second-period lapses had main control of the situation. They proved the best defence is offence in a flurried third-period when they outshot the foemen 8-6, even preventing the frustrated "Dogs" from getting that goalie-pulling face-off in the dying seconds of the game.

They grabbed a first-period two-lead lead, saw it reduced to one and the Dogs tie it up in the second frame. The teams split four goals in this chapter and ripped at each other in boisterous but clean scoreless third.

Grosse, Brown and Pepin were the Bulldogs triggermen with Grosse, Walsh and Brown drawing assists.

Head and Maniago in the respective nets gave fine performances, both custodians coming up with some first class stops of close-in-attackers.

Following the game the Bulldog guests were the guests of the Macs Booster Club at a two-team reception in the Kiltie Bar.

A novel "bonus" twist of the game was the pre-tilt offer by Derby Jeffrey of a pickerel or lake trout to the Macs player scoring the most goals.

While the game was rugged at times, it was one of the cleanest played here, the referees handling out but three minors, two to the McFarlands.

"WIENER" BROWN
... Pivot Pilot

Brown marked his debut as a centre with two goals in the first period. He climaxed the Macs' sustained drive at 5:31, blasting a close-in shot past Head. He drew the first penalty a minute later and Lammy promptly followed him seconds after.

The Macs clearly outplayed the Dogs in this frame, outscoring them 4-2. Brown notched his second marker with three minutes to go, sifting through the Dogs defence to beat Head from outside the crease.

The Dogs drew back hard, testing Maniago with three hard drives before they narrowed the margin when Walker's shot deflected into the net off Grosse's skate. Brown was to on the kill!

Bob Brown took Grosse's cross-rink basketball pass to race in and beat Maniago after two minutes of play in the second period to tie the count. The game developed into a slip-and-tuck battle.

Head turned back Bradley and Brown on fine individual efforts and midway through the best Chaszewski sent Muir and Brown away with the former pushing in a shocking goal, beating goal-mouth passing play.

Pepin caught the Macs almost flatfooted on a power drive when he broke into the clear, but Head made a good stab and Maniago to again knot the count on a fine effort.

Grosse's goal kicked our hard drives with the Dogs having 11-10 shooting edge, but then two minutes to go, MacDonald parked in front of the Dogs' net, scooped in Brown's pass after the centre dug it out of the corner from Boucher's pass, to give the Macs a 4-3 edge.

And that's the way it ended. Both the Dogs and the Macs unleashed a high hard-checking third-period battle that saw both Head and Maniago play brilliant hockey.

Ron Gagnon drew the only penalty of the period, one that was hotly protested by the Macs with Lammy Lamirande, equally heated, demanding a major. The Dogs drove in hard but a packed Mac rearguard and Maniago held them scoreless.

There were no further sentences, although the game became rough and jagged with players sprawling all over the ice at times.

The Dogs did not have the chance to pull Head over the final minute of play, the winners throwing the puck repeatedly into the Dogs zone with the Windsor tenalle at times coming far out to clear.

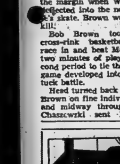
UNITAS' PICKED TOPS



PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Baltimore's brilliant passing quarterback, Johnny Unitas, Friday was named the first recipient of the annual Bert Bell Memorial Award as the outstanding professional football player of the year.

Ronald E. Kinney, secretary of the Maxwell Football Club, making the award in memory of the late commissioner of the National Football League, made the announcement.

Unitas polled 44 first votes of a possible 50 and totalled 100 points on a 5, 3, 1 count. Cleveland's Jimmy Brown was second with 36 points and Charley Conerly of New York Giants third with 22.

Totems Beaten By Cougars 3-2

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Seattle Totems moved over to give Victoria Cougars a share of second spot in the Western Hockey League standings Friday night as Cougars beat them 3-2.

Vancouver Canucks shifted another point behind with a comfortable lead on a 2-2 overtime tie with Edmonton Flyers, while Winnipeg Warriors ended Calgary's six-game winning streak by downing the Stampeders 4-2.

Ron Matthews scored the lone first-period goal for Victoria and Tommy McVie got one for Seattle in the second, Gord Fashoway and Doug MacAulay scored for Victoria goals in the third and Rudy Filion finished the Seattle scoring.

TIED LATE IN GAME

Edmonton turned on all the pressure in Vancouver but the fourth - place Flyers last their third point after Vancouver goalie Hank Bassen had been yanked in favor of an attacker. Warren Hicks scored the only goal of the first period. Orland Kurtenbach tied it up for Vancouver in the second but Don Poile but Flyers ahead again on an easy shot at 12:28 of the same period.

Goaltender Al Rollins was the hero again as Warriors scored their hometown triumph over the Stampeders. He stopped 46 shots.

The Warrior scoring was handled by Dick Lamoureux, Gerry Brisson, Al Nicholson and Barry Ross. Les Jankowski and Murray Wilkie counted for Calgary.

The final period was lively, with a series of battles breaking out after Rollins came out of the net to argue with Reno Robazza of the Stampeders. Ted Green moved in to help Robazza while Ross and Norm Johnson of Calgary started their own fuss. Robazza and Green got five-minute majors. Majors and minors went to Johnson and Ross.

Hockey Hints

"A TRICK for DEFENCEMEN"

"Red" Kelly of Detroit and Doug Harvey of Montreal are considered top defencemen. Opposing players say, "Kelly or Harvey can really stay with you".

TRICK FOR DEFENCEMEN

Sports College discussed this point with these two super stars and watched them carefully in action. Here is their main secret.

When a puck carrier approaches the defenceman must "go with" him when he moves to carry past or shoots the puck in and follows it. The defencemen must change from back to front skating and move to either side very quickly. Kelly and Harvey are tops at this change-over because they have practised it.

To learn this skill, practise alternating quickly from front to back skating and then from back to front. Do this change-over every few yards, turning first to the left then to the right. Done regularly this drill develops the ability to "stay with the puck-carrier".

Hoffa to Help Kearns Form Sports Union

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Jack (Boss) Kearns, trying to organize an international federation of professional athletes with the International Brotherhood of Teamsters to help line up bargaining power.

James Hoffa, Teamster president, says "I'm all for it" "We'll go with him right down the line."

Kearns stresses he wants the benefit of the Teamsters' knowhow when it comes to organization.

"It's not Hoffa particularly," he said, "it's the Teamsters as a group. They have the organization setup which would help us."

Doc has crowded several lifetimes into his 78 years, give or take a few years. His field of activity ranged from the Klondike during the gold rush to the management of 11 ring champions, including Jack Dempsey and Mickey Walker.

Now he is co-manager of world light heavyweight champion Archie Moore.

He says that for two or three years he has been working on his idea of an international body for pro athletes and pro workers in sports.

"These people need protection," Doc said. "Look at the 50,000 head and assistant coaches. They are always getting fired and have no recourse.

"In golf alone there are 600,000 potential members, including caddies, pros and groundskeepers. Some of them must rely on tips for a livelihood.

"What protection does a golf pro have? He gets maybe $15 or $25 for a fight, and if he hurts a hand or somebody he can't even pay the doctor bills."

Imlach Plays True to Form, Bower Relegated to Bench After Wilting Leafs Lose 5

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

When National Hockey League team bogs down in a losing streak, the goaltender frequently has the spotlight all to himself.

There may be open criticism of his work, or management may simply say "He needs a rest." Often a change is made and a new goalie becomes the remedy by which the team hopes to be successful again.

Boston Bruins, travelling jerkily after a fast, smooth start, have used Don Simmons, Harry Lumley and now Simmons again.

New York Rangers, currently in the cellar and never far out of it at any time this season, packed Lorne (Gump) Worsley off to the minors and replaced him with Marcel Paille.

BOWER BENCHED

Now Toronto Maple Leafs, smarting under a 5-game losing streak, have benched Johnny Bower and recalled Ed Chadwick from their Rochester farm club. Chadwick will be in goal when Leafs attempt to regain winning stride against Detroit at home tonight.

"We had to do something," Toronto manager - coach Punch Imlach said Friday, announcing the shakeup. He suggested that Bower was responsible for our slump but I think he could use a rest."

Until the Toronto slump began, Bower was challenging Montreal's Jacques Plante and Detroit's Terry Sawchuk for the lead in the Vezina Trophy race. But in the last five games 28 goals have been put him.

POOREST MARKSMEN

To make matters worse, Leafs are the lowest scoring team in the league.

Chadwick was Toronto's regular goalie in the 1956-57 and 1957-58 campaigns. Last season he shared the job with Bower, who was a key figure in Leafs' spectacular drive into the playoffs.

Montreal Canadiens, who did Bower's fortunes no good with their 9-2 win over Leafs Thursday night, tangle with New York in a weekend home-and-home series. They play in Montreal tonight and New York Sunday night.

Chicago Black Hawks are idle tonight but play host to Toronto Sunday night. Boston Bruins, also tonight, will be at home to Detroit Sunday night.

Third League Won't Start Until 1962

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Branch Rickey, president of the newly formed Continental Baseball League, said today it appears the league will not start playing until 1962 instead of 1961 as originally planned.

He told reporters that once play begins the league will be ready in three years to compete in a world series.

"Three months ago I felt we could get under way in 1961", Rickey said. "But recently we have not received the cooperation from the major leagues", Rickey added. "I am going to Texas on Monday to talk with the people interested in a franchise there in the Houston area. We are going to lay it on the line to them because there are other cities interested in joining us".

Devises Commandments For Makers of Specials

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Now that the super-special American TV season is well along, it seems time to assess the highs and wrongs of the system.

The 1953-56 TV year must be a source of satisfaction to Pat Weaver. It was he who conceived the idea of the special (the so-called three spectaculars) during his brilliant, brief career as NBC chief. He theorized that viewers would suffer boredom from the weekly diet of series.

What a blessing the special has been this year! Never has the program of series been so lacking in the steady, violent outpouring of gunslingers, both in chaps and blue serge. The season has seen no truly original series introduced.

SOME SUGGESTIONS

The specials have saved the day. Some were bound to be good, there are so many. There is still plenty of room for improvement, and perhaps we can devise some commandments for special makers:

1. Don't be name-crazy. Putting Jack Benny, Eddie Cantor, George Jessel and George Burns on a stage together is not enough. They must have something good to do.

2. Strive for a different combination of names. Too many specials are so many. There is still plenty of room for improvement, and perhaps we can devise some commandments for special makers:

3. Take time. If it's special, it deserves special care. Fred Astaire's musical shows low adequate rehearsal can pay off.

4. Spend for anything, if it's fully written version of Turn of the Screw with Ingrid Bergman can be a hit. Substitute Job of The Jazz Singer with Jerry Lewis can flop.

5. Don't rely on tape or film. The quality of good specials is the excitement of a Broadway show. Canned stuff robs spontaneity.

6. Don't under - estimate your audience.

7. Don't get carried away with extravagance. The play is still the thing, especially on the small screen. Let the movies try for scope.

8. But beware of under-doing scenery. Sam Hagen are okay—if you've got something great to play before them, such as Our Town.

9. Don't be afraid to repeat a good bill. The best specials warrant replays, as with Astaire. A lot of you may have missed the first showing and may would want to see it again.

10. Perhaps should add another commandment—for networks to lavish about the same thought and care on the pallid weekly shows that they do on specials.

Hockey Team Quits When Coach Fired

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—The entire squad of the New Haven Blades, in an Eastern Hockey League team, has refused to play tonight unless the management retains Edgar Brenchley as coach, it was reported Friday night.

The New Haven Journal-Courier said a three-man player delegation visited the club's front office Friday and delivered the ultimatum.

The team is scheduled to meet the New York Rovers tonight at Commack, L.I., N.Y.

Brenchley was dismissed Thursday and Wally Kullman of Washington Presidents was named player-coach.

The players' delegation, in its ultimatum, said there would be no game tonight unless management agrees to keep Brenchley on the job until Jan. 1.

The newspaper quoted Nathan Podoloff, manager of the New Haven Arena, the club's home base, as replying:

"The players are in revolt, but I think they're being a bit hasty. Right now they're excited, but after they think things over, I'm sure they will be able to accept the situation."

One Blades player, who asked that his name not be used, told the New Haven Register he's against Wally Kullman. What we are against is the way Brenchley was fired. The story of the coaching change was already on the radio and public knowledge before he was notified. That sort of thing happened before, and we players think that it's high time such goings - on stopped."

Lions' Coach Signs Contract

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Football Company voted Friday to give coach George Wilson a son-year contract for 1960.

The action, by the full board of directors, confirmed a stand taken last week by the executive committee, a steering group for the board.

The directors also gave president-general manager Edwin J. Anderson a vote of confidence.

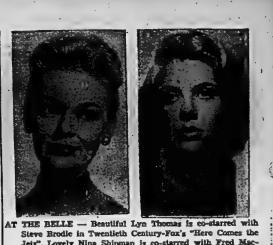
In returning to the Lions for another season, Anderson and Wilson rode out a storm growing out of the club's 3-9-1 won-lost-tied record.

DIDN'T TAKE LONG

CINCINNATI (AP)—Billy Martin, infielder obtained from Cleveland earlier this week, Friday became the first Cincinnati Redleg to sign a 1960 contract.

TV TIPS

by JOHN WETTLAUFER



Have you ever replaced a bad tube in your television only to have the set quit the next day with several others gone wrong?

This is not a coincidence. TV tubes and components age and weaken more or less at the same rate and when a brand new tube is introduced into the system, older parts sometimes cannot take this new surge of power. It's like dad running a race with his teenage son: rather than with someone his own age.

At CIRCLE TV SERVICE, 364 Coleman St., only top quality tubes and components are used and they're guaranteed for 90 days. Experienced, trained technicians — together with modern equipment — assure you complete satisfaction. When you have TV troubles, phone WO 8-6791 for quick service.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Sunday ,December 20, 1953

General Tendencies: The a.m. is unusually good for whatever has to do with showing your affection for, and devotion to, others. In this way you best live the religion you profess to believe. Later you are under beneficial aspects for long-range plans where property interests and making solid, secure foundation for yourself are concerned.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Greet others with a smile this morning and you turn opposition into co-operation. More support in the future will be yours too, P.M. plan your future days in a more practical and far-seeing way. This also includes social affairs.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Family affairs need your special consideration and this time and you are inclined to jog in the proper financial and business channels to bring this about — to add harmony and prosperity. Generosity is the keynote now.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — You will get fine ideas now and may have greater understanding with loved one and how to better schedule your more time. Put them in motion quickly. Good day to handle any educational problems or those connected with youngsters.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Covering sensibly with his and being interested in their problems and welfare is the best way to reach a better understanding today. Later, visit with closest friend and have a grand time. Grow.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Take the time now to let your friends know your ambitions. Then go out socially with those who can be helpful to you. Relax and enjoy yourself. Restore lagging energies. You are far too ambitious.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) — Higher day for self-analysis. Know what it is you want to accomplish in life and have an accurate appreciation of your own potential. P.M. can be wonderfully happy within the confines of own home and family.

Libra (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23) — Morning opens up new vistas for you in both career and personal life. Devote most of this day making wiser plans for the future. See the right people quickly, or entertain them at home.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21) — Consider religious precepts this a.m. in the light of how to apply them in everyday life for more successful results. Later in the day put them into practice when you get out socially with congenial friends. Have fun.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Be sure to heed the advice of loved one and clever adviser in what you can then solve all confidential affairs. But you must be more broad-minded. P.M. go about socially and live the Golden Rule without qualification.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Follow your hunches this morning in all career or personal affairs. Later, be sure you get together with those persons who can introduce you to truly influential and brilliant people. This can be a bonanza day for you.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Join some good friend this morning in going to a lecture that could easily change your life for the better. P.M. get your financial affairs scheduling in a most practical and intelligent way. Better early for an 8 a.m. start in the morning.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — Get your home organized in a more practical order today so that you and others will be more comfortable. P.M. find out what your relative position is with those who are important in your life. Make any necessary adjustments.

If your child is born today — There will be a decidedly motile streak in the nature of the little child born today, and service to others will appeal very much. So it should be very easy to find the forte in this chart. You must early teach the value of a dollar, however, and then the forthcoming is fine for the top-notch doctor, nurse, social worker. Society shall be the richer for the birth of the fine child.

Monday, December 21

General tendencies: How you have a day in which you can really get involved in a battle royal with someone vital to your well-being, if you are in any way entitled of him, or her. Try also a time to use especial care on the highway or while in motion. Be sure you get the most you can be big in consciousness. Really live the Golden Rule from day and tonight.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Be sure you do not pick on or expect too much of fellow workers but no resentment. Inferior making others dislike you. This would be a bad habit to get into. P. M. Lax treatment that will improve your health. Learn to relax.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Take care that you do not commit yourself to far beyond your ability to pay or perform. And since you must contend with a short-tempered partner and an overly blunt partner, see that you maintain your equilibrium. P. M. make your appearance more charming.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Guard your words or you can make some unfortunate remarks to a loved one all based on don't let any critical remarks behind you since others are either disturbed or not well and you are conveniently about. Smile.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 22) — Any carelessness on the road could easily curtail your activities for some time. Be careful and you can accomplish a great deal right now. Take time to relax before you step out and all will go smoothly and efficiently.

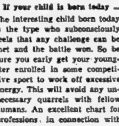
Leo (July 23 to Aug. 21) — Don't permit pesks to overtake you over monetary, career or personal affairs. Sit down quietly and go over your needs and you can wisely apportion everything properly. A little clear thinking can save even a kingdom.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — You feel that others are imposing upon you and you want to lash out with cruel words. This would be most unwise and possibly sever one or more from you who are truly devoted. Look at situation in the proper perspective.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) — You have so many personal worries today that you can't seem to make headway at all. Relax. Dig into all those loose ends and unfinished minutiae and get them out of the way speedily.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21) — Being a bit overzealous, you might try to avoid a rather talkative friend who could give you excellent ideas on how to operate more efficiently and increase your income. Understand every detail of what is told you instead.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Take care you are not too blunt in endeavoring to change present conditions in business world to suit own ideas. Listen to the viewpoints of others, too, especially higher-ups who have own troubles. Labor diligently.



Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) — Don't try to make any radical changes now because distant matters seem infinitely greener. This is only a mirage. Stick to tried and true methods with some extra studying and research after you have cleared up odds and ends on hand.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Guard against further expenditures today when it is time to economize instead. Consider not only the initial cost but the recurring weekly or monthly payments. Ask yourself, "Is it really worth it, or wholly desirable?"

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — There is every opportunity to avoid becoming enmeshed in a serious argument brewing between two relatively different personalities. Do so. But be sure you keep all promises made to the letter. Don't violate any regulations.

If your child is born today — The interesting child born today is the type who subconsciously feels that any challenge can be met and the battle won. So be sure you early get your youngster enrolled in some competitive sport to work off excessive energy. This will avoid any unnecessary quarrels with fellow humans. An excellent chart for professions in connection with government or politics, the police force and the like.

Cross-Canada Survey

Realistic Missile Launchers, And Space-Age Toys Biggest Yule Sellers in 5 Provinces

CP CROSS-CANADA SURVEY

By IAN MACDONALD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

By the time parents have finished cleaning up wrappings from the children's Christmas presents, Canadians will have spent an estimated $25,000,000 on toys during 1959.

It is believed Canadians spend more money per capita on toys than any country in the world—and the biggest buying splurges of the year now is under way.

A Canadian Press cross - Canada survey shows that realistic missile launchers and other space - age toys are the biggest Christmas sellers in five provinces. But Manitoba, Saskatchewan and British Columbia boys still prefer cowboy gear, while Nova Scotia and Newfoundland youngsters favor mechanical hockey games.

The only province where a drop in toy sales is noted is Saskatchewan, the border province concentrating mainly to farmers, said the biggest decrease was in the northern part of the province.

SNOWFALL BLAMED

Business blamed the recession on an October snowfall that made it impossible to harvest all the crops. Some Prince Albert area farming communities have been hooked by mail order with Christmas.

In other sections of Saskatchewan cowboy outfits were popular and toy dolls for girls, although city stores also reported a drop in sales.

Girls everywhere are sticking to their perennial favorites—dolls and home-making kits such as sewing baskets, washing machines, small stoves and tea settings.

The boys—some girls too—appear to be impressed by launching pads, including one with a complicated count-down indicator and another that sends a two-stage rocket, powered by a soda solution, zooming 300 feet. Other rockets have nose cones that are dropped by parachute.

Vancouver, although still under the cowboy influence, reports a strong demand for rockets that can be hurled hundreds of feet in the air with water from a garden hose or air from a bicycle pump.

SEEDS DIFFER

Most girls wouldn't trade dolls for any toy but they don't all agree on sizes. Saint John, N.B., girls prefer small dolls with good wardrobes while Montreal girls like 22-inch dolls. Birds dolls complete with sykons and a "diamond" engagement ring are popular in Nova Scotia for $8.95.

Demand for mechanically-operated toys is nigh in almost every province. Hockey games are special favorites in Winnipeg, Ottawa, Saint John, Montreal, Quebec City, St. John's and Halifax.

Some come complete with flashing goal lights, an automatic face-off gimmick, a puck ejector and sell for about $12.

Almost all provinces report boys still like electric trains.

A 60-per-cent increase in the demand for books is reported in Vancouver. "We're distributing more books than ever before," said one leading importer. Book sales are also heavy in Ottawa.

Vancouver also noted a swing toward educational toys such as construction sets, Chemistry, physics and astronomy sets are popular with Ottawa boys.

GUNS IN DEMAND

Guns sell well in every Canadian centre including Toronto where one department store stocks about 70 different varieties.

A.C. Palmer, manager of Canada's largest toy - gun manufacturing plant, said his company was producing 1,500,000 guns in 14 different varieties this year.

Toy prices changed little this year, but St. John's and Montreal report that model toys are a little more expensive due to the recent United States steel strike.

Quebec City children hope Pere Noel will be riding a sled Pickerville games.

The French word Pichenolle cannot be translated and the game, played with wooden rings called the ring of finger ring, is not widely known outside Quebec.

Object is to knock opponent's rings of a board target by flicking them with the fingers.

Weather has had an effect on buying in other provinces besides Saskatchewan. Absence of snow in Halifax cut demand for sleds, toboggans and other winter sport equipment.

"We're selling more tricycles and bicycles than sleds," was a retailer said.

But good weather boosted sales in Maalboro by allowing rural residents to travel to Winnipeg and other large centres to shop.

NO FARE CHANGE

TORONTO (CP) — Charles Walker, Toronto Transit Commission chairman, said Thursday no increase in the 12½-cent basic fare is likely in 1960. He added that, instead of the fairly substantial deficit expected earlier this year, there would be a surplus—possibly around $100,000.

96 Men Live Underground For Two Weeks

PLEASANTON, Calif. (AP)—Ninety - six bearded men, eyes blinking at the sunlight, stumbled up from two weeks of a mole-like underground existence. They were human experiments in how to survive nuclear fallout.

Each had lost three to five pounds. The men's skin had a confinement pallor.

Two needs were uppermost — a bath and a big meal.

But the 96 all said that, if need be, they could have remained below more weeks in the 1,200 square foot steel cement hut 80 feet below the earth's surface.

"A complete success," said Dr. Wolmer Stroge, chief of the U.S. Navy Radiology Laboratory's military evaluation division. He had spent the time with the men. Dr. Stroge said it was the largest such test in the United States.

The men subsisted on peanut butter bars, standard army rations and a special diet developed by the U.S. department of agriculture.

The only contacts were a two-way radio operated by Dr. Stroge and a closed television circuit by which psychologists on the outside kept the men under surveillance.

To pass the time, the men conducted a round - the - clock dice game, held intramural and chess tournament. Some played shuffle board.

Their power brought in air through baffled ventilators. An auxiliary generator supplied electricity. The men had 15,000 gallons of water at the start. When they got out, the water was almost exhausted.

U.S. Democrats Face Election Year With Woeful Lack of Leadership, Cracks in Armor

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (CP) — The Democrats, though powerful in Congress, face the 1960 presidential election year with a woeful lack of firm leadership and evident cracks in their political armor.

Blunting their offensive is a conflict of family squabbling as to what manner of man should lead them in the struggle next November to wrest the White House from an eight-year Republican hold.

The situation has become so bad that Paul M. Butler, chairman of the party's national committee, recently had to make a special appeal for funds to pay the rent at national headquarters. One southerner suggested enthusiasm to pay party dues would be stirred if "we had a fight."

At least five men may vie for the party's presidential nomination at the Los Angeles convention next July 11. Each has his own personal following and each his evident political weakness.

HEAT CREDITED ADLAI

In the end, the Democrats may be forced to draft kindly Adlai E. Stevenson, 59, for a second time, stinging defeats at the hands of President Eisenhower in the 1952 and 1956 election flights.

At least five men may vie for the party's presidential nomination at the Los Angeles convention next July 11. Each has his own personal following and each his evident political weakness.

HEAT CREDITED ADLAI

In the end, the Democrats may be forced to draft kindly Adlai E. Stevenson, 59, for a second time, stinging defeats at the hands of President Eisenhower in the 1952 and 1956 election flights.

The 59-year-old Stevenson, who is said to prefer political farming to winning the Illinois governorship in 1948—a turn likely for a Democrat in that Republican stronghold—says he's washed his hands of any further struggle for the presidency.

Yet he has popped up to speak at familiar political places and has been careful not to have appeared to make a third try if the party rallied round him compellingly.

Could Stevenson win the presidency? Many Democrats, including former president Harry Truman, think not. The balding, divorced Chicago lawyer fights clean, but apparently without deliverin hard blows. Truman says he can't "give 'em hell."

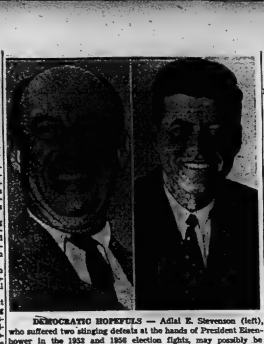
So there's doubt that among the expected 1,500 voting delegates at Los Angeles there would be any great clamor for his future—unless no other choice can be made.

From now until convention time, the party's main concentration will be on its presidential "hopefuls."

Perhaps the man with the most winning ways is wealthy young Senator John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts, whose shock of reddish brown hair is a familiar political trade mark across the country. The tall, lean son of a financier financier has shown outstanding political performance in his six years as congressman and seven years as senator.

Kennedy has great drive, ambition and self - discipline, but democrats observe he is young—only 42—and he's a Roman Catholic. Catholics make up only about 20 per cent of the U.S. population and no one of that faith has ever become president.

There's also Senator Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota—Gabby as he is known among some of his associates—who'll talk at a drop of a hat and sometimes is known to do the dropping. But, though the 48-year-old Humphrey already has declared himself in the presidential race, veteran observers don't consider him a strong candidate mainly because of his extreme liberal views.



Out of the South comes Senator Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, a tall, hefty 51-year-old political veteran who raised some dust inside the party during his majority leadership of the Senate. He suffered a heart attack a few years ago, raising a question of whether he has sufficient physical strength to withstand the rigors of the White House.

Amid the bickering and without the weakness of religious minority affiliation stands Senator Stuart Symington of Missouri, a tall, ramrod individual who a few years ago had to undergo medical care for hypertention.

Some Democrats see in him the "compromise" candidate, perhaps acceptable both in northern and southern members. Symington, after some youthful escapades, later became head of a big electrical manufacturing company and first secretary for air in the former Truman administration.

That's more...he's an Episcopalian and the record shows that more Episcopalians were elected president than any other religious affiliation.

Symington is a great champion of military defence and air power but there is no evidence that his national popularity compares with that of the youthful Kennedy or even Stevenson.

DEMOCRATIC HOPEFULS — Adlai E. Stevenson (left), who suffered two stinging defeats at the hands of President Eisenhower in the 1952 and 1956 election flights, may possibly be drafted by the Democrats for a third attempt at the polls next November. But Senator John F. Kennedy (right) is expected to put up a fight for the nomination. Stevenson, now 59, says he has washed his hands of the presidential fight, but his name keeps popping up in party discussions. Controversy may centre on the Roman Catholic religion of the youthful and able Kennedy. No Roman Catholic has been nominated for president in the last three decades. In 1928 New York Governor Al Smith, a Roman Catholic Democrat, was swamped by Quaker Republican Herbert Hoover at the presidential polls. (CP Photo)

Parley To Block Economic Split In West Sought

Would Include Canada In Conference on Trade

Thief Robbed While Police Question Him

GLENDALE, Calif. (AP)—It's getting so a hard-working burglar can't even have his loot unguarded.

Police said Robert Graham robbed a Glendale music store early today and was caught by passing police officers. While the officers were talking to Graham two other men hopped by—and started helping themselves to radios, hi-fi equipment and musical instrument Graham had placed in his car.

The officers arrested Charles Edward Allen and Donald Simonds, 23, booking them along with Graham on suspicion of burglary.

British Papers Thankful Summit Meet in Sight

LONDON (AP)—British newspapers gave thanks editorially today for the fact that "the summit is at last in sight."

The Daily Mail and Daily Express, both Conservative, and the Daily Herald, Labor, all used the word "at last" in the first few paragraphs of their editorials about the summit.

After pointing out that it had taken 13 months for the Berlin issue to mature for Premier Khrushchev, The Daily Mail says:

"Mr. Khrushchev has still to accept. After his own estimate of his prospects for such a conference it is almost inconceivable that he could refuse. But we can never discount Russian unpredictability."

FEAR NOT GREAT

Regarding the differences between the Western Allies the Mail says that "it has its bright side too. It shows that the West does not believe itself to be in danger. If there were fears of war these differences and lesser ones would be sunk and the front would unite.

"Paradoxically, such quarrels strengthen the hope of peace."

The world is impatient for peace. There is no more time to be lost."

CYNICISM ANSWERED

The Herald says:

"From high hopes fostered by Mr. Macmillan before the election, public opinion has swung to cynicism because of the attacks of de Gaulle and Adenauer.

"But is such pessimism justified? It is not, if Mr. K accepts the invitation for which he has now asked.

"The coming year will be one of hard bargaining, but it will start as one of hope."

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The day before winter's official entry found many New York state shivering today in temperatures down to an unofficial 25 below zero.

The -25 was reported at Duane, near Malone, N.Y.

Continued cold was forecast for Tuesday, although slightly higher temperatures are expected in some areas. The weather bureau predicted general snow flurries or light snow.

QUIET CLOSING CONTRASTS WITH LAST SEASON

German Tanker Last to Leave

MONTREAL (CP)—The little German tanker Inka slipped her moorings almost unnoticed late today and headed downstream, closing Montreal harbor for the 1959 shipping season.

"There's quite a contrast between this year and last," remarked H. L. Land, department of transport channel engineer.

Last Dec. 21 he was in the St. Lawrence River held 14 ocean ships trapped at Montreal, it was Jan. 14 before they finally began their journey to sea.

This year the waterfront has been abandoned to watchmen. Last year at this time 500 homeless sick foreign sailors were preparing for a cheerless Christmas here.

The Inka arrived in Montreal battered from a stormy Atlantic crossing. She was received in drydock and loaded with 1,500 tons of mid-freeze.

Had she been unable to sail until tonight, as her agents first thought, she would have tied the late-closing record set in 1957.

ICE SHIPPED WAYS

Mr. Land said the Inka would probably encounter little difficulty in the ice as she steamed downstream trip to the sea. But the ice-breaker will work soon soon produce ice hazards.

Ice-breakers will work to keep channels open to reduce flood danger, Mr. Land said. But a normal amount of ice-breaking working under ordinary conditions has been unable to keep the channel free all winter since 1921.

Four ice-breakers are to operate between Montreal and Quebec for most of the winter, Mr. Land said. Four others would work below Quebec City.

The ice-breakers will open all winter, he said, would require a fairly large fleet of ice-breakers operating continually, and some days the weather is too bad for operations.

1958 CLIMAX

The ships trapped last year ended the port harbor after a harrowing race to get through the Welland Canal which connects lakes between Montreal and the Great Lakes.

The race was the first season of operation for the St. Lawrence seaway. Ice conditions encountered no real difficulty clearing it. The last ship passed through Dec. 16, nine days after the original official closing deadline but bitter weather of freeze-in had become imminent.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (CP) — The St. Mary's River here will probably be closed to navigation Tuesday or Wednesday, coast guard officials said today.

The closing will end the latest navigation season since 1931.

The river, linking Lake Superior and Lake Huron, is usually ice-bound in January.

Michigan locks have been kept operating for as much time as possible to be moved. The shipments were delayed this year by low-level locks steel strikes.

Between nine and 14 ships, mostly United States vessels, are still to make the downbound passage, officials estimate. An undetermined number remain to go up.

BEES IN FLAMING CAB

NEW YORK (AP)—A 22-year-old woman burned to death Sunday after she was trapped in a flaming taxicab following a head-on collision on Manhattan Bridge.

Find Bodies of Murdered Family Beside Glittering Christmas Tree

OSPREY, Fla. (AP)—A Christmas glittered today in an isolated home, but two youngsters will never open the four gaily-wrapped packages beneath the boughs.

An unknown assailant murdered Clifford Walker, his wife, and their small children some time Saturday at their rural home.

The bodies of the parents and a three-year-old son lay on the floor not far from the Christmas tree until discovered Sunday by a friend.

Officers think the killer was a friend of the family who tried unsuccessfully to rape the mother.

They believe the murders occurred when the father and children arrived home from a friend's house.

Victims were Clifford and Christine Walker, both 23, their son Clifford Jr., and three-year-old daughter, Debbie.

The parents and son had been shot in the head. No murder weapon was found, but three .22-calibre cartridge cases lay near the bodies.

The girl's body was found face down in a half-filled bathtub, and Sheriff Ross Boyer said the killer apparently held the child under the water until she drowned. The girl also had been shot.

Even Dogs Gay at Christmas Party for Eskimos, Indians

GREAT WHALE RIVER, Que. (CP) — The women wore their best furs. It was the biggest event of the season—Father's social season.

Even the dogs were gay.

The occasion was the Eskimo and Indian Christmas party during the weekend at Great Whale River, Que., where in October ships and planes unload supplies whether Christmas will be white.

The party was staged by the native people of the lonely outpost on the Hudson Bay coast, on the frozen shores of Hudson Bay, were treated to games, gifts, dinner and dancing by their newcomers to the area — the staff of the department of northern affairs, and the dozens of private contractors who use and run the Great Whale River air base and radar station.

Almost all the community's 288 Eskimos and 139 Indians turned out for a day of relaxation. Only a few families, who live in camps west far inland to hunt and trap, were missing.

Half the fun for the natives was watching the new white men arrive. Curious and friendly, they almost shook the ramp as planeloads of strangers arrived from Ottawa, Montreal, and—Winisk, to the south.

They smiled when the southerners smiled. They smiled even when the southerners didn't smile.

They smiled even more broadly when George (Mukluk) McCollum stepped out as RCAP Dakota from Winisk. McCulloch, executive of Canadian Marconi Company which operates the

Castro Calls All to Watch For Counter-Revolutionaries

HAVANA (AP)—Setting Cuba's against Cuba in an island-wide witch hunt, Premier Fidel Castro promised an even tougher crackdown on "counter-revolution."

The premier's promise came after a wave of violence raged in the capital.

In a television speech of about two hours Sunday night, Castro's first speech in seven days — Castro declared: "We are now going to couple the next session of his cabinet will pass laws stripping all property from persons convicted of counter-revolutionary activities.

Castro said a system of informers is operating throughout Cuba to point out the enemies of his revolution. Slang for the informer is "Batista dog," Batista being the name of the most hated words in Cuba because of the operations of informers under the Batista dictatorship.

Earlier the union members heard Labor Minister Augusto Martinez Sanchez say: "The counter-revolutionaries, the press and reactionary businessmen would get the same tough treatment as aggressors in the event of an invasion by Cuba.

One of Maritime Sanches' aides had been employed by the labor ministry were fired on and wounded Sunday after getting out of a taxicab in front of his home.

Lieut. Edgard Escobosa, an aide who was shot in the head, told police he thought the gunmen mistook him for his chief. Both wear Castro-style beards.

Castro also moved Cuba closer to the Soviet orbit when he took over by signing cheques to buy 100,000 tons of petroleum supplied by Cubana. The government took over and announced the sugar fields will be seized next.

Christmas Is Party Time In Military Camps of North

FORT CHURCHILL, Man.(CP) — Christmas time is party time in this cold-war outpost, military camp on the western shore of Hudson Bay 450 miles north of Winnipeg. The youngsters get their full treatment of gifts and goodies.

About 600 children of kinder-garten age and under, gather Dec. 23 for their own party, previous Yuletide seasons for their own party. The next day the adult forces festive events organized by the various military units participate.

The youngsters — sons and daughters of Canadian army, navy and RCAF personnel and of United States army personnel at Churchill — will watch them, Santa Claus arrives by dog sled Christmas eve.

Winter is long in Fort Churchill and Christmas "hits the children's fancy," says Capt. Walter Conrad of Chatelstown, Que.

The Canadian Army, which operates the camp, puts on the massive children's party. Young-sters from the nearby Eskimo and Indian settlements are invited.

Until the parties don't overshadow Church services. Both the Roman Catholic and Protestant chapels are packed on Christmas Eve.

Fort Churchill is a pickup point for mail carried on the RCAF's Christmas airlift to the Arctic.

Air Flying Forces Command at near Edmonton a week ago to-day began the eighth outpost-weather stations and RCMP detachments with their Christmas mail, supplies and Christmas trees.

The Christmas trees came from Edmonton, and the mail was piled into mail sacks and Hudson Bay, 600 miles inside the Arctic Circle.

"You can't imagine what a lift it gives us just to have an airplane fly by at this time of year," radioed one outpost. These outposts will receive no more supplies until spring. Radio is their only connection with the outside.

The supplies were dropped by parachute, as far north as Resolute Island.

Ground Party Ready to Drop Near Wreckage

MONTREAL (CP) — A ground party was scheduled to be dropped in Northern Ontario today near the wreckage of a mid-air collision which killed seven. States air force jet planes.

Search operations in the area Sunday spotted a section of aircraft that may possibly be part of the search for missing Lieut. Gaylord H. Treu, 27, Garner, Iowa, pilot of the F-102 fighter which collided Thursday with a T-33 trainer.

The RCAF said the helicopter was making its final sweep when it found the wreckage section of the fighter. The tailpiece was found Saturday.

The crash occurred 30,000 feet above the wilderness area 100 miles north of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.

The pilot and co-pilot of the B-47, Capt. Roy Minor, 32, Manhattan, Kan., and Capt. Thomas G. Adams, 34, Greensboro, N.C., parachuted to safety. They were rescued Friday and returned the following day to home bases in the United States.

The bodies of Lieut. Carleton E. Hunt, 24, Oklahoma City, Okla., and Lieut. Lloyd Allen Bolze, Idaho, were found in the wreckage of the T-33 trainer.

The RCAF said that on call-out the ground party expected to land out would probably have been given by Capt. Minor. He and Capt. Adams would have been ejected upwards from the cabin. Their chute, however, would be ejected downwards. Lieut. Horn, an observer, would have to wait until the navigator was ejected and then jump through the opening.

An RCAF spokesman said that if Lieut. Treu landed safely, he would probably have little difficulty surviving the five-degree-below-zero weather. He would have had a survival kit strapped to his back.

NINE ARE KILLED AS CATTLE TRUCK, BUS COLLIDE

Impact Dismembers Bodies, 35 Hurt

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — A double-decker bus and a double-decker cattle truck collided Sunday, killing nine persons and injuring 35 others.

The impact dismembered bodies and buried cattle into the bus, witnesses said.

Everyone on the bus was killed or injured. The driver was killed, as were two drivers in the cattle truck.

Thirty cattle, mostly calves, were killed on impact. Highway patrolmen destroyed a dozen more injured animals with revolvers. Many fled, bawling, into the desert.

The Los Angeles - to - New Orleans bus was a special, added for Christmas Holiday travelers.

Patrolman Jerry Williams said cause of the crash is being investigated. He added:

"This is the fastest accident I have ever seen. The impact of the bus and truck sent some of the cattle inside the bus. There was one calf on the roof of the bus."

Williams said truck driver James R. Stewart of Houston, Tex., apparently missed a "keep right" sign where the road divided for repairs. The truck, he said, took the wrong side when it struck the bus.

The double-decked truck was hauling 47 cattle at the time, Mitz., to Arlington, Ariz.

Johnny Hutchinson was in the washroom for a drink and was killed.

Mrs. Margaret Rodden, Johnny's mother, said she and her two sons were on a trip to Lubbock, Tex., to be with her mother, when Johnny died.

"Then the driver slammed on the brakes," Mrs. Rodden said, "the bus swerved. I tried to get out of my seat to go to him, but the next thing I knew I was thrown to a window and was caught by two men outside."

She suffered concussion and the surviving son, Charles, had a head injury.

Near Springfield, Ohio, one person was killed and 34 others injured when a bus overturned and bus skidded on an icy highway, overturned and rolled into a ditch.

Townsend, Once Beau of Princess, Weds Daughter of Tobacco Tycoon

BRUSSELES (AP) — Princess Margaret's one-time suitor, Peter Townsend, was married here today to Marie-Luce Jamagne, 30-year-old daughter of an Antwerp tobacco tycoon, a friend of Townsend reported.

The engagement of Townsend, 44, and Marie-Luce, 30, a social secretary, was announced by her father Oct. 5.

Townsend's romance with Princess Margaret started a few years ago. He had been divorced, and the Church of England forbids marriage of a divorced person as long a sthe other party to the divorce is living. Townsend's friend said. "It was brief. The formal ceremony took place in French. The burgomaster briefly addressed the couple in English, wishing them happiness."

Marie-Luce, a bit of a tomboy when she was younger, had little schooling after she suffered from the shock of a V-bomb attack on Antwerp toward the end of the war.

She took acting lessons in Paris, and is interested in classical ballet dancing.

India, Red China, Divided Germany Are Ruled Out

Leaders Beam Optimism As Conference Ends

PARIS (AP) — The Western Big Three today issued a communique on their momentous talks calling Russia to a summit meeting April 27, but they ruled out any added starters such as the divided Germany, Red China or India.

The communique reaffirmed the West's determination to yield to no threats on divided Berlin or surrender their basic interests there. West Berlin is the central issue facing the East-West summit meeting.

The communique said the West expected "the hope that the proposed conference will contribute to the strengthening of peace with justice."

The communique reaffirmed the policies set down in a four-power communique of Dec. 14, 1958, and the declaration of the Atlantic Council Dec. 16 of that year. These documents pledged to defend Berlin against the Soviet aggression.

Also in the communique, the Western powers made public the conditions they spelled out in their Dec. 14 communique for inviting him to a summit meeting. They considered that they met the sizability of a series of such meetings.

The heads of state and government agreed on the desirability of a four-power conference with the chairman of the council of ministers of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics. The purpose of this conference would be to consider a broad agenda of mutual concern. Presidents Eisenhower, de Gaulle and Mr. Macmillan have sent letters to Mr. Khrushchev proposing such a meeting beginning on the 27th of April next in Paris. These letters were delivered in Moscow this morning. The texts are being immediately released.

The heads of state and government met today in their last preliminary meeting which will take place on the 22nd of December and will be followed by meetings of the ministers of the countries concerned.

The heads of state and government express the hope that the preparatory conference will make a tribute to the strengthening of peace with justice.

Juniors Meet Kingston Squad Here Tonight

Peter Lunn-Perkins and Kingston Johnny Motors, deadlocked for second place in the OHA Eastern Ontario Junior "D" hockey league, will meet in an 8.30 fixture here tonight.

Peter Llewellin's bustling young Belleville squad racked up 86 highest scoring win of the season in Gananoque Friday night, a 10-4 triumph, but the Kingston club kept pace by downing the league-leading Peterborough Canoeks 6-3 right in Peterborough.

Peterborough tops the six-team loop with nine wins and two losses, both defeats received from Kingston. Belleville and Kingston are just three points behind the leaders with seven wins and a tie each but the Limestone City crew has not lost three games while the locals have dropped four.

And so tonight's game is a very important one for both clubs with the winner taking over undisputed possession of the loop's second spot. Belleville borough goes to Cobourg in another league tilt tonight.

In Final Radio Talk Sunday Mayor G. B. Hyde Reviews Accomplishments of His Term

A review of the accomplishments of Belleville city council during the last two years term of office was given Sunday afternoon by Mayor George B. Hyde during his final broadcast over radio CJBQ.

Mayor Hyde dealt separately with the various city departments, noting the work which was and either been put into effect or which had been approved and were now waiting for action to ahead signal.

Dealing first with general administration Mayor Hyde noted that in accordance with the vote of the people the city now has a private act guaranteeing the city manager form of government which can only be repealed by a vote of the people requesting its repeal.

A system of tax pre-payment has been set up which allows residents to pay property taxes at a discount rate higher than the current bank interest rate. Formal approval has been given to a complete reassessment of the city, which was now underway with an expected completion date in time for use in calculating the 1961 tax rate. A special committee for the review of by-laws and business licences has been set up, with fees established on a basis more in keeping with today's costs of inspection.

WORKS PROJECTS

Turning to the public works department, Mayor Hyde noted the following items of progress: Construction of storm drains in the Parker and Henry street area; establishment of a concrete plant bureau where residents may call in complaints say hour of the day; (The telephone number is WO 8-3333.)

A policy for budgeting for the replacement of vehicles in the works department had been set up so that the annual cost for this purpose would be approximately the same each year, thus avoiding large costs in some years and little in others.

A ditching program had been instituted which would save the city thousands of dollars in the future. The ditching program had been considered as the first step in a program which ultimately would see all streets in the city properly drained and paved.

The widening of College Street had received approval and the covering by-law was given two readings by council. The matter is now before the Ontario Municipal Board for final approval.

CARING FOR STREET TREES

Also a program for care and maintenance of trees has been commenced this week with the work to be done by the Parks board under the supervision of the city engineer.

This winter council has sought approval for a winter works program involving an expenditure of up to $30,000, the city's share of which would be one quarter of the labor costs involved.

Among capital improvements to the city were listed the new $100,000 addition to the Corby Public Library and the erection of a new nursing education building at Belleville General Hospital, which is expected to be completed within the next few months.

Approval from the Board of Transport Commissioners for the construction of a new overhead bridge over the double tracks on North Front Street has been received. This means the Board will assume 50 per cent of the cost of the four-lane structure and the remaining 50 per cent will be split among the C.N.R., the Ontario Department and the city of Belleville.

Mayor Hyde said he expected that within the next few months the 1960 council will authorize final plans and specifications and the purchase of the necessary lands and that actual construction will be commenced.

SEWAGE DISPOSAL PLANS

A sewage disposal system has reached the stage where council has before it a draft agreement with the Ontario Water Resources Commission awaiting signatures of the Mayor and Clerk. Preliminary approval by council was given to this much-needed project last April but subsequent pressing events prevented any formal by-law being discussed as it was hereby the Ontario Municipal Board would not give approval until early in 1960 and the matter could not be finally laid before the project should receive early attention of the new council.

During the past two years the Belleville Utilities Commission had been engaged in a program of expansion, including the construction of a new hydro office and the installation of new purification facilities at the filtration plant.

Planned for the future is a program calling for metering of all water services and the installation of a new large capacity waterpump from the purification plant to serve the northern section of the city.

PREPARE LIGHTING PLAN

A complete new street lighting plan for the city of Belleville has been prepared by the consultants and authorized by council.

Also during the past two years council has established a city planning department with Chief Alfred Magnan as planning officer. A great deal of work has been done by this department with respect to zoning new sections of the city This department has many of the duties of "subdividers' agreement by - law which will, before the capital outlay for municipal services in future subdivisions.

The city police commission has appointed a school traffic safety officer, Mayor Hyde said that this officer, Sgt. Dennis Women's League, is making a wonderful impression on the young children of the city in connection with the safety program.

Brief mention was made by the mayor of the new public health unit centre on Pinnacle Street.

The city engineer is planning to have the cost of this building exceed the estimates but any qualified engineer will tell you we have a bargain in the value we get finished product," he said.

PURCHASE LAND

Looking forward to the future industrial development of the city, council had authorized the purchase of approximately 300 acres of land within the city limits on the west side of 401 highway from the Ontario Hydro Department at a cost of $150 per acre. Assurance of the highway department indicated that this land given the city property would be held for a future interchange to serve the city's financing would permit its purchase.

The mayor noted that during the past two years the assessment on industrial property in the city had increased by $1,545,225.

Also during the past two years the second phase on a long range parking program has been completed with the sequence of land on the east side of the river. It is expected that the present parking area will completely retire the indebtedness within a period of four or five years.

Council has also established parking standards which will be appointed at the beginning of 1960.

Late last winter when a flood in downtown Belleville seemed imminent, in co-operation with the civil defence committee of the city, a rescue and reception centre was set up. The flood did not materialize, and the program was not tested but the co-operation shown by the Belleville Civil Defence Department and the city of Belleville, planning the program received high praise.

PLAN FUTURE BEACH

Miscellaneous matters dealt with by council included a plan for policy decision opposing the extension of any municipal services beyond the corporate limits of the city, thereby guaranteeing overcrowded fires within the city limits. An abandoned railway right of way running from McDonald Ave. to the eastern limits of the city with the idea of having the land available for a future sanitary land fill project, thus opening up a waterfront area which would be reclaimed for use as a beach park.

The summer months during the past two years have also seen the establishment of free concerts in Victoria Park with attendance steadily improving year by year.

Mayor Hyde made no direct mention of the city's financial problems, of the recent judicial decision and the fact that over $100,000 of city money has gone to finance the world championship Belleville Bulls hockey team.

He said, however, that council members collectively had "spent hundreds of hours attempting to provide the best in civic administration."

"Being human, we have perhaps made our share of errors in judgment, but on the whole I believe that history will remember our solid accomplishments long after any errors are forgotten," he said.

Nasser — Pro and Con

We see in the Toronto Evening Telegram that the Egyptians are building a monument out of a house wherein a British army officer, held hostage by Egyptian guerillas during the Suez crisis, was killed by his captors. The museum is to commemorate the "heroic resistance" of the Egyptians. We understand that Nasser approves of the museum only because the British press objected to such an obvious display of bad taste. To quote General Nasser, "When foreign interests try to pressure us, we have no alternative but to take counter actions."

Apparently if no hue and cry had been forthcoming from Great Britain after the announcement of the proposed museum the plan would have been quashed for its obvious bad taste was the impression which a Telegram reporter got from Nasser. But the British protested, as might be expected, and Nasser got reluctant (if we are to believe him) satisfaction out of carrying on with the proposal.

This, of course, is the sort of thing which any large power dedicated to preserving peace has to put up with from jingoistic minorities which are out to "prove" themselves. We doubt if Nasser's exuberant recklessness would be allowed to travel its petty course if he were, let us say, a Hungarian wishing to establish a museum in Budapest to honor the Hungarian resistance to the Russian influence.

But his rather immature policy of always taking contrary action to any "pressure," which in this case seems to be merely objection to Mr. Nasser's whims, from "foreign interests" might seem to indicate that a total hands-off policy is most desirable. We are reminded of the nursery rhyme line . . . "Leave them alone, and they will come home, wagging their tails behind them."

To quote another of Nasser's statements on the above subject . . . "Some British papers are still under the delusion that a word printed by them can force a government to resign. Such irresponsibility does the West no good in the Mid-East."

We will cede to Mr. Nasser the correctness of this latter statement as he is certainly a much better judge of Mid-Eastern attitudes than we, but we might state that his actions in carrying through with the museum may be interpreted as "irresponsibility" which will do him no good in the West.

As for the value that pressure from "foreign interests" must be met with "contrary actions" we wonder why he has accepted the Russian suggestion that he accept their aid and arms. Perhaps a different set of values comes into effect here since the Russians are a much harder nation to turn down.

Nasser has admitted that the action proposed by the Port Said authorities has had toxic. We cannot help but feel that his standing in the West would have been greatly enhanced if he had disallowed such action; we do not believe he would have "lost" face at home. Surely a museum where a nation learns from and through the actions of the Egyptian people can hardly be considered as a fitting memorial to their resistance, or to anyone's resistance for that matter.

Whilst we may criticize the president of the United Arab Republic for his stand on the above we must credit him with having offered personally to intervene with the resistance group concerned in order to effect the release of the captured soldier. Through General Burns, the Canadian commander of the United Nations Emergency Force at the time, Mr. Nasser sent word to General Stockwell, leader of the British force in control of the area at the time, offering this assistance. The latter, unfortunately, denied his permission for such action.

It is hard to understand some people's attitudes or actions at times, however.

Moving picture interests are threatening to add a new dimension—smell. Let's hope the departure is confined to movies. Some theatres have already equipped to give off odors, would certainly chase people out of the house and so disrupt family life. (Fort William Times-Journal.)

THE APPROACH OF CHRISTMAS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

There's a little chap at our house,
who is being mighty good,
Keeps the front lawn looking tidy in the way we've said he should;
Doesn't leave his little wagon,
when he's finished with his play,
On the sidewalk as he used to,
Now he puts it right away!
When we call him in to supper
we don't have to stand and shout;
It is getting on to Christmas and it's plain he's heard it out.

He eats the food we give him without murmur or complaint;
He sits up at the table like a cherub or a saint.
He doesn't pinch his sister just to hear how loud she'll squeal;
Doesn't ask us to excuse him in the middle of the meal.
And at eight o'clock he's willing to be tucked away in bed.
It is getting close to Christmas.
Nothing further need be said.

I chuckle every evening as I see that little elf
With the crooked part,
proclaiming that he brushed
his hair himself.
And I chuckle as I notice that his hands and face are clean
For in him a perfect copy of his mother I can see;
A little boy at Christmas, who was also being good;
Pleasing that his father and his mother understood.

There's a little boy at our house
who is being mighty good,
Doing everything he should.
But beside him there's a grownup who has learned
life's latter truth,
Who is gladly living over all the joys of vanished youth.
And although he little knows it (for it's what I never know)
There's a mighty happy father sitting at the table, too.

Letters To The Editor

Approves Editorial And News Policy

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer,

I refer to your editorial entitled "A Good Reason for This Remark" which appeared in your publication dated Tuesday, December 18th, but readers of your editorial as to style, and knowledge of the subject matter is excellent, but far more important is what may be called the basic principle or editorial policy underlying the writing of such an editorial.

Much has been said in the history of mankind about freedom of the press, but freedom of any other right carries with it responsibility and incapable duties. The duties attached to the freedom of the press are manifold as the news-stander one might well wonder. Freedom is not license! To endeavor to present facts and to deal with subjects in a truly objective, logical, fair and reasonable manner is surely one of the finest functions of a newspaper and in this manner purpose can there be in the lives of men than the search for truth.

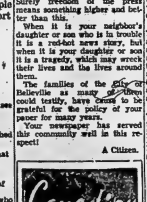
As your editorial said —

"To date we have seen no attempt on the part of the people of law behind the judge's remarks, although many of the readers of the editorial staffs of the papers printing these letters must be sympathetic. This is a poor way to serve the cause of justice."

It is apparent that the so called leading newspaper with which their editor is associated their duty to explain to the public the reason for the remarks in question. The editorial has explained so clearly and accurately, and I trust that every one reading this letter may wish to go back and read the editorial again.

To say thinking person it must be apparent that the law being a man-made device has its limitations. I understand that the laws with the earliest times been wise enough to know that it is not a crime on the english as the hearts of a mother and father who have lost their child, or the parents of a man who has just been told of the death of her husband, of the utmost sorrows and tragedies of life. The courts can only attempt to review the facts presented and the material damage which that person has suffered. To attempt to do more would be humanly impossible.

It is so easy for a newspaper, as for an individual, to fall into the habit of thinking money is more money is the highest purpose. There must be a great temptation to meet each circulators with more and more sensational headlines and spicy news items of street level with the excuse which some use "well that's what the public wants" feed them more and more of it. Squeeze them in the form of money out of every controversy, every scandal, every murder, every sordid and morbid event unworthy of humanity".



Many years then disputes itself into cheap shabby sensationalism, based on the theory that it will succeed because life gets scarred or wrecked in the rush, or what is worse, because life gets as the public gets fed the scandal, the gossip, the sensationalism it craves, without any regard for the true facts or the damage done to the lives of men. Surely freedom of the press means something higher and better than this.

When it is your neighbor's daughter or son who is involved, it is a red-hot news story, but when it is your daughter or son it is a tragedy, which may wreck their lives and the lives around them.

The families of the city of Belleville as many of you could testify, have cause to be grateful for the policy of your paper for many years.

Your newspaper has served this community well in this respect!

A Citizen.

MONTREAL QUE.

Canada's largest city, situated on the Montreal Island. The original name was Hochelaga. This peaceful city was founded in 1643, and was given the name of Ville-Marie. A mountain back of the city had been named Mont-Real (Mount Royal) by the French. After the English captured the town in 1760 it was renamed Montreal, which was arrived at by joining the two words and giving it an English pronunciation.

Disagrees With Judge And With Editorial

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

I find that I must take issue with your editorial of November 18th in which you defend the decision of a Toronto police magistrate in a woman killing case, for an accident in which the motorist is permanently disfigured, namely a pre-trial fine of $50 for her negligence.

The argument that you give for this decision is that the motorist was "shocked" at the resulting woman, was unfortunate enough to have that position in life. You contend that "injury is not as serious as it might have been to a girl in a different station in life." The editorial then goes on to remark that "if her station in life had been such that she normally were an evening gown frequently, the occasions that she would have to appear dressed would be much more frequent, and the damage resulted would be much more serious." Again you contend "settled fines" damages." In this I differ with you entirely through the whole editorial is that, as the woman is a particular station in life, then the judge was correct in awarding a fine which was within the limits of her station in life, while apparently it might have been argued that she has the opportunity to change that same station in life.

What I must contend from this is that your paper, along with this type of decision and the damages, has not taken this into consideration, or worse still thought it of little value, and it shows a lack of enforcing equality in the eyes of the law, the democratic system that we supposedly have, and the enterprise system which your paper has many, many times defended in bulk. Surely it is unnecessary that everyone has the same opportunities in life, but that is not to say that they are the next person. Yet what you are saying now is that the lady in question should be awarded damages to the tune of $2,000 or $3,000 considering that could very well prevent her from raising her "standard in life."

It could be argued that the motorist in question should not see the woman becoming a profession and that is something that might call for 'wearing off-the-shoulder gowns, and of course that is true, but not what might has the judge to assume, as he must base in arriving at his decision, that this particular thing would occur and he says remain in that station in life?

The unfortunate part of the whole affair is that the woman becomes a victim of "life" and will not have the money to appeal the decision to a higher court.

Tommy Left Without Foe

Montreal Daily Star

There was a time in the British army — long, long ago — when a buck private could get himself shot for lifting a finger, indulging in "dumb insolence." Then Dean Swift's Tommy Atkins softened a bit. Why, even in the First World War — you may not know it — he was fed Punishment No. 1 — lashing a soldier to a gun wheel — for minor offences.

But during the so-called peacetime period of 1918-1939 and since, he got for lilies and the lowly Other Ranks found the good humor and the common man's inhumanity to man. The major ogre then was the non-commissioned officer who knew King's Regulations and Orders backwards and forwards, and knew it disingly.

Now look what's happening. The war Office has announced a long-range program to "humanize" the British army. Soldiers are being taken to reduce sentence library privileges ought to being confined to barracks for a lesser period than before and to be more sociable with officers as before.

But you can't fool the troops. They know what's going on in the minds of the brass in that population explosion in the House. Pretty soon there is to be no such thing as conscript army in the United Kingdom. It's to be volunteers all the way. And how hard to lure 'em! Make things more attractive, of course.

Note well that "humanize" is the chosen word. But how far can you humanize a sergeant-major? And supposing you can and do, what's left of him in the army? To be a pokka soldier one is the duty bound to be unimaginative and, lacking a proper enemy in peacetime, who else but the sergeant-major?

Obviously there are psychiatrists at work in the War House. And that's bad!

"I haven't like to waste your time, Madam . . . seeing that nature has beaten me to it!"

Members of the Hospital Auxiliary met at Belleville General Hospital yesterday to prepare Christmas gifts for indigent patients. Under the direction of Mrs. J. G. Galloway and Mrs. J. D. Although there are certain essentials, such as the annual Christmas tag day, Auxiliary raises funds for their extensive programme. The special project on which they are working at present is the Mobile X-ray machine which is to visit the rural areas as the next person. Yet what you are saying now is that the lady in question should be awarded damages to the tune of $2,000 or $3,000 considering that could very well prevent her from raising her "standard in life."

How Not To Teach Civics Classes

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

With the color of duty "Civics" classes still lingering in my memories, I was pleased to read not long ago that a college in West Virginia is employing, for the five ex-politicians to teach a course in "practical politics."

I am not suggesting that this is the only qualified way to do this, but my experience in school was depressingly typical of the theory of civil duty that was given to pupils as "knowledge of American Government."

We were given a diagram on the blackboard, showing the state and federal governments. We were told who ministers what, how the money is collected and disbursed, the duties of the various departments, and the methods of nominating and electing public officials.

But the dynamics of politics remained a mystery to us. We had all the vital features that will be taught in the West Virginia course, but we were not taught how to apply them. We were not told how to get a job in government, and what it is required in return; what are the motives of party leaders; how and to deals make; how much of a voice does the public actually have in the conduct of affairs.

Perhaps other schools were better, but I doubt it very much. All the Civics textbooks I have looked into rigorously ignore the dirty, fascinating, practical side of civil duty with the gross anatomy of government.

What is dangerous about this naive and cloistered approach to the subject is that young people, as soon as they get out in the world, see that the areas of politics bears little relation to the graceful diagram on the blackboard. The result is either a cynicism about the word "politician", that is offered in the schools.

Civics was one of the dullest courses I ever took when it should have been one of the most fascinating. The problem of personality, the force of emotions, the power of economic interests, the thirst for power, the manipulation of mass feelings — all these were ignored as if they did not exist.

Imagine a medical course in which illness was never mentioned, but only the diagram of the healthy body. Of what use would this be to any doctor? But the schools in my day were so timid, so fearful of saying anything that might be construed as critical of the existing governmental agencies, that the graduate of a Civics class was no more equipped to vote and act intelligently in the political area than to try a ballroom ascension with a hob-nailer boobie.

To Your Good Health

IF SHAVING CAUSED INGRO WN HAIRS, USE DEPILATORY CREAM

"Dear Dr. Molner: As far back as I can remember, I have always had problems with ingrown hairs after shaving. At times I have to dig them out with a needle.

"I've tried all kinds of razors, shaving soaps and creams, preparations, but the problem remains. In my job I have to meet the public and I feel like a adolescent with this skin problem. Any assistance will be appreciated.—J.M.C."

There is no simple answer to this problem other than a couple of suggestions which I will offer.

The condition is known as pseudofolliculitis of the beard, and it appears in men in whom the beard hair curve too much. When a hair is cut, it tends to curve and re-enter the skin and then, of course keep growing. Left to itself the hair will sometimes cause quite a lump, like the hair (ingrown hair) will grow into a steadily larger little ball.

When you shave, the skin is drawn taut, and each hair of the beard is cut off at skin level. The skin tension is relaxed, the remaining stub of hair drops back into the follicle and the skin heals and as it grows out (with that curve) it re-enters the opening of the hair digs into the skin.

Out of the several thousand hairs, one does this, and does just right — for it, that is, not for you. It catches in the skin, continues to grow and another way inside. Then you have an ingrown hair.

When that happens, you have to dig the hair out, and you already know that from experience. (I gather that you know the procedure.) Now, the problem is that you are encountering this for the first time. Because you are so young, I'll add some advice on what to do. First, use a sterile, soft needle. Second, wash the area with alcohol, to neutralize any germs lurking on the skin. Then work delicately with the needle, because deep digging may cause some scarring. Finally, give ing.

one more dab of alcohol afterward, for safety.

You can't solve the problem by changing razors. Neither is there much value in any of the curly hair become straighter. (Nor, unfortunately, the reverse, is there any way to make straight hair become permanently curly.)

There are, in short, two choices. (1) Give up shaving and let the beard grow. Or (2) use a depilatory cream, which dissolves the hair, leaving rounded edges instead of sharp ones. Of the two, I would say the latter is usually the better choice for most men. The cream should be applied every two or three days, with no shaving in between. Powdering in between uses of cream will help the appearance some.

To say that consulting a dermatologist (skin specialist) will be helpful. He can give you tips on how best to use the above methods.

Booklet: Dr. Molner: Enclosed are 30 cents and a stamped self-addressed envelope for your booklet on diabetes and leaflet on arthritis. My father insists that arthritis is caused by eating candy. Could this be true? — Mrs. L. M.

I sincerely wish arthritis were that simple. I don't.

Note to E. M.: Cause of amyotrophic lateral sclerosis is not known. Vitamin E, thyroid, and lead poisoning, have been mentioned as possibilities. It also usually begins with weakness and wasting of the muscles of the hands, gradually spreading to the arms and shoulders. Nothing promising in treatment, and I know of no group or hospital specializing in this type of disease.

Leg cramps and foot pains? Both can be stopped! To learn how, write to me in care of The Chicago Sun Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Illinois, enclosing 10 cents in stamps. Hate!

This vile thing is of the devil. It occurs when the life of an individual loses its orientation. We are endowed with certain capacities which make us responsible to us live satisfactory lives and help those with whom we come in contact. Some people seem to have within them an poisonous secretion which leaks into their glands and into their bloodstream and makes them hate everyone who opposes them and even those who are not causes. Sometimes the hate takes the form of revenge for real injuries or acts which are presumed to be such. At other times it leads to persecution of others of his own family, blames them for his failures, attributes to them every variety of evil motive. Hitler killed millions of Jews and sought to exterminate them. There have been other times in history when hate ran amuck sometimes believing they were doing rites which made them pleasing and attempted to wipe out certain people, or even very often succeeded in doing so.

Sometimes hate is a disease. Sometimes it is not. A other times it appears to be a deliberate choice with bitterness in his own nature will drink down. Such a person is to be pitied. Sometimes the result of rough and unjust treatment people's lives shrivel: up into a hate complex that ensnaring as many of the human race as they can.

Hate is the devil's weapon. It is the badge of sadistic evil.

No wonder Mr. Claus seems never to grow old. Or ever to tire of his gift packages. Every year he comes — with his bag full of treasures. And always he comes smiling.

Of course rather have been born as Santa Claus than become King of the World. Wouldn't packages and packages there can be only one Santa let us continue working at the same job he does — giving away gift packages! Let us keep on smiling. It is only three more days till Christmas!

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

About half the motor cars that come down Yonge street in the streets of city and town this week should have been left in the parking lot. Many of them are cars belonging to people who regularly drive to town five days a week through lings and home again at night. They are cars that spend their eight hours of the working day quietly squatting on parking lots.

What are they doing off the parking lots these last hectic days before Christmas? They are saving their owners from walking three or four blocks. There are thousands of men who think it utterly preposterous that they should walk three blocks in a few parcels five hundred yards. That is not coming when men will lose the use of their legs, it has come.

The rest of the pre-Christmas traffic abnormale is due to the fact that women are behind the use of the car out of their husbands all the rest of the year, but who, in the name of Christmas, lay a pretty breakable claim at this time. And not being very practised down town drivers, they heighten the clutter.

Add to these two factors the lorries, vans and delivery trucks double parking all over the place, and you have got dear old Christmas, 1958.

HOLY ROSARY CUBS

The following list of awards and badges was given to us by Cubmaster Harold Lyon. Just in list the names do not describe the work and effort of the leaders and the Cubs who spent many hours qualifying for their decorations. Each badge is carefully studied and is only worn by Cubs who have passed the test under the strict scrutiny of the leaders.

Collectors' Badge — P. King, C. Deakin.

Observers'—P. King, P. Barrett, K. Smith, A. Armonas, C. Hailey, G. Deakin.

Artist—P. King, P. Barrett, A. Armonas, C. Deakin.

House Orderly—P. Barrett, C. Bowers, C. Hailey, G. Deakin.

Athlete—C. Bowers.

Team Player—B. Mulvihill.

First Star—A. Armonas.

Two new Cubs have joined the pack, W. Peck and M. McQuade. Three Cubs have been invested, W. Curtin, A. Armonas and S. Hay.

Leaping Wolf badges were awarded to Scouts David Lyon and Bobbie Hogan, who recently became Scouts.

6th TABERNACLE

Parents were invited to the "Going Up" ceremony. Scoutmaster John Babiak explained the opening and closing ceremonies which made the ceremony very interesting to the guests.

Nine Cubs repeated the Cub Promise for the last time, and Cubmaster James McAllister explained to the Cubs that to stay in Scouting and continue to be an eremite to the group. Five of the Cubs had 13 badges, Scott McClelland, Rickie Williamson, Perry Ellis, John Andrews and David Abey. These boys are qualified to wear the Leaping Wolf badge. Paul Rustler will also wear this badge. The other Cubs are Earl Brooks, David Boyce and Vern Whalen.

Scouter Babiak spoke briefly on the important points in Scouting and then asked the boys to take the Scout Oath or promise. The ten steps were then taken from the Cub promise to the Scout troop — at each step one of the Scout laws was repeated by the new Scouts making it a memorable ceremony. The only light was provided by ten candles for the ten Scout laws, which made the scene all the more impressive. The boys had previously attended several Scout meetings and had passed the necessary tests which made it possible for them to be invested at this ceremony.

Comments by John Babiak, who handled the entire evening extremely well, enabled the parents to follow each scene with interest.

A singsong, some clever and humorous skits by the Scouts, closed the successful and educational evening.

Chairman Lew Andrews is proud of his leaders: SM John Babiak, assisted by James Juby, Howard Anderson and Troop leaders: Queen's Scouts Barry Simpson and Bob Weaver. A/SPack. C M Warren Williamson, ACM Mrs. G. Garrow, ACM Dr. Ivan Reed; "B" Pack, Cub James McAllister, ACM Weldon Pringle, ACM Martin LaRue, ACM Milton Abey.

15TH CUBS AND SCOUTS

On Tuesday evening the members of the 15th Cub Pack and Scout Troop pending started their parcels at the Sir Winston Churchill School.

By the light of the moon, and a campfire they opened with a regular Cub and Scout meeting.

After the leaders had been introduced, Akela Gordon Bunnell in turn introduced the boys, and explained their achievements.

The Tuesday night group "A" pack, enacted two humorous playlets, while "B" pack, the Monday boys, contributed a jungle story and songs by the "Silvers".

The Scouts struck a more serious note by displaying their knowledge of first aid. They bandaged and removed an "injured" person on a "stiff stretcher". Another patrol demonstrated the remaining uses of the staff.

The program concluded with the Cub Cheer and a sing-song led by Rackshaw Russell.

The parents were able to check their son's weekly progress chart and see all the badges that could be earned.

The door prizes were won by Mrs. Clarke and Mrs. Dorothy Riley.

Mrs. C. Agar reminded the mothers that the next regular meeting of the Auxiliary would be held the third Tuesday of January.

A delicious lunch, provided by the ladies, was served by the Sixers, and as the boys were leaving the mothers gave each one an orange and a bag of peanuts.

TABERNACLE AUXILIARY

The Boy Scouts Auxiliary of the 6th have just completed their first successful year. A busy 1960 is anticipated and in view of increased requirements it was decided not to make any change in the executive.

Ever growing Packs and Troops need extra equipment and, the ladies are canvassing their talents into funds for this need. A Christmas party is planned and food — a must at all Cub parties — will be supplied.

A pot-luck supper for all Belleville District Boy Scouts Auxiliaries will be held in May. Tabernacle will be hostesses. So ends 1959!

CHRISTMAS PARTY — Charlie Rammer and his Clown Band, Santa Claus and St. John Ambulance nurse Mrs. Harold Reid, Trenton, and Shriners and their proteges at the Shrine Christmas Crippled Children's party held on Saturday.

Shriners, Crippled Kiddies Enjoy Big Christmas Party

They came with twisted little limbs. Some wore steel braces. Others bandaged and limped. Some had to be carried.

But they were smiling, happy. The joy of Christmas shone in their eyes. This they had in common with children more fortunate.

The light of joy and happiness shone in the eyes of their hosts, too. For this was their party. This is what they had worked for, for weeks. This their payment.

The smiling faces and shining eyes of little children, glistening with the light of holiday happiness. An unsaid appreciation that reached deeply into the hearts of these men.

Perhaps all the light in the eyes beneath fezzed heads was not that of happiness. In real a few tears may be glint of an unshed tear.

And there was a warm glow in the hearts of them Belleville Shrine Club members Saturday afternoon when they entertained some 35 of their crippled children proteges at their 14th annual Christmas party.

In the beautiful interior of their club's new auditorium, the Shriners proved perfect Christmas hosts.

There was a huge Christmas tree aglow with Yuletide tinsel, snow and colored lights, its base background a group of colored gifts for the young guests.

The youngsters sang Christmas carols with Shrine chairman Bev Quincy leading and Jimmy Corradi at the piano.

Then were Yuletide and other movies thanks to Coca-Cola branch manager Leo McKee.

There was variety entertainment by talented Shiela Canning and her clever troupe.

Then the big moment, the arrival of Santa Claus, in this case via helicopter. He moved among the children distributing gifts, patting cheeks, shaking hands and filling the place with his hearty "Ho-ho-ho".

Charlie Rammer and his hilariously funny clown band were there, dispensing Christmas and other music and leading the youngsters in carols. Charlie and his band, composed of Walter Asselitine, Joe Burchell, Herb Seamen, Jack Dewyer and Bill Cannon, made a big hit with both the children and their Shriner hosts.

Then the Shriners took over. They treated their young guests to ice cream, candies, cookies, chocolate and white milk, Christmas stockings, Coca Cola and other goodies.

Both the Shriners and the children greatly appreciated the Canning Troupe entertainment. Cheryl Noakes, a pretty daughter of the baseball's "Lefty" and Mrs. Noakes, gave a fine exhibition of baton-wielding, both in solo and later with Miss Canning in a "Baton Street March." Miss Canning showed her versatility in a delightful comedy skit.

Little Brian Douglas gave a recitation and, with petite Lynn Langman, gave his version of "Mickey Mouse's Birthday Party." Penny Yvonne Rouzel one of the guests, also entertained. Attractive Gwen Wilson was the accomplished accompanist.

The auditorium was colorfully decorated in Yuletide fashion by the Shrine Club steward and stewardess, Mr. and Mrs. George Hogan and their associates.

Fifteen children came from Trenton by bus under the supervision of the Trenton Rotary Club Crippled Children Committee chairman Jim Dobby. Rotarian Dobby took over from Norm Banfield, who looked after the Trenton Club's crippled children activities for the past five years, but was forced to resign through ill health.

A large number of Shriners augmenting the club's crippled children committee was on hand to help entertain their little guests, and provide car transportation.

Crippled Children Committee chairman Bev Quincy headed the group which included Sheriff Orliff "Rollie" Lloyd, John Weese, Ken Vivian, George Muller, Steve Bowerman, Phil Davis, Dick Sargent, Fred Carscallen, Fred Poirot, Brian Humphrey, Lloyd Crawford, Jack Bush, Frank Bush, Clarence Michelon, Cec Reid and Horace Wright.

Mrs. Ethel Keller, Belleville, and Mrs. Harold Reid, Trenton, of the St. John Ambulance Brigade, were present to look after the children.

Also there was Mrs. Catherine Davis, mother of the late Shrine or Murray Davis. Mrs. Davis has attended the Christmas Crippled Children parties for a number of years. —C.H.C.

Mr., Mrs. Walter Tucker Happily Wed 60 Years

Events spanning 50 years of married life were recalled here Sunday by Mr. and Mrs. G. Walter Tucker, 8 Boswell St., as they celebrated their diamond wedding anniversary. The couple were "at home" to about 120 friends and relatives during the afternoon and evening.

Both natives of the Wallbridge district of Sidney township, the couple have lived in Belleville for the past 40 years and during the early 1900's lived for 15 years in the Canadian West. They returned to Belleville in 1919 when they moved into the house in which they still reside.

Mr. Tucker, now 84, was born in the 4th concession of Sidney, while his bride of 60 years, the former Elizabeth Jane Nicolson, 82, was born on the 5th concession, near Wallbridge. They were married at the bride's home back in 1899.

The couple still enjoy good health and look after their own household duties.

Mr. Tucker is a former employee of the Belleville Parks Board and for a number of years acted as caretaker at Hollowsy Street United Church before the present-ward couple attend services. Mrs. Tucker was a charter member of the Wallbridge Women's Institute.

TAKE KEEN INTEREST

Through newspaper and radio the couple still keep abreast of the times and take a keen interest in the affairs of this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Tucker have a mutual interest in doing oil and paintings and evidence of their ability is seen in the many examples of their work adorning the walls of their Boswell St. home.

Anniversary congratulations were received from Queen Elizabeth, from Prime Minister John Diefenbaker, Lee Grills, M.P. for Hastings South, and from Mayor Gerald B. Hyde.

The couple have two daughters, Mrs. Edward (Annie) Ridley of Montreal, and Mrs. Lyle (Mary) Morris of this city. They have two grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Alcohol, Its Connection in Car Accidents Topic at W.C.T.U.

The Christmas meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union was held at the home of Mrs. E. Ashworth with 25 members present.

Miss M. Bascom acted as chairman and cordially welcomed all.

The devotional was in charge of Mrs. Gerald Brenton, with the theme, "Christmas Joys." She said, "Are you shopping for the material things; let us also apply this to our spiritual life. Let us prepare our hearts for Christmas, with some spiritual shopping. Let us seek for joy, peace and love. The supply comes from above. Joy is the watchword of the Christmas season."

The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Priest from the first chapter of Luke, "The marvel of the magnificat."

Mrs. Coulter told the story of three Christmas hymns, giving many interesting new facts of "Joy To the World," "Silent Night," and "O Little Town of Bethlehem."

The W.C.T.U. was favored in having Mrs. Hollis Meeker, who told so beautifully the story of "The Stranger."

Some items of the December Clip Sheet on "Safe Driving and the Problem of Alcohol" were given.

Two years ago, November 1957, a Highway Safety Branch was organized to be part of the Ontario Department of Transport. The main objective is to coordinate and improve the efforts of the Ontario government in promoting traffic safety.

How does alcohol enter into highway accident? It is difficult to get an accurate estimate of how many highway accidents are caused from alcohol. Prof. Joslyn Rogers, official consulting analyst of Ontario, has stated that 15 percent or more of his attention are due to alcohol.

How does alcohol affect the driver? Many experiments have proven that alcohol has bad effects on the vision: alcohol causes blurred and double vision; decreased range of vision; narrower or tunnel vision; confusion of colors.

In what other ways does alcohol impair the driver? It is now scientifically established that even a small amount of alcohol has an effect on the brain. One drink may be sufficient to impair judgment, produce over confidence. Alcohol slows reaction time; a fraction of a second may make all the difference in avoiding an accident.

Is there more one should know about the new approach to the problem of alcohol and traffic?

Several countries are now using chemical tests to determine the degree of intoxication. The tests are breath, urine, blood, saliva. These tests are widely recognized throughout the U.S. and several countries of the world.

Near the closing of the evening, refreshments were served by Mrs. Grace Herbert and her assistants.

Season's greetings were extended to all present by head convener Grace Herbert and president of the men's branch, Norm Spencer.

How To Prepare, Roast and Bake The Turkey

by Mary Moore

Purposely I have left these directions for roasting your turkey until this week so you will not lose them. . .

For goodness' sake cut this out and thumbtack it to the inside of the cupboard door. Then when you start wondering about time and temperature you can consult it.

PREPARING TURKEY:

Naturally I prefer an unfrozen bird but if turkey is frozen, thaw in the original wrapping at room temperature, slitting wrapping along back or under side. Place on a rack, slit side down, to allow liquid to drain from bird. As soon as thawed remove giblets from body cavity and prepare turkey for roasting or store unstuffed in refrigerator and roast within 24 hours.

Wash bird and dry thoroughly.

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

MONDAY

Ground Beef, Noodle and Mushroom Soup Casserole; Buttered Broccoli; Mixed Greens with Cheese Strips and French Dressing; Canned Peaches; Christmas Cookies; Coffee.

STUFFING:

(Sufficient for 12-16 lb. bird) 14 cups soft stale bread crumbs, 2 tablespoons salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 2 teaspoons savory, 2 teaspoons thyme (or rosemary), 1 cup chopped onion, 1 cup chopped celery, 3-4 (or less) cup melted butter.

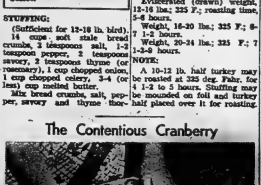
Mix bread crumbs, salt, pepper, savory and thyme thoroughly. Sauté gristly chopped onion and celery in melted butter until onion is transparent, then add to the seasoned bread crumbs. Combine lightly but thoroughly. Makes about 12 cups stuffing.

ROASTING TURKEY:

Rub inside of bird with salt. Fill body cavity with stuffing, then close opening with thread or skewers. Fill neck cavity, then fasten neck skin onto back with skewer. Fold wing tips over back. To truss bird, tie drumsticks to tail, bring strings up firmly between drumsticks and body, then bring strings over ends of wings to center back and tie securely to skewer. Place bird, breast up, on rack in shallow roasting pan and brush with melted fat. Do not add water. Cover with a double layer of cheesecloth dipped in melted fat or cover loosely with aluminum foil (dull side out) tucking edges into pan at sides but leaving open at ends. Roast according to timetable. If cheesecloth dries, spoon fat from bottom of pan over it. Cheesecloth may be left on until end of roasting time. However, if using aluminum foil, to finish browning bird, remove foil 3-4 to 1 hour before end of roasting time, then baste every 15 minutes with fat from pan.

TIMETABLE FOR ROASTING TURKEY:

Eviscerated (drawn) weight, 12-16 lbs.; 325 F.; roasting time, 3-4 hours.



Weight, 16-20 lbs.; 325 F.; 4-5 1-2 hours.

Weight, 20-24 lbs.; 325 F.; 7 1-2-8 hours.

NOTE:

A 10-12 lb. half turkey may be roasted at 325 deg. Fahr. for 4 1-2 to 5 hours. Stuffing may be mounded on foil and turkey half placed over it for roasting.

The Contentious Cranberry

Second only to carrying the bird to the table, is the big moment when the cook has the beautiful bird ready for roasting. Here we see her competent hands giving the bird the final touches before it goes into the oven. See Mary Moore's detailed method of preparing your Christmas bird today.

Canada's Minister of National Health and Welfare, Mr. J. W. Monteith, said that the presence of trace amounts of aminotriazole (the weed killer responsible for current concern about cranberries) does not in itself constitute a danger to health. "Whatever hazard may exist," he said, "would appear to lie only in repetition of this contamination resulting in consumption by individuals of repeated doses of the chemical over many years, also involving an enormous amount of contaminated cranberries".

Mr. Monteith pointed out that the present situation arose from the misuse of aminotriazole, which is intended for use after cranberries have been harvested, in which circumstance no contamination of the berries will result. Trouble arises when it is sprayed on crops before harvesting.

Canada's Food and Drug inspectors were alerted and instructed to check all imported as well as domestic stocks. The proportion of berries in Canada found to bear traces of the chemical has been very small. Supplies found to be contaminated are taken off the market. The attention which has been focused on the proper use of aminotriazole should result in greater care by the cranberry industries in Canada and the United States to prevent a recurrence of the problem.

Mr. Monteith concluded with the statement that he personally intended to have cranberries with his Christmas turkey.

The above is an excerpt from a letter from Miss E. M. Ordway, Head, Consumer Relations Section, Department of National Health and Welfare in reply to a request from Mary Moore for an official statement.

MODERN MANNERS

Question: A married couple, with whom my husband and I have been close for many years, have just adopted a baby boy. I know it is correct to give a shower for a mother-to-be, but what do you do in this case? I would like so much to give one for my friend, but besides I'm not sure it is wrong. — Mrs. R.T.H.

Answer: By all means give the shower. Under the circumstances it would seem to be a very gracious gesture.

Question: Our family is having quite a discussion as to whether or not it is a "must" to write thank-you notes for birthday cards. Please tell us you advice. Thank you. — The "F" Family

Answer: I think that when a friend has the grace to "remember" a friend's birthday, has the endearing thought to choose and send a birthday greeting card, the birthday-er should have the grace to write a warmhearted little thank-you note. Only a friendly sentence or two to express your appreciation of your friend's good thought, and to show your courtesy. For example:

Dear Dorothy,

What a wonderful friend you are to remember my birthday, and to send me such a charming and handsome card! Your dear thoughtfulness gave my birthday a special radiance, and for this and for your friendship I thank you with all my heart.

Let's have a date soon . . . I'll call you!

Devotedly,

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a woman's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Beatrice K. — My sister's children are spoiled.

Eva R. — She, just knows what she reads in books.

Beatrice K. — I am a 19-year-old college student living with my married sister and her family to be nearer school without the expense of boarding there.

I am planning to be a teacher and am very interested in child-rearing. I feel that my sister, Eva, is making a lot of mistakes with her youngsters. The three of them, aged 5 through 10, are very spoiled. They have no responsibility and get their way in everything.

Recently, the 10-year-old boy broke a store window. The storekeeper demanded payment and my brother-in-law paid. I think the boy should have been forced to raise the money through odd jobs and pay for it himself. My sister thinks I don't know a thing about children.

Eva R. — Beatrice just knows what she reads in books and doesn't have any practical sense about raising children. She makes things hard by criticizing what I do all the time. The children look up to her now and give me arguments.

When our boy broke the window he was scared to death. the storekeeper told him he'd have him put in jail. The boy hid out all day and was going to run away from home. I thought he had been punished enough. We told him he might be more careful. I think he has learned his lesson.

I give the children some responsibilities at home. They have to pick up their own toys, but I don't like them helping me in the house because it always gives me twice as much work.

The Council: One of the first notes Beatrice ought to put in her child-rearing notebook is that no outsider should ever attempt to undermine a child's confidence in his parents. If Beatrice has something to say about her sister's handling of a particular situation, she should do it in private.

Aside from this, however, Beatrice has a valid point when she places great emphasis upon the development of a sense of responsibility. It is true that her knowledge is somewhat theoretical and doesn't take into account many important emotional factors.

In the case of the 10-year-old boy, his sense of responsibility had been helped with part of the money and given him some jobs at home to pay for the rest. The lesson would have imprinted itself deeply and the boy would have felt some pride in his own ability to fulfill an obligation.

Every parent will agree with Eva that children's "help" in the home often creates twice as much work for Mother. Yet we think it's important to insist upon a certain amount of such help. We agree with Beatrice that the development of a sense of responsibility in children is one of the parents' biggest tasks.

Legion LA Sponsors Children's Party

The Canadian Legion's Auxiliary children's Christmas party was held in the Armories on December 19th.

The children and parents joined in singing Christmas carols which were led by Mrs. Bradford. Mrs. Hardwick was the pianist, and Mr. G. Gulliver accompanied her on the accordion.

Soft drinks and cookies were served by Mrs. J. Spencer and her assistants.

Miss Freddise Smith and her pupils, put on a wonderful show which consisted of dancing, acrobatics, baton and singing.

The most welcome person of the afternoon was, of course, Santa Claus. He talked to the children and sat and smoked his pipe while the children sang his favorite carol "Silent Night." Santa was so tired he fell asleep. Santa Claus, alias Mr. Little, was enjoyed by young and old alike. Santa passed out presents, candies and apples to the children which would make a delightful end to any party. The Auxiliary extends appreciation to Mrs. J. Spencer and to all who assisted her in any way in preparation for the party for a job well done.

Bayside H-S Entertained by Barbershoppers

The last meeting before Christmas of the Bayside Home and School was held recently at the school. Mr. Cooper was the chairman in the absence of the president, Mr. J. Glyden.

Reports were heard from all committee chairmen. Mr. Ackerman, acting for the hospitality and membership committee, introduced two new members, Mr. and Mrs. Hoolly McLaughlin.

Mr. Cliff Miller reported on the Cubs' and Scouts' activities and called for male volunteers to help in this important work. Adjac. Chalmers, Huntley McLaughlin and Ken Whitby volunteered their time and services.

Mrs. Miller's class at the Bayside school won the parents' attendance trophy for December.

Mr. G. Ackerman introduced Alf Evans, who in turn led the Belleville Barbershoppers in their singing introduction. Many old and new favorites were sung, some of these were "Sugar Cane Jubilee", "Son of the Sea", "Tell Me Why?", "Yeah From Maranona' and several others.

On the more humorous side, the Harmaniacs, a quartet of Barber-shoppers, sang their amusing renditions of "Goodbye My Coney Island Baby", "I Love the Way You Roll Your Eyes".

Mr. K. Bird, the school principal of both Bayside and Quinte View Schools, was honored by having a member by the Harmoniacs sung especially for him.

A social half hour was enjoyed at the conclusion of the program.

Mr., Mrs. Bert Bush Celebrate 35 Years of Married Life

About 70 friends, neighbors and relatives gathered recently at the home of ..., and Mrs. Bert Bush, 4th concession of Sidney township, to honor them on the occasion of their 35th wedding anniversary.

Mr Howard Richards was master of ceremonies for the evening's program. Mrs. Ross Flemming played a carnage and Mrs. George Burkitt played a lapel flower on Bert.

Community singing was enjoyed with Mrs. Milton Grills as song leader and Mr. Robert Burkitt, pianist.

Miss Shirley Fisher and Miss Sandra Fisher sang a duet, accompanied by Mr. Ross Fisher on the guitar; Carl Losey gave a piano solo; a humorous play, depicting a mock wedding, was entertaining; Lyon Harrington officiated at the piano for the wedding march.

Mrs. Gerald Harrington, as the minister, conducted the ceremony. Mrs. Robert Burkitt acted as the bridegroom, and Mr. Keith Bush the bride, while Mrs. M. Grills portrayed the weeping mother of the bride.

Mrs. George Burkitt read an address of appreciation to Mr. and Mrs. Bush, reminiscing over earlier events in the life of each, and also recalling valuable services contributed by them towards community life during past years. Best wishes were expressed for their health and happiness in the future.

PRESENTATIONS MADE

Mrs. Bush was presented with an adjustable ironing table and Mr. Bush was given a smoker's stand and magazine rack.

Mr. Ross Fisher, on behalf of the nieces and nephews, and Mr. C. R. Fisher, made the presentation of an electric decorator clock.

The surprised couple thanked their neighbors, friends and relatives for the lovely and useful gifts and for making their anniversary a most pleasant and memorable event.

The bride and bridegroom of 35 years cut the three-tier anniversary cake that had been baked and decorated by Mrs. Kenneth Kingston, sister of the bride.

Before leaving, all joined in wishing the happy couple many more years of married life together and good health.

HODGE PODGE

That Bathgate "spearing" story drew the following comment from Cliff Gordon, rotund scribe for the Whitby Dunlops. Said the portly Mr. Gordon: "I'll bring to mind that Bus Gagnon is one of the worst offenders in the senior "A" league for spearing. This can well be verified by the Dunnies, Especially Freddie Eicher who was the victim of a vicious spearing episode by Gagnon the second last time the Macs played in Whitby" . . . We won't print what Gagnon said when he read the comment, but wouldn't Gordon look funny dangling on the business end of a hockey stick! . . . Russ Kowalchuk, who has been going great guns for the Kelowna Packers in the Okanagan Valley league, flipped his lid the other day. Seems Russ punched Penticton's Yogi Kraiger in the nose and drew a two-game suspension. Yogi saw; starp and stikes.

Don't forget the Junior Booster Club meeting tomorrow night at the Recreation Centre, Pinnacle Street . . . Also there's an exhibition basketball game at the Quinte Secondary gymnasium between Peterborough Y and the Belleville Quakers. Game time eight o'clock . . . Wag phones in wanting to know if the McFarlands like whale-meat. Says if they can win 4-3 on a pickerel or lake trout, he's willing to provide a "sponsor" if it be stuffed . . . May be that whale idea would be all right. It could find out if, who, or what has been the Jonah . . . In case you missed recognizing the other night, he has been cut from the McFarland squad . . . Turk Barclay figures he will join the Masked Menaces. Has been constructing one of his own, and reports it will be tops when the Turk gets it finished. . . . Wonder if he could manufacture one with hair on the top.

Human Interest Department: At the Shriners' Christmas party for crippled kiddies Saturday, one little fellow who was a fancy skater on his leg, asked if he could have some more if she were hungry. Said the nurse, "a little bit" . . . Ten minutes later he called to her, "Are you still hungry" She replied that she was. "Well, I'm not, you little guy, "I have saved a cookie for you." . . . And after Bev. Quincey, who had been leading the youngsters in a sing-song, asked after warbling three or four numbers, "Is there any voice like now?", a cute little girl who cannot walk said shyly, "One of those things." She pointed to the pile of presents under the Christmas tree . . . It's a heart-warming and powerful job too. A little shy around the equator perhaps, but 'tis-dandy in the "Ho-ho-ho" and other departments . . . Incidentally, on the Shrine subject, there's going to be a swell job with the Christmas seals for tuberculosis . . . It isn't too late yet. You can use them on letters other than those containing Christmas cards. Send in your donations now. It will come in mighty handy to the Shriners when operating the campaign, not to mention those who will benefit . . . Come to think of it, it's a shame Jack Parr ruins so many good commercials with that dumbbell imitation.

And a wag quips: "Is it any wonder after Andy Bathgate's "spearing blast" that the Canadiens have dubbed the Rangers the "Pikemen"." . . . Attention, midgets and juvenailes. Your Wednesday night games have been forwarded to Tuesday on account of the senior "A" game on Wednesday. And remember, the first game starts at 7.30 instead of six o'clock as of Wednesday . . . Power Football stalwarts like their beer; Lamb's a golfer's dish; but the Macs appear to hit their stride while dieting on fish . . . Bobby Hull came through with his second hat trick of his National Hockey League career on Sunday. Bobby is not worrying about getting goals. Now, he's figuring on how many times he can score 'em in one season. One point behind league-leading Horvath of the Bruins, Bobby will likely concentrate on "bronco-busting." . . . For those who have senior "A" Hockey schedules, the Macs will play Windsor on January 17 instead of January 24th. The date has been changed to make room for the Russian game at Windsor . . . So there's no future in sport? . . Percy Page, who coached the Edmonton Grads' ladies' world basketball champions for years, has been named lieutenant-governor of Alberta . . . Tom Hocking is the cribbage champion of the McFarland "Bus" League . . . Tom has a swag his own board which is so big he uses fence-posts for pegs . . . Cesare Maniago is a very unhappy young man. He has been ordered by Manager Frank Goncan of the Kitchener Dutchmen to report for practice in Kitchener tonight, play with that team against the Dunlops in Whitby tomorrow night and play for the Macs here against the Dunlops Wednesday night.

And the "Ole Chucker," a heart filled with appreciation, forwards the sincere thanks of his family and himself to all his good pals who contributed to the big turkey, groceries and other gifts which reached him the other day. Herbie also extends his gratitude to those buddies of Northern Electric who so generously gifted him with a purse of money. The "Chuck" is feeling as well as can be expected and is looking forward to the holiday. He wishes the best of everything good for Christmas to all his friends, sports and otherwise.

Bobby Hull Point Behind League-Leading Horvath

Scores Three Goals, Assist As Hawks Clobber Leafs 7-4; Blues, Habs Split Verdicts

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It's going to be next to impossible to overlook Chicago Black Hawks' Bobby Hull when it comes time, to pass out the National Hockey League awards this season.

The 20-year-old left wing, in his third and fullest NHL campaign, scored three goals Sunday night and assisted on another as Chicago whaled Toronto Maple Leafs 7-4.

They were Hull's 17th, 18th and 19th goals in 30 games—one more than he scored all last season—and the four points put him just one back of Boston Bruins' slumping Bronco Horvath in the points production standings.

SCORE IN BURSTS

All Chicago's goals were scored in a wild second period. At Boston, Detroit Red Wings scored all their goals in the third period as they beat Bruins 4-2.

The third game of night game saw another four - goal final period as New York Rangers came back to edge visiting Montreal Canadiens 6-5, gaining revenge for a 5-3 setback Canadiens handa Saturday in Montreal when the Habs scored five times in the second period.

In the second scheduled Saturday night game, Montreal got a 3-0 first period jump on Detroit and went on to win 4-2.

The weekend action left Montreal six points ahead of Detroit. Toronto is in third with the two diving Bruins in fourth with Chicago and New York bringing up the rear.

HULL BREAKS LOOSE

At Chicago Ken Wharram scored the first of two goals at 1:35 of the second period to start Hull off. Bob Pulford evened it up for Toronto but then Hull went to work and scored twice within 25 seconds—the second an unassisted effort after he intercepted a Toronto pass.

It was Wharram again, then Hull's third and goals by Ted Lindsay and Pierre Pilote rounded it out.

George Armstrong scored for Toronto before the period ended and in the third Gary Edmundson scored his first NHL goal and Frank Mahovlich added another to make it 7-4.

Two Chicago rookies had big nights—centre Stan Mikita and young Bill Hay who assisted on three goals as Hawks poured 51 shots at Ed Chadwick, replacing Johnny Bower in the Toronto goal.

Guy Gendron scored his 13th of the season at Boston Sunday to give Bruins a 1-0 first-period lead. But rookie Gerry Melnyk evened the count 23 seconds after the third period opened. Gery Ahearn scored two quick ones — at 9:39 and 4:56—and Alex Delvecchio got an unassisted goal to make it 4-1 before Larry Leach got Bruins' second goal.

LAST-PERIOD STEAL

Going into the third period at New York Montreal appeared to have the game in hand as they held a 5-2 lead on goals by Jean Beliveau, Dickie Moore, Donnie Marshall and Ab McDonald. Dean Prentice and Bill Gadsby had scored for Rangers.

Those rookies Ken Schinkel made it 4-3 and successive goals by Larry Popein, Brian Cullen and Red Sullivan gave Rangers a 6-5 edge before Andre Pronovost scored for Canadiens at 16:46.

At Montreal Saturday Rangers took a 1-0 lead into the disastrous second period on Camille Henry's goal. Moved it at 2:37 of the second but Bathgate once again put Rangers out in front.

Then Backstrom scored unassisted and Doug Harvey did the same to make it 3-2. Backstrom scored again and Marshall got the fifth. Rangers managed only Jim Bartlett's goal in the third.

STILL ACTIVE

Harvey, celebrating his 35th birthday, picked up an assist in addition to his goal.

Toronto's victory Saturday was marred by the loss of centre Larry Regan and right wing Ron Stewart. Regan suffered a badly broken nose when he was hit by a shot. Stewart teammate Gerry James and may be out for 10 days. Stewart suffered a bruised left leg.

George Armstrong, Bob Baun and Gerry Ehrmann scored for Leafs in the first period but Leo Lunde and red-hot rookie Murray Oliver replied in the second period. Defencemen Allan Stanley put it on ice for Toronto at 17:32 of the third.

Seattle Wins Weekend Pair

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Marc Boileau scored two winning goals over the weekend to help Seattle Totems take a firm edge on second-place Edmonton Hockey League.

He fired a game-ender at 4:35 of the second period to start Saturday's 5-4 victory and scored it all by himself in overtime Sunday in a 4-3 decision over Edmonton Flyers.

Flyers defeated the Cougars 3-1 at Victoria Saturday and Whitby Dunlops Warriors topped Calgary Stampeders 5-3 Sunday.

Seattle's two victories left league - leading Vancouver Canucks with a 10-point margin. Coupled with Flyers' 2-1 win over Calgary and Edmonton share second with 29 each. Winnipeg has 25 and Spokane is in the cellar with 19.

Jerry Pilous, Pat Gimell and Gayle Fiedler gave Totems a 3-1 lead going into the third but they needed Boileau's winner. Doc Padie, Roger Dejordy and Gord Gallagher scored for Edmonton.

OVERTIME DECISION

The overtime period at Spokane Sunday was 25% minutes old when Boileau scored. Pat Gimell got a pair for Totems, Tommy McCarthy, Spokane's goals came from Al Johnson, Fred Creighton and Ron Talley.

Edmonton goalie Dennis Riggio, who lost several teeth a few weeks ago when a puck hit the face, was treated for a cut ear Sunday after the puck in Victoria Saturday. He returned to star, stopping 38 shots.

Some 2,500 fans saw Sir McNeil score twice for Flyers in the first period and Warren Hicks add another in the third. Art Jones scored for Warriors.

In Winnipeg, Barrie Ross broke a 2-2 deadlock in the third and Ray Brunel, Norm Wasiewski and Paul Masnick one each. Ron Leopold picked up two goals for Stampeders and defenceman Doug Barkley one.

The Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chicago Black Hawks' Bobby Hull scored three goals Sunday night and assisted on another for a four-point total that leaves him only one point back of Boston Bronco Horvath, who is in a slump and picked up no points in Bruins' only game.

Poles Love Those Warwicks, Country Gone Hockey Crazy

By JOHN BAUSMAN

WARSAW (AP) — If the Warwick brothers get home by Canada for Christmas, it won't be for lack of invitations to spend the holidays in Poland.

Grant, Bill and Dick Warwick, stars of Brantford, Ont. when that team won the 1953 world hockey championship, came to Poland for a month of coaching and exhibition play. And now the Poles don't want to let them go home.

They are scheduled to fly home Tuesday and up to last week Polish hockey officials were trying to get them to change their minds.

"They just don't take 'no' for an answer," Bill said. "But we only agreed to 30 days here and that's all the time we can afford to stay." They arrived Nov. 23.

The brothers are a big attraction when they play with their hosts, the Gornik team of Katowice. The Polish hockey club can count on a full house at the arena which holds 30,000 standing spectators.

HOCKEY CRAZY

Also, Poland has gone hockey crazy and is anxious to learn as much about the game as possible.

Some Poles talk about building up hockey to the point where they might effectively challenge the Soviet Union, but the Warwicks dampen any such hopes for the near future.

"In five years, Poland could get into the top division," Dick Warwick observed. "But they haven't even talking championships now. They're taking about improving the game for the love of hockey and for the fans."

For one thing, the brothers noted, Polish rinks are not artificial ice rinks. There are only four of those and it's nearing completion.

But the Canadians were impressed by the hard use the existing rinks get. "Why they use those rinks 24 hours a day," Bill remarked. "No kidding, they got skaters on that ice up till midnight, and at 3 a.m. the figure skaters are out there practicing."

The enthusiasm has kept the Warwicks busy at the Torkat rink in Katowice. Each morning they had a coaching session on the ice. After lunch they were back at the rink for conferences, press interviews and discussion of hockey tactics. In the evening they had more practice on the ice, sometimes coaching two shifts—one at 8 p.m. and another at 10.

The Warwicks actually retired from hockey 18 months ago to run their Edmonton restaurant and are not as fit as they once were, as some Polish sports-writers have noted.

"We're in condition that just gets us by," Bill said. "Our Canadian knowledge of the game also gets us by."

In exhibition games with Gornik against Czechoslovakia and Sweden, they managed to score four goals on end-to-end passing plays.

The Warwick dexterity and flexibility on the ice delights the Poles and they are anxious to imitate it rather than the regimented positional play that the Soviets have adopted. "Poland is the only European team we know that wants to play Canadian style," Bill said.

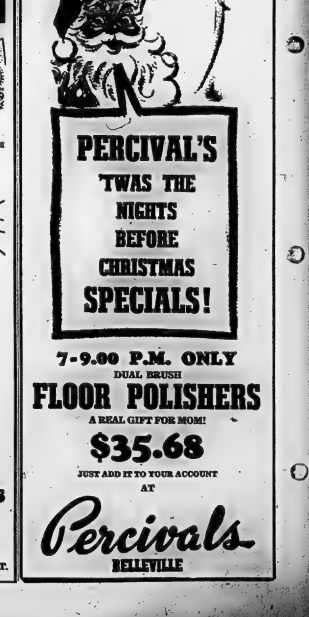
"In the few weeks we've been here, they are already skating better, shooting stronger, holding their position better and they're even starting to throw a good body check."

The easy - going outspoken Warwicks find the Poles pleasant to work with.

But Katowice has one big drawback—smog which gets "so thick you can't see 10 feet ahead of you," Bill said.

The brothers skip any political comments or observations but some little things come out in the stories they tell.

For example, they got a good idea of the quality of Polish heating construction, which even Polish newspapers complain about, in the apartment where they were quartered in Katowice. a built-in mirror was jarred off a wall and Dick cut the head. It was a fragile, thin piece of glass that splintered and gave him a nasty cut.



They've also seen windows drop out of buildings and Dick's report on conditions in the hospital where he went to have his head cut stitched would put a premium on good health.

To Resume Probe Curtailment of Racing Session

TROIS-RIVIERES, Que. (CP) — Quebec district of the Canadian Trotting Association said Sunday it will resume its investigation into irregularities which compelled promoters to shorten the local racing season by one week.

A statement said the board of directors of the Quebec district concluded the week that fraud was committed during the first harness race season on a regular card Oct. 10.

One driver—G. E. Heath of Richmond, Que.—has been suspended until Jan. 1, 1961.

The season just ended it believes other drivers were involved.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

St. Catharines TeePees have their sights on bigger things than Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

The TeePees boosted themselves to within three points of fifth place when they handed St. Michael's College Majors a 6-1 shellacking on home ice Saturday and gained a 2-1 tie Sunday during a double feature at Maple Leaf Gardens.

In the other Sunday game Toronto Marlboros increased their lead to four points with an 8-3 win over Guelph Biltmores before 4,800 fans.

The TeePees have a seven-point edge over seventh - place Hamilton Tiger Cubs.

MAHL, CULLEN STAR

Chico Mahl and Ray Cullen each scored twice for TeePees, while Doug Ao Duke Harris and Murray Hall.

Larry Keenan scored for the third-place Majors.

Mahl opened scoring in the first period Sunday, wheeling in a five-foot rebound. St. Michael's coins back to even terms at 14:05 with goals by Gene Reinhardt and all-star centre Dave Keon, before Pat Stapleton netted a scorching 30-footer to end scoring.

Thousands Seek Pasteboards For Giants-Colts Title Bout

BALTIMORE (AP)—Some 300, fans spent Sunday night in subfreezing weather outside Memorial Stadium and were joined this morning by thousands more seeking tickets for Sunday's National Football League championship game between Baltimore Colts and New York Giants.

About 7,000 general admission tickets went on sale at 9 a.m. with a limit of two to a customer.

The Colts-Giants game Sunday will be rematch between the two teams which last year played what has been labelled the greatest football game ever. Baltimore came from behind to record a 23-17 victory in overtime.

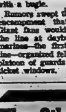
The Baltimore fans spent 36 hours waiting for tickets after starting the line at 1 a.m. Saturday. The number grew to 300 at midnight Sunday.

THE HOBO LURE

The ticket-window area Sunday night looked like a cross between an Army bivouac area and a hobo camp. The fans huddled under blankets. In between bets, a beach chairs and around fires built in charcoal stoves or oil drums.

Sympathetic officials kept open the stadium's rest rooms and part police force brought out a load of wood when some of the fans began burning the police barricades.

Slingshot Kid Starts Brawl At Hockey Game



TORONTO (CP) — Disdaining the usual projectiles such as tea kettles and bricks, a young spectator took dead aim with a slingshot during a Metro Junior B hockey game Saturday night.

He fired a paper clip with dead aim to the cheek of Tyrone Richardson of Toronto St. Peters. Pernal jumped, fanned on a shot and promptly charged towards the stands.

Players from the Marlboros and Brampton Seven Ups joined in the excitement and it was 40 minutes before the game could be continued. Fifteen penalties totalling 80 minutes were handed out to the players, seven from each team.

The marksman was located and reprimanded by police. The game ended in a 4-4 tie.

The Other Day

Ken Fraser

A friend was talking about Christmas and I agreed in it centred in every from of celebration in the world with slightly varying customs but that basically it was the same. Which generates peace in the mind of good will whereever they are.

Now right he is ... It has often been the cause of a truce between bitter foes on the battlefield, even by man, were pausing in his destruction to acknowledge that he need, darkly, as through a glass, that other man, enemy, is not really his enemy. But he tells himself he can't figure it out that for other 364 days he acts like Christmas time, he can't improve the situation.

Our friend said that perhaps instead of even grown people, find the answers; that they can be found only by each individual by himself, and that a starting point is in the way he raises himself in all other individuals and to God. We need something that might help us keep such ideas in mind; it's a thought worth repeating quite frequently, silently to ourselves: "Do unto others as you would be if fighting a hard battle."

It's a thought worth thinking about. A permanent shrit of good will, given out all year cannot help but anything but more good will, ever grow- ing and multiplying as the giving lasts, which can be a whole lifetime. How true it is, that it is better to give than to receive!

To you, our heartfelt good wishes!

New Syndicate Seeks to Promote Fight

NEW YORK (AP) — A 10-man syndicate headed by Roy M. Cohn appeared today to be gaining ground in its efforts to promote a return heavyweight title fight between champion Ingemar Johansson and challenger Floyd Patterson in New York next June.

Cohn, a former assistant U.S. attorney-general who once served as counsel for Senator Mcarthy, ing subcommittee headed by the Wisconsin Republican, Mc- Carthy, confirmed that his group has purchased two-thirds stock interest in the now defunct Rosenohn Enterprises, Inc., from Vincent J. Velella.

He said he hoped to obtain the one-third interest held by William P. Rossman and thus insure a title fight at Yankee Stadium next summer.

SUBSTANTIAL PRICE

Cohn said the purchase price was "substantial" but declined to disclose the figure. Velella, reportedly had sought $150,000 for his stock. Velella, a New York lawyer, is barred from promoting fights in this state by the New York State Athletic Commission.

There is under indictment for perjury as an aftermath of the first Johansson - Patterson fight last summer in which the Swedish fighter knocked out Patterson.

Cohn said he had "a lengthy and most satisfactory telephone conversation" with Edwin Ahlquist, Johansson's Athletic Commissioner.

Rossmoin said he was very happy that Cohn's group has purchased Velella's stock but declined to say whether he intended to sell his stock.

Twin Cities Battleground For Grid Loops

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The new American Football League was launched today with a fresh challenge in Minneapolis-St. Paul by loyalists of the National League and a man from out of the sport's frontier days.

"If the National League extends us a franchise we expect to be operating in 1960," said Bill Haugrud, Duluth sportsman and tobacco wholesaler who owned Duluth Eskimoes in the NFL more than three decades ago.

An application bearing the signatures of the hopeful group— which includes Bob Feller of San Francisco, a member of the old Eskimoes—was forwarded to NFL headquarters along with a $25,000 cheque to prove good faith.

Haugrud's application, and the apparent encouragement it received from several NFL owners, signified another collision between NFL and AFL forces over the territory.

H. P. Skelton, part owner of the Minneapolis - St. Paul AFL setup, said "we intend to go fight down the line with the American League no matter what happens."

In Philadelphia, acting NFL commissioner Austin Gonsel said the application by Haugrud's group would be considered along with others.

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canada hasn't won an Olympic figure - skating championship since Barbara Ann Scott dazzled the North Americans and European scene with footwork in the post-war years. Her other athletic had included Canada each year as Ottawa's golden-haired beauty.

TRIAL — now a famous beauty parlor operator, climaxed one of the most glittering sports achievements by a Canadian in February, 1948. In a whirlwind 12 - day round of championships and skating carnivals, she swept everything in sight — the European, world and Olympic crowns.

She was a world-known personality and the only Canadian to win an Olympic figure - skating title. Now, with the 1960 Winter Olympic Games scheduled for Squaw Valley, Calif., Feb. 18-28, Canadians are looking for their second, and possibly third, championship in this ice-bedecked sport.

GOOD PROSPECTS

Experts of the high - comparisons maneuvers on ice are optimistic that 19-year-old Donna Jackson of Oshawa, Ont., and the pairs team of Bob Paul, 18, and Barbara Wagner of Toronto, could be the next Games' gold medallists. Their records show they are the best in the country since Barbara Ann's days.

Jackson, who took up the sport 11 years ago, is considered possibly the greatest free-skater in the world. In his program is the triple flip, which calls for three turns in the air from straight-back, toe-point takeoff.

Skaters call this one of the most difficult tests in the sport and Jackson is the only North American skater to use it in competition. He won the Canadian and North American titles this year and was a close second to Regina Heitzer of Colorado Springs, Colo., in the world tournament last March.

BIG IMPROVEMENT

Jackson finished seventh in the world championship in 1957 and moved up to fourth in 1958.

"We all rate Jackson as next best to Jenkins and if he were better in school figures he would be champion now," said skater Hans Gilleli of France after the world tournament.

The Barbara Wagner - Paul combination won the world titles in 1957-58-59. The experienced Toronto team has taken on all comers in the last three years and practically ran away from competition.

In the world championships at Colorado Springs last February, they were the unanimous choice of all nine judges. They have been skating together for only five years and haven't lost a tournament since 1956.

Segregation At Tennis Tilt Irks Althea

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—Althea Gibson, top woman tennis player, was indignant Saturday when she found a segregated sidelance t. ed a professional exhibition in the City Arena, in which she played a white partner.

"What is this?" she asked a sports writer when she saw Negro spectators sitting in one section of the arena and white fans in another.

"I don't like it." Miss Gibson assistened. "I didn't know this sort of thing still existed.

"This is a sport. An international thing—and yet you have some people sitting here and some people sitting there."

Virginia laws required segregated seating of spectators at public functions. A suit challenging those laws is pending.

ISSUES WARNING

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP)—President Mohammed Ayub Khan warned Sunday against a possible concerted move by the Soviet Union and Red China which would engulf the entire Indian-Pakistani subcontinent. He said that "one day" Russia might advance through Afghanistan in the direction of Pakistan, and Communist China might move toward Burma and Malaya.

"You were going along fine. Why did you have to antagonize him?"

Minor Hockey

The Macs turned on the heat for seven goals to chalk up the biggest win of the morning in bantam play Saturday, a 7-3 victory over the Black Hawks.

In other games Quinte and Red Wings tied 1-1, Rangers downed the Bruins 5-3, Maple Leafs edged the Canadiens 3-2 and the Barons blanked the Browns 2-0.

Bobby Elliott fired three goals in the Macs' win with Dave Anderson, Forest Smith, Richard Eves and Al Mott getting the others. Joe Harvey, Mott and Anderson scored for Hawks, Mc-Guire, Don Watch and Carl Hanna for Bruins. Ron Ellis, Dave Marcelle and Dick Herrington getting assists.

In the 3 game, Pete Mitchell scored on Dennis Savage's assist for Quinte while Bob Reid-dick potted the Red Wing marker, aided by Bill Dewey.

Bobby Eldard's four-goal performance led the Rangers to their decision over the Bruins. Bobby Boyle fired the other two goals while Bill Leslie had two assists, Jack Thompson and Paul Bennett one apiece, Dwight Rathwell and Fraser Ritchie scored for Bruins, Fred Robbins and Larry Stewart assisting.

Frank Fawcett potted both Canadiens goals, with Junior Colks helping on one, but it was not enough to get a victory. Bill Savage, Terry Little and Stacey Young gave the Leafs their 3-2 decision. Al Lentini, Steve Glancy, Little and Angove drew assists.

Goalie David Davidson earned his shutout in the Barons nets while teammates Bob Lepage and Harold Redmond got a goal and assist each for the 3-0 scorn. Ron Hammarack also picked up one assist.

No more games are scheduled in the peewee or bantam leagues until January 2.

Lions Defeat Kingston 4-2; Royals Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The red-hot Montreal Royals are within two points of second place Hull - Ottawa Canadiens, victims Sunday of Royals' second consecutive road victory in the Eastern Professional Hockey League.

Royals downed the Canadiens 4-3 at Hull after having tripped the league leading Sudbury Wolves 4-1 at Sudbury Friday night.

The victories in Royals' road trip and their wins in 13 road games —give the third place Montreal team 32 points, Sudbury leads the league with 36, four ahead of Canadiens.

Trois - Rivieres Lions downed Kingston Frontenacs 4-2 at Kingston Saturday night to remain a close fourth with 30 points. Kingston and Sault Ste. Marie trail with 25 points each.

MANTHA NETS TWO

Moe Mantha netted two goals as Royals kept ahead of Canadiens in the tight Hull game, while Ted Harris scored Canadien's only goals in Frontenacs' 4-2 win.

O'Bee's first goal gave Kingston a 1-0 lead at the end of the first period. This lead was quickly wiped out as Jean-Paul Denis, Sandy McGregor and Med Pearson each scored for Lions within four minutes of the second period. Defenseman Wally Chevrier scored Lions' final goal in the period, O'Bee's second goal came in the final period.

Mantha also opened and closed scoring in Hull, with Ken Mosdell and Lou Denis getting Royals' other counters. Bob Rilett, Frank Chiarelli and Gilles Tremblay counted for Hull-Ottawa, but failed to overcome a two point deficit.

Chiarelli scored on a shot that Rilett threw wide of the net. But the puck bounced off the stick of Montreal defenceman Andre Tarrot and past goalie Gerry McNeil.

Rickey Insists Third League Opens in 1961

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Branch Rickey, architect of the new Continental League, says his baseball circuit still aims to open in 1961.

Here to discuss a possible Dallas - Fort Worth entry, Rickey said he was misquoted last week when he was reported to have said the third major league probably could not open before 1962.

"My actual statement," said Rickey, "was that it would be possible for this existing major league to tinker enough roadwork in our path to delay our start a year. The majors have not yet come to terms as they might have been up to date, but I do believe they will offer any active opposition."

He said he expects the seventh and eighth franchise cities will be announced "before Jan. 1. We are hopeful that we can complete our organization by then."

Houston, New York, Denver, Toronto and Minneapolis - St. Paul are charter members of the new league and Atlanta was added during the winter baseball meeting.

The Quinte Reports

News of Your Local Sea Cadet Corps

(A Member of the Belleville United Appeal)

Tomorrow night, the Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps and the Navy League Cadet Corps of the "Quinte" will have their own annual Christmas party on board the Sea Cadet barracks. The barracks is being decorated by the Women's Auxiliary, whose members will also be putting on the dinner. Following this, movies and dancing will be the order of the evening for the cadets and their guests.

The above will be the last parade for the Sea Cadets until after the holiday season. The first parade in 1960 will be on Tuesday, January 5th, at the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment's Armouries.

Last Tuesday night's parade saw the first practice for the new drum and bugle band and it was evident that there was considerable skill on the part of cadets along this line, especially in the percussion section. It is hoped that the present nucleus of the band will grow in numbers as more new lads join the corps.

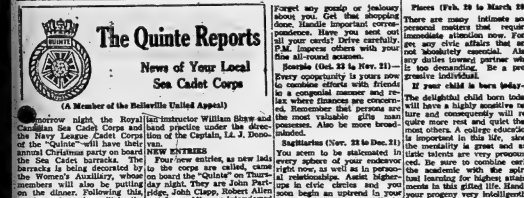
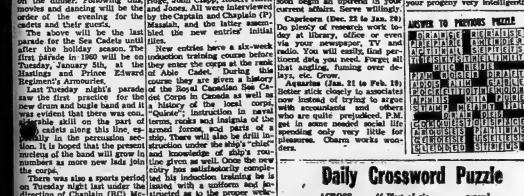
There was also a sports period on Tuesday night last under the direction of Chaplain (RC) McGee, whose efforts have been most appreciated by the cadets. Drill instruction under S/Lt. D. Bailey and W.O. Wayne Sunnett and rifle practice under S/Lt. D. Phippen were also on the evening's schedule.



Thursday night's parade at the barracks of South Front Street saw the evening's training program divided between navigation instruction by acting civil-ian instructor William Shaw and band practice under the direction of the Captain, Lt. J. Doncaster.



NEW ENTREES

There are new entries, as new lads to the corps are called, came on board the "Quinte" on Thursday night. They are John Partridge, John Clapp, Robert Allen and Brian. All were interviewed by the Captain and Chaplain (P) Maslish, and the latter assembled the new entries' initial files.

New entries have a six-week induction training course before they enter the corps at the end of Able Cadet. During this course they are given a history of the Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps in Canada as well as a history of the local corps, "Quinte"; instruction in naval terms, naval ships and the armed forces, and parts of a ship. There will also be drill instruction under the ship's "chief" and knowledge of ship's routine will be given as well. Once the new entry has satisfactorily completed his induction training he is issued with a uniform and instructed as to the proper working and care of it by the "Quinte's" Supply Officer, Midshipman Reid.

Tomorrow evening's parade will be the last of 1959 as the officers and cadets of both the Sea Cadets and the Navy League Cadet corps with members of the community and all responsible for the maintenance of their corps a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

General Tendencies: Now you have a day when you would be wise to make sure you do one thing to ink or vex anyone in any way who is in a position of power or authority. Make sure that you see to it that your health is better shape by the attention you pay to it. Prepare for the holidays by tuning out all difficulties in considerate fashion.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — Endeavor to put aside dull duties today and concentrate on a higher level of living and thinking. Get your Christmas wrapping done so as you do this and be ahead of the game. Fine ideas will come to you which can soon be put into execution.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — While you want to spend more than you can truly afford on gifts to loved ones, remember it is the thought behind the gift that counts. If you start the new year without being in debt, by next year you will be truly affluent.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — It would be foolish to dash off somewhere with a new partner without first talking things over with them. Get other individuals' ideas first and maintain harmony within the home. Then all will go well. But take it easy. Enjoy loved ones.

Most Children (June 22 to July 21) — Put aside regular dull duties today and get off to some important shopping or visiting. Remember to get good ideas from your newspaper, other printed media, P.M. more harmonious relations can be established at home.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — Wisdom calls for spending less at this time. Also, win over family members by that wonderful Leo sales charm. Through harmony you will get fine ideas that will quickly increase your income and bring greater affection into your life.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — Don't express any resentment today or you will be misunderstood. You simply want to do excellent work and are thinking aloud but it will sound like nagging. P.M. give vital persons the benefit of your ideas.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Forget any gossip or jealousy about you. Get that shopping done. Handle important correspondence. Have you sent out all your cards? Drive carefully. P.M. improve others with your fine all-round acumen.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Every opportunity is yours now to combine efforts with friends in a congenial manner and review finances are concerned. Remember that persons are the most valuable gifts man possesses. Also be more broad-minded.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — You seem to be stalemated in every sphere of your endeavor right now, as well as in personal relationships. Assist higher ups in civic circles and you soon begin an upturn in your current affairs. Serve willingly.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Do plenty of research work today at library, office or even via your newspaper, TV and radio. You will easily find pertinent data you need. Forget all petty nagging. Tuning over delays, etc. Grow.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Some sticks closely to associates now instead of trying to argue with accountants and others who are quite prejudiced. P.M. you developed social life spending only very little for pleasures. Charm works wonders.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — There are many intimate and personal matters that require immediate attention now. Forget any civic affairs that are not absolutely essential. Also any duties lowering, because who is too demanding. Be a progressive individual.

If your child is born today — The delightful child born today will have a highly sensitive nature and consequently will require more rest and quiet than most others. A college education is important in this life, since the mentality is great and artistic talents are very pronounced. Be sure to combine early the academic with the spiritual learning for highest attainments in this gifted life. Handle your progress very intelligently.

It would seek to co-...rdinate European and North ...merican trade bodies and in ...ludes West Europe's rival ...conomic groupings, the six-country Common Market and the Outer Seven free traders led by Britain.

Khrushchev's invitation to the ...ight conference went to the ...ree ambassadors in Moscow for delivery to the Kremlin ...day. An Informant said they left the door open for the Soviet ...ader to suggest an alternate ...eeting site or date.

PARIS HAD CALL NEXT

Eisenhower was clearly en...husiastic about the outcome of ...is meetings here with de Gaulle, ...acmillan and Adenauer, a major event in his 22,000-mile good-...ill mission now drawing to a ...lose. His next stop is Madrid ...n his 14-hour visit there.

The four leaders met most of ...unday at the French president's ...l Chateau, 30 miles from Paris.

An American spokesman told ...eporters the participating gov...ernments' proposals to Khrush...hev were approved unanimously.

The proposals include an ...xchange discussion of disarma...ent, the twin problems of West ...erlin and divided Germany, and ...ast-West tensions in general.

The four leaders agreed to ...ress for the opening of disar...ament talks by the 10-power ...ast-West committee before the ...roposed summit conference — a ...ove that could serve as a test ...f Soviet intentions. Late March ...as talked of as a likely starting ...ime.

SUGGESTS SERIES

Eisenhower suggested the pos...ibility of a series of summit talks with the Russians. A ...pokesman said he feels "it ...ould be very difficult to solve ...ll problems at one summit con...erence."

Eisenhower failed to persuade de Gaulle to abandon his opposition to giving the NATO military command control of French forces designed to the defense of Western Europe. But he was reported to have convinced the French leader that although the U.S. abstained in the United Nations vote over the Algerian issue, Washington still endorsed de Gaulle's proposal for a self-determination referendum in Algeria after peace is restored.

De Gaulle accepted the invitation to visit the U.S. in April, only days in advance of the conspiratorial Paris summit meeting. By then, the French president will have been host to Khrushchev and formed a personal opinion of the Soviet leader.

DOGS DECORATED TOO

The native women were decked out in their brightest kerchiefs and dresses in matching and clashing shades, their best and most brilliantly-trimmed parkas and mukluks. The dogs were decorated with violently-colored ribbons and pails.

The boys and youths dressed more soberly. Black leather motorcycle jackets were almost de rigeur among the teen-aged boys.

The celebrations began with dogsled, snowshoe and foot racing for men, boys and girls. The men had a sheet shooting competition and later men's teams played a hockey game in front of the RCAF drill hall.

They moved into the drill hall later and made last year in the Great Whale River for a talent selection series about the RCMP, and ing.

Steel Union and Industry Trade Criticisms; Aluminum Companies Sign 3-Year Pact

WASHINGTON (AP) — Union and steel company negotiators were due to resume talks today in 30 days. As they gathered, the impression was created new and higher prices in wages prove the union is responsible for the threat of a strike.

Union president David J. McDonald reiterated it is the companies that are out of step.

The United Steelworkers Union reached new three-year contract agreements with major aluminum companies in Chicago during the weekend, clearing the way for their officers to resume the steel talks. Federal mediators had recessed the talks for the aluminum negotiations.

The steel companies said they had "serious misgivings" about bargaining separately with the union, as McDonald has done with aluminum and they were willing to talk it over at today's federal mediation session.

CHARGES ISOLATIONISM

McDonald said the steel companies are continuing to practice industrial isolationism, seem totally oblivious of the union's recent settlements in the copper, can and aluminum industries.

"The union's present proposal to the steel companies is based squarely on these recent settlements and that with the Kaiser Steel Co.

The aluminum pact, according to the union's figures, provides a 39-cent increase in wages and fringe benefits over the three-year period. Some of the aluminum companies figured the cost as slightly less. American aluminum workers have averaged $2.90 an hour.

ASKING MORE

McDonald said his latest steel settlement offer would bring the cost to slightly more than the 24-month-21½-cent hourly increase negotiated earlier with the steel union. The other big aluminum company, the other big steel company rejected the terms of the settlement as too costly and inflationary.

Most of the added cost of McDonald's latest demand is a full cost - of - living increase under

McDonald contended the higher cost of living figure was justified a the ground that the companies would make no benefits employees have lost by working under he old contract since the Kaiser settlement.

Our Christmas Story

by Mrs. Billy Graham
as told to Elizabeth Sherrill

The Man Who Listened

"... and again he sent forth a dove out of the ark."

Chapter 5

The first sin brought unhappiness to Adam and Eve. But the unhappiness it brought them was nothing compared to the grief it brought God. Here were the creatures He had chosen out of all the universe to be His companions—and they had left Him.

He was lonely again, but now His loneliness was worse than before, because He had had children and then lost them. God, you see, still loved them people He had made. God does not change. No matter how badly they had behaved, they were still His dearest creation.

Adam and Eve had two sons, Abel and Cain. When they grew up, Cain killed his brother, and that was the first murder. Adam and Eve had more children and those children had children until there were many people in the world — and most of them were like Cain.

Instead of living together peacefully, they quarreled with each other. Next to wars, the children of Adam liked noisy pleasures best.

NO ONE HEARD HIM

In all the noisy confusion no one heard God calling. No one heard Him say, over and over, that this was not the way to live, that this was not what He had made them for.

At least, very few people heard Him. In every generation there were always one or two who tried hard to shut out the din around them so that they could hear what God was saying.

One of these was Noah. Noah lived quietly with his wife and three sons, listening all the time for God's message.

Now it happened that God had a very important message for Noah. The Bible tells us:

"God saw the wickedness of man was great in the earth, and that every imagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually. And it repented the Lord that He had made man on the earth, and it grieved Him at his heart."

THE NEIGHBORS LAUGH

So God decided to wash the whole earth clean with a great rain. But Noah was a good man, and God told him about the flood that was coming. He told Noah to build an ark, a large boat with a house on its deck, big enough to hold his family and some of every kind of animal in the world.

God told Noah exactly how to build it, how long it should be, and how high.

When Noah's loud-mouthed, lazy neighbors found Noah building a huge boat on dry land, miles and miles from the ocean, they laughed until the tears rolled down their cheeks.

Noah didn't mind. He was used to standing alone and he was used to being laughed at. He didn't care what people thought, as long as he knew God. God was pleased.

ALL KINDS OF FOOD

Noah and his three sons had the animals into the ark and his wife and his sons' wives carried in the last of the food: seed for the birds, grain for the cattle and hay, dried fruit for themselves — enough, God knew, so there was enough to last for a long, long time.

When the last chipmunk and caterpillar were in the ark, God Himself shut them in.

For 40 days and 40 nights the rain poured down. When it did it stopped and Noah opened the window to look out there was only water stretching as far as his eyes could see. Not even the tops of the mountains showed above the water.

But perhaps, thought Noah, there is dry land farther ahead, out of sight. And so, as the Bible tells us:

". . . he sent forth a dove from him, to see if the waters were abated from off the face of the ground; but the dove found no rest for the sole of her foot, and she returned unto him into the ark, for the waters were on the face of the whole earth: then he put forth his hand, and took her, and pulled her in unto him into the ark."

Noah waited a week.

". . . and again he sent forth the dove out of the ark; and the dove came in to him in the evening, and, lo, in her mouth was an olive leaf plucked off."

A WHOLE YEAR

So Noah knew that the waters were slowly going down and that somewhere the top of a tree had appeared. But it was a whole year from the time the rain began until the earth was dry enough to walk on again. Then out of the ark they ran.

But before he did anything else, Noah built an altar to God, and offered Him a solemn prayer of thanks.

And God looked down on His world, and He saw that of all His people only Noah and his family were left. But now, thought God, these people will be different. They have seen what happens when men do not listen to Him. Noah's children will sing, forget Me.

And at first, they didn't forget. Noah's sons remembered the great Flood. Their sons heard about it from their fathers. The sons' sons heard about it, but it seemed like a long time ago.

THEY FORGET

And after a while people began to forget why their family had lived through the Flood. They forgot their importance. It was to listen to God, and they were to listen to themselves instead. Once more people decided not to follow God's rules.

There was little kindness in the world and Noah's children's kids. Men and men did not even manage—if people were so long as they themselves were getting rich.

So for loving God by thinking about people and trying to help them, Noah was rewarded to be the shape of a monkey.

And God, watching His people, was sad. They were getting more confused all the time.

"There is only one God!" He kept trying to tell them. "I am not always like a bull or a cat or a snake! You can't see Me with your eyes; you must see Me with your heart. Love Me and you will see Me! Love one another and you will see Me!"

But all they did was quarrel and the face of a man, remained the same.

Four Children, Grandmother Burned To Death

2-Storey Frame House At Mattawa Destroyed

MATTAWA (CP)—Four young brothers and their grandmother perished in their blazing home this morning and little hope remained that the bodies of the boys' parents may be saved.

Asleep in a third floor bedroom, the five were trapped as the flames belched through the two-storey frame dwelling in this town 60 miles east of North Bay. Police said they had no chance.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ezekiel Lamothe, were sleeping in a front bedroom with another son, Dale, 3. Mr. Lamothe threw Dale 12 feet into a snow bank and then helped his wife out. Dale was the only one to escape unscathed.

The dead are Garnet, 11; Clarence, 8; Daniel, 7; Richard, 5½, and Mrs. Mary Novack, 74. The house burned to the ground.

LAST LAUGH

Mr. Lamothe suffered severe burns in a rescue attempt and while lapsing into shock. Last rites of the Roman Catholic church have been administered to both.

After trying unsuccessfully to fight his way into the rear bedroom, Mr. Lamothe jumped to the ground from a window. He suffered burns to hands, arms, back and head. Mrs. Lamothe is also badly singed.

Fire Chief Maurice Turcotte said the house was heated with a wood box stove and a stove pipe in the kitchen that also burned coal. The fire was not known how the blaze began.

NO PLACE AID

But it's a never-racking job with no special police protection.

"You've got me scared to death," he said when approached for an interview during a recent coin-collecting visit to Ottawa banks.

"No, personal questions," he ruled, for obvious reasons.

How did he travel about with all that money?

"I travel on gossamer wings with three associates," he replied with a straight face. It turned out he uses a car, accompanied by one assistant.

How's business? Mr. X would rather not say, except that he'll not disclose how much silver he normally carries.

But it's widespread trade, with regular trips to Canadian banks between Quebec's Eastern Townships and Chatham, Ont., and a few annual excursions through the Maritimes.

GOOD U.S. DEMAND

South of the border, he said, he sells the coins to banks "all over the eastern United States." There's a demand for them and banks in smaller centres lacking press services, the more usual method of transporting coins.

Mr. X—"call me a coin broker"—sells the silver to U.S. banks for Canadian currency at the day's gets at reduced price, less than the current premium for the Canadian dollar.

Neither his nor banking circles here will say what he pays for American coins he buys. But normal practice in Canada is to charge on rolls of American coins coming in from the states and elsewhere, to cover customers as well as the two-per-cent discount on face value of Canadian currency.

One bank official said this extra discount is to cover the additional cost of handling coins originating, expressing them to the U.S. and insurance.

UNIQUE OCCUPATION

However, Mr. X said his business has been built up by the assistment of coins by Canadian banks to bank clearing centres in the U.S. Apart from a few bank brokers at border cities, he said, he's the only person with his occupation in Eastern Canada.

Naturally, he doesn't pick up hitch-hikers.

But there have been times when service clubs, understandably, suspicious about his cargo, have called in local police. This entails investigations and delays, usually ending with a local banker vouches for him.

ROBBED, THEN ARRESTED

DETROIT (AP)—Troy Harris told police three men entered his home Monday and took $270 in cash and two rings at gunpoint. Police went to the Harris home to investigate — and said they found in the basement Harris was charged with violating the state liquor laws.

Toting American Coins to States Risky Business

OTTAWA (CP) — Chancer are right now that a husky gentleman, with a passion for anonymity, is cruising somewhere in Eastern Canada with a carload of United States coins.

He'd probably be happier with dynamite. It would be less weary.

It's all quite legal. And if you should ever happen to notice his strange cargo, he'd just as soon you forgot you ever saw it.

The unusual occupation of Mr. X—further identification would be rather unfair—consists of returning to the U.S. some of the millions of American coins which find their way to Canada.

It's a good business. Canadian banks are happy to get rid of the silver. And at the other end —unlike carrying coals to Newcastle — there's a ready if not cough, a good demand from Canadian banks.

4-STAGE ROCKET SENT INTO SPACE WITH SUCCESS

Used to Record Signals From Stars

WASHINGTON (AP)—Canadian and American scientists sent a four-stage rocket into space at Wallops Island, Va., today to record radio signals emanating from the stars.

The complicated rocket incorporated a new X-248 engine as its fourth stage, and the experiment also was to test how this works in the vacuum of space.

The rocket was set to reach a height of 500 miles. The United States National Aeronautics and Space Administration could not say if the rocket reached that height or how far beyond the craggy forest north of Lake Huron.

Santa Claus Not Worried About 1962 in Elliot Lake

ELLIOT LAKE (CP) — It's Christmas as usual in Elliot Lake.

If there is a fear among the 10,000 inhabitants of this Northern Ontario mining town that they are living under the shadow of economic doom. It does not show in the faces encountered shops, bustling crowds and taking cash registers.

Santa Claus, apparently, is not worried about 1962.

That's the year the uranium contracts run out and uranium has been the town's mainstay, being the short history of this young but prosperous community which sits on the world's richest known deposit.

It was born of one of the country's most fantastic booms that began in 1953 when prospector Joseph Hirshhorn backed geologist Franc Joubin's hunch. Diamond drilling confirmed Joubin's belief that the Precambrian rock underlay beneath the craggy forest north of Lake Huron.

His beverage room sales have dropped, a normal development in the holiday season, but he thinks "business generally is holding at a normal level."

Loss of the construction worker's dollar—most of that work in the area now is at a standstill—has been felt by some businesses, especially a wholesale hardware dealer.

A finance company official finds business is at a consistent level. Collections are holding up and sales of big ticket items have yet been registered, he said.

Estimated cost of the project was not given but it will run into millions of dollars.

Gen. Laurence Kuter, chief of North American Air Defence Command, said on a visit to the NORAD is "convinced that the subsonic attack on the deck—that is, at 2,000 feet—presents a threat indefinitely."

The gap-fillers are in addition to seven new heavy radars to be built, five in the West and two in the Canada. The two in Central Canada will be erected by Pinetree, a joint Canada-U.S. venture.

Defence Minister Pinetree, meeting the Canadian Press report as he entered a cabinet meeting Monday, said that the seven heavy radars had started.

Steel Firms Bow to Demand For Individual Negotiations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government mediators plowed ahead today with separate bargaining sessions while plans sprouted for 82 separate bargaining sessions across the United States next Sunday in the steel strike.

Seemingly in the surprise of some unionists, industry negotiators have quickly rejected the demand of United Steelworkers President David J. McDonald for company - by - company negotiations.

This has scrambled the bargaining picture. McDonald apparently hoped that by bringing the chief spokesmen executives of every big steel company together in one place to talks, he could crack the industry front which has held almost completely solid for eight months on

15 NATO Foreign Ministers Quickly Approve Summit Bid

PARIS (CP)—The Atlantic alliance moved quickly today to win approval for the West's policy on summit talks with Premier Khrushchev.

Conference sources disclosed that the 15 NATO foreign ministers granted their approval after hearing a detailed report from the four major Western powers on the West's hopes and aims for the summit parley and the pre-summit meeting with the Soviet leader.

In a press conference later the NATO Council president, Norway's Foreign Minister Halvard Lange, predicted a period of extensive negotiations with the Soviet Union.

"Political co-operation, political unity and political solidarity are effective political consultation are more important than ever," he declared.

"Our American and Canadian friends, especially, are giving every nation to continue their part in the defence of the West, in order to consider that appeal.

"I think the essence of the ministerial meeting is that all members have expressed their determination to maintain NATO's unity in the changing circumstances now in which we are heading."

The foreign ministers of the United States, Britain, France and West Germany met and addressed the other ministers meeting at the NATO Council in the all-day session. Ministers were looking the Bois de Boulogne in western Paris.

They were reporting on the outcome of the Western summit meeting which concluded here Monday with an invitation to Khrushchev to meet President Eisenhower, Prime Minister Macmillan and President de Gaulle in Paris on April 27.

Maurice Couve de Murville of France was first to report on the three days of talks by the heads of government. He was followed in quick succession by State Secretary Christian Herter of the U.S., Lloyd of Britain and Heinrich von Brentano of Germany.

Authoritative sources said they explained directives they have given their top aides and special officials to prepare for the projected summit conference and answered the council of close consultation which is in the summit preparations.

A five-paragraph formal NATO communique issued after the Paris meeting welcomed the close consultation between the four major powers. Big Four and the alliance's ministerial meeting in the summit preparations.

The council also welcomed the plans made for further consulting NATO before the Western Big Four delegates go to Moscow for summit conference.

The 15 NATO ex-dorsement of the summit plans, Moscow hinted that Khrushchev will accept the invitation to the top-level meeting.

The Soviet government's proposal on a meeting of the leaders of the great powers has found a positive response," Moscow radio commentator said Monday night.

He added that a meeting of Khrushchev and the Big Four French leaders "will help to remove mutual distrust and open the way for a further relaxation of international tensions."

Will Include Plea for Peace

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Vatican sources said Monday Pope John is expected once again to include in his annual Christmas message a plea for peace. It will be broadcast at noon (6 a.m. EST) Wednesday by Vatican radio in hookup with the Italian radio and other works of various other countries.

CANADA AND U.S. WILL PLUG GAPS IN RADAR LINE

New Installations To Spot Low Planes

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada and the United States have agreed on construction of new gap-filler radars in this country, a defence department spokesman said today.

Ontario Shivers As Cold Wave Ushers in Winter

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ontario residents today shivered as the bitter cold gripped most of the province.

The cold spell was brought on by the Arctic air mass pressure cell which moved across Northern Ontario. It set record temperatures in the North well below zero and to near zero in the southern section.

On this first day of winter—11 o'clock yesterday at 2:33 a.m. EST—the rest of Canada enjoyed the warmth generally for this time of the year.

Across most of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta temperatures ranged between five and 20 degrees above. But in British Columbia the average temperature was 33 degrees and record temperatures were also recorded in the Maritimes with an average of 25 degrees in New Brunswick and 20 to 25 in Newfoundland.

Reports from Northern Ontario dropped temperatures in the 30s and 40s with Kapuskasing 27 below in Timmins. While River, traditionally the coldest spot in Ontario, was 20 below.

In central Ontario Killaloe registered 15 below while it was near zero in the Ottawa district and five above in most of southwestern Ontario.

Northern Asks Respite From Union Activity

TORONTO (CP) — The Northern Electric Company has replied to the Ontario Labor Board for a 10-month respite from union activity in its Belleville, Ont., plant following unsuccessful efforts by the steel and electrical and employees' association in the fourth quarter.

The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and the Communication Workers of America, both affiliates of the Canadian Labor Congress, failed in organizing attempts at the new plant.

The labor board normally bars a union from making a second attempt at organizing for 12 months. The board also has the right to bar for good to say union for 10 months from the date of certification of the organization, but has never before been called on to enforce this.

Arthur Slaght, company counsel, said the plant will increase its labor force to 700 from 175 within the next year and the company has established and employees before the turnoil of union organizing sets in.

Eisenhower Has Won New Friends And Created Atmosphere of Peace

MADRID (AP)—President Eisenhower has won new friends and perhaps influenced some important votes in the U.N. General Assembly "peace and friendship" tour.

That only time can tell whether the American leader's venture into personal diplomacy eased any of the bitter disputes which plague much of the areas through which he travelled.

His aides are convinced that the goodwill and sincerity Eisenhower radiated will pay off in positive dividends later. They say he created an "peace atmosphere" which will help many countries settle their own quarrels with others more calmly.

This would be a notable achievement. But even the most skeptical of those accompanying Eisenhower acknowledge his trip already has yielded significant short - term gains for American foreign policy.

This appears to be Eisenhower's record of achievement in each of the countries he has visited:

Italy — Not much, though he won the endorsement of the Pope and a pledge of peace-to-free-dom.

Turkey — A rousing reception which reinforced the close Turkish - American military partnership in NAGO.

Pakistan—Cheering Pakistanis hailed him, confidential talks with Pakistan leaders he preached the value of a reasonable settlement of disputes with India.

Afghanistan — A surprisingly warm welcome. Eisenhower warned of the dangers of too much reliance on Soviet assistance. Afghan leaders publicly pledged their allegiance to freedom.

India — The most spectacular phase of the tour. Some 4,000,000 Indians roared their approval while Prime Minister Nehru lauded Eisenhower's visit. Net

Odyssey Ended, U.S. President Bound For Home

Last Calls on Tour At Madrid, Casablanca

CASABLANCA, Morocco (AP) President Eisenhower arrived in Morocco today, last stop on his 11-country mission of peace and friendship, for another giant welcome.

More than 200,000 excited spectators, many of them in flowing desert dress, packed this northeast African port to cheer the American leader.

"Yoo! Yoo!" cried veiled Moslem women in traditional shrill fashion as the president stepped from his jet airliner at Nouasseur air base outside Casablanca.

Eisenhower smiled broadly as he stepped down to shake hands with tall unsmiling with King Mohammed V and his two sons, Prince Moulay Hassan and Prince Moulay Abdallah.

"We are very happy to greet you," said the king in a brief welcoming address in Arabic before the Chamber of Commerce for talks on Morocco's desire for U.S. economic aid. Then he left with departure of American troops from Moroccan bases, STAYING TONIGHT

After a 1½-hour visit with the king Eisenhower was to take off for Madrid, Spain. They are scheduled at 10:50 p.m. EST after a refueling stop in Casablanca.

"We like Ike" signs blossomed in the streets of Casablanca, where Eisenhower last visited in 1943 as a wartime general.

Thousands of Moroccans in brown burnooses g allopped in horses, Thousands of civilians and police stayed at the inefficient salute to visiting dignitaries.

Stork's Early Call With Triplets Prompts Santa to Make Plane Trip

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sixteen-year-old Mrs. Ronald Peterson of Vancouver.

It went to a department store. The response was good. Two policemen were called. They were delighted to help—how old were the children?

A reporter called Dr. Trevor Thompson, who lives in the Fehr's district.

Dr. Thompson, who officiated at the triplets' birth, said he would be glad to help.

So it was that Santa Claus arrived in a car taking Mrs. Fehr to hospital; the next two at home after the car gave up the race.

The triplets and Jheir 13 brothers and sisters are at isolated and remote Takyuie Lake, 375 miles northwest of Vancouver.

That pioneer-style home stands on one of the last of Canada's frontiers. It has no electricity, is 10 miles from the nearest telephone and there is no school for the children. Lessons are taken by correspondence.

The family asked for no help but the story reached here and was followed by the first of many calls by the staff of the Vancou-

Queen's Motor Hotel Receives D.H. Recognition

ITHACA, N.Y. — The Queen's Motor Hotel, Belleville, has received notice of recognition in the new 1960 edition of the Duncan Hines Travel Book "Lodging for a Night" just published, according to an announcement from Roy H. Park, editor-in-chief of the Duncan Hines distributs here, publisher of the travel books.

The Queen's Motor Hotel is one of 3,000 lodging places in North America "Recommended by Duncan Hines." Other Duncan Hines books are the companion travel book, "Adventures in Good Eating," also newly republished in its twenty-fifth anniversary edition, and the Duncan Hines guide to resorts and vacation spots, "Vacation Guide."

"This edition celebrates the Silver Anniversary of the first Duncan Hines travel book," Park pointed out. The 1935 edition of "Adventures in Good Eating" launched a new and unique publishing venture, one that has pioneered in upgrading the standards of service offered the traveller."

SELECT GROUP

"The establishments we list are truly a select group," Park said, "in that only 9,000 are recommended out of almost half a million eating and lodging places in North America, representing the top 2.3 percent."

Park explained that the list, now in all the books he's "authoritative and unbiased, based on thorough inspection" by a corps of field inspectors and "close survey and analysis" by the Duncan Hines editorial staff. "No establishments ever pays for a listing in the Duncan Hines recommendation has got to be earned," Park added.

Board Adopts Hold-the-Line Policy on Teachers' Salaries

With certain concessions written into a new agreement to become effective in September, 1961, a hold-the-line policy will be adopted by the Belleville Public School Board towards salaries for city public school teachers.

Board members at their final meeting of the year held Monday evening at the Bridge Street board rooms, repeated directions to their staff committees that the salary agreement with the teaching staff was to continue in effect until August 31, 1961, with concessions regarding any changes to commence in the spring of 1960.

The board instructed the committee, however, that certain concessions within the agreement might be made for effect at September 1960. These adjustments would affect mostly teachers who have been on the staff for from five to 10 years who would tend to remove, at least partially, inequalities which now appear to exist.

New rates for the supply teaching staff, effective January 1st, 1960, were approved. These teachers will be paid at a daily rate the same as for new members to the teaching staff and when employed continuously for a month or more will be allowed an allowance for previous teaching experience. The new daily rate will be $15 and in keeping with this adjustment a provincial allowance will be applied to part-time principal's relief teachers.

UNFORTUNATE LOSS

The Management Committee reported the unfortunate loss from the teaching staff of the principal J. A. Bacon, B.A., B. Ed., who had capably filled the position of principal at the King George School since September 1958. Mr. Bacon leaves to take a consulting position with the Ottawa Public School Board. Mr. Walter Reible, B.A., vice-principal at the Prince Charles School was named by the board to replace Mr. Bacon for the remainder of the school year.

School principals reported a total enrolment of 4,300 children at the end of the month of November, with attendance efficiency standing at 94.98%.

On report of the property committee and subject to the availability of funds, the Board approved the purchase of a new dragon for a classroom at the Queen Victoria School and a cross for the health room at the Queen Victoria School.

The Board received and approved a recommendation of the Supervisor of Maintenance, Mr. Dan Wilson, that Mr. Charles Lloyd, a maintenance employee, be advanced to permanent status in the Board's employ, following a probationary period of six months. Included is a salary increase of $20 per month.

APPROVE PAYMENTS

The Board approved payment of accounts and other obligations totaling $135,288.64. Included in this total were the payrolls for the months of November and December, completion of the purchase of a school site and an adjustment on the purchase of a school site.

The chairman of the Finance Committee, Mrs. Dorothy Tugwell, reported that the Board would finish the year with a cash balance, but that two or three items were not yet billed but included was the income from the supplementary roll and certain expenditures involved in the assessment of parts of school sections.

A request was received from the Quinte Association for Children that the Association be granted further space for the storage of the Queen Victoria School. Direction was given to extend to the Quinte Children Association that further space and time could not be granted as the equipment would be made to store certain equipment belonging to the Association.

NAMED TO BOARD

The Board acted in response to a reminder from the Secretary of the Bay of Quinte District High School Board and appointed Mr. W. T. Simpson to that Board for the year 1960.

Information was received from the Chief Inspector of Public Schools, L. A. Kelly, that the Ontario Department of Education had granted tentative approval for grant purposes to the construction of Schools No. 13 and 14, in the amounts of $100,000 and $200,000 respectively. The Board was reminded, among other things, that it must hold a clear title to school sites, keep City Council informed of the amount of the tentative approvals, and clear with the Ontario Fire Marshal's department regarding safety features in building design.

Monies present for the final meeting of the year were: Chairm a E. Bruce Hicks, Mrs. Dorothy Tugwell and Messrs. Wm. A. Ironside, Lyle Longabee, Hans Michie, Rex Wilson, Jack Sproule, Wm. Townson, Gordon Trill and W. A. Vandervoort.

Three new members of the Board elected for the 1960-61 term, Gordon Hutchinson, J. N. McKibbon, and Erwin Valentine, were welcomed to the meeting by Chairman Bruce Bishop.

Date for the caucus meeting of the Board was set at 7 p.m. December 30 and the date of the

IN MEMORIAM

McGILLIVARY. — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Jack McGillivary, who passed away December 22nd, 1958.

God gave me a wonderful husband,
Memory will never part us.
His fashioned his smile out of manly grace,
He molded his heart of pure gold,
His sympathy was quick to listen,
His hand to shelter.
So fair of his old world of sorrow,
God has my dear husband of mine.
Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by wife Marjorie and sons Gary and Peter.

McGILLIVARY. — In fond memory of a dear brother-in-law, Jack McGillivary, who passed away December 22nd, 1958.

He lives in the hearts we make that room,
The mirror the day would bring;
And call to mind
To meet with one we loved so dear,
Sometimes it's hard to understand,
Why some must leave us here,
In His wisdom, God has planned,
Sweet memories are left behind,
Always remembered by his brother-in-law and sister-in-law, Ted and Doreen Hamilton and family.

RANKIN. — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, who passed away December 22nd, 1958.

Town Will Pay PUC Debenture Charge Dec. 28

TRENTON — A special meeting of the 1958 Trenton council held yesterday afternoon to give consideration to a request from the Trenton Public Utilities that the town pay the PUC's December 28 debenture payment of $18,300. The commission finds it impossible at this time to meet the payment itself and, as the town has guaranteed the debenture, the request was, in a manner of speaking, a formality. Council voted the necessary authority for the town to borrow the money to meet the payment.

Also under consideration was a letter from the law firm of Ward and McLoughlin of Picton, asking that the clerk - treasurer, O. W. Larry, or some other clerk authority, forward an affidavit to the effect that no sewers from the west end of town were tied in with a sewer installed to service Fairview Crescent and the Hendrick's apartment block. Neither Mr. Larry nor any of the town fathers were instructed to swear out the affidavit as it was thought possible that the letter had been instigated by some person with a previous knowledge that such a tie-in might very well have been effected by some person living in this area. It was decided to shift the onus to Mr. Hendricks, and R. S. Cameron, town solicitor, was instructed to write to him, giving him 30 days in which to prove or disprove the theory. At the time that the sewer in question was installed, Mr. Hendricks guaranteed that no other sewers would be allowed to tie in with the line. On one occasion, one household in the area was allowed to have a line run into the sewer on a temporary basis, and later it was allowed to remain. But it is felt that the situation should be clarified at this time before any more unwarranted tie-ins take place.

result of the president's stay was to push India a little further toward the Western end of the neutral tightrope on which Nehru is trying to balance.

Iran—A firm pledge of support to the shah at a time when he is under Soviet pressure.

Greece—An emotional welcome. Eisenhower assured Greek leaders of continued American aid.

FACING THE MUSIC . . . Inspector Bob Fair of the Fire Department (centre), appears to be giving up his efforts at serious piano playing under the friendly persuasion of Fireman Jack Merritt (right) with the toy Thompson machine gun. Fireman Jack McCabe (left) seems happy to take the piano off Mr. Fair's hands. Actually the local firefighters were sorting out the many toys which they have collected for delivery to children in the city.

WHERE'S SANTA CLAUS . . . The Fire Department's mascot 'Nipper' seems to be looking for Santa Claus to tell him that this toy car is just what he wants for Christmas. Cautioning him not to drive without his licence are Firemen Jack McCabe and Enos Merritt. Tomorrow and Thursday many of the local firemen will be out driving as they assist Santa in the delivery of toys to over 200 families around Belleville.

Firemen to Aid Santa Deliver Some 650 Boxes

In ancient times they used camels to bring the first Christmas presents. Tomorrow and on Thursday trucks and cars will be used as Belleville's firefighters give Santa Claus the tremendous hand for which he has been able to rely on three men each year in making sure that gifts and goodies reach all the needy in the city.

Over 1,200 toys and great quantities of goodies such as candies, nuts, oranges and popcorn are stored in Fire Hall No. Two on West Moira Street and the firemen have been donating their off-duty hours to the task of preparing over 200 boxes for delivery to families in the area. As of this morning there were some 650 children listed at the fire hall, stated Fire Chief Gerald Vance.

All sorts of toys have been assembled. The majority have come out of the Santa's new bishop of Eric Cooper and his helpers at the Edwards Centre, who have done a remarkable job of scouring up the many toys given them by local residents. A few of the toys are new ones purchased with funds raised by the fire department and other groups for the underprivileged children. Mitts and gloves also have been acquired for distribution with the toy and goodies boxes.

If any of the people receiving these boxes for Santa Claus wish to show them until the proper time, they are advised to be at home when Santa's helpers are call around with their deliveries during the next two days.

Brig. Gennery Guest Speaker For Rotary Christmas Meet

A Salvation Army Brigadier, suggested to local businessmen that they keep remembering Christ out of their homes, families and businesses.

Brig. Stanley Gennery, who has served with the Salvation Army in New Zealand as well as Montreal and other Canadian cities, was guest speaker at the Christmas meeting of the Rotary Club.

He claimed charity should not begin at home.

"I have seen nothing in the Bible to indicate this (maxim)," said the brigadier.

The guest speaker was using as the subject for his address, Joseph and Mary at the Inn at Bethlehem and the birth of Christ in the manger where the pregnant mother and her husband were relegated to after being told "... there is no room at the Inn."

He said that to many people, the only Christmas "spirit" they recognized was at the liquid variety The phrase "no room at the Inn" signified the attitude of many people.

"I am with the idea of putting Christ back into Christmas. Christ saved many people from their sins. Peter Pedigree would not have found his place in history if it were not for Christ," the speaker concluded.

JUST ORDINARY MAN

"A man who could find no room for Christ? Is he a good or bad man?"

Brig. Gennery said in all likelihood he (the proprietor) was an ordinary man and Rotarians would find a parallel among themselves or their squaintances.

The Inn was not a home for paupers or paupers. It was a reputed out, controlled by an ordinary man with ordinary limitations.

If he had known Joseph and Mary, he would probably have found room for them. Or if they had come to him yesterday, he would have accepted them under his roof.

The Innkeeper was not to be blamed entirely, suggested the speaker. He said many of us would change some things in our lives if given them to live over again.

The speaker claimed the proprietor of the Inn could not be blamed entirely. If the hotel was full, he could not put other guests out.

"Oh pardon the landlord's people (family) were there at the time", he said. "Then it became a matter of priorities."

"There certainly should be businessmen at the Inn."

The speaker reminded Rotarians of the famous Dickens' yarn of a miserly businessman — Scrooge — who had no time for Christ.

Other guests would include some "pleasure seekers".

"Pleasure itself is not wrong," said the speaker. "But some pleasures would be better left out of our lives."

TOOK EAST LINE

"Sometimes even our religious ceremonies conceal the Christ," said the speaker. "In the story of the good Samaritan a priest hurrying to perform such a religious ceremony did not bother to help the injured wayfarer.

The Thoughts That Arise

"I would that my tongue could utter
The thoughts that ariseth me."

Finding himself treading alone the banquet hall of life deserted by a long-time friend, and facing the difficult duty of arranging words in fitting tribute, Thomas Richard Henry of the Toronto Evening Telegram, in that sense of futility known to almost everybody who has attempted such a task, thus took refuge in the words of the poet.

Who amongst us, whether we write for a living or not, has not known this feeling, has not been possessed by the conviction that we have something important to say if we could but find the words necessary to reproduce our thoughts?

This feeling, though, is a delusion.

When thoughts arise, they do so fully clothed in words. It is impossible to think without words—impossible at least for those of us who know words though not how, the thought arises, can the dead and dumb think if they know no words? No matter; leave that question to experts. For all practical purposes, at least, we are never at a loss for words to express our thoughts.

What Thomas Richard Henry was experiencing, what we all experience under similar conditions, is a difficulty in selecting words to express emotions. Sometimes we manage to translate these emotions into thoughts, and when we do we have no trouble writing or speaking these thoughts. But too often the thoughts die before they come to the speaker or the writer. Or perhaps one should say that they materialize only in part. How can one be sure that the words mean exactly the same thing to any two people? It seems as impossible to prove or disprove as that high school argument about whether red appears the same color to any two people. But, by checking the accepted meaning of a word against the accepted meanings of a variety of other words, one can reach a close approximation to complete identity of meanings, as between speaker and listener, writer and reader. Given this, the orderly, efficient thinker is a craftsman with words. He has no trouble writing, or uttering, all the thoughts that arise in him. He writes as well as he thinks—no better, no worse.

But expressing emotions! Ah, that is different. Even the most skilled craftsmanship is of no use here. Words fail us, we say. It is not the words which fail; it is our use of them. What is required to express an emotion is not craftsmanship, but art—and artists with words are few and far between. Perhaps this is because we so seldom attempt to be artists. Lovers kiss. At a funeral we substitute a squeeze of the hand for words. At a political meeting the speaker voices some slogan which have acquired an emotional content for all his listeners. ("The British Empire"—picture of rule by law, of Magna Carta and of Christian virtues or of Sahibs collecting taxes, the Baas with the sambok, and taxes on tea?). What place has emotion in business correspondence? Where would you put the artist with words on a newspaper staff, with the reporters, dealing with facts, or the editorial writers, dealing with opinions? Can facts remain facts if blended with a reporter's emotions? Of what value is an opinion scored by a feeling?

Yet, if we could only match craft with art, how often we could use this ability. It is not only in the affairs of nations that the day comes for phrases like "silver before have so many owed so much to so few," for "some chicken, some neck," nor is it only distinguished authors who realize that "no man is an island unto himself." Only would only answer the summons to communicate emotions as easily as they troop in to serve the cause of thoughts, how much better we would all understand each other.

MOTHER'S IDEA

By EDGAR A. GUEST

About this time of year come back the thoughts of dear old mother,
Who loved the Christmas season better far than any other;
And again I hear her saying in a voice I can't forget,
For the sweetness of it lingers in my memory yet,
"We must make the children happy; we must have a Christmas!"
Spend your money on the little ones, and don't you think of me."

Every year she used to say it When our shopping lists we made;
Used to every year remind us, Lest we always remind afraid
That we didn't have the money to do all we'd like to do,
And that maybe we were worried, or would be when we knew
So she'd call us all together, And I'd read a verse to her
To spend upon the children what you're going to spend on her."

God bless you, dear old mother, with the Christmas drawing near,
You are smiling at me sweetly, and again your voice I hear
As I read I'm repeating to the loved ones that I know
The lesson that you taught me in the days of Long Ago.
"We must make the children happy; let their day a glad one be;
Spend the money on the little ones, and don't you think of me."

Good Prospects

ARTICLE 183

(Contributed by members of the Hastings County Historical Society).

A. After Belleville surveyor Publius V. Elmore had laid out the line for the Hastings Colonization Road, the road was constructed in the early 1850's under the personal supervision of Robert Bird of Sidney Township. One contractor had overplayed the job of filling up the low with fence rails.

Thereafter on July 19, 1856, M. F. Haynes opened an agency at Madoc for the Hastings Road Settlement. He had jurisdiction over a vast tract of land, ninety per cent of which was divided into farm lots of some 100 acres size.

Settlers could obtain one or three hundred-acre farms under the following circumstances:

1. That the settler be eighteen years of age.

2. That he cultivate at least twelve acres of the land within four years, build a home (at least 20 by 23 feet) and reside on the lot until the conditions of settlement were duly performed.

Land he must keep the road in repair.

The log house required by the settlement had to be built with a of a type that could be erected in a day, with the direct help of Usually the neighbors helped in the erection without charge. Thereby keeping the expenses to a minimum.

The road was generally cover- ed with stumps and the spaces between the logs were plastered with clay and whitewashed.

The lands through which the Hastings Road ran were open for settlement for about a century ago as "capable, both as to soil and climate, of the production abundant crops of winter wheat, of excellent quality and weight, and generally all crops of every other description of farm produce, equal to the best and largest cultivated districts of that portion of the province."

In 1858, Mr. Hayes reported in rosy terms of conditions along the road. He happily noted that 417 acres had been cleared and products valued at more than $40,000 had been produced.

Hayes described the first 22- miles section of road as being "thickly settled and presenting a gratifying contrast to its appearance 18 months ago, clearings and dwellings on almost every lot, some substantial frame barns and stables, together with tidy dwellings, saw mill and grist mill."

"The road is open 66 miles north of Madoc Township, and only 231 lots remaining open for settlement".

Hayes concluded with reference to the prosperous lumber business that was developing and called attention to the remarkable healthfulness of the climate.

Would the Hastings Colonization Road settlement continue as it had in the past? Was the question that was to be answered in a few brief years.

Letter To the Editor

Statement on Policy Termed 'Outrageous'

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

One week ago you published a letter from Dr. H. E. Welch that was somewhat abusive of your paper, and very uncomplimentary editorially on this letter. May I congratulate you on this action. It is a sign of a spirit I would like to see more in the Ontario.

However, I am much disturbed by the tone of your opinion, and that by assuming that those who criticism you would be guilty of stupidity or very poor opinion, most newspaper readers are well aware of the difference between news stories and editorial comment. By so doing you have failed in a well aware of it. We expect the news to be fair, unbiased and free. Editorials we expect to be timely, pertinent, and generally to the point, should take stands, should have opinions, and should express them strongly and with conviction. I fear The Ontario Intelligencer has failed in this duty.

You state that The Ontario Intelligencer prefers not to feature and glorify news that is regarded as unfavorable to the city. . . . This is possibly the most outrageous statement ever made in the history of organ, in effect it amounts to a public declaration that The Ontario Intelligencer considers it's self the sole judge of what is or what shall become public. In other words, our local paper is to be a mouthpiece of a small city censor. The news story which gave rise to this letter was one of utmost gravity and importance to all citizens of Belleville. Any attempt to stifle to think a story of such magnitude would be guilty of stupidity to the extreme. The Ontario Intelligencer left the field open for the Times this was a first page story and should have had a front page treatment. Lack of headlines and second page placement did not appear to have been unfavorable comment. In fact the converse is true.

The Intelligencer is unable to promote the welfare of our city, but this cannot be accomplished by a blind ease. While Belleville has many charms and virtues, it also has failings which might be remedied sooner if they were brought to the attention. Let The Ontario Intelligencer stimulate public interest in the affairs of our city and take a lead in correcting and curing the evils which exist in public.

A. L. Turnbull, D. Phil.

Editors Note: Contrary to Mr. Turnbull's contention that "most newspaper readers are well aware of the distinction between news stories and editorial comment" we feel that we have to borne out through the years by newspaper experience that we constantly being made for editorial support in all sorts of things, when in fact all that is usually needed is publicity in the news columns. This is a complimentary matter that to say editors do not know the difference between facts and opinion does not necessarily do justice to the daily hardly worth commenting.

Dr. Welch's letter was stories concerning the city's financial difficulties published at the time the leader page is no evidence they were censored. It is not sensible to suggest that news stories can be censored even if there is a desire to do so. How long could this or any newspaper remain in business or retain public confidence under such circumstances.

It is also necessary to say that

Strictly Personal

Domesticity Stories Most Interesting

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A few weeks ago, I received a card from the editor of the Golden Rule Magazine, a ladys' secording a recent column of mine on short, religious writing, in which I pointed out that it was the hardest form of literary endeavor and that pithy and good feeling tags are no substitute for technique. I have a few other fields of writing that are equally as difficult as crime, and the lawyer. Both of these are special interests of mine; and I have read hundreds of books on each subject — yet no one has written more than three were all worthwhile.

Just as it seems to a religious person that his ideas and feelings cannot possibly be transmitted to paper in the cold force of his conviction, so it seems to stage people that their genuine reactions and the vagaries of their careers would make exciting reading.

But not one such book in a hundred has the slightest merit, beyond the merely anecdotal. I have read volumes of actors and actresses, directors and producers, which were nothing more than chronological lists of names and little stories, tedious itineraries and dreary recitals of honors and awards.

On my desk at this moment is the newest of this breed: "A Life in the Theatre" by the well-known English director Dyson Guthrie. It is a worthy, and quite dull, book, replete with anecdotes as "We did tremendous business in Toronto," and "Bond Gordon and I had become fast friends." That sort of thing.

These same books — so contrasted with crime fiction, which is delightful — are another trap for the unwary writer. Dozens of retired detectives and police officials have laboriously copied out their experiences — which, in themselves, are often keenly interesting and pedestrian. I have just finished another account, by a recently retired head of Scotland Yard's criminal investigation department, a most exciting book of memoirs could be written by a first-class detective.

Surprisingly, the kind of writing that comes most easily to authors, and the one that can hold readers even if tragedy writing, is the chronicle of family life. Domesticity, seen from the right angle, is the most fascinating of subjects, for each family has its own peculiar charm.

It is no accident that Shakespeare's four greatest plays centre around a prince and his mother, a king and his three daughters, a wife's suspicion of her husband's honor, and a husband's insane jealousy of his beautiful wife.

The man was "turning" with an axe Jo stated, and looked as healthy as that which appears in the print.

The Belleville "V" took both ends of a doubleheader house league last night when the Belleville Eagles soundly trounced the RCAF "Batmen" 33 to 24 in the opening game; while the "Y" Panthers eked out a last-minute 28 to 26 win over the Air Force "Bombers" in the night-cap affair. Ross Gordon and Bill Wright carried the offensive play for the Eagles in the initial game with Irvin being the star for the Air Force.

To Your Good Health

TRUE HEART PAIN DIFFERS FROM "INDIGESTION"

"Dear Dr. Molner:" One hears quite a bit about heart attacks and how sometimes they can cause a pain that feels as much like indigestion. But how can one tell whether it is a heart attack or merely the gas in the stomach? Is there any pain that may be indigestion? — F. D.

That is a good question. I've seen news items about such cases, too, in which "an attack of indigestion" turned out to be a heart attack.

It was my guess that a large proportion of these people had a strong suspicion that the pain was more than "indigestion." But they "didn't want to worry the family," or they didn't want to admit to themselves that something rather serious was occurring.

So they said, "It's just indigestion," when they might better have said, "I suspect it's a coronary thrombosis." Still, I dare say we all can understand what went on in their minds, even if it is wise? No, of course not.

Well then, can we learn that will help us to avoid the same sort of error?

Here are my thoughts: First, "indigestion" is a very vague term. It means no different people, different things. Anything except a cramp in the upper abdomen, or a burning pain from chest to lower abdomen. So let's not waste time on that part of it.

True heart pain, however, is hard to describe. It usually is under the breast bone, from the upper to the lower abdomen in that area. Or it may occur in the left shoulder blade region.

It is usually a dull pain, a sense of pressure or tightness, or a feeling of a great physical sport, or it may radiate to the arm, neck or back.

When it starts at the lower breastbone level, the pain is often mistaken for "indigestion."

There are other possible causes for pain in the chest, however. Gall bladder trouble often causes pain under the breast bone; appendicitis, diaphragmatic hernia.

The bowel, certainly, which is filled, generally with gas, can produce pain and cause false electro-cardiograph and x-ray findings. Suppose the pain is from one of these causes, and not from a heart pain? It still is adequate reason for medical diagnosis and treatment.

So the best advice I can give is to rely on one's own good sense and judgment.

If the pain is more than a trivial one, and is in the heart-ulcer-gall bladder region, don't worry about it. Just consult a doctor. Don't delude yourself or try to "prove to yourself" by passing it off as "indigestion." You can tell a real pain from a twinge of indigestion.

Your own common sense, really, is going to be the answer. The heart attacks that are "overtaken" by indigestion aren't, as a rule, really mistakes. The pain is either fooling himself, or trying to fool someone else. Such people don't fool others.

Tomorrow we'll outline the ways to distinguish pains in other parts of the chest.

"Dear Dr. Molner: What causes a child to have a lot of nosebleeds, even in sleep? — Mrs. E.

One likely answer would be that the nose now bleeds needs to be cauterized, or pricking at the nose. Have your doctor take a look.

Mrs. I. H.: No, I'm sorry, but when the weekly has been removed, it is impossible to have the booklet. Why don't you just tell me about the case, obvious- ly the operation was necessary, however, I'm sure it was a success.

Bed wetting can be cooperated. To learn how, write to me in care of the Chicago Sun Times Syndicate, Box 158, Dundee, Ill., requesting a copy of my booklet, "Enuresis" (bed wetting)" and enclosing a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope. Nic in coin to cover handling.

Loudspeaker Is No Cure

Brantford Expositor

The Mayor of London, Ont., has a new idea. Recently he proposed that a loudspeaker system be set up at the Forks of the Thames to "wake up the drivers.

It makes the broad charge that the cause of much of the congestion is the unthinking selfish driver who is blocking traffic.

Now sympathising ' with Mayor Johnston's annoyance at traffic tie-ups, we think his recommendation would do anything but end the trouble. Loudspeakers are noise-ridden. They are used by operas without roaring, grunting and grinding to attract the attention of the most alert motorist — or pedestrian — and we doubt if they would think, as the saying goes.

Drivers have been telling us, for years, that this constant pandemonium is having an effect on our nerves and also on our senses of perception. Some people are gifted in shutting another strident, bewling voice in the background.

With due respect, we suggest to Mayor Johnston that the best cure for the habit of looking under half-asleep, negligent or selfish motorists would be a stronger on the municipal police forces and let the traffic officers take care of the situation.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL I. DOUGLASS

"GOD IS LOVE"

Yesterday we spoke of hate as the badge of satanic evil. Let us consider the whole of the created universe to the reality which stands as the badge of Jehovah God. In this vast stretch one sees the ultimate in evil and the ultimate in good.

The Bible tells us that God is love. It tells us that the nature of God is loving, or lovable, but that He Himself is love. The nature of the universe by His very nature is committed to the initiating and carrying out of love in harmony wherein all parts serve a definite end. That is the divine enterprise at the centre of which is love. And since love is the essence of His being — God's enterprise of harmony given life and power by the presence and guidance of the loving God Himself.

The beautiful man and woman is the divine enterprise with the cruel weapon of hate. God is love, and because He is love, His presence is irresistably pushing back all opposition as He carries on the universe a decent place for right-minded people to make an eternal abode. God's prophet is the project of creating, redeeming love in a hostile world. The satanic rebellion is the evil attempt to impede and destroy this project.

This is the reason of the year we are thinking of God's great love for mankind. It is a season when His love comes down to bless us with indescribable happiness. It is not only at this season but through every season that God is love.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

DON'T BE A "YES, YES"-ER

Opinion is a common-modity. And every now and then, an unusual statement.

If you have an opinion, get pretty well acquainted with it. Then let others know it with all your heart, stick to it, and be ready to defend it. For an opinion is somewhat like a friend — you acquired it, and you have something to hold to it with.

Be unopinioned are the "Yes, Yes" folks. You meet them every day. Rather they don't you! They are always for you, accepting all that you say, and with a smile the crowd because they are the crowd. They follow, trusting and have their being" by floating on top of the mass, the initiating the struggles, the sacrifices and the hardships of other people who have grown strong in well doing.

Oh, for some patent medicine, magic vitamin pill, or something that would inoculate the themselves — and think for themselves — and have the courage to disagree — really, is going to be the answer. The heart attacks that are "overtaken" by indigestion aren't, as a rule, really mistakes. The pain is either fooling himself, or trying to fool someone else. Such people don't fool others.

a major news story can be "hidden" in a newspaper the size of The Ontario Intelligencer. We are quite aware the positioning of the stories would invite criticism, but we have to have a system of some sort, and that is no reason to change it. Our system we believe is neat and which.

Canadian PLACE NAMES

MACKENZIE RIVER

This is the name of a mighty river in a settlement along the banks in the Canadian northwest. Sir Alexander Mackenzie, explorer who helped open up the northwest, discovered the river and was the first white man to reach the Pacific overland from Canada prior to 1793. Mackenzie died in 1820.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

One of my frequent companions is an unholy nosh. He is immensely proud of his knowledge of the slightest excuse, he will bring in some reference to his forebears who, to read his words, were the founders of Canada.

Personally, I like Jo-hear him bragging about his father, his grandfather. He has his great-grandfather. It happens to know they were colorful and creative characters. I like to have a new fact with them through a living descendant. But as much as I like my one of the group sitting at a major news story can be "hidden" in a newspaper the size of The Ontario Intelligencer. We are quite aware the positioning of the stories would invite criticism, but we have to have a system of some sort, and that is no reason to change it. Our system we believe is neat and which.

Sure, this city has faults, but what city hasn't? We repeat there is a major task ahead in restoring confidence in Belleville's name. The Ontario Intelligencer as it always has in the past, will continue to promote any worthwhile plan and action to bring this about.

Our Christmas Story

by Mrs. Billy Graham
as told to Elizabeth Sherrill

The Chosen People

The children of Israel were made slaves by the Egyptians.

Chapter 6

Abraham lived in a rich and beautiful city called Haran. One day he heard God's voice say:

"Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and from thy father's house, unto a land that I will show thee: And I will make of thee a great nation . . . and in thee shall all families of the earth be blessed."

For many years Abraham and then his sons and his grandsons were wandering herdsmen in this new land. And God repeated His promise to Abraham's grandson, Jacob.

"And God said unto him. Thy name is Jacob: thy name shall not be called any more Jacob, but Israel shall be thy name: and he called his name Israel. And God said unto him, I am God Almighty: a nation and a company of nations shall be of thee . . . and the land which I gave Abraham . . . to thee I will give it."

A GREAT FAMINE

But when Jacob (or Israel) was old, there came a great famine in this land, and to find food, Israel and his children had to go to a country called Egypt. There they were eventually made slaves.

For hundreds of years they worked for the Egyptians. It seemed almost as if God had forgotten His promise that He would make them a great nation. But God never forgets.

As the years went by many of the Israelites forgot God and worshipped the false gods of Egypt. Perhaps a few were true to the one God; we do not know.

But they dared not worship Him openly. At night, while the Egyptians were chanting and singing in the great temples, perhaps these few went back to the hovels where they lived, locked their doors, and prayed in whispers to the one true God.

And God heard their prayers. He hears whispers just as clearly as shouts, and He likes hovels as well as palaces.

A GIFT TO MANKIND

God needed these humble men. Why did He need them? He needed them to entrust with the gift that He was preparing for all mankind. God was getting ready for Christmas, and the gift He was giving the world was so priceless and so rare that He could not place it in unworthy hands.

You see, God had thought of a way to bring His children back to Him, the children He had lost — and this way was Christmas.

Have you ever watched a fly trying to go straight through a closed window? It flies at the glass again and again, trying to get into the clear air beyond. The fly doesn't know — but you know — that he will never get past that glass unless you take pity on him and open the window.

That must have been how God felt as He watched men dying at the wall they had built with their themselves and Him. They are never going to get past that wall, God must have said, unless I open a way for them. They are separated from Me, and this separation is death.

SIN IS CRUEL

But what if I were to take away this death that follows sin? What if I sent my Son to take this death for men, so that they would not have to die?

If it seems to be a cruel answer, we must remember that sin is cruel, that what it does to men is cruel, and that God loved us even though we were wrestling with Him.

But how could the Son of God die? God's Son was One with God Himself. He was not a man, He was Spirit. Like God's, His life had no beginning. How could His life end, when it had never begun?

To die, the Son of God would have to be born.

This is the gift God was planning. He was going to send His Son to earth as a human baby. He would be born just as we were, a tiny infant too weak to lift up its head.

WHAT "LOVE" MEANS

And then, when He was a man, He would bring men back to the God they had forgotten. He would tell them why God had made them and put them on this earth.

He would show them, too, as well as tell them. In His own life they could see what God's "love". He would feed the hungry and heal the sick and make the blind see.

And finally He would show them the greatest love of all: He would die for them, and after that the way would be opened for all who wish to return to God.

After that no matter how a person sinned, no matter how far from God's plan he wandered, there would still be this way back. For love like this would be stronger than sin — stronger than death itself.

This was the gift God was preparing, this was why He needed the children of Israel. These humble slaves were to make a home on earth for His Son.

GOD CHOOSES HIS MAN

There was a man in Egypt named Moses. He was an Israelite by birth, but he had been adopted as a baby by Pharaoh's daughter and raised as an Egyptian prince. The Bible tells us he "chose to suffer affliction with the people of God rather than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season". He was God's man for the tremendous task that lay ahead.

"Come," said God to Moses, "I will send thee unto Pharaoh that thou mayest bring forth my people the children of Israel out of Egypt."

Moses knew that Pharaoh would be furious at such a suggestion. Why would a king want to let his valuable slaves go free?

But Moses went to Pharaoh and said, "Thus saith the Lord God of Israel, Let my people go!"

As Moses had known it would, the king turned pale with anger. "Who is the Lord," he asked haughtily, "that I should obey his voice to let Israel go? I know not the Lord, neither will I let Israel go." And in his anger, he gave the children of Israel harder work to do.

PLAGUES ON EGYPT

Then God sent down plagues on Egypt: lice, flies, boils, hail, locusts — each more terrible and dreadful of all, the death of the firstborn of men and animals. In terror, the king begged Moses to take his people and leave Egypt at once.

The children of Israel grabbed their belongings in such hurried peace as Egypt had last as they could, praising God for setting them free.

But Pharaoh had tricked them. While they were resting from their fast march at the edge of a sea, they heard the sound of hoofs in the distance. Pharaoh and his army were coming after them.

They were trapped, with the sea in front of them and Pharaoh closing in behind them! The children of Israel cried to Moses, and they should have stayed in Egypt.

But Moses said to them, "Fear ye not, stand still, and see the salvation of the Lord, which He will show to you today: for the Egyptians whom ye have seen today, ye shall see them again no more forever."

And then with a mighty wind God blew back the water of the sea until there was a dry path through the middle of it and the children of Israel marched across to the other side on dry land. The Egyptians thundered into the dry path, too, their spears and arrows gleaming. But the water closed in and Pharaoh's army was never seen again.

In a mountaintop there on the other side of the sea, God gave Moses the Ten Commandments and the other laws that His chosen people were to live by.

Then He led them into the land He had promised them. In those days it was called Canaan, but today it is known as the Holy Land because it was the home God chose for His Son.

God had chosen the people and the place.

Now He had to choose the right time.

Mayor Hyde Asks For Co-operation Of All Motorists

Joyful celebrations are quite in order at this time of the year as they are not at this of a human life.

This was the advice that Mayor Gerald E. Hyde gave today in his fellow citizens in reference particularly to highway tragedies that mar Christmas and New Year's holidays.

"Moderation in all things applies more than ever and especially holiday gatherings of family and friends more enjoyable," he observed.

A heavy responsibility rests on those who place the lives of their guests in danger by serving them too large quantities of alcoholic beverages, Mayor Hyde noted.

Mayor Hyde urged motorists and pedestrians to co-operate without reservation with the police. "Regard the traffic police as your friends who wish you well, who want nothing more than to save you from needless accidents," he said. "Obey their signals and the traffic regulations. They are acting for your interest and for your protection."

Christmas Party For Bata Co. At Campbellford

BATAWA — More than 200 guests attended the annual Christmas party for the staff of the Bata Shoe Company at Campbellford, which was held in Edgewater Park Pavilion Friday evening. A full turkey dinner was provided and served by Presbyterian ladies of West Seymour under the chairmanship of Mrs. Ross Hall and relations officer from head office. Mr. Gerald Hunter of the Canadian group included short speeches and civic welcome by Mayor E. Rubenstein.

Speaking to the staff of the Campbellford plant, Dr. C. E. Herz, vice-president and managing director of the Canadian company said, "It is gratifying to see that the targets and objectives we established at a year ago have been practically achieved. Installation of new machinery and equipment will make our Campbellford plant more comfortable and efficient in the days to come."

And then with a mighty wind God blew back the water of the sea until there was a dry path through the middle of it and the children of Israel marched across to the other side on dry land. The Egyptians thundered into the dry path, too, their spears and arrows gleaming. But the water closed in and Pharaoh's army was never seen again.

Confirmation, Dedication Held At Town Hall

WELLINGTON — Icy roads and hydro failure did nothing to reduce attendance at the recent confirmation service in the Anglican Parish of Wellington. Last minute changes were made, necessary when power breaks left the church without heat and lights. It was decided to hold the memorial to be dedicated. When the service started the church was filled to the limit of its capacity.

Candidates were presented to the Bishop by the rector, the Rev. J. J. Rogers. Those who received the laying on of hands were: Gary Bowerman, Brown, Kenneth Herrington, John Rolston; Nigel Sivel; Ronald Sivel; Mrs. Harry Hancock; Beverley Hill; Laurea Quick and Lorene Rolston.

Following address given by Bishop Bidwell Evans, Mr. Rogers read names of those requested to dedicate the memorial gifts, given in the parish during the year. These included a candle snuffer in memory of Harry and Angela Green, given by Mrs. J. Leeder; a processional cross and candle sticks in memory of Arnold Post, given by friends; acolytes' and relatives; and a white cope in memory of J. Arnold Post, given by friends; a cross and candle sticks in memory of Alexander.

After the service an informal reception was held in the town hall and those present did not meet the Bishop and also view the memorials.

MODERN MANNERS

Carolyn Wagner Shaw

WATCH YOUR DANCING MANNERS

Now that dancing parties are very much in the holiday calendar, I think a little discussion about the subject would be appropriate.

Have you ever noticed that much gesturing is done at dances along his criticism to offer of the dancer of the "younger generation"? The editors forget that they danced the Bunny Hug and the Big Apple, and these were certainly as undignified as today's so called "modern" dance. If used to be that no one generation's style of dancing it much better or worse than that of another!

I recently expressed the above opinion to a well-known orchestra leader whom I know, and was amused to find that he had a very definite opinion on the matter. He stated that it took quite a bit of talent to satisfy these who had matured and become "set-in-their-ways" as he expressed it, had now wished soft, slow music, and at the same time please the young people who preferred their music faster and louder. A rather difficult problem himself, he confessed that he got quite a lot of fun out of hearing the "moderns" dance as he had played the Big Apple times years ago, rant on about "these wild young people of today." Using diplomacy, he failed to remind them of their "mad teenage" days!

I asked him if he had any comments to make relative to guest behavior at dancing parties. After the many years this leader has spent conducting his orchestra, I think his suggestions are worth listening to.

First, he is a definite advocate of moderation on the dance floor. Whether it be the gold-and-red party or the young and lighty, all express themselves with dignity, and still have a good time. There is a place for wild dance for wild dance gyrations, and a public dance floor is neither. Working around with an utter disregard of other dancers is to obvious bad taste.

Another question were: Don't stop to chat with another couple while on the dance floor, thereby forming a bridgehead that other folks have to walk around; don't dance with a lighted cigaret in your hand (this is a fire hazard); don't be loud and boisterous on the dance floor, for you only succeed in causing unpleasant comment and embarrassing your partner; don't sing when you dance, or talk so continuously that the music can't be heard.

If you want to be popular with the orchestra leader, the following advice is worth taking into consideration. Don't be overfriendly with him in an effort to impress your friends. The results you obtain by such tactics may prove disappointing, if not downright embarrassing. Don't nag him to play your favorite song over and over again. Once is sufficient, if not for you, for everyone else.

It all adds up to the fact that dignity and thought for the other fellow should prevail on the dance floor. Leave the wild gyrations at parties and your partner and fellow dancers will bless you. Strangely enough, you'll probably have a better time if you follow this orchestra leader's advice!

Question: I was recently married and am not really sure of the correct way to introduce my husband. Which is right, "May I present my husband, John Doe," or should I say "Mr. Doe?"

Answer: Neither one. It is never necessary to use the name at all. Simply say "my husband." The name is superfluous at this stage.

Shah of Iran Takes Pretty Third Wife

By JOSEPH E. DYNAN

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi took pretty young Soraya as his third wife Monday in hopes that she will bear him a son who can help secure his throne.

Farah Diba, a 21-year-old commoner pledged fidelity and security as an architecture student Dr. Farzin, becomes the crown of this ancient land by the simple Moslem ceremony.

The handsome, 40 - year - old shah divorced his first two wives because they failed to bear him an heir to the throne. His first wife, an Egyptian princess, bore him a daughter, Princess Ahahnaz.

He divorced his second with Queen Soraya 28 months ago after children but obviously happy marriage. The red-haired Iranian beauty now lives in Europe.

GIVES REASONS

Speaking to reporters Sunday, the shah explained that aside from human reasons, he was motivated by Farah's lack of reason as a monarchial order." Iran's constitution requires that the successor to the throne be a male. The shah's throne is ancient and rich in history—but the shah's family is not. His father, Reza Khan, was a rough army officer who seized power in 1921 and had himself crowned shah — in a ceremony of kings! four years later. His son has been shah since 1941.

In his northern world with land reforms and ambitious technical projects, he has set up social tensions within his kingdom, especially among the tribal leaders who remember how they were forced to kneeble under to his father.

ASSASSINATION POSSIBLE

A shah without an heir is often in an insecure position, as monarch whose line of succession is not clearly fixed. The shah himself has openly acknowledged the possibility of assassination, and the absence of an heir in such a situation would be an invitation to political chaos.

The marriage rites were surrounded by the ornate splendor of ancient Persia. The peacock throne has 12 pillars, each dressed with two gem-encrusted peacocks. It was built in the 17th century for the Indian mogul Sha Jahan, builder of the Taj Mahal. The throne was carried off to Iran in 1739 by the Persian ruler, Nadir Shah.

The scene of today's ceremony was the shah's office, known as the mosaic room, tiny pieces of wood, ivory, gold and silver are worked into a multicolored design covering ceiling and walls.

BANQUET AND BALL

The wedding banquet included, after the ceremony, a state banquet for 150 guests and two hours later a wedding ball for 2,000 in the palace's glittering Hall of Mirrors.

The massive second-floor room has thousands of small pieces of mirror fitted together in intricate design completely covering walls and ceiling.

The couple will start their honeymoon in a few days on the Caspian Sea.

MORE SUGAR

Per capita consumption of sugar in Britain now is about two pounds per person per week, compared with 1½ pounds 50 years ago.

Women's Institute

FOXBORO W.I.

Mrs. B. Mollinger was hostess to the November meeting of Foxboro Women's Institute meet at her home for their Christmas meeting.

The meeting opened on a theme and motto song, the business meeting of the secretary-treasurer, Mrs. F. Kissel-burg. A monthly letter was observed in her memory.

A letter was received from Mrs. James Haggerty explaining what the World's Day of Prayer is to do and asking the W.I. members to remember her in their thinking of your own across and happy home. When you look at your well-housed and well-fed children, will you think with compassion on the millions of refugees living in shacks with nowhere else to go? Will you help just a little to provide homes and countries for our neighbors across the sea?"

Friends who used to live in Foxboro sent word of activities in the County Home, are to be remembered with gifts and visits at Christmas time and shut-ins in the village are to be remembered with cards, visits and gifts.

Mrs. James Reynolds was elected secretary-treasurer and Mrs. C. Arthurs assistant.

PROGRAM

The program followed with Mrs. J. Ewing reading "No Room at the Inn." Nineteen old Bobby Defoe rendered a beautiful piano-accordion solo, "Silent Night." Mrs. W. Simmons gave a Christmas reading and led the group in a contest. Mrs. S. Hayden and Mrs. Defoe were the prize winners.

Mrs. C. Arthurs read an interesting article on Christmas traditions. Carols were sung in unison and gifts were exchanged.

A delicious lunch was served by hostess and refreshment committee.

Mr. M. Storey and Mrs. W. Johnson attended a Department of Agriculture Local Leaders' Training School at Bilfrid on the subject "Sew to Save Dollars and Make Sense."

These ladies held four meetings in Foxboro during the past month and relayed the information given at the school to some members with the result that there was a good display of sewing and dollars at the meeting. Six of this group also attended Summary Day on December 1 in Stirling and exhibited this work.

Mrs. Storey and Mrs. Johnson are to be commended for volunteering their leadership.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Editor's Note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a woman's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports no problems that have been solved badly by respectable means and connections.

Natalie E. — She has no right to Mother's things.

Elaine J. — I have no memento of Mother.

Natalie E. — My sister and I are both married, with children, we have never gotten along well and things have been worse since our mother's death a year ago.

Mother had been a widow for five years and she died without leaving a will. She had little cash in a savings bank and the estate is divided between my sister and me. However, Mother's personal things — her clothes, a little jewelry and some household equipment — went to me. I felt I was entitled to this because I took care of Mother during her illness.

Elaine seems to think that she is entitled to Mother's personal things, she didn't have any responsibility for Mother and don't think she has a right to anything. The stuff isn't worth anything anyway.

Elaine J. — Natalie keeps insisting that the stuff isn't worth anything, but she draws a blank when I ask her about a lovely old-fashioned brooch once got as a gift from Dad and about a wrist watch I gave her as a Mother's Day gift. Also, when I visited her, Mother said she wanted me to keep a certain china tea set because she got it as a gift when I was born.

Natalie keeps throwing up at me that I did nothing for Mother, but I couldn't help that as I lived quite far from her and had a bad bed down with a baby the two years before her death. I have always been very fond of Natalie if I had the freedom.

I haven't a definite memento of my mother and that certainly hurts, Natalie just walked off with everything in sight.

The Council: This quarrel has all the ugly earmarks of a fight between two youngsters. Neither of whom can tolerate the other's existence because each sees in the other only a rival for the parents' love.

Now the parents are gone, but the basic fight between these two sisters can go on forever if they don't make the attempt to grow up emotionally and break the old pattern.

The objects involved are, in themselves, of only slight importance. Even if there are a few pieces of valuable jewelry, the emotional wealth that has been placed upon them is of far greater importance to both sisters than their pecuniary value.

Natalie must be aware that she should not have taken every item of her mother's personal belongings without consultation with her sister. Equally, Elaine was entitled to a few things of special value as compensation for the responsibility and heartache of caring for her mother through the last illness, but she should have shown some understanding of the fact that a personal memento from a deceased parent is terribly precious.

But Natalie made a mistake to demand half of her mother's belongings. Aside from the fact that it would be impossible to determine exactly half of the value of a group of articles, Elaine puts herself in the ugly position of opening her sister's soul with childish envy. It should be enough for her to mention some item or items she would like to keep. Her sister should hand these over without the slightest reservations — possibly offering more than has been asked.

That would be action of mature and civilized creatures.

Stollen — A German Christmas Bread

by Mary Moore

When I was in Germany last Christmas I made Stollen for a coffee party for Marianne's friends and subsequently met several German cooks who gave me their version. I came home loaded with notes on Stollen, and reminders to myself to make it early in December (see column today.

There are Stollens in my freezer right now and when Christmas morning comes I will thaw some and slice and toast it.

You may make this tomorrow for your Christmas morning breakfast. I think it improves with freezing — but of course is lovely fresh from the oven with its yeasty fruity aroma — if you can time it to rise and bake for the right moment.

2 cups milk, scalded and cooled to lukewarm
2 packages dry yeast
½ cup sugar
2 teaspoons salt
2 eggs, beaten
½ cup soft butter
6 cups flour, approximately
1 cup candied fruit
1 cup raisins
1 cup currants
½ cup chopped blanched almonds
2 tablespoons grated orange rind
2 tablespoons grated lemon rind
½ teaspoon cardamom
½ teaspoon cinnamon
Melted butter
Granulated sugar

Combine milk, yeast, sugar, salt, eggs, butter, and 3 cups flour. Turn dough onto a lightly floured board; knead remaining 1 cup flour into dough until dough is smooth, elastic. Divide into 2 parts. Roll each into an oval, 9 x 12 inches (or thereabouts). Brush with part of the melted butter; combine the fruits with half of the combined cinnamon and sugar and 2 tablespoons of the remaining melted butter. Make a lengthwise crease down the centre of the dough; fold over to within 1 inch of the opposite side; seal edges. Place on greased baking sheets. Brush with remaining butter; cover with waxed paper sheet with a towel. Let rise in a warm place until almost doubled in bulk, about 1 1-2 to 2 hours. Bake in a moderate oven of 350 deg. Fahr. 45 to 50 minutes or until brown. Cool. Sift confectioners' sugar over top or decorate with candied cherries and Brazil nut slices.

NOTE:

For one stollen dough may be rolled into a large oval 18 x 12 inches, 1-3-thirds before folding and baking.

Mennonite Colonists Carve Out Civilization in Wilds Of Paraguay in S. America

By BRIAN BELL

ASUNCION, Paraguay (AP)—Like the pioneers of earlier centuries in North America, Mennonite colonists have carved out a civilization in South America's Paraguayan wilds.

They started coming more than 30 years ago, when groups arrived from Manitoba and Saskatchewan. Others, swept into Germany with armies retreating from Russia, were moved from refugee camps to Paraguay after the Second World War. A further group moved from Manitoba in 1948.

Their sect believes in pacifism, and they have lived, for the most part, in peace with their neighbors: Primitive Indians, wolves, jaguars. On a couple of occasions, however, Moro Indians attacked Mennonite families, killing a man and his three children some time ago.

In a jungle-like terrain that defied settlement for almost 400 years, they built thriving colonies with schools, churches, hospitals, a telephone system, a railroad and an airport. Today there are seven colonies of some 12,000 members; three in the Chaco in West Paraguay, four in the isolated section of eastern Paraguay.

The first Mennonites, 1,778 of them,came from Canada, chiefly Manitoba, in 1926 because they felt their religion no longer sufficiently safeguarded when the provincial government began converting German — language Mennonite schools into English-language schools. The second group of 1,700 in 1948 gave varying reasons, but the one most often cited was that they wished to follow the life their fathers had led without being encroached upon by "modernizing." Of this group some 500 have returned to Manitoba.

The total Mennonite population in Canada is shown in 1951 census figures as 125,938, concentrated heavily in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Ontario, British Columbia and Alberta.)

That first sturdy band found, the Chaco rugged, desolate and challenging. Its semi-jungle vegetation and lack of water had proved handicaps too severe for the natives to have overcome. But the Mennonites refused to turn back, even after a typhoid epidemic took almost 200 lives.

They pushed into the Chaco where land had been bought, carrying their primitive farming implements, driving their small herds of cattle. They planted their first crops and found the land fertile enough to support them.

THRIVING COLONIES

Today the three thriving Mennonite colonies in the Chaco number 9,000 people. They have elementary and secondary schools, electric power, cotton gins and oil presses.

The little city of Filadelfia, like its North American counterpart, meaning brotherly love, has almost 1,500 people. Although primitive by North American and European standards, Filadelfia is a modern marvel for the Chaco.

The four colonies in eastern Paraguay have not done as well. They lack the superior organization of the Chaco settlements, and are often short of funds. Many have left, but others are determined to make the colonies successful.

Under terms of a contract signed by the government with the original settlers, and strictly adhered to by many different Paraguayan administrations in this revolution-torn country, the Mennonites are almost completely autonomous.

Their charter exempts them from compulsory military service, allows them to run their own schools and to handle their own affairs virtually without supervision by the Paraguayan government.

INDEPENDENT GROUPS

All seven Mennonite colonies are independent of each other. Each village elects its own leader, called the schulze. The village members also elect one representative for every 10 adult male property owners. The representatives serve as a village council and as delegates to colony meetings. A government committee and a colony manager, called as oberschulze, are elected by all the voters to run the colony affairs as a whole.

Each man owns his own property, cattle and equipment. However, because major population centres are hundreds of miles away, goods are marketed by a colony co-operative. Colony stores "sell" supplies to the Mennonites, and bills are settled at the end of the year when the crops are sold.

Main crops are cotton and peanuts, with beans and sweet potatoes also grown to some extent. The land is especially suited to watermelons, which grow as large as 60 pounds. Milk is obtained from a semi-wild native breed of cows.

There is no criminal code, since crime is not prevalent. Punishments—fines, compulsory labor or even whippings—are decreed by the colony committee or the oberschulze after trials. The most frequent offence has been cattle rustling. However, there have been isolated cases of murder, manslaughter and rape.

There are five general hospitals and two mental hospitals in the seven colonies. Education is compulsory for boys from age six to 14 and girls from six to 12. There are high schools in four of the colonies. Classes are taught in German, the sect's universal language.

FREE RELIGION

Although the Mennonites are a religious body, not all the colonists are church members. the Mennonites do not believe in infant baptism, and decisions to join the church are made when a person becomes an adult.

For example, in the Russian settlements of Fernheim and Volendam, between 20 and 60 per cent of the adult population do not belong to the church. However, the other colonies restrict members to join by refusing to sell property to non-members and usually will not marry anyone who has not been baptized.

The Mennonites have converted more than 50 of the Indians who live in the wild Chaco. The Chaco Indians are primitive, living a nomadic life. But some do part - time farm work for the Mennonites during the harvest season.

In overcoming handicaps that would have turned back a less-hardy people the pioneering Mennonites have showed their conviction in their way of life. The colonists feel their sacrifices have been worth it.

Gore

GORE — Church services were cancelled recently due to the slippery condition of the roads. Nature was marvellously beautiful with every tree branch, shrub and grass blade glistening with diamonds — a truly winter wonderland.

Mrs. Kenneth Green entertained the Centre W.A. for their December meeting on Wednesday afternoon.

Centre school held its Christmas concert in the church hall on Wednesday evening. There was a good attendance. Much credit is due the teacher, Mrs. Faulkner and also the pupils for the fine concert staged.

Mrs. Sidney Fox was a recent guest of friends in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Pulver motored to Selby, on Sunday, and were noon-hour guests of her mother, brother and family, Mr. and Mrs. George Price.

WASHINGTON (CP)—The Republicans, exuding power at the top, are confident of stretching their winning streak to a third straight term in the White House in the 1960 U.S. presidential elections. Their fate in the new Congress is more in doubt.

And despite the threat of a jet-wed east coast millionaire, the man most favored to bat the essential home run for the party next Nov. 8 is a former small-town lawyer from California who's been keeping a close and roaming eye on the White House for the last seven years.

Richard M. Nixon, nimble-footed vice-president with a boyish grin, seems to hold the inside track as the race for the party presidential nomination begins in earnest.

Within the party he faces serious competition from only one quarter—Nelson A. Rockefeller, determined and well-heeled New York governor who flashed to prominence by toppling Averell M. Harriman, distinguished Democrat, in the governorship race of 1958.

NEW IN FIELD

Grandson of an oil magnate and keen student of foreign affairs, Rockefeller is believed to have his eye on the presidency. He's a tough, strong-willed campaigner but he's relatively new in the field and it is a question of how he would fare in the hard-to-win winds of national politics.

His friends say he'll fight over Nixon, though Rockefeller has yet to declare himself officially. Initial forays may have made him a bit hesitant, for the party hierarchy has shown strong support for the vice-president.

Nixon, who battered his way to national prominence by barging away at Communists in his years as a congressman and senator in 46, with 14 years of national politics under his belt—half of them as vice - president. He has a knack of saying the right thing at the right time and exerting clear of controversy which would antagonize any major bloc of voters.

Rockefeller, on the other hand, has a background of philanthropy and study though he has acted in a foreign affairs advisory role both for the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt and President Eisenhower. His specialty is Latin-American affairs.

BOOSTED TAXES

The sandy-haired, 51-year-old governor with the wide grin may have earned the displeasure of some supporters for one of his first steps on taking office was to boost New York state taxes. As one complainant reported: "I elected this millionaire and the first thing he does is put his hand in my pocket."

Yet Rockefeller has shown by his action bold capability of taking decisive steps even though they might be politically unpopular. Some voters have suggested this is the kind of personality the White House needs.

The final test comes July 25 next when some 1,330 voting delegates and hundreds of non-voting associates gather in a Chicago amphitheatre to nominate the Republican candidate for the 1960 contest.

President Eisenhower made his debut there back in 1952 when he later went on to smash 20 years of Democratic reign over the presidency.

IKE STEPS DOWN

Now Eisenhower steps down under a constitutional amendment that places a two - term limit on visiting presidents. The new Republican leader will have no easy job. The Eisenhower government, though in the midst of a general wave of prosperity, faces problems at home and abroad.

Quick to defend his chief and quick to act as his errand boy, Nixon has become widely identified as an Eisenhower man. His main job will be to defend government policies, but his real skill lies in offensive political warfare.

Nixon also gained prominence when he was spat upon by anti-American demonstrators in Venezuela during one of his international trips for the president and when he was publicly lectured by Soviet Premier Khrushchev during the famous "kitchen debate" in Moscow. On both occasions Nixon came home to tremendous cheers from Americans.

For the new Republican leader there's the problem of criticism for falling farm prices, the lack of tax-cuts, the rise of interest rates, budget deficits and the U.S. failure to catch up with the Russians in space ventures.

Abroad are declared negotiations between East and West—the tender negotiations of keeping the Russians content without giving any Western diplomatic ground, all aimed at the prevention of nuclear war.

Organized Trucking Industry Safety Minded and Regulated But Bad Drivers Creep In

By CHARLES STAFFORD

NEW YORK (AP)—The truck crashed into the bus at a railroad crossroads. The bus, loaded with college students, exploded in flames. Twelve persons died.

Questions linger in the tragic aftermath.

Rostco Por, the 54 - year - old Brooklyn truck driver, had been convicted twice of speeding in New Jersey, where the tragic wreck occurred. He had several traffic convictions in New York. Three times in the last year he had been given warning tickets in Pennsylvania.

Is there could a man with a record of this kind be entrusted with driving a truck?

Police found that the brakes on the tank truck Poe was driving were in an advanced state of deterioration.

Is there a truck in such unroadworthy condition permitted on the highway?

VARIATIONS ON THEME

Variations on this tragic theme keep occurring, even though the organized trucking industry in the United States is safety minded and highly regulated. Federal rules of the Interstate Commerce Commission go so deeply into the operation of the 1,200,000 trucks hauling goods between states that they even require sheets for sleeper berths.

But there is little regulation of the remaining almost 10,000,000 trucks on the highways. State laws permit anyone licensed to drive a car to drive a truck. Only 15 states have mandatory motor vehicle inspection laws.

ENFORCEMENT LEAKS

And there are leaks in the enforcement of the ICC'S rules for interstate carriers.

An ICC regulation requires a company to keep a record of a driver's accidents and his violations of traffic and criminal laws. The company is prohibited from permitting him to drive if his record shows a lack of concern for the safety of the public.

But writing a regulation does not guarantee compliance.

Take the case of a Philadelphia trucker whose vehicle collided with a fire truck several years ago killing two firemen. The ICC accident report detailed this record for the driver: A hard-earned discharge from the army, dishonorable terms for auto theft, two recent accidents, a speeding conviction 10 days before the fatal accident, and revocation of his licence. He got only a false statement to permit at the time of the crash.

His employer had received a copy of ICC regulations and also was aware of the driver's record, the agency says.

The firm was an exempt carrier, one which is subject to ICC safety regulations but free of its economic rules. And this creates another leak in ICC enforcement.

SHADOWY AREA

It is in this shadowy area that the "gypsy," the owner - driven truck, is most likely to operate. Since the gypsy need not apply for authority to operate, the ICC has no way of knowing if his truck is on the road unless it blunders into an ICC inspection crew running a road check. And many a gypsy, short on funds and long on nerve, is a master at evading inspections.

Where it exists, truck safety is hard - bored and four - pronged. It comes down from the ICC bureau of motor carriers, through national and state trucking associations to the trucking companies. But "the most important safety factor," says an official of a truck firm, "is our initial selection of drivers."

Immigration Policies Will Generate More Controversy Than Generally Next Year

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal immigration policies—never a subject on which Canada's political parties see eye to eye—likely will generate more controversy in 1960 than in recent years.

One outlet for this may be a government bill proposing amendments to the Immigration Act—a measure forecast by Immigration Minister Fleming during the last parliamentary session.

Whether or not the government goes ahead with the amendments, Liberal and CCF members of the Commons as usual will level their heavy guns at the immigration record of the Progressive Conservatives since they took office in mid-1957.

Mrs. Fairclough told the Commons last session that there were many things in the (immigration) act that I don't like."

She said the act was being reviewed in the hope that the government "can produce a new deal in immigration matters." Details would include "positive approaches, democratic programming, selection of standards (for immigrants), flexible practices for selective immigration to replace rigid restrictions in the present act and regulations."

Opposition sources are sceptical, however, that the government will propose any extensive revision of the act.

J. W. Pickersgill, Liberal MP for Bonavista-Twillingate (NDL) and former immigration minister, says there's nothing wrong with the act.

"What is needed is an end to the brutal and inhuman way present immigration regulations are interpreted by some officials," he said.

Hazen Argue, CCF House leader, says both the Conservatives and Liberals are guilty of "cruel and unjust" administration of the act.

The 1960 immigration year will open on a note of humanitarianism—the rehousing of European tubercular refugees and their families. In this respect the year will be similar to 1957 when the first of 37,000 Hungarian refugees began to arrive in Canada at this time.

The government is bringing to Canada 300 tubercular refugees and their families from camps in Austria and Greece as a contribution to World Refugee Year. It is paying travelling expenses and expenses arranging with provincial governments for the treatment of the ill and maintenance of dependents. The first arrived on Dec. 18.

The new year also starts with the government facing a major problem — how to increase the 1960 flow of immigrants with skills and professions.

When the Conservatives took office in 1957 Canada's immigration doors were nearly wide open. Anticipating heavy winter unemployment that year, the government put the brakes on immigration but the move was too late to have much effect on the 1957 flow.

Immigrants landed in Canada in 1957 totalled 282,164, largest number since 1913 when 400,870 arrived. Sweeping cuts were introduced the 1958 flow sharply to 124,851, an average figure for the post-war period.

The government relaxed the curbs with the return of a more buoyant economy but this has not had any real effect on increasing the flow of immigrants. The main reason for this is an improved economic climate in British and Western European countries which has made emigration unpopular in the British press, associated with the Conservatives, at this point in history.

As a result immigration this year is expected to decline to about 105,000.

Experts within and without the government are giving serious consideration to this policy of opening Canada's immigration doors in good times and closing them in periods of high unemployment. Whenever restrictions are imposed the end result is that it takes a year or more to overcome the effects of such action and bring about an increased movement.

Some experts believe there should be a survey of manpower resources and skills needed by Canada to swap immigrants Canada should accept over a period of

Public Scrutiny Of Commission Is Demanded

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario CCF Leader Donald C. MacDonald said Monday night the provincial government is making "frantic efforts" behind the scenes to clean up a situation in the Niagara Parks Commission.

For three years evidence has been piled up, he said, that requires serious public scrutiny," he said in a statement.

Mr. MacDonald charged that commission chairman Colin Daley bought a farm property 10 years ago that was formerly owned by the commission. He said Mr. Daley, Ontario labor minister, bought the farm two years after it was sold by the commission even though the commission's 1949 annual report stated "the general ... policy is not to sell any property. ..." Mr. Daley is entitled to something more than Mr. Daley's explanation," Mr. MacDonald said. "... The government should establish a full public inquiry.

Asked to comment, Mr. Daley said he has no intention that there is an inquiry or not.

"I have nothing to hide, as far as I am concerned," he said. He described the allegation as "a matter of rumor," and said Mr. MacDonald's remarks were made for political purposes.

Mr. MacDonald's statement added that for the last two or three years part of the administration of the commission has been done from Mr. Daley's office.

Mr. MacDonald said one commission building—the Fitzgerald Building at Niagara Falls — had well-stocked liquor cabinets and refrigerators, apparently meant to guest accommodation, all maintained by commission funds.

Most of the business of the commission is done with firms "which are closely interlocked with members of the commission," Mr. MacDonald said.

Mr. Daley said the commission calls for tenders on most of its supplies. "It is quite impossible to get a firm tender and then go to another firm in another way.

"It is the commission's policy to entertain distinguished visitors but there is no such thing as wining and dining," he said.

Mr. Daley said Mr. MacDonald's statement about business with interlocking firms was "erroneous."

Air Force Pilot Finally Landed In Big Tree

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—A U.S. air force lieutenant Monday night told a grim story of his parachute descent from a B-47 stratojet, bomber last Thursday night. The plane crashed in the 30,000 feet over Northern Ontario.

The plane plunged down to 2,000 feet before Lieut. Theodore Adams Jr., 24, of Greensville, Miss., made his parachute from it.

Two men died in the crash. The pilot, Capt. Roy Minor, 31, of Manchester, Tenn., was able to parachute from the plane. The fighter pilot, Lieut. Gaylord B. Free, 27, still is missing.

The RCAF said Monday night that low-lying fog and sub-zero temperatures were hampering the search for Free. The RCAF said it has sent search planes and parties operating out of Pagwa River, Hearst, Sault Ste. Marie, as well as two helicopters and two other aircraft.)

Adams said he and Minor were flown back to Little Rock air force base Monday.

Adams was the co-pilot on the B-47 during the training flight. Minor, who ejected from the plane, he was left alone in the cockpit. Having trouble with around in his seat, he could not eject. And the force of the descent held him in his seat.

Finally he twisted out of his seat, pulling only his parachute, then pushed and pulled himself out of the seat and through the open cockpit, onto the fuselage.

The wind force of the monsoling bomber held him against the fuselage.

"I looked around to see what I would hit if I bailed out, I thought the vertical stabilizer (tail)—would get me, but it has been cut back," he said.

"So I pushed and then I was out in space just falling. My limbs were spread out and I couldn't reach my lanyard (parachute ripcord)."

Finally Adams got his parachute open, but he was falling directly on the burning plane.

"I glided my whole away from the plane but then I was coming down in a river. Finally I landed in a tree."

He fell from there into three feet of snow and kept warm all night by the fire of the burning plane.

"Now tell me how you found out that sailors are all alike."

Britons Now Earning More, Spending More, Living Better Than Since Thirties

LONDON (CP) — Britain carries the new year proceeding a picture of prosperity.

Britons now are earning more, spending more, producing more and exporting more than at any time since the 1930's. They are achieving a material standard of living that can be compared with that of Canada and the United States.

During 1959 the wraps of wartime austerity were unwound one by one, giving Britons a fresh freedom to travel more and buy a wider range of goods — a state most Britons had known in terms of early 20's had never known.

During the year, the government virtually lifted the limit on foreign currency that Britons can take abroad and swept away most of the restrictions blocking the sorts from to dollar area.

There are the results of the fact economic recovery began since the Suez invasion precipitated a financial crisis as severe as any in the post-war period.

The period of austerity and tight money to fight inflation and to rebuild confidence in sterling all followed Suez disappeared in 1959.

Consumer spending developed into the biggest factor in Britain's recovery. Last spring the government cut taxes and eased

BRITONS PROSPERING — The period of austerity that followed Suez ended in 1959 as far as Britons are concerned. Last spring the British government cut taxes and eased restrictions on instalment buying. The spree that followed gave a big boost to Britain's economic recovery.

instalment - buying restrictions. Britons responded by going on an unprecedented buying spree to acquire articles such as household appliances, television sets and automobiles.

Britain last May cut restrictions on a wide range of goods from countries such as Canada and the U.S.

In October, the government—for the first time since the 1930s —gave British tourists the right to spend as much on overseas travel as they wish and can afford.

A few weeks later the housing British markets were thrown wide open to most American and Canadian goods.

Selling these dollar goods has not been easy. Prices are up above the freight charges, the cost of packing ranging from radios to dresses are subject to import duty and purchase tax. Thus a radio can cost as much as twice the price of a comparable British set.

Chancellor of the Exchequer Derick Heathcoat-Amory, speaking of 1959 prospects, said he expected the trade balance "at least" boom would taper off slightly and that government capital expenditures would likely decline. He though however, that private investment would increase.

He stressed that one of the main considerations in drafting the future policy would be a consideration of factors affecting the country's foreign trading position.

Care must be taken to ensure that British manufacturers continue to keep pace with modern technological developments and to make certain they are not priced out of world markets.

There are a few dark spots in an otherwise bright economic picture. Britain's textiles, coal mining, shipbuilding and coal-mining industries appear to be in for some rough sailing.

Perhaps the biggest headache for British bankers is caused by emergence of two trading blocs. These are the Association European Common Market has started along the road to economic, and possibly political, union.

Britain—on the outside of this emerging customs union — speargheaded a drive to form the Outer Seven trading area as a counter move. The result has been a trading deadlock in Europe. There is little likelihood that the Six will make a deal to bring the two groups closer together.

Heathcoat-Amory, however, is quietly confident about Britain's future.

"We are now reaping some of the advantages of the big industrial investments of the last four years and also . . . the fruits of the necessarily unpopular measures which my predecessors felt bound to impose during the period when low investment boom was at its height," he said in a recent speech.

Fault of Senders Not U.S. Depot If Christmas Cards Don't Arrive

WASHINGTON (CP) — When it comes to sending Christmas cards to Canada with insufficient postage, the United States post office may appear as Scrooge, but many a postal clerk is playing Santa Claus by paying the postage.

For the U.S. post office department has taken a stand from which it will not budge. Hundreds of thousands of Christmas cards destined to Canada and other countries because of insufficient postage.

"The law is the law," said L. Rohe Walton, special assistant to Postmaster - General Arthur E. Summerfield, when asked by a reporter whether the Christmas spirit might move the department to bend the regulations a bit.

"Mr. Summerfield is not changing his position. Maybe, as you say, many old aunts and mothers will be left out in the cold this Christmas. But that is the fault of the senders — not the department."

The confusion over postage rates developed when the United States pushed its later - rify and international first - class postage rates for card and seals from three cents.

A year ago Walter said all letters going to Canada, Mexico and other international points must go as first - class mail at four cents an ounce whether sealed or not. He said the department is thoroughly publicized the increase through the country. However, Canadian Embassy officials said some suburban post offices still are advising senders on the old rates; Three cents on sealed cards; four cents on sealed.

Even Walter stumbled and quoted the old rate in explanation with a reporter. He corrected his error after conferring with departmental officials.

"It's four cents an ounce sealed or unsealed," he said.

Under departmental instructions, sealed cards bearing insufficient postage are forwarded to the addressee with the deficiency being charged double the postage due. Unsealed cards, with insufficient postage pre/returned to senders, if there is a return address. Otherwise, they are destroyed in the incinerator.

The cost of the destruction aroused one Miami television station—WPST—to broadcast an appeal for funds to cover any deficiency on cards going to Canada at Christmas. At last report postal workers dug into their pockets to buy stamps covering more than 10,000 cents. Postal clerks were reported passing the hat at other eastern U.S. points to keep the cards moving across the border. Officials said this kind of action is all right with him—as long as the U.S. government isn't charged with the cost.

A reporter asked whether a public subscription of postage funds in Canada, with the proceeds sent to U.S. border post offices to cover deficient postage would meet with the U.S. department's approval.

"I guess it would," Walter replied.

Minister Highly Pleased With Arms Issue

PARIS (CP) — Canadian External Affairs Minister Green said Monday he is pleased with the progress on disarmament in connection with the Geneva disarmament conference.

Green spoke with correspondents in Monday after attending a meeting of the five Western powers represented on the 10-country disarmament conference.

He said he is "very well satisfied" with the Western determination to press forward on the matter.

In a communique, Green and the foreign ministers of France, the United Kingdom and United States called for disarmament negotiations with the Communist side to begin "on or about March 15" at Geneva.

Representatives of the five Western countries are to convene in Washington in January to prepare for a meeting of the full disarmament committee.

Green has said repeatedly that a main Canadian objective is to get everything under way as soon as possible on disarmament, which he considers the biggest problem facing the world today.

Berlin Still Looms as Major Problem When East, West Chiefs Meet at Summit

By LLOYD McDONALD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

May 27, 1959, was a date of destiny.

In one extreme case an American newspaper published a photograph that had been torn from a calendar and with the 27th circled and captioned it: "The day the world dies."

But as 1959 drew to a close, that vital date was all but forgotten, even though the problem behind it was still involved.

The problem was Berlin, and the date was the deadline of six months that Premier Khrushchev a year ago November for getting Western troops out of the former German capital. For a time there were fears of war over the issue, fears that might yet set the Russian time limit.

But the year saw relaxation in the cold war to the finally reach the long - delayed summit conference of the great. And the cooling off of the problem typified this year's tension — a tension which was probably the big international news development of the year.

Perhaps the most spectacular single development of the tensiting story was the whirlwind United States tour of Soviet Premier Khrushchev in September. It gave Americans for the first time a chance to meet face to face arch-antagonist in the cold war, and left them with the impression of a tough and resourceful leader and opponent.

President Eisenhower met the challenge with a tour of his own to Khrushchev which gave millions of Asians their first look at the Western leader—a leader whose stature has increased since his resurgence in foreign policy making followed the deals in April of John Foster Dulles, his long-time secretary of state.

The two-sided embarrassment it at least one field—that of science. It was the year that saw mankind's first successful step into the moon's gravitational field and then to the surface of the satellite itself in just over three days.

The explosions followed up their moon shot with another smashing success—the photographing of the moon's far side.

Early in October a Soviet space probe equipped with a camera went into orbit around the moon and sent back the first pictures of its far side, never before seen from earth. Because the moon's period of rotation on its own axis is exactly equal to its period of orbit around the earth—about 28 days — it always presents the same face to the earth-based camera.

The first pictures published of the other side are still being studied for scientific detail, but at first glance they confirmed the long-held belief that the far side was much the same as the familiar "man-in-the-moon" face Men have seen for centuries.

If Americans had misgivings about the scientific reverses threatening their leadership of the free world, another 1959 development caused misgivings too among thoughtful people everywhere. What originally started out as a story involving quiz rigging that ended up in the network set have been of interest only to television viewers, mushroomed in the end into a major scandal in the U.S. and Canada on the whole moral status of the U.S.

Congression a l investigations, and the efforts of the major TV networks to themselves, almost daily turned up new and sordid and lurid facts about irregularities in the mass entertainment medium. The rights or wrongs of the case of Charles Van Doren, which led to endless debate, and in the course of which the latter and others were exposes of dishonest dealing in order to boost ratings.

The most timely continuing international story of the year, however, undoubtedly was that of Fidel Castro's Cuban revolution. Single developments of the Castro story—the morning the Fulgencio Batista regime collapsed—almost after Christmas, and Castro's bearded revolutionary swept into power.

Hailed at first as a liberator, Castro soon took on the appearance of a ruthless dictator. Wholesale executions of Batista men shocked many at home and abroad, and later there were accusations of Communist influence in Castro's administration. In any event, the Castro regime forced tough decisions immediately as the anniversary of Batista's ouster followed year.

An attempted overthrow that was resoundingly defeated occurred in June when Castro's forces elected a new Parliament. The opposition Labor party, ousted after its post-war reign by Sir Winston Churchill's Conservatives in 1951, came back strong to upset Churchill's successor, Harold Macmillan, in the new Conservative leader ran up a bigger majority than ever before and made a strong mandate to carry out his policies in the summer's general election.

One factor that increased in 1959 and then to the story continued through the year was the emergence of France once again as a major power and a voice in the highest councils. Charles de Gaulle, who glo - handedly has reshaped French politics in little more than two years, will be a man to be reckoned with by the Western leaders as they plan their strategy for the talks with Khrushchev in the coming year.

Fundamental Element of Old Disagreement Still Showing

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Behind the apparently solid front of the Western agreement to invite Russia to a summit meeting remains the fundamental element of an old disagreement.

The difference is that West Germany, probably with French support, still opposes any concessions on Berlin.

Britain, on the other hand, is prepared to make some sacrifices for the sake of improving East-West understanding and getting down negotiations in motion while the United States is taking a pragmatic position.

State department officers privately like to describe the situation still the central problem of the cold war as a question of "how to thorough-going analysis," presumably in the hope of reaching a solution acceptable to Moscow, for the East-West summit meeting.

The Western conflict, if it can be called that, is not serious, although interest in the British and German position, British officials say the government's policies are one of the key negotiators on the West-ern side.

The guest speaker was Arnold McIntyre, supervisor of area 2, United Co-op of Ontario, who showed colored slides of some of the displays in stores recently opened by the Co-op; also slides of a recent trip taken by the speaker to the east coast.

The speaker was thanked by Cecil Blackburn. Mr. Wilfred Foresteil, retiring president and director, congratulated Mr. Woods for the fine job he had done since taking over the management, and stated that the success of the Co-op was due to the harmony that exi ted between the directors and the management.

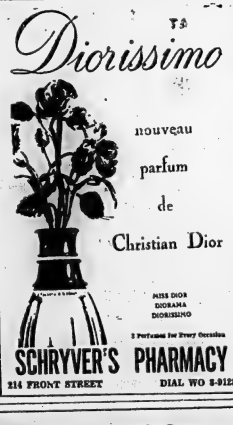
Games for the holidays

Grapefruit Race. The contestants are paired off, and each one is given a grapefruit. A race course is marked out, and the contestants race a pair at a time. The method of racing is to hold the grapefruit between the knees. If the grapefruit drops, then the person who drops it has to go back to the starting line. The winners of each pair are then paired off again, and so on, until there are two finalists, and hence the winner.

Lipstick Race. Men and women are paired off, and the couples are seated facing each other. Each couple is given a lipstick, a blindfold, and a tissue. With the tissue, the woman first removes her lipstick from her mouth. The man is then blindfolded, and sitting opposite the woman, he attempts to put lipstick on her lips. She may instruct him, but must not touch him. The first pair to be successful are the winners.



Charades. An amusing variation on the usual game of charades. Guests are divided into two teams. Each team is given a pad of paper and a pencil. The host sits outside the room with a list of popular song titles. The first member of each team gets a song title from him, goes back into the room, and makes a drawing to illustrate the title of the song. As soon as his team guesses it, another team member goes out, and so on. The first team to complete the list of titles correctly, wins.

Who am I? As the guests arrive, a piece of paper bearing the name of a well-known person is pinned to each of their backs, without their reading it. They must then guess their "name" by asking questions of the other guests, who must answer the questions "Yes" or "No". The name is removed from the back of the dress or suit to the front, as soon as the wearer has guessed it. The names are chosen in "pairs" which are usually associated, like "Romeo and Juliet", "Tom and Jerry", "Laurel and Hardy". This is an ideal way to "pair off" people for other games.

Bathgate Discovers When You 'Write' You're Wrong

Sport Slices

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Two-finger Tommy Von Strau, the lyrical copy boy comes up with some parodies of Christmas carols written to suit his sportive taste.

He borrows one from the Kitchener Rocky Sid with appropriate local changes. He dedicates this one to the Belleville Umpires' Association. You can sing it to the tune of "Winter Wonderland."

"The fans are mad, fear them rustling,
From the stands, boos are swelling;
We made a bad call, that strike was a ball,
Our lot is not a truly happy one
Hear the jeers from the masses,
They all think we need glasses,
With shouts so unkind, they later we are blind,
Our lot is not a truly happy one."

Von Strau says they sing this one up in Whitby. It should be sung to the tune of "Deck the Halls":

Drape the boards with Sonny Gagnon,
Tralalala, lala, lala.
Clean his shoe, feel leaves his ass on,
Tralalala, lala, lala.
Leave us go, and we'll appear him,
Tralalala, lala, lala.
Then in finals, we will spear him,
Tralalala, lala, lala.

Strauss said he got this one from Czechoslovakia from a Russ who branded Hildebrand as a rough and violent player (Silent Night):

Violent Ike, Violent Ike,
Never calm, always bright.
On his shoulder, he's meek as a child.
On offensive he's woolly and wild.
Some night we'll put him to sleep-eep,
Some night we'll put him to sleep.

Von was tickled pink over "Wiener" Brown's performance after being converted from left wing to a centre ice position. He dedicates this one to the Wiener (Santa Claus is Coming to Town):

You'd better be shy, start changing your gear,
Get out of his way, and leave the path clear,
Wiener Brown is going to leave.
He's eating his fish, he's toasting his rolls,
He's getting sandals, and piling up goals.
Wiener Brown is going to leave.
He's given up his left wing, in centre he is hot,
He's dashing o'er that blueline when that goal he wants to get.
So Denby, look out, just feed him more trust,
Then just sit back and like the Maze shout
"Wiener" Brown is going to leave.

Strauss' who does a spot of caddying at the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club, was on hand when the club pro George Belasz got his first hole-in-one on the course. He says tribute to George to the tune of "Good King Wenceslaus":

Good George Belasz he went out
On one Sunday morning
When nobody was about
In the hazy dawning.
He hit the ball a lusty clunk,
"It's out," he said, "I'll betcha,"
And when the pill rolled in the cup
He went home on a six-seltzer.

Little Von is a fight fan too. He saw Ole Arshie make mashed potatoes out of Yvon Durelle, so he penned this parody of "Noel":

Durelle, Durelle, Durelle, Durelle,
Get up off your kindseat—and answer the bell,
All the Ina-ans are allsilver—they know you're no
Moore,
And yone is the king of the Bal St. Anne shore.

Minor Hockey

Maple Leafs and Rangers turned in the first shutouts of the season in the senior Belleville Minor Hockey Association at Memorial Arena last night.

Leafs' blanked the Bruins 12-0 with Rodney Ridley getting the shutout while Tim Doran was in the nets for Rangers in their 3-0 win over the Black Hawks. In other games Browns downed Canadiens 4-2 and Red Wings whipped the Bruins 9-2.

Jim Howe led the Maple Leafs offensively with four goals while John Holgate bagged a pair. Slingles went to Dale Lambkin, Bill Probert, Greg White, Don Means, Chuck Meagher and David Cass.

Marksmen in the Rangers victory were Clifford Read, Ronald Banuk and Tom Hamilton.

Paul Goodfellow and Larry Moore scored for Canadiens but both Browns with Richard McVicker getting the odd one. Ted Means saved the Canadiens from a shutout.

Bruce LaHue sparked the Wings' victory march with three goals, while Barry Smith contributed a pair. Singles went to Billy Mallory, Paul Vinkle, Dave Henderson and Gord McCreary. Alex Bradley and Eric Barager replied for Bruins.

PICK IRISH COURSE

NEW YORK (AP)—The eighth annual Canada Cup and International Trophy golf tournament will be held at Portmarnock Golf Club in Ireland June 28-30, tournament Director Fred Corcoran said Monday. Corcoran returned Sunday from Ireland where he conferred with officials of the Golf Union of Ireland, co-sponsors of the event with the International Golf Association.

SUSPENSION UPHELD

NEW YORK (AP) — The 12-game suspension of Bob Bailey of Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League was upheld Monday by the league's board of governors.

Buffalo had appealed the ruling of President Richard Canning but the board unanimously backed the president with Buffalo and Springfield Indians, the parties involved, abstaining.

Bailey was suspended after an altercation during a Dec. 6 game between Buffalo and Springfield in which he is reported to have swung his stick and hit Spring field's Ted Harris under the eye. He received a match penalty and the suspension.

Bailey already has served five games of his suspension. He will not be eligible again until Jan. 9.

Ranger Star Is Fined $500 For Authoring Mag. Article 'Maligning Fellow Players'

MONTREAL (CP)—The principle that a hockey player should not profit from maligning fellow players and the game was enunciated by President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League Monday night in announcing $ 500 fine against New York Rangers' star Andy Bathgate.

Bathgate was fined for his authorship of a magazine article concerning alleged brutality in hockey. Rangers' general manager Muzz Patrick was fined $100.

"Assuming the best of motives," Campbell said, "the author would not wish, and must not be allowed, to profit from maligning his fellow players and the means of his own livelihood."

He said Bathgate's fine matched the amount he received for collaborating in the publication of the article.

The NHL president said it was contended the sole purpose of the article was to call attention to a "bad feature" of the game.

HAD RESPONSIBILITY

"If so," he said, "then there was a responsibility to see that what was published would accomplish that object. Apart from the sensational language and treatment of the subject in the name of an all-star player, it is doubtful if the text of the article would ever have been printed."

Bathgate was named all - star right wing and winner of the most-valuable-player award last season. He has been among the NHL's top scorers for the last four seasons.

He could not be reached for comment on the fine.

His article, ghost - written by Dave Anderson of New York Journal - American, appeared in the Canadian edition of the magazine True.

It dealt at length with spearing—the facial injuries of the hockey stick for stabbing — and said "it's going to kill somebody." It did. "But I guess nothing will be done about it until somebody is killed. Then it'll be too late."

The article singled out five "spearing specialists" in the NHL: Doug Harvey and Tom Johnson of Montreal Canadiens, Fern Flaman of Boston Bruins, Ted Lindsay of Detroit, Black Hawks and, "to prove I'm not pulling any punches, my Ranger teammate Lou Fontinato."

DEFINITELY PREJUDICIAL

Campbell said the "sum total effect of the article is definitely prejudicial to the league and the game, and this was not seriously contested by the principals involved."

He said it was clear Patrick "did not authorize or approve the publication in the form in which it finally appeared but by his failure to consider the possible implications, which were quite plain in the last article which preceded his, he gave his authorization by default and is responsible under the (NHL) bylaw."

In New York Patrick said "I don't like the fine, but then I suppose any time I get a $15 parking ticket." He conceded he was in default because "I was supposed to watch those things."

NHL regulations require that the fine come out of Patrick's own earnings.

In two previous instances of authorship or quoted statements, Campbell has required meting out a $1,000 bond, returnable when the principal's playing days end.

Maurice (Rocket) Richard of Canadiens, whose ghosted articles criticized Campbell appeared in a French - language weekly in 1952, had to post the bond, spoken of earlier to refrain from further authorship.

Ken Reardon, former Montreal iens' defenceman and now club vice-president, was quoted in a magazine TV article that threatening to retaliate against Cal Gardner for facial injuries received when the two had a stick-swinging battle. Gardner was with New York at the time of the battle and with Toronto when the quotation appeared.

Reardon had to post the $1,000 bond which was returned when he quit playing in the NHL.

Third League Only Chance, Says Rickey

DALLAS (AP) — Branch Rickey, the patriarch of baseball, has told Dallas and Fort Worth, the Continental League, which he heads, is their only chance at the major leagues.

He proclaimed the aims and objectives of the third big league Monday at a luncheon of 200 business and civic leaders of the area, then said he would wait for them to raise the money that would make Dallas-Fort Worth the seventh club of the Continental League.

But the time is short, he warned. The Continental must have its eight clubs by Jan. 19. Dallas-Fort Worth, Montreal and Buffalo are the cities from which the seventh and eighth clubs will come.

Rickey, 78 years in the big leagues, said the American and National leagues would never scrap and "it never was intended," he declared, in pointing out harassing actions of the majors against the league designed to prevent the Continental getting off the ground.

He said he now believed the American and National leagues would offer no opposition to the creation of a third major league. He set 1961 as the date the Continental would begin operations.

STADIUM PROVISION

Revenue bonds already have been voted for construction of a stadium midway between the Fort Worth and Dallas, which are separated by only 30 miles.

But it is necessary for Dallas-Fort Worth to put up $2,500,000-$1,500,000 for operation and $1,000,000 as reserve—before it can issue the bonds for the stadium.

Six cities already are in the Continental League—New York, Houston, Denver, Toronto, Minneapolis - St. Paul and Atlanta.

Rickey talked convincingly of baseball's history and said there's no major league club ever has lost money, so no major league baseball is a good business proposition.

Rickey said by 1963 his league would be playing in the world series and that by 1964 might be the dominant league.

Hockey Hints

"THE MAGIC DRILL"

Since age-limit hockey teams have few chances to practise they must use each one to the best advantage. The following full-ice, sometimes called "3 on 3", is a big help.

Five players are on the offence inside the blue line against two defencemen and the goalkeeper. The two defenders must try to get the puck out while the five offensive players try to pass the puck around for a clear shot on goal.

One defending player is "checker" who follows the puck wherever it goes, the other protecting the front of the goal. Players are changed frequently with everyone given a chance on both squads. Play is stopped at normal intervals and whenever the puck is cleared out. All face-offs are to the side of the goal.

This drill provides marvelous practise in passing, shooting, positional play; gives the goalkeeper a great workout and is excellent conditioning.

Hockey Hearing Is Adjourned

TORONTO (CP) — Hearing of an application for an injunction against the Ontario Hockey Association was adjourned sine die in the Supreme Court of Ontario, Dec. 21 by consent of the parties.

A motion for the hearing was filed Dec. 11 by Owen Sound lawyer Arthur Marron, representing Kenneth Loisenger, 18, and his 17-year-old twin brothers, Douglas and David. The motion requested an order for player releases from the Mildmay Hockey Association.

They have been trying to obtain releases from the Mildmay junior C hockey club of Western Ontario Athletic Association to play for the Owen Sound Colts Class B team of the OHA.

The Loisengers asked for a declaration that would rule three sections of the OHA manual for 1958-59 invalid, inoperative and not binding on players.

Gordon Gooderham, father of the youths' and A. M. (Tony) Simon, manager of the Greys who was suspended from the OHA for playing the youths, also have filed affidavits.

Juniors Hand Kingston 9-6 Loss To Take Over Loop's Second Spot

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Lambert Bollins took over undisputed possession of second place in the CJBO Eastern Junior 'B' league here last night with a free-wheeling 9-6 victory over Kingston Johnson Motors.

The locals are idle now until next Monday when they travel host to Trenton Lafferty Bros in an 8:30 p.m. fixture here.

Belleville had a 4-2 lead in the first period last night and appeared to have the contest wrapped up in the second when they increased the lead to 7-2. However Kingston came roaring back with four consecutive goals in the first 13 minutes of the third to make it a 7-6 game.

Kingston goalie Wayne Nicholls jumped Belleville's Roger Ethier from behind at 13.18 while the L-S judged was feeding with another Kingston player. The officials gave both minor penalties for roughing, despite the fact that Ethier did not have the puck. He gained justice himself from the disrespected attack. The clubs were five aside when Pete Fenn of Kingston scored the goal to cut Belleville's lead to 7-6.

Ethier had his revenge against Nicholls however, scoring the last two goals of the game to give the Kingston's rally and open up the 8-6 lead. He was just back from the penalty nine seconds when he potted his first at 18.34 and at 18.41 he completed his hat-trick parked on his tormentor's doorstep to snap home Ron Reilly's pass.

Belleville had only 11 players dressed for the game, including goalie Gord Parker, with Gary Hammell being absent and three others sitting out suspensions. Ralph Plane has been suspended for two games while Jerry Mann and Gary Hall are indefinitely suspended all for their parts in a rhubarb in Cobourg last Friday night.

Centre Roger Goyer snapped out of a recent scoring slump to spearhead Belleville's attack last night. Goyer triggered three goals and added two assists for a five-point production, bringing his goal total for the season to 16. Linemate Ron Ethier had four goals and three assists while Rocky Ethier picked up two goals and one assist. Gary Forsythe had one goal and two helpers, Jack Rudd two assists and Gary Reid one.

Pete Ford with two goals and assists, Jamie Reddick and Rod Ayles-worth with two and one were top in a losing cause. Dennis O'Donnell scored once and drew an assist while Gerard Ball had one goal and Bob Howland a single assist each.

Penalties totalled 11 in all, Belleville drawing seven and Kingston four. There were threes and a misconduct to Pete Ford. Kingston started its scoring, and Belleville was one man short and began the next minute, the visitors slapping a two-goal advantage.

Belleville scorers worked in pairs. Kerrulish getting his at 5.47 and 13.03 of the first, Goyer clicking for two real quickies at 13 seconds and 39 seconds of the middle frame, completing his hat trick at 11.08, and Ethier potting his impressive marksmanship at the midway mark of four minutes in the third.

Nick Weslock Top Golfer

TORONTO (CP) — Veteran Nick Weslock of Windsor was named Canada's top amateur golfer in 1969 rankings released Monday by the Ontario golf association.

Listed as No. 3 last year, the 43-year-old member of the Essex Golf and Country Club captured this year's Ontario Open and is regarded as the senior tournaments regained him the top spot he held in 1967.

Gary Cowan of Kitchener, runner-up in both the Ontario and Canadian amateurs, was ranked second. The 20-year - old power hitter from the Rockway Golf club listed in the No. 3 spot along with Weslock last year.

Third was Bob Panasiuk, 17, of Windsor's Golf and Country Club and fourth was Bob Wolfe, the amateur lifted him four notches from the 1968 rankings.

Wolfe, who was 19, listed in order, are: Phil Brownlee, Toronto; Orville Carlson, Toronto, who was top-ranked last year; Jim Wood, Woodstock and Bill Owen; Bill Mosher, North Bay; brother Dave Morland; Gordon MacKenzie, Toronto, and Thomas Woodall, Toronto.

Billy Carter Yet to Serve Penalty

OTTAWA (CP)—Billie Carter, of Hull-Ottawa Canadiens leads the Eastern Professional Hockey League scoring race with 54 points in 36 games but has still another equally outstanding record. He is the only regular performer of the league, outside of goalies and newcomers, who hasn't served any time in the 1969-70 season.

Carter is aiming to match the accomplishment of Dusty Blair in the 1953-54 season when Blair was a top scorer with Ottawa Senators of the old Quebec Hockey League and didn't serve a day in jail.

Statistics issued Monday, including Sunday games, show Carter five points ahead of Orval Tessier of Kingston Frontenacs in scoring. Tessier in last week's games scored three times while Tom McCarthy of Sudbury Wolves, who are third and fourth with 49 and 47 points respectively.

Dino Mascotto of Trois-Rivieres Lions is the most penalized player with 75 minutes, Charlie Hodge, Ottawa Nationals and Montreal Royals have the best combined goaltending average of 2.96.

Canada's Top Gal Athlete Is Ottawa's Anne Heggtveit

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Anne Heggtveit, whimsy over-achieve - inch five, sweet 16 years ago with the world at her feet, is Canada's outstanding female athlete of 1969.

The 26-year-old who flashed to victory over many of the world's best skiers to become the first girl skier in the women's combined to participate in the Olympics received the accolade from the country's sports editors and broadcasters in the annual Canadian Press year - end poll conducted today.

She won it without a fight, a manner alien to the dedicated racer, with 28 points to runner-up Elaine Tanner of Toronto, Canada's all-time great female swimmer who holds final jubilation showed Miss Russell's first victory, just five more than Mrs. Stroll.

The poll marked the first time a skier had taken the honors, in 1958, Lucile Wheeler, also from Ottawa, was runner of two world titles at the Alpine championships in Austria and the Canadian to win a world skiing title, topped the balloting with 21 votes, edging her close friend, received only four third-place votes.

Some were also intrigued by Miss Wheeler's great 1958 showing and placed her fourth in the women's 100-metre freestyle swimming event, one of the world's best swimmers in that event, was fifth with 67 points.

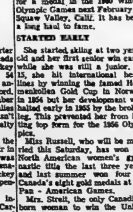
In ninth place with 15 points was Toronto figure skater Petra Burka, who, with partner Bob Paul, also of Toronto, has won the world pairs figure - skating title every year since 1957.

The selection of Miss Heggtveit for the outstanding honors had little room for doubt. She was the only one who won the combined title in the two - stage international ski meet at Grindelwald, Switzerland, at St. Moritz, Two weeks later, the self-effacing Miss Heggtveit took the famous Arlberg - Kandahar combined championship at Garmisch-Partenkirchen.



Miss Heggtveit, whose career was almost cut short by a knee injury in 1963, returned to Ottawa to a victory parade. Earlier this winter she brought the silver trophy she had won in Europe for the best all-round performance in the slalom and downhill races in an event considered to be the most demanding outside Olympic and world championship competition.

Ranked No. 6 in the world in 1968, she now is a bright prospect for a top showing in the Winter Olympic Games next February at Sapue Valley, Calif. It has been a long trail to fame.

STARTED EARLY

She started skiing at two years old and her first grade win came while she was still a junior. At 15, she hit international headlines by finishing second to Canadian Olympic Gold Cup in Norway and Canada's eight gold medals at the Pan - American Games.

Mrs. Stroll, the only Canadian-born competitor in the United States and British amateur golf championships, captured the Ca-

Royals Finish Player Deal

MONTREAL (CP) — General manager Frank Mahovlich of Montreal Royals of the Eastern Professional Hockey League Monday announced the trading of two players and the signing of a third.

Left winger Yves Locas has been sent to Hull-Ottawa of the Central Hockey League, has been farmed out to the Clinton, Mass., entry of the Canadian-United States Amateur Hockey League.

Guy Sturm, 21-year-old forward from Fort William, has been sent to the pro roster from Clinton.

In sending Locas to Hull-Ottawa Canadiens, Royals completed a deal initialled Nov. 8. At that time the Royals obtained winger Roger Sawicki from Canadiens on stipulation that a member of the Royals would be sent along later.

Sturm is a product of the National Hockey League Montreal Canadiens farm system, having played junior hockey with Fort William Canadiens. He has completed his first season with the Royals and displayed enough ability to warrant a pro contract. He recently returned to the lineup after suffering a shoulder separation.

Coach Floyd Curry said Sturm will be in the Royals' regular Trois-Rivieres Lions tonight in Trois-Rivieres. Curry also said the league will start on schedule.

Terleys said he would be prepared to propose that the new CFL meeting that the Canadian clubs do away with the negotiation lists system which started a few years ago. No Canadian club may negotiate with a player under on another Canadian club's negotiation list.

Terley explained that the system gave rich and powerful clubs an advantage in that they could protect for the future a promising college player who might not still be two or three years away from graduation.

Most clubs protected future available talent in that way, but smaller teams that were more fresh and better players had to keep more graduating players than long clubs.

FAVORS DRAFT

He suggested that the list should be done away with in favor of a Canadian draft of graduating juniors—with the weaker teams getting first call on the top players.

Before Terlep can take formal action at a CFL meeting, however, the matter will have to be discussed and approved by the Ottawa club executive.

For the last few years, Canadian clubs have been signing Canadian college players and the system has spread the available talent more evenly.

Despite the competitive bidding, Terlep said there hasn't been any trouble signing a number of new imports.

Terlep met in a two-way call from Hillsdale College in Michigan—Jim Reynolds who is majoring in biology. Reynolds is a pass-catcher. More names will be announced in the next few weeks.

Another, he said, is an offensive end-defensive halfback.

Pitt Dentist Is Charged With Bribery

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A dentist was charged Monday with conspiracy to bribe two University of Pittsburgh basketball players.

Dr. Edward H. Eckstein, 36, former dental instructor at Pitt, was arrested following the investigation of statements by John Fridley, 20, former defensive forward with Pitt Panthers, and teammate Dick Falenski, 21, the FBI said in Washington.

Fridley and Falenski, both juniors, told investigators officials of Pitt's dental school conspired with them to shave 50 per cent of bet winnings if they would help "control the point margins within bet - winning range."

Dr. Sebastian denied the charges, saying "everything we discussed, he (Fridley) started."

GOT PARENTS' ADVICE

The investigation began Dec. 11 when Fridley and Falenski, on the advice of their parents, reported to Pitt Chancellor, Wesley Aitheltic director, that they were offered a bribe.

Fridley told detectives he met with Dr. Sebastian Dec. 3 and Dec. 5 in the Pitt Cathedral of Learning with him in a meeting Dec. 10 and that Dr. Sebastian gave his pitch.

He "offered us the world—anything that we wanted. He said he'd get us—cars at cost, and everything," Fridley said.

"It's a very regretable incident," said Carver. "But we have complete confidence in the Pitt program. We are New York and will be playing against Fordham."

OUT OF WINTER GAMES

BELGRADE (AP) — The Yugoslav Olympic committee said Monday Yugoslavia definitely will not participate at the Winter Olympic Games at Squaw Valley, Calif., Feb. 13 to 23. The committee said participation by Yugoslav skiers have not been good enough to warrant sending a team.

Urges Canadian Draft for Grid Imports

By BERNARD DEFRESNE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—General manager George Trrley of Ottawa Rough Riders Monday suggested a Canadian draft system for Canadian football players.

He spoke up against the Canadian Football League's system of assigning players to clubs in each club list—and in favor of an annual Canadian draft of graduating United States college players.

Trrley was back in town briefly, with a tale of woe about the tough bidding for new import talent this year.

First, there's the usual competition from the National Football league for rookies just out of college. Secondly, both established leagues now have spiriting counter-bidding from the CFL clubs. Then the new American Football League, scheduled to get off the ground in 1970.

Trrley said he would be prepared to propose that the next CFL meeting that the Canadian clubs do away with the negotiation lists system which started a few years ago. No Canadian club may negotiate with a player under on another Canadian club's negotiation list.

Terlep explained that the system gave rich and powerful clubs an advantage in that they could protect for the future a promising college player who might still be two or three years away from graduation.

Most clubs protected future available talent in that way, but smaller teams that were more fresh and better players had to keep more graduating players than long clubs.

Duff, Stewart Rejoin Leafs

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League get a couple of veterans back in action today when Dick Duff and Ron Stewart rejoin the lineup.

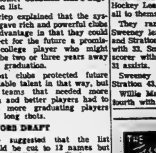
Duff injured both legs in a collision with a goal post last week and failed to suit up in the last three games. Stewart bruised ribs ankle in Saturday's game here and was unable to play Sunday.

Duff was back on skates Monday but Stewart isn't likely to start skating again until Wednesday.

Two other injured Leafs, Larry Regan and Bert Olmstead, will be missing when Leafs meet New York Rangers in a home-and-home series this weekend.

Regan suffered a broken nose and other facial injuries in Saturday's game and Olmstead was put out of action with torn knee ligaments a week earlier.

Leafs, who failed to suit up his rest program Monday said was excused from practice. He said Duff will be the deciding whether he will stick with goalie Terry Sawchuk or go with Bruce Gamble in Rochester of the American League.



Indians' Trio Tops Scoring

NEW YORK (AP) — Springfield Indians' big line of Fred Smith, Bill Sweeney and Art Stratton have the American League scoring race all sewed up to themselves.

They rank 1-2-3 in scoring. Sweeney leads in goals with 29 and Stratton has the most assists with 43. Smith is the top point scorer with 46 on 17 goals and 31 assists.

Sweeney has 44 points and Stratton 43.

Willie Marshall of Hershey is fourth with 37 points.

Colts, Giants Football Epic Stealing Spot From Santa

BALTIMORE (CP) — Baltimore Colts today returned to the practice field after a two - day rest to prepare for their National Football League championship game Sunday against New York Giants.

Most of Baltimore seems more concerned with the outcome of last year's sudden - death Colt victory than with Christmas.

Lighted windows that once spelled out "Noel" in downtown buildings now say "Colts."

REDSKIN OPINION

Everyone is giving opinions of making predictions. Joe Tereshinski, who scouted both teams for Washington Redskins, got in the act Monday by rating the Colts slight favorites.

"Two things must be considered in making the Colts the favorites," said the former Redskin end. "Quarterback John Unitas needs a dry ball and a dry field, and the Baltimore fans with their whooping give the Colts an added lift in stadium.

The weather man predicts a dry field as there is no doubt the Colt fans will be on hand.

COMPARES TEAMS

"Defensively speaking," said Tereshinski, "I like the experience and defensive play of the Baltimore line over New York's. Linebacking rates about even with just a shade to New York, with the Colts' secondary nearly equal.

"Both have great quarterbacks, with New York having a decided edge on receiver power in the backfield. The Colts have Unitas-to-Raymond Berry passing, while the Giants often that with Franco Gifford.

"Besides (Alex) Webster, Gifford and (Mel) Triplett, the Giants have (Joe) Morrison and (Phil) Johnson, who are good for placements.

"But the offensive line is something else. New York has a good line but it has several seasoned veterans on it. The Colt line has played together for three or four years and has depth."

The game between the Colts, western division champions, and Giants, winners in the East, will be televised by the NBC and carried in Canada by CBC-TV. Kickoff time is 3 p.m. EST.

Continue To Lead Junior Scoring Race

TORONTO (CP)—Two players not picked for the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A first all-star team continue to lead the scoring race by comfortable margins.

Ted Gilbert and Jean Ratelle of Guelph Biltmores have led in goal scoring, assist and total points since the second week of the schedule. They were voted to the second team.

Official statistics including Sunday's games show Gilbert the leading point-getter with 32 assists and 18 goals for 50 points.

Linemate Ratelle heads the goal-getters with 24. He also has 23 assists for a total of 47 points and second place.

All-star centre Dave Keon of Toronto St. Michael's College Majors remained in third position with 19 goals and 15 assists. With 28 points to his credit is the Toronto Marlboros' all-star right winger Jim Pappin.

Dave Dryden of St. Michael's, brother to teammate Jerry Cheevers, is domination of the intermediate leadership. After two games, Dryden has an average of 5 goals per game and with him while Cheevers slipped to 2.19. Marlies' Ken Brodrick is in third place, having allowed 60 goals in 21 games for a 2.86 average.

GETS TIGERS' APPOINTMENT

DETROIT (AP) — Vice-President James A. Campbell Saturday was placed in charge of all baseball operations, including scouting by the Detroit Tigers. Heretofore, handling of minor league clubs was split among several Tiger executives. Ed Katalinas will continue as chief scout under the consolidated setup.

FORT SMITH, N.W.T. (CP)—1,700 were tested and 682 calves were vaccinated. Some 600 were confined to be branded under expert supervision at the Lake Claire abbatoir.

The animals killed are shot with one bullet from a .375 Magnum rifle — a quick, merciful death. This year's kill produced 300,000 pounds of meat to be distributed by the Indian affairs branch to needy territorial Indian bands.

Some meat also goes to territorial retail stores for sale to residents at between 38 and 50 cents a pound.

The roundup—in which horses, bellicopters and musking tractors are used — is supervised by the northern administration branch of the Indian affairs and natural resources department. This branch administers the park with headquarters at Fort Smith, a community 450 miles north of Edmonton.

Television Started Panic In Movie Industry in 50's

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — After years of great prosperity, the film industry started to panic at the 1950s began.

Folks were beginning to stay away from movie theatres in large crowds. They had a new gadget in their living rooms—television.

Of course, what they saw was nothing special. It was largely visual radio with the best and worst of vaudeville thrown in. But the novelty was enough to intrigue a public that was fed up with the formula of the Hollywood product.

Within two years after big-time TV came in, movie attendance had dropped one-third. The studios were in trouble. There was a wave of layoffs and shutdowns. The industry found a new craze to put life back into the theatres. This was the period of dimension praecox.

CINERAMA DEBUT

It started Sept. 30, 1952, with the New York debut of This is Cinerama. The new process claimed three projectors at a giant wraparound screen. It made viewers feel they were really riding the roller coaster they watched on the screen.

Two months later a quickie called Bwana Devil opened in Hollywood. It was the first feature because it featured an almost-forgotten means of creating a three-dimensional effect by use of two screen images and polarized glasses. Other studios made a quick profit with 3D films, and audiences were busy dodging tails, birds and gun blasts. But the fad faded because people found the glasses bothersome.

Inspired by the interest in new film techniques, Spyros Skouras of Fox boldly converted all its production to Cinemascope. The process used one camera and squeezed a wide-screen image onto normal-size film.

Paramount brought out VistaVision. Mike Todd came along with Todd - AO and other processes followed. They helped business, but still weren't enough to bring back Hollywood's old-time economy.

NEW REGIMES

The old regimes began to fall. Louis B. Mayer was eased out of MGM by his old foe, Nick Schenck. Then Schenck himself stepped out as president, and MGM had a bitter proxy fight. Harry Warner then sold out to a combine headed by Serge Semenenko, though keeping production control.

One - man rule at Columbia ended when Harry Cohn died. Darryl Zanuck departed as boss of 20th-Fox and was succeeded by Buddy Adler. Howard Hughes gained full ownership of RKO and let it then sold out to General Tire and Rubber Company for $25,000,000.

The RKO sale broke the solid front against selling old films to TV. The firm's 740 features were poured into the TV market. Needing immediate assets to bolster their economies, the other major companies followed suit. This helped restore black ink to the ledgers. But they were losing audiences by not doing needed to keep the studios on a paying basis.

Plays Unsavory Creatures With a Twinkle of Humor

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Margaret Hamilton is a kindergarten teacher turned actress whose name comes to mind instantly when producers are casting a hag witch or female Scrooge part.

The witch business started years ago when Miss Hamilton won the part in The Wizard of Oz. Since then she has ridden many a broomstick, been the stern mistress of the orphanage and otherwise shown herself to be a rather unpleasant character.

Nowadays she invariably plays these unsavory creatures with a twinkle of humor.

"The only time these characters have any effect on me," she explained recently, "is when I meet the public. They'll tell the glamor stars how much they enjoy their performances — but they look at me, laugh and say, 'Oh, you!'"

Miss Hamilton's acting career also included many non - witch parts. On Thursday night she will be playing a gay and slightly tipsy inmate of a county home on Playhouse 90's adaptation of the Silver Whistle (CBS, 9:30-11 p.m. EST).

Two of the brightest moments of the weekend's viewing were Gertrude Berg's account (on the Ed Sullivan show) of her failure's substitution of a "chanukah bush" for a Christmas tree, and the endearing performance of small Ronnie Howard as Barbara Baxley in Mr. O'Malley. . . We won't have to choose on Jan. 31 between CBS' account of the Fabulous Fifties and NBC's Not Long Ago. Each will be a brief period after all. NBC has moved Archibald MacLeish's The Secret of Freedom into the Sunday Showcase spot, and will run Not Long Ago Feb. 15.

Astrological Forecast

Wednesday, December 22

General tendencies: All kinds of A. M. delays are apt to be in effect to apparently halt your morning progress, but actually you are given the chance to double-check whatever is not accurate, complete. Then afternoon and evening are fine for doing for others works of service — wrapping packages, shopping, every sort of detail. Be highly efficient and co-operative. Handle problems necessitating neat touch, fine finish.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — An affair in the business world could really disturb you in A.M., if you permit. Later in the day, however, much can be accomplished with associates and you have an enjoyable day as well. Be sure of yourself, then have fun in P.M.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — While you feel you are being overworked or have too many obligations, this is the time to dig in earnestly and make real progress. Also, dig into information you should have, meet new people, learn about modern trends, etc. P. M. retire early.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Take care you are not extravagant where some other individuals concerned in A.M. After lunch you will then be under fine influences to increase abundance and gain greater prestige. Feeling is also very fine. Work.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Pay no attention to tightfisted member of clan this morning, but go along with the fine constructive ideas of far-seeing specialists. P. M. excellent for handling home affairs, entertaining at residence. Be charming, relaxed.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — You are in no mood for routine work this morning, so do only what is absolutely necessary. Take off to shopping, conference, etc., that will bring about an upswing in all of your affairs. Don't let it be all serious — get in some play, too.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) — Don't be impatient and spend wisely this A. M. Later in the day you can find just what you want at the right price. Be sure to be practical also in the evening, and you come out on top instead of in the red.

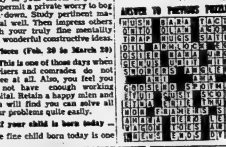
Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) — A. M. tendency can be very disturbing but keep plugging away. After lunch, improvement is marked and you get co-operation, support where you most need it. P. M. be very sociable. Have fun.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Get rid of regular duties early in A.M. Then full speed ahead to shop, do research work, visit, etc. Make new contacts as that you can have greater success in the future. P. M. fine for a family get-together.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — A good day to economize and not let others impose upon you, either financially or in any other way. P. M. is then fine for having a delightful social evening inexpensively. Accept that charming invitation.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Take care not to argue with higher-ups in A. M. Then the rest of the day is fine for working constructively so that you better your lot in life. Get your bills paid, handle political and vocational matters wisely.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — You can make big headway today in your career if you do not permit a private worry to bog you down. Study pertinent material well. Then impress others with your ideas, fine mentality and wonderful constructive ideas.



Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — This is one of those days when advisers and comrades do not agree at all. Also, you feel you do not have enough working capital. Retain a happy mien and then you will find you can solve all your problems quite easily.

If your child is born today — The fine child born today is one of those individuals who always, apparently, have to have their fingers before learning not to play with fire. This is unfortunate, yet perhaps the most effective way of learning life's lessons. At maturity then there is a very great potential in this chart, especially in cultural, artistic and musical spheres. Watch over your progeny carefully.

Soviet Engineer Proposes Scheme To Warm Japan

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet engineer has proposed building a tidal pump and dam which he says would bring the benefits of miles of the Pacific coastline of Asia and health anew from Japan forever.

Tass said his idea is to throw a dam across Boussole Strait, the five-mile stretch of water dividing the mainland of the Soviet Union from the island of Sakhalin. Its effect would be to close off cold waters from the north and a tidal pump would be used to introduce warm currents from the south to the area.

Tass described the idea to Soviet Engineer N. Romanov and said the Pacific coast of the Soviet Union, North China and Hokkaido Island of Japan all stood to benefit.

FUR TIDE TO WORK

The idea would activate a pump, operating in conjunction with a dam to be built with its gates open for northward flow.

"At tidal time, the warm waters would mix with and contribute to the hotticneck of the Newsky Strait and on through the gates into the Okhotsk Sea.

"Once high tide is reached and the cold stream rushes south from the shores of Sakhalin and the Asian mainland, the gates pump will be shut tight under its pressure."

The Russians have a similar plan for warming up the northern areas around the Bering Strait.

Hog Marketing Board Should Be Retained

CHERRY VALLEY—"I would hate to see the elimination of the Ontario Hog Producers' Marketing Board," said Clarence Milligan M.P. for Prince Edward-Lennox, when he addressed the regular meeting of the Cherry Valley Local of the Ontario Farmers' Union, recently. President of the Hog Producers in his county, he is an unpopular member at meetings of the Ontario Hog Producers because he does not believe in the dictatorship of the Marketing Board he felt, was too involved to see clearly. One man should not have the authority to sell all hogs in Ontario as is done now, while he (Jake Kolley) could be doing his best, it is possible to develop close friends in buyers to favor at a reduced price, claimed the speaker.

TOO COSTLY, CLAIM

Asked his feeling about assembly points he said he felt they were too costly to be operated satisfactory, often being too far from producers, or not stop if would be, as the Farm Union has requested for some time, a system whereby the price would be known to the farmer before the hogs left the yards, and if the price too low, they could be held a week if desired and with light they would add little weight.

"The farmers should receive federal support," claimed Mr. Milligan. "The gold mines received over 100 million dollars during 1946-58, during the period from 1946-53, two years more agriculture received in the same, yet is not agriculture more important than gold mines to the national economy of Canada."

Celebrity Register of Canadians Sells as Well as Kinsey Report

NEW YORK (CP) — Celebrity Register, its editor-in-chief likes to say, is the fastest-selling book since the Kinsey Report.

It's a compilation of famous people who may or may not appear in "Who's Who in the various Who's Who. But the sketches of 1,500 subjects of either living or last fame contain more than abbreviated listings of lives and works.

Quotations from the subjects, some culled from speeches and sings or noted in interviews by register's writers, enliven the stories of actors, statesmen, strip-teasers, writers and others.

Besides Prime Minister Diefenbaker, Opposition Leader Pearson, Governor - General Georges Vanier and his predecessor Vincent Massey, the register has only a sprinkling of Canadians and former Canadians, mostly those drawn from the theatrical world.

"We missed out on a lot of Canadians," says Clevelan Amory, the editor-in-chief. "But in subsequent editions we hope to have more." Men like E. P. Taylor, the Toronto industrialist, for example, should be in.

"But there are not too many Canadians in what Americans think of as the celebrity class. Canadians are more conservative."

Celebrity register's portraits of the presidents of 48 states and the two governors - general are straightforward accounts.

But something of the book's style is apparent in the listing for Scotia — now Port Stanley — Eaton, the big Cleveland industrialist.

About the conferences of philanthropists and scientists at his summer house in Nova Scotia, it says:

"Fellow Cleveland industrialists describe the thoughts emanating from his "Thinker's Resort" as 'that hogwash from Pugwash.'"

Describing Eaton as a boss wolf, it quotes him as having said, "A man's first obligation is to earn his living and second to be intelligent."

EXERCISE TIME — Finance Minister Fleming leaves his suburban Rockcliffe Park house at Ottawa for a walk with Susie, a dog of uncertain ancestry, owned by his younger son Donald. The minister's favorite sports are swimming and tennis but this not the season for them—and he hasn't the time anyway — so he resorts to walking to keep in trim. (CP Photo).

BUSY MAN — Flanked by portraits of some of his predecessors, Finance Minister Fleming works at the Parliament House desk where he puts in most of an estimated 90-hour work week. Mr. Fleming has been working late this month as he charts government fiscal policy for the coming year. He is the fifth man to hold the key portfolio since Confederation. (CP Photo).

Finance Minister Fleming Trying to Steer Govt. Finances Toward a Balanced Budget

By ALAN DONNELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Lights burned late in Finance Minister Fleming's office this month as he charted government fiscal policy for the coming year.

The former college wrestler is grappling with the problem of steering government finances towards a balanced budget after two years of steep deficits.

In a series of major speeches this fall he had urged Canadians not to ask for increased government expenditures that weren't "absolutely necessary."

COMPLEX TASK

That request may well have been the motto for the cabinet's treasury board under Mr. Fleming's chairmanship as it met daily for three weeks, each afternoon and far into the evening, to hammer out the government's future spending programs.

For the 56-year-old former Toronto lawyer, it undoubtedly meant saying "no" to some cherished spending plans of his cabinet colleagues.

But if the result next spring is a balanced budget—the first in three years—it could bring some personal satisfaction to the man who has had to find the money to finance two years of anti-recession deficit spending.

In his early months—in 1957—on the job that has been called the toughest in the cabinet, he worked 100 hours a week learning the intricacies of the department.

NOT MUCH SLEEP

Things aren't much easier even now for the short, stocky minister. He estimated in an interview that he puts in about 90 hours of work a week, and averages less than six hours of sleep a night.

The recent series of night meetings in his office represented only a change of location for his evening work. Normally he takes a bulging briefcase home around 9 p.m. and until 1 a.m. or later studies reports and memos in the library of his modern split-level bungalow on a quiet, dead-end street in suburban Rockcliffe village.

But he's up sharp at 7 a.m. He makes it a practice to walk part way to work. His wife Alice picks him up in the family car on the way and drives him the rest of the 2½ miles to his office near Parliament Hill. The portion that goes with the portfolio—that of receiver-general of Canada—

"I didn't realize until I got home that I was that miserable bloke I'd been paying taxes to for years."

But his approach to government and politics is more serious than that.

He makes a personal reply immediately to each of the letters he receives—an average of 60 to 70 daily—rattling off answering letters to a battery of stenographers as soon as he reaches the office.

KEEPS INFORMED

He follows the newspapers closely, tearing out stories that interest him, to be read later.

When he entered the Commons in 1945 as MP for Toronto Eglinton, he began a deliberate study of the French language which he hadn't studied since college days. Through reading and talking with French-speaking members he developed a remarkable fluency in French, though tinged with an English accent, is considered the best of any English-language MP.

None of this, he says, can be attributed to the fact he had a French - Canadian grandfather who at a young man moved from Quebec to Ontario and changed the family name to Fleming from Flamand. One of the Flamand ancestors fought under Montcalm on the Plains of Abraham.

In the Commons he sometimes goes to painstaking lengths to present his case fully. Last session an opposition sub-confidence motion on fiscal policy brought from him a massive three-hour speech, crammed with statistics, which he began one evening and completed the next day.

Amid this summer's welter of criticism over the "tight money" situation, Mr. Fleming avoided using the term. It can be misleading, he explained to a reporter. He prefers to call it "a restriction of available bank credit."

WORKED HIS WAY

As finance minister, he is doubtless custodian of more money than any other Canadian. But he takes pride in the fact he worked his own way up in the world.

Born at Exeter, Ont., he was brought up in Galt where his father was a collegiate mathematics teacher. The family had only modest means and his father's health broke down when Donald was part way through high school. He worked every summer from the age of 13 until he graduated from university—in factories, pushing cement on construction jobs, and one summer as a farm laborer at $40 a month.

Mr. Fleming repaid his family every cent that went into his education from the time he entered the University of Toronto, at the age of 16, until he left Osgoode Hall law school in 1928 as a lawyer. A top student, scholarships helped along the way.

He likes to recall that his university class in 1923 was the first to hear history lectures from a young teacher, Lester B. Pearson. And in his law school class were two more future Liberal cabinet members, Paul Martin and Lionel Chevrier.

After making his mark as a Toronto lawyer he had his baptism of elections in city politics, with one year as a school trustee and six years as an alderman.

The Flemings have three children. David, 23, is a student at Toronto's University College; Gus, 20, is a University of Toronto student, and 17-year-old Donald attends an Ottawa collegiate.

Local man, 70, asserts "There is a real Santa Claus"

Recently at a family gathering to celebrate his 70th birthday, Mr. H. E., emphatically made it his statement—"There is a real Santa Claus". Later, when asked what he meant, he replied that he was going to be Santa Claus as of Christmas 1960.

You see, last week Mr. H. E. enrolled as a member in Imperial Bank's new Christmas Club. With regular weekly deposits of 50¢, $1, $2, $5, or $10, (whatever sum he decided) he will receive Christmas 1960, why he is indeed going to be Santa Claus to all his family and friends!

Why don't you drop into your nearby Imperial Bank Branch? Ask about the Christmas Club. If you join soon, you can be Santa Claus next year to all your relatives and friends.

White Christmas Is Predicted For This Area

Weatherman Says Snow Is on Way for Ontario

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Snow was predicted today and Thursday for most of the Lower Lakes area and the Toronto weather office said that prospects for a White Christmas are good for most localities in Ontario.

Some areas will get continuous snow, starting this afternoon or evening. Periods of snow also were forecast for Central and Northern Ontario.

Across the country the annual hope for a white Christmas may be generally fulfilled. The prairie provinces and northwestern Ontario already have a coating of fresh snow and the Eastern Ontario and Quebec were still hoping. The Maritimes are too.

Only Vancouver has been colder than usual lately but the predictions are for generally normal temperatures there except in the Maritimes and northern Quebec.

Ontario has been quivering with the cold but the temperature is expected to improve by Christmas. The picture is much the same in Alberta.

Across Canada late shoppers are turning out in greater numbers than ever before in many centres. The exception is Toronto, where there are only "just as many late shoppers as ever."

U.S. Reporter Under Order to Get Out of Cuba

HAVANA (AP) — Reporter James Buchanan today was under orders to get out of Cuba after being convicted of helping an American escape from a Cuban prison. He was expected to take the first available plane for Miami.

A five-man military court in Pinar del Rio sentenced the Miami Herald correspondent Tuesday night, given him a suspended sentence of 14 years and ordered him deported within 24 hours.

"That's great," said Buchanan, 43, who left for Havana to catch a plane. He had been charged "with concealing facts about the escape earlier this month of Frank Austin Young of Miami, who broke out of a Pinar del Rio prison after being sentenced to 30 years in prison for leading an armed anti-Castro band.

Buchanan interviewed Young before the latter was recaptured. The newspaper man was arrested as he approached Young's hotel room blindfolded with bandages for the fugitive's lighted face.

Ed Minal, Lee Hills, executive editor of the Herald and the Knight Newspapers, said his organization is "absolutely convinced" Buchanan "was guilty of nothing except covering a legitimate news story in Cuba."

The five - man military court was hastily summoned Tuesday although other tribunals were in recess for the Christmas holidays. Earlier in the day the U.S. state department sent a note to the Cuban ministry of state protestably requesting expeditious handling of Buchanan's case. The trial lasted only a few hours.

The prosecution asked for a 30-year sentence. But Oscar Fernandez Jordan, the civilian prosecutor, said Prime Minister Fidel Castro's regime would "show its benevolence by deporting" Buchanan.

He accused the editors of The Herald of sending Buchanan to Cuba to help Young flee the country.

Buchanan, taking the stand in his own defence, denied aiding Young to escape. He said he brought him sandwiches only as a humanitarian gesture. Young, who also claimed Buchanan tried to help his escape, must stand trial next year for his jailbreak.

Struck by Car

STRATFORD (CP) — James Williams, 68, a St. Paul's farm worker, was killed Tuesday when struck by a car six miles south of here. Driver of the car was Leslie Francis of Cloverdale.

UNION JACK FLIES AGAIN

AIRD, Egypt (Reuters)—The Union Jack flew over the British Embassy in Cairo again Monday as the building reopened for business for the first time since the Anglo-French invasion of Suez in November, 1956. Diplomatic relations were restored earlier this month.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP), Synopsis: — Cloudiness and snow associated with a storm in southern Manitoba is gradually approaching southwestern Ontario and will extend to overrun most of the lower lakes area by Thursday morning. Periods of snow are also forecast for Central and Northern Ontario.

Temperatures are moderating but are not expected to go above zero much during the next few days. Consequently prospects for a white Christmas with seasonable temperatures are still good for most localities in the province.

WESTERN ALLIES STILL SPLIT ON 4 MAJOR ISSUES

Military Policy Still Being Debated

PARIS (AP)—In the wake of the Western summit and NATO talks in Paris, the major Western allies are still far from unified on four major issues they must negotiate with the Soviet Union. And mutually prominent over the military policy of the Atlantic alliance itself.

The Western Big Four set a pattern for negotiation with the Russians that might go on for years. But their decision is clearly only the beginning of a beginning.

President Eisenhower and de Gaulle, Prime Minister Macmillan and Chancellor Adenauer either failed—or did not try—to resolve any differences on basic issues they intend to discuss with Nikita Khrushchev. Instead, they confined their efforts to work on building a common front for the proposed April 27 encounter with the Soviet premier. Leading diplomats confidently expect that the negotiations have four months to resolve the conflicts.

The balance sheet of the Paris exchanges, based on what high officials have told reporters, is revealed, shows:

Berlin: In meetings after 1960, Eisenhower, de Gaulle and Adenauer regard the suggested April conference as a probing exercise to establish whether Khrushchev is ready to give as well as take. But Macmillan believes he has won the agreement of his partners to go on trying, even if the first session's results are slim.

A stopgap Berlin deal: Eisenhower and Macmillan consider that although they do not say so out loud, that this offers the best chance of a new agreement at the summit. They are ready to renew in part the West made in the 1958 Geneva foreign ministers' conference, which included a ceiling on armed forces in the divided city and a ban on propaganda broadcasts by Ulbricht and Adenauer disagree.

Disarmament: Eisenhower, Macmillan and—to a lesser extent — de Gaulle, believe this offers the best field for negotiation over a long period. Adenauer does not rate the chance of success too high. There is no agreement on the program to be submitted.

East-West relations: Allied experts failed to agree on what the four Western governments' chiefs meant in offering this subject for the summit discussion. Strictly speaking it might mean relations between Red China and other topics that generate more heat than light.

Atlantic alliance affairs: De Gaulle is still playing odd man out on French atomic plans by Eisenhower and Macmillan, he opposes American-manufactured nuclear rockets on his soil, to put Frenchmen under the NATO command and to limit military commitments. For their part, Eisenhower and Macmillan refuse to give way to de Gaulle's demand for a greater share in global policy-making.

'New Winch' as Socialist as Ever Despite Warning Against Strikes

VANCOUVER (CP) — Harold Winch says he is just as much a socialist as ever. But his emphasis has changed.

"We have to be up to what is taking place in the rest of the world," he said. "We are an exporting nation and the Canadian public in particular is an exporting people.

Mr. Winch, a founder of the CCF party and a socialist representative for Vancouver East constituency in the B.C. legislature for Parliament for 27 years, was discussing in an interview his recent three-month trip around the world to Australia and the Far East and speeches he has made since his return.

He said the tour, made by him as a member of Canada's delegation to the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association conference in Australia, was a revealing education The group toured Australia for five weeks, then accepted official invitations to visit Indonesia and Israel.

In between, they spent nearly three weeks visiting Malaya, Singapore, Thailand, Pakistan and Iran. Mr. Winch returned home via the United Kingdom.

"It was a business trip and I spent 16 hours a day seven days a week searching out the people and the conditions."

When Mr. Winch returned to Canada he addressed many startled friends and foes alike. Newspapers called him a "new Harold Winch."

In the speech the 59-year-old Vancouver-born Canadian said that unless they "smarten up" in demands for high profits and wages they will lose world markets. He said that everywhere he went he was told that Canada, and B.C. in particular, were considered unstable. B.C. was referred to as the place "where you have all the strikes." He had learned that imports from Canada and B.C. were being cut off or drastically reduced.

Some employers applauded Mr. Winch.

Pope in Christmas Message Issues Call to World Leaders To Fashion Everlasting Peace

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John said in a Christmas message to the world today that "things and institutions exist for man; not man for them."

The Communist way of life was an obvious target of the 78-year-old Pontiff's Catholic spirit, though he did not mention communism by name, in a speech delivered in peace and the issues they see in its path.

Underlining a new call for world leaders to fashion a true peace, he said it "cannot be based on the mutual and reciprocal respect for the dignity of man."

"The disturbances which unsettled the internal peace of nations trace their origins chiefly to this source, that a man has been treated exclusively as a machine, a piece of merchandise, a thing to be used as a mere machine, a mere productive power," he said.

Obviously referring to President Eisenhower's ill-action peace tour and other recent international developments, he said "the hearts of men are filled with anxiety and an atmosphere of so-called disengagement which has caused hopes to blossom anew in many minds."

He described the International basis of peace as "above all, truth."

The Pontiff had blessed the president's mission when he received Eisenhower in an audience Dec. 6, at the outset of the president's tour.

The pontiff said the Roman Catholic Church "vies with few others in every initiative which can help spare humanity new conflict, new massacres, new destruction beyond calculation."

"There is not a state of war, he said, "but neither is there peace."

The Pope spoke in Italian in response to Christmas greetings from the College of Cardinals. His message was broadcast by the Vatican radio and various European networks.

Pope John, again without naming communism, referred sadly to what Pope Pius XII, his predecessor, described as "the church of silence" in Communist-ruled lands. He declared the church "has members in lands where its rights would hold firm.

"It cannot be soiled," he said.

'Dry Spell' of 42 Years Ends in Saskatchewan Today

SASKATOON (CP)—A 42-year "dry spell ends in Saskatchewan today.

In 1917 the provincial legislature passed a law outlawing consumption of liquor, the same year prohibition hit the United States.

Today, for the first time since 1917, citizens could legally sit in a restaurant and drink wine or beer with their meals.

The occasion was the opening by a Saskatoon restaurant of its first licensed dining room.

Before 1917, alcohol was widely consumed in Saskatchewan, then a boom province. As thousands of homesteaders moved in after the First World War, a strong temperance movement began.

Anti - drinking laws were enforced strictly until 1948 when the Liberal government established Beer parlors — for men only — began to open. It wasn't until this year that the issue of drinking with food and beer by the glass was put to the voters.

They were given chance to approve mixed drinking in licensed premises, licensed restaurants, cocktail bars and clubs. Veiled in this city of more than 71,000 population and in Regina was held last summer. In most smaller communities it was held during municipal elections Nov. 30.

The "dry" vote was carried in the majority of cities and villages, Saskatoon and Regina, however.

In Regina—with a population of more than 58,000 — earlier this month three hotels began operating beverage rooms where mixed drinking is allowed. Saskatoon is not expected to have mixed drinking until later this year.

But Saskatoon took a had the first restaurant with a liquor licence. The only pioneer restaurateur Jim Crooker—to serve beer, wine and spirits. Liquor can be served only with meals and the quantity is governed by the size of the meal ticket.

Diefenbaker and Smallwood Top News-Makers This Year

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canada's top news-makers in 1959 were John Diefenbaker and Joseph R. Smallwood.

The Canadian Press poll, telegraph editors of Canada's daily newspapers were evenly divided on the question of the year's newsiest personality.

For every vote naming the prime minister to repeat—he was the overwhelming choice last year—there was a balancing vote for the irrepressible premier of Newfoundland.

The two were sharp antagonists during the year on the question of grants to Newfoundland. The provincial premier also took the limelight early in the year with controversial labor legislation, but in September won a sweeping election victory.

It was the first time that votes in the CP poll ended in a tie.

There was no such stand-off in choosing the year's newsiest figure. It was Nikita Khrushchev by a mile. Fidel Castro, President Eisenhower, Charles de Gaulle (last year's winner) and Prime Minister Macmillan got scattered votes.

Finance Minister Fleming, Lib-Premier Paul Sauvé, External Affairs Minister Green and Mrs. Whyte were among Canadians with some support.

Found Dead

GALT (CP)—Eric C. Johnson, 57, was found dead Tuesday, slumped behind the steering wheel of his car, its engine still running. The car had glanced off the side of a cement bridge and piled into a tree. A doctor attributed Johnson's death to a heart attack.

UNION SETTLES TRANSIT DISPUTE WITH COMMISSION

Rush-Hour Buses Now Operating

TORONTO (CP)—Full transit services, disrupted since last week, are to be restored here today following a contract settlement between the Toronto Transportation Commission and the Street Railway Employees' Union (CLC).

The deadlocked contract negotiations were resumed Tuesday at the request of the commission, after slowdown tactics by bus and streetcar drivers had made travelling late for work an ulcer a quarter of the vehicles idle during rush hours.

The drivers refused to work rush-hour overtime, insisted on a maximum 40-hour-and-a-half basis, is a show of dissatisfaction over progress of contract negotiations.

The TTC last week made a "final" offer of a 6-cent-an-hour increase over three years in six four-cent stages. The union had asked for 8½ cents over two years. Present rate for operators is $2 an hour.

The wage offer accepted by the union's negotiating committee and ratified by the executive board is reported to be an improvement on the TTC's "take-it-or-leave-it" proposal, but specific terms were not released.

The union's 4,200 members, including 2,600 drivers and motormen, will vote on the offer in a referendum next week. A membership meeting to discuss the contract will be held Sunday.

Commission members, headed by chairman Charles Dalton, took part in Tuesday's discussions. Mr. Dalton said each of the items in the dispute was discussed in detail.

Union executive members made the rounds of all TTC garages Tuesday night to urge operators to report for extra rush-hour duties in the morning.

More Mountain Slides Promised

CANOE, B.C. (CP) — The Trans-Canada highways department spokesman said Tuesday's two slides, which left a scar 300 feet high on Mount Ida on the face of Mount Vella in the Monashee Pass 200 miles east of here, could have been cleared by Christmas.

An inspection of the area was scheduled for today but if rock is still falling no workmen will be ordered to safety.

The slides, which uprooted trees and sheared part of the steep mountain face, left a 75-foot gap in the 400-foot level of the 4,200-foot mountain. A choking cloud of dust rose 300 feet in the air.

4,000 Greet Ike With Sparklers On Arrival Home After Midnight

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower relaxed at Gettysburg this morning after his 19-day tour of personal diplomacy. But they weren't all roses that greeted Eisenhower and his 19-day tour of personal diplomacy. But they weren't all roses that greeted Eisenhower and his wife when they arrived home in the early hours of the morning.

A shivering but enthusiastic crowd shouted welcome as the president drove into the White House grounds shortly after midnight. They ended a 22,000-mile trip, mostly by jet plane, that took them to 11 lands and Eisenhower to three continents. It was the longest trip ever taken by a president and his wife in office.

The welcoming delegation, estimated by police at almost 4,000, was far short of the million that greeted Eisenhower on his 1945 ticker tape parade in Washington. But they turned out in a serenade of Christmas Carols.

Half an hour earlier, a smaller official delegation met the presidential aircraft, the Columbine, at Andrews Air Force base some 15 miles away. Waiting at the big jet plane touched down after a seven-hour flight from Rome were Mrs. Eisenhower, Vice-President Nixon, cabinet officers, members of the diplomatic corps and other officials.

The president greeted them, saying that everywhere he went he was given a message of Merry Christmas and love to his people.

He promised a fuller, though still brief, report on his travels when he formally lights the national Christmas tree on the White House grounds late today. The president appeared to have withstood the rigors of his pilgrimage better than many of those who accompanied him. "He's in better shape than we are," commented James Hagerty, White House press secretary.

After Christmas at the White House with his wife, Eisenhower probably will leave this weekend for his Augusta, Ga., vacation cottage and remain there almost until time for the session of Congress starting Jan. 6.

Collision Rained Flaming Death On Brazil Suburb

Airliner, Military Plane Hit Over Rio de Janeiro

RIO de JANEIRO, Brazil (CP) — A military plane on training manoeuvres and a four-engined Viscount airliner collided above this capital city of Brazil Tuesday, killing all 32 persons aboard the airliner and taking a toll of possibly 30 persons on the ground as flaming death rained on a residential suburb below.

Eastern news agency reported that 30 persons were feared killed in four houses destroyed by the wreckage of the two planes. The lone survivor of the two planes was the pilot of the military craft who parachuted to safety.

The collision occurred over the suburb of Boa Sucesso, near Rio's Galeo International Airport.

Army helicopters were used to rescue some of the victims, scattered over a wide area.

ON WAY TO SAO PAULO

The Rio - Sao Paulo-bound Viscount, owned by Viacao Aerea Sao Paulo, was flying from Rio to Sao Paulo with 26 passengers and crew members, including a stewardess, when it was hit by the trainer.

Prominent Brazilians among the dead passengers included Otavio Tarquinio de Sousse, historian and journalist; Benjamin Soares Cabello, former president of the Brazilian Central Agency; and Luciano Carneiro and Lucio Miguel Pereira, both feature writers for the magazine Cruzeiro.

There were no North American citizens aboard.

The passage on the ground left six children in one house missing. Ten persons were buried under the debris of three other houses and others walking on the street were hit. Seven persons, two of them severely injured, were taken to hospital.

The military pilot who survived told reporters that he had received permission for a solo training flight in an area reserved for military planes. He said he knew the Viscount.

This was the third disaster for VASP within the last 12 months. On Sept. 23 a VASP twin-engined airliner crashed while taking off from Sao Paulo, killing 15 passengers and four crew members. Last December another VASP Scandia plunged into the sea. Eighteen of the nine aboard were unknown.

Hermon Hartin, Erinsville, Fatally Hurt

An Erinsville man identified as Hermon Hartin, 54, was fatally injured this morning during his half-ton pickup truck skidded out of control into the side of a log truck about half a mile south of Tweed on Highway 37.

The man died en route to Belleville General Hospital.

Police said Mr. Hartin was driving north toward Tweed when he either suffered a seizure or had his truck go out of control. The vehicle reversed to the left side of the road and then skidded broadside into a southbound truck loaded with logs. Both vehicles turned over and partly blocked the highway.

Provincial Police from Madoc investigated the accident, assisted by Chief Wafer Higgins of Tweed, Coroner Dr. S. Berry of Tweed attended at the scene.

Kiwanians Hear Salvation Army Choir in Carols

Belleville Kiwanians were treated to an excellent vocal and instrumental Christmas program presented by six members of the Salvation Army Male Voice Party at the regular weekly meeting at the Kiwanis Centre yesterday.

The half-hour musical program was under the direction of Major Victor Greenwood of the Salvation Army Citadel, who gave a brief Christmas message and acted as master of ceremonies for the program.

In his brief address Major Greenwood urged Kiwanians not to lose sight of the "miracle of Christmas."

"There are many miracles connected with Christmas — the virgin birth, the celestial host to announce the birth to the shepherds, the star that led the Wise Men to the child in Bethlehem," he said.

"It's still a miracle working power in life . . . the transforming miracle in the Babe in Bethlehem's stall to bring about in us a spiritual rebirth," he stated.

Instrumental Christmas music played by the Salvation Army group included the familiar "Good Christian Men Rejoice," "Luther's Cradle Hymn," "O Little Town of Bethlehem," and "Silent Night," with Bandsman Tonking in the last two carols.

The S.A. Male Voice Party also rendered several well-known and traditional carols, "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear," "Hail Smiling Morn," "We Three Kings of Orient Are," and "As With Gladness."

Kiwanian Dr. Bob Brain read a letter of appreciation to Christmas cheer children, entitled, "The Black Madonna."

At the conclusion of the yuletide program, president Gerry Hall presented the Male Voice on behalf of the club to Major Greenwood and the Male Voice Party.

Members present were Sally Ann Herbert Wood, choir leader, George Hilsbury, Art Briggs, Bob Leagh, Stan Lounels, and Jack Hatfield.

MADE HONORARY MEMBER

Prior to the program, local Safety Official Cpl. Thomas Robson, was made an honorary member of the Belleville Kiwanis Club.

The honor was bestowed on the popular "man in blue" for his service to the community in carrying out city-wide safety programs.

President Whitbeck, in presenting Sgt. Robson with his Kiwanis lapel pin and certificate, noted it was particularly fitting since one of the Kiwanis objectives for 1940 is to "generate individual concern for safety" to improve traffic laws and their effective enforcement.

Travelogue chairman, Dr. Bob Brain, presented the club with a chorus for $1,000 from the Mayor's Travelogue series, the club's major fund-raising project here.

The only guest this week was Lloyd Morrison, Q.C., a newcomer to the city who will be inducted next week.

At the conclusion of the meeting, which was under the chairmanship of retiring president Gerry Whitbeck, district safety literature was distributed by Sgt. Robson, and Leo McKee, chairman of the Kiwanis safety committee.

High School Activities

By TRINA JANITCH

The beauty and impressiveness of the annual Glee Club Christmas Musicale is rapidly becoming a Belleville byword, and last Sunday's performance certainly showed why. This year's magnificent pageant depicting the Nativity scene was combined with vocal and instrumental numbers, all in the Christmas spirit. Community singing as another enjoyable feature of the afternoon. The beautiful duet, "Silent Night," Templer and Mrs. Bays along with the cast, are to be congratulated on a very fine show. Special mention, too, should be made of Lynn Punchard and Sue-Anne Wallace who gave especially good performances.

Everyone loves to sing Christmas songs. For proof of that statement, look no further than the BCIVS auditorium. The Keynote-Carol Sing has been in full swing each noon hour, and one look at the faces of the crowd has shown that everyone has been enjoying himself tremendously. The Keynote is popularity does a wonderful service to the school in giving students this opportunity.

This year's school dances have also been successful, and the Art Club's "Hallo Boys" was certainly no exception. Just the right-sized crowd (filling the gym but leaving room to dance) enjoyed themselves dancing to records and to the Pharoahs, who seem on their way to becoming a BCI Friday dance custom. The Pharoahs are a good group, but the city has other fine combos; and variety clubs take note — is the spice of life and of dances.

Contrary to a statement made in this column a few weeks ago, Ontario hockey is still very much with us. The Upper School hockey schedules were played off in a sudden death game last Friday, with Bob Dolan's team losing to Morton's. Lower school floor hockey has now become the order of the day, with one many noon-hours of thrills ahead of them.

The first venture of the three BCIVS basketball teams in exhibition game with Kingston has given us great hopes for an exciting season.

Although only the junior team was victorious, all three squads showed much potential and should put up a thrilling fight for the district champions' ship and the right to go to COSSA.

Merry Christmas everyone from the Belleville Collegiate.

Branch Receives Final Payment From Fund

Next year the Belleville branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society expects to receive only 80 per cent of its budget from the United Appeal.

This was disclosed at a meeting of the executive committee of the local branch held recently.

The meeting was under the chairmanship of branch president Arnold Wetherspoon.

The final instalment from the 1958 United Appeal campaign has been received, bringing the total to slightly over 99 per cent of the amount requested from the campaign for this year.

It was announced that Canadian Red Cross Society headquarters in Toronto has stated that no used clothing is to be handled by the various branches for any purpose.

The branch expects some 200 blood donors to attend a blood donor clinic on January 8th at Tiatawa, Ont. Belleville Red Cross workers will staff, the clinic.

Peppery Senator Trains Guns on American Legion

NEW YORK (CP)—A peppery, 70-year-old Democratic congressman has caused a lot of ears to perk up with his salty comments both off and on the floor of Congress since he was elected senator last year.

Senator Stephen M. Young of Ohio says that although the United States has recovered somewhat from the era of "witch-hunts, the so-called McCarthyism," it must take a generation to remove all the "rubbish" of that period.

His latest remarks on what he calls "well-organized partisan" were made in a dinner speech here last week. He was reportedly not a favorite of legion critics who had scolded him for planning to speak before a group labelled by the House of Representatives committee on un-American activities as a Communist front.

Young, a combat veteran of both world wars and a legionnaire himself, not only delivered the speech but even included a denunciation of the evils of communism—but it had some choice words for his adversaries.

OPINION DIFFERS

The Hamilton County (Cincinnati) unit of the legion at first had adopted a resolution censuring Young for agreeing to appear before the Democratic-controlled Emergency Civil Liberties Committee.

The committee, consisting of 90 members appointed by Democratic Speaker Sam Rayburn, is devoted to constitutional guarantees. Both the House committee and the state liberal security subcommittees have called it subversive without giving specifics but it is not included on the U.S. attorney-general's list of subversive organizations.

Harvey O'Connor, author, is chairman of the committee, Carlos Lamont, writer and lecturer, is vice-chairman.

Young called the Cincinnati legionnaires a bunch of "selfappointed, publicity-seeking professional veterans" who have "the effrontery" to try to censure a U.S. senator.

Former Student Gives $500,000 To Building Fund

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Mrs. Josephine S p e n c e r Niblett of Toronto has given $500,000 to the University of Western Ontario here, for the $5,000,000 the university's building fund.

The gift was announced Tuesday by Col. D. B. Weldon, chairman of the board of governors.

Mrs. Niblett is a former member of the Spencer family to make a large contribution to the university.

Her brother, Maj.-Gen. Alexander Ross Ivey, has contributed $500,000 and his wife, Mrs. Barbara Ivey, another $100,000.

University president Dr. G. P. Hall said Mrs. Niblett's gift will enable the university to proceed immediately with another phase in the building program.

J. R. White, chairman of the building fund campaign, said the gift will be of immense help in promoting liberal education in this country.

Mrs. Niblett was born in London and lived there until her marriage to Frederick Rand Niblett.

She has been active in service, cultural and social organizations in Hamilton. For years she was president of the boys' home of Hamilton. She is an honorary life member and a financial supporter of the Wentworth Historical Society and honorary president and a benefactor of the Hamilton branch of the National Ballet Guild.

Mrs. Niblett and her brother together provided the funds for the W i l l i a m Melville Spencer Memorial Pool, named after their father, at the university.

Christmas Messages From Trenton Air Station

Group Captain D. J. Williams, Commanding Officer RCAF Station Trenton.

"As 1959 draws to a close, we can all look back on a year marked by progress, not only on a national scale, but most especially in our community as well.

"With the transfer of Air Transport Command to Trenton, a whole new organization has been established, and the Quinte area as the hub of its operations. This has created a spontaneous reaction to this coming together of groups working toward a common goal. This came in the form of the RCAF Ball held at the Trenton Golf and Country Club earlier this month, an occasion which will be repeated early in the New Year with the RCAF acting as hosts.

"It is hoped that the spirit of co-operation and enthusiasm displayed so far will continue in years to come. Using this as a keynote, I should like to offer the Station personnel and citizens of the Quinte area my sincerest wishes for a Merry Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year."

Group Captain T. A. Sproston, Commanding Officer No. 5 Repair Depot.

"It would like to extend to all the warmest of Christmas greetings and a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

It is customary at this time of year to reflect in retrospect the events of the past year to assess our achievements and review our plans of the year to come.

1959 has presented on many occasions, challenges which at the time seemed difficult, these challenges have been met with determination and resourcefulness and our tasks have been completed satisfactorily.

I know the challenges of 1960 will be met with the same spirit of determination.

Let us remember that the responsibility sits with us all for a joyful, accident-free holiday season.

Let me wish you all the best wishes for a Happy and Prosperous New Year."

Air Commodore F. R. Carpenter Air Officer Commanding Air Transport Command

"This year has been an important milestone in Canada's defence history. Golden Jubilee Powered Flight and the 35th Anniversary of the Royal Canadian Air Force.

For Air Transport Command, too, 1959 has been a year of important accomplishment. As an eventful year draws to a close, everyone connected with Air Transport Command can justly feel a glow of pride at what has been accomplished. In the past months our strength has more than doubled and we have taken many stations and units to our establishment. Further, the direct the normal activities of our Command were not disrupted during the transfer, as speaks volumes for the capabilities of officers and airmen and the women of Air Transport Command. No Air Force, or any unit thereof, is stronger than those who man it. It is a privilege for me to be a part of such a unit and it is a source of great satisfaction to know that the high calibre of the men and women who form it.

Our command, perhaps more than any other, has a close and enduring association with Christmas and the Christmas spirit. Officers and airmen of the Command are serving near the very birthplace of Christ; our aircraft and our crews are now emulating the venerable Silent Night, Holy Night Christmas cheer to both servicemen and civilians manning our northern outposts.

Here in Trenton civilians and servicemen are forging a bond of good will that emanates from a sincere interest in each other's problems. I know that I speak for all officers, airmen and airwomen of Air Transport Command when I wish our many friends in Trenton and the surrounding community a Merry Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year."

Reuben Herrington, president of the Trenton Lions Club, presents a cheque for $1,000 towards the new Memorial Hospital to Sherman Graham, chairman of the hospital's Board of Directors, while O. M. Newton, campaign manager, looks on approvingly.

Bata Shoe and Lions Club Contribute to Hospital Wing

O. M. Newton, chairman of the fund raising campaign for the proposed $727,000 extension to the Trenton Memorial Hospital announced over the week-end that he has recently received two large financial contributions. One from the Trenton Lions Club for $1,000 and the other from the Bata Shoe Company of Canada for $5,000. Mr. Newton also disclosed there have been other similar donations from individuals and the list of them will be published as the campaign progresses.

Early in the fall in an informal ceremony on the hospital ground Lions President Rube Herrington handed over the club's cheque to the chairman of the hospital board S. O. Graham with the reminder that it was part of the Lions first contribution to the new building program. The Bata Company's leading role in the creation of the Trenton Memorial Hospital. The Lions shared equally with the Trenton Rotary Club in the purchase of the site for the hospital and made many subsequent donations to the worthy cause. The land where the modern Memorial Hospital now stands originally part of the Austin estate became available to the hospital use at a nominal cost. In the meantime the Lions Club has sponsored various projects in aid of the hospital's advancement.

In making the presentation of the gift from the Bata Shoe of Canada at Batawa last Wednesday company vice president and general manager, C. K. Hertz offered words of encouragement for the success of the campaign and voiced hope that the shoe company's expression of financial assistance would be an incentive for future donors.

REALIZE VALUE

Dr. Merz indicate that the Bata people have taken an interest in Trenton hospital affairs because they realize the value of the hospital to the community. Bata Shoe of Canada was the first industry to come forward when public contributions were solicited in 1948.

The building fund committee is committed to collect $112,000, a sum sufficient to complete the extension fully paid for as was the case when the hospital went into operation in 1951.

The cost of the extension, subsequently increased to $737,000. Of this total approximately $450,000 will be provided by grants from provincial and federal governments, the balance to be met by town debentures, $75,000 of savings in the hospital's building fund account. The balance is to be obtained from public subscription.

A credit in the hospital's efficient administration in the last few years is indicated by the fact that under the guiding hand of superintendent Miss S. M. Mackenzie, R.N. elected in the hospital's reserve set aside for the purpose of expansion.

Chairman of the building fund campaign, O. M. Newton became actively engaged in community service work when retiring after 38 years in the dry goods business in Trenton. He was also the organizer and convener of local and district industries.

Toy Drop' Made By Crew From Trenton Station

TRENTON

"Operation Santa Claus" which is currently being carried out by the RCAF in 50 bases and stations in Canada and other parts of the globe where overseas transportation is at a premium has challenged up another "mission completed" for Trenton's Dakota crew. The eighth consecutive annual "Toy Drop" was made by the RCAF Search and Rescue Unit stationed as Goose Bay, Labrador.

Over 4,200 pounds of toys, food and clothing were dropped by a Dakota aircraft to Eskimos living at Nain, Makkovik and Davis Inlet, all in Northern Labrador.

The supplies were collected and packed by the Protestant Women's Guild, and members of the Catholic Holy Family Society with the co-operation and assistance of the unit padre and the Roman Catholic padre, Corporal Don Stanger of Cape Breton Island.

The crew of the Dakota: captain, P/L Don Mowatt, navigator, F/O Norm Clarke, P/L M. Mowatt, of Whitby; navigator, F/O Al Zahl of Fort Colborne; radio officer, Dick Mercer, of Belleville and crew member Cpl. Len McKenzie of Fort William, Ontario.

Eskimo Children Given Party at Resolute Bay

RESOLUTE BAY, N.W.T. (CP) —A scarlet-coated Mountie called her a little Eskimo girl's name, She stepped forward shyly and received a gift from Santa Claus, then joined 50 other children enjoying tea cream, cookies and candies.

"It was the best Christmas party we ever attended," said Idlout, an Eskimo employed at the RCAF station here, describing one of the Yuletide festivities that take place at Resolute Bay on the southern tip of Cornwallis Island.

The party was given for Eskimo children by the personnel of the station here, more than 1,000 miles southeast of Edmonton, inside the Arctic Circle and 1,700 miles southeast of Edmonton.

World Refugee Year Passes Half-Way Mark Unnoticed

By DAVE OANCIA
Canada Press Staff Writer

Almost unnoticed, the half-way mark of the World Refugee Year passed in the midst of preparations for Christmas celebrations.

For most of those fortunate enough to live in countries such as Canada, the United States or Britain, Friday will almost certainly be a day of bounty and good cheer.

But for more than 15,000,000 persons h a r d e d into refugee camps around the globe, Christmas will be a day like any other.

DAYS UNCHANGING

For these there is no difference between today, yesterday or the day before. And there is almost no hope that tomorrow will be any different.

In Britain, two voices were raised on their behalf. Both did so with the reminder that Friday is the birthday of the Prince who preached a message of peace and good will to all men.

"A new generation now is being born in these camps," said Labor-Party leader Hugh Gaitskell in a fund-raising drive for refugees.

"They are without responsibility—a responsibility laid upon us 2,000 years ago by Our Lord—except much as we have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto Me."

The wife of Britain's elder statesman Sir Winston Churchill had one more present to their wife—a present for a refugee in the form of a contribution to the refugee year fund.

The message was graphic. Cartoonist Vicky of The Evening Standard turned from political satire to depict the tragedy that is that of suffering humanity.

In it, a gaunt, bearded figure in hand, crumpled on the desert on a night lit by a prominent Star of the East.

ALL RESPONSIBLE

His caption was from the Gospel of St. Matthew:

"The foxes have holes, and the birds of the air have nests; but the Son of Man hath not where to lay his head."
